BRIGHTON, Aug. 3.—The Novelty Dance held at Presqu'ile Pleasure Palace proved a great success. The pavilion was prettily decorated with evergreens, flags and streamers. Everyone joined in the merriment which the dances provided. The Novelty dances consisted of a broom dance, the dunce cap dance, both ladies' and gentleman's tag, a confetti dance and a lucky number balloon dance. For next Friday evening a complete new set of novelty dances is promised.

SCOTTISH DUCHESS RAVES ABOUT MOVIE

Says Fairbanks Family is Beautifully Kind—Admires Mechanics.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press). — After a trip of nearly eight months round the world the Duchess of Sutherland spent a few days in the city, having just come from Hollywood, Cal., where she was the guest of Douglas Fairbanks and his wife. Interviewed by Augustus Bridle, he asked her if, since she was writing a story for the screen, she liked the moving drama, and she replied:

"Much. I saw a number of pictures being produced and ever so many—in fact, one a night—at the Fairbanks home, of new films not yet distributed. The mechanical side of the thing impressed my bewilderingly; it is on so tremendous a scale, so ingenious, so resourceful, so much like a sort of demon-like magic, and so thorough. And work! Why some of those people work 22 hours a day in a rush. But I had a wonderful time there. The Fairbanks are so beautifully kind. Yes, I met them first in London. When they knew I was in Hollywood they insisted on my staying at their home. Charming people!"

"Is Douglas Fairbanks an interesting personality off-stage—so many engaging screen actors are not?" "Very. He says little. But in action he is so interesting, so very alert and amiable and full of life."

Scottish as a tartan, daughter of a Lord, married to a Duke at 16, mother of two sons born in Scotland—"you see, I am very Scotch," said the Duchess. "I am always proud of my Scottish lineage. I don't know just why, but I had rather be Scotch than anything else in the world."

Much sympathy will be felt for Mr. D. Bertram Nugent, B.A., B.D., of Ottawa, in the sad bereavement caused by the sudden death of his wife on Monday, July 27 following an attack of pneumonia. The late Mrs. Nugent was an Ottawa girl, her maiden name being Vida Augusta Keyes. She was predeceased by her parents several years ago, and besides her sorrowing husband, is survived by two little daughters, Elizabeth and Ruth. One sister and one brother are the remaining members of the family.

Mr. Nugent was born and brought up in Millbrook, and since his marriage had visited here a number of times, his wife winning many warm friends by her attractive personality.

STILL CRITICIZE BALDWIN OVER MINERS' SUBSIDY

August Bank Holiday Did Not Prevent Continuance of Criticism.

DRAFTING DETAILS.

Say Now That Hasty Restoration of Golf Standard Caused the Slump.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press).—The incidence of the popular bank holiday yesterday did not prevent the continuance of adverse criticism of Prime Minister Baldwin's so-called surrender to the trade unionists in the coal miners' dispute.

A curious feature of the situation has been the sudden growth in the amount of criticism of the hasty restoration of gold standard as the main cause for the slump in the coal industry.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill and other Treasury officials are said to be finding great difficulty in drafting details regulating the subvention to mines, which was only hurriedly outlined at the last moment to avoid the stoppage of work, and it is presumed that the final draft will not be ready for debate in Parliament on Thursday.

PANIC FOLLOWS BOAT COLLISION

NO CASUALTIES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press). — Fifteen hundred women and sixty children were thrown into a panic, screaming and threatening to throw themselves into the East River last night, when Helen C. Julliard, the floating "hospital" barge maintained by St. John's Guild, was struck amidships by the passenger liner Van Dyke of the Lamport and Holt Line, near Brooklyn Bridge.

That there was not a greater catastrophe was due largely to the coolness of the tug captain, Peter Johnson, who put on full steam and went ahead, pulling the hospital barge, swarming by this time with screaming and panic-stricken mothers and nurses, into clear water ahead.

These reports are sorted and edited and redistributed by telegraph to all other member papers. Canadian Press never sleeps. Somewhere in Canada there is an edition going to press every hour. Reports are prompt. Canadian Press has no politics. It serves newspapers of all political shades impartially, reports religious and factional disputes and events without bias. "Canadian Press" at the beginning of a despatch is the ear mark of accuracy. Every effort is made to obtain correct reports of even the smallest event. And, what is even more outstanding, when the inevitable mistake occurs Canadian Press is eager to make the correction.

Canadian Press sees both sides of every question, does not seek sensation, and reports events in all parts of the country with equal impartiality.

These press associations bring all the news of the world to the readers of The Examiner. No present day newspaper could function with success without their services.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

Terence Moves On.

Terence awoke in the morning feeling much better than he would have liked to. His hurts of the day before, so well nursed by Mary, had healed to such an extent that they gave him no excuse for remaining in Paradise Canyon. He would have liked to continue his hastily begun and impetuous wooing of Mary, but his host, John Marshall, had made it plain that he would not be a welcome guest any longer than necessary.

"You can take one of our horses," said Marshall at breakfast.

That seemed to settle it. When they had finished the meal three horses were brought, and Terence, Mary and Marshall rode over to the spot where the wrecked plane lay. They found Bud Hughes interestedly tinkering with it. Bud saluted them, and said,

"I learned to fly one of these things myself when I was in the army. Maybe I can fix her up."

"I'm afraid she's a total loss," replied Terence. "But if you can put her together again she's yours, old man—so go to it."

Bud thanked him profusely, and the three rode away toward the secret gap leading out of Paradise Canyon. As they approached the guard, Ramon, with whom Miquel was waiting on horseback, Marshall reined in and produced a bandanna handkerchief.

Terence had been expressing his gratitude to him and Mary.

"That's quite all right, O'Rourke," said Marshall. "We were glad to help you. And now—I can only say that our hospitality can best be repaid by forgetting you ever saw me—or my daughter—or this place we call home."

Terence glanced at Mary, and she lowered her head in agitation. He turned back to Marshall, and said.

"I cannot promise to forget, sir—but I do promise to treasure this chance meeting as a secret all my own."

Marshall showed his gratitude for this promise, and the two men shook hands warmly. Then Marshall handed Terence the bandanna, and he covered his eyes with it and tied it behind his head. When his fingers had completed the knot, he dropped his hand and it came into contact with Mary's, whose pony was close beside him. He closed his hold on her fingers, and leaning in his saddle, smiled, and whispered in her ear—which he located by the soft wisps of her ahir which gently brushed his cheek—

"But, Mary—dear—I'll be psayin' the Saints to be sendin' me back soon—to you."

Mary threw her head back, looked at the sky whence her lover had come, and smiled radiantly. Then she quickly dropped his hand, after giving it a pressure with her own that meant more to him than any words she might have said in reply, and wheeled her horse around.

"All right—Ramon—Miquel," Marshall called

The two servants came up, and Ramon took the bridle rein of the blindfolded Terence's horse.

"Good-by, O'Rourke," cried Marshall.

"Good-by"—from Mary.

Terence echoed their farewell, and lifted his hat in a gesture of adieu, as Ramon and Miquel led him off into the secret passage. Once outside Paradise Canyon they would lead him down the road a ways, remove the handkerchief from his eyes, and leave him to go on his way, with no clew as to how to find the entrance to the canyon again.

Mary was still in the first few minutes' daze of parting so soon from the first lover she had known, when Bud Hughes came running excitedly to her father and her with the news that their prisoner had escaped from the stable.

Marshall's face turned pale with alarm. "This is serious," he said. "He may bring the sheriff right back with him. You must start for the bank with the money at once, Mary. We can't lose a minute.—We'll get the buckboard ready—and Miquel will go with you."

The three rushed off to the stable. By the time they had had the team of horses through the secret passageway and hitched them to the old four-wheeled carryall that they kept hidden outside the valley, Miquel rode in and reported to Marshall.

"He's gone sir—I watched him out of sight."

Marshall nodded, and said,

Mary jumped up onto the seat of the buckboard while her father completed his instructions to Miquel. The Mexican jumped into the driver's seat beside Mary, and Marshall placed the leather bag containing the money in her lap.

"As fast as you can, Miquel," Marshall cried as the buckboard started off toward the gap, Mary waving good-by.

CHAPTER 8.

Over the Dam.

Terence O'Rourke jogged along the trail toward Pico.

He had a mission in this country—a secret mission, the business he had been unwilling to tell Marshall on the day before. The United States government does not share its secrets, even with those who are hospitable to its agents, and Terence was a government ranger on secret service. It was in the performance of his duties on this mission that on the day before he had been shot when he just barely escaped with his life in his plane from a gang of outlaws. The wound that Mary had nursed. He was glad of that wound now.

Mary—Mary. Her name, and her picture, kept passing through his mind as he rode toward town. Temporarily she crowded out of his mind even the duties of his mission. He could think of nothing else but Mary. The clear sky, the sunlight, the green trees, the birds, everything spoke to him of love on this morning.

His reverie was interrupted suddenly by a cloud of dust on the horizon. He pulled up and watched intently. The dust was quickly coming toward him. He pulled his horse aside under cover of the brush, and watched. The sound of hoofs was coming closer. Then a group of four men, riding furiously, tore past him.

In the instant that they were riding by him a flash of recognition had come to him. The man in the lead was the one he had seen captive at the Marshalls' the night before—Buck.

His suspicion that something untoward was under way received confirmation when another mile or so down the road he saw the four men suddenly pull up at a mountain spring, and ambush themselves in the brushwood near it. Terence found another mountain trail leading to a point just above the ambush where, without being seen himself, he could watch down ward from a crag and see whatever took place. He ascended this trail, and reaching the vantage point he desired, dismounted, and watched.

The ambushed men had crept further back into the brush behind the springs, altogether out of sight.

The clatter of hoofs sounded from around a bend in the road in the opposite direction from the springs. A moment later a buckboard, tearing along at great speed, hove into sight. As it came up to the springs, Terence saw the driver pull up, and jump down with a pail to water the horses. His heart beat fast as he caught a glimpse of the buckboard's other occupant—Mary!

Tense for quick action, his nerves now on edge, Terence watched and waited in alarm. The driver, Miquel, was loosening the horses' reins. Then he started off with his pail to get the water from the springs.

Suddenly the hidden band of men charged forth from the brush upon Miquel. Mary screamed in terror. Miquel, hopelessly overhwelmed by his attackers, was fighting back desperately. The horses with the buckboard, frightened, plunged down the road. The reins dangling, Mary was helpless to control the runaways. Down the road the wagon sped, tipping and lurching dangerously.

Terence leaped to his horse, and spurred him down the trail, hoping to intercept the runaway team where the trail met the road.

As the wagon with Mary plunged away from the springs, the attackers dropped the combat with Miquel, leaving him lying, badly beaten, and quickly mounting their horses started in wild pursuit of Mary.

Slipping and sliding perilously down the mountain side, Terence reached the road just too late to stop the runaway. He spurred his horse on, and followed desperately. Behind him the band of desperadoes kept coming on in pursuit.

Suddenly around a bend one side of the road dropped off into a swift rocky incline, facing a dam over which water thundered into a huge reservoir. Terrible forebodings filled Terence's mind. If only the horses would keep well to the closed side of the road, along the face of the mountain, he would be able to catch up with them yet and stop the runaway. But if they lurched too far toward the open side—

A chill of horror ran down his spine as he saw, at the very moment the thought had come into his mind, the buckboard veering on the brink. The rear wheel caught the edge of the open side of the road. The buckboard started sliding down the rocky incline, dragging the horses with it. Mary was clinging desperately to the seat.

Swinging, lurching, toppling, smashing over the rocks, the buckboard, with Mary, horses and all, slid down the incline and on to the steep face of the dam. There, turning over and over, it rolled down and dropped with a huge splash into the rapidly flowing water racing over the rocks below.

YOUR GARDEN

FLAGSTONE WALKS AND STEPPING STONES.

There are many places, even on quite a small property, where flagstones may be used to take the wear and tear of the traffic and bare patches on the lawn thus avoided. They are also extremely artistic and add interest to the grounds but should not be overdone nor allowed to cut up the lawn unnecessarily. Like other walks, they should follow close to the boundaries whenever possible, though in some cases, the stepping stones being less conspicuous, may be used at almost any point.

The flat stones, slabs or flags should be about two or three inches thick and should be laid on a sub-base of cinders not less than six inches deep. Wet the cinders and tramp them to a hard, even surface, over which place one inch of hard sand compacted as a cushion for the flags. For solid walks after the slabs are levelled and firmed, the joints should be pointed with a flat cement mortar joint. If it is desired to have grass between, the joints should be made 2-3 inches wide without mortar. The flags may be cut to rectangular shapes of various sizes or be quite irregular. For broad walks, field stones of various sizes laid in turf are very pleasing.

Stepping stones of local field stone may be laid in a single or double line. The double line to be used for walks of importance and the single line for secondary paths. The stones or slabs should be set into the sod to a depth that will bring them level with the turf, so that the lawn mower may pass over them without injury.

Twenty inches from centre to centre is the best distance and do not use stones less than twelve inches wide or more than eighteen inches. The appearance is improved by varying the stones and not placing those of the same dimensions close together.

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

THE FIRST EXHIBIT OF AN ELEPHANT IN AMERICA

When the circus comes to town and the call of the sawdust proves irresistible, what part of the circus do you look forward to seeing with most enthusiasm? Surely not the sleight-of-hand artist. You can catch him at his tricks in the two-a-day any time of the year. The dancers and the fat ladies can also be viewed at the Summer resorts. But where, oh, where, can you find an elephant outside of the circus?

The appearance of the large, awesome beasts at the head of the triumphal circus procession is the cue for wild shouts of joy by every youngster present. And when the circus leaves town, and the last tent is taken up, the lingering farewells are made, not to the tight-rope walker or the bearded sword-swallower, but to the placid elephants, who go on their way carelessly indifferent to the joy or sorrow of those he leaves behind.

No trip to the East is complete without a reference to the thrillingadventures among the elephants of India. The popular notion about elephants is derived from the courts and camps of the East. They are, rightly enough, believed to play a prominent part in the reviews, durbars and other solemn pageants in which Oriental magnificence is seen side by side with Western symmetry and order. But most people are not aware that the elephant plays an important part in the exciting tiger hunts for which the Orient is famous. The hunter, in most instances, is safely seated in a howdah on the back of an elephant, and from that secure vantage point he takes aim.

It is not widely known that the elephant is a beast much employed for domestic purposes, and is maintained all over India by native gentlemen who never faced a tiger or handled a gun. Englishmen engaged in commercial or agricultural pursuits in the interior of the country find such an animal to be well worth his keep in many ways. It brings in the collections of rent from an out-station to headquarters. It takes important letters or supplies right across country. And it will carry half a dozen servants, with bed, baggage and cooking apparatus, to any place where these adjuncts cannot readily be obtained.

Of course, this holds true only in countries where transportation facilities are very poor, and where the inhabitants are not driven by necessity to negotiate their business in a leisurely fashion.

The first elephant ever exhibited in America caused much excitement and comment. On July 28, 1796, an advertisement printed in the Philadelphia Aurora announced its arrival thus:

". . . from New York in this city, on his way to Charleston. He possesses the Adroitness of the Beaver, the Intelligence of the Ape and the Fidelity of the Dog. He is the largest among Quadrupeds, the earth trembles under his feet; he has the power of tearing up the largest trees and yet is tractable to those who use him well. This Elephant now offered for public Exhibition is about three years old and nearly six feet high. He is of the largest species, growing to the height of sixteen feet. He was purchased in New York for Ten Thousand Dollars."

People came from all over the country to witness this remarkable phenomenon, whose diverse virtues and defects were proudly explained to them by an arrogant trainer. Grown people were charged half a dollar and children a quarter to see this great sight.

The first elephant to be exhibited in England was brought over on November 29, 1701, and created quite a furore. This was undoubtedly the same elephant who went mad and had to be killed. Since that time few jungle beasts were imported into England until the arrival of the much-heralded elephant in America.

Curiosity gets them all, sooner or later.

One of the finest golfers I know, who plays around in a little under eighty and "keeps his eye on the ball," came and asked me, the other day on the golf course, "what kind of a bird is it that runs along the road, on the way between the club and town? It has a habit of waiting until we are almost on top of it and then it dashes into the air and to one side, showing white tail feathers."

When I asked my friend some more questions, he remembered that it was about the size of a sparrow and that the white tail feathers were the ones on the sides of the tail.

That bird is the Vesper Sparrow. It is a sparrow size and generally dull brownish in colour, with the white sides to the tail, flashed when flying off the road.

After the game, my Vesper sparrow golfer took me over to the seventeenth hole again, which was not far from a fence and ditch. There, he pointed out a nice little nest in a tuft of grass, lined with fine grass and hair and four brown spotted eggs in it.

"And not a soul but myself knows it is there," said he, "Unless some other golfer just chanced upon it, and if so, he is also hugging the secret to himself."

The whole point of it is this: That bird—the road habit of almost getting run over, the accidental discovery of a nest of that very bird and other golf course incidents connected with it—raised such a curiosity in that man, that he just had to get the right dope on that little creature. And, having learned one simple truth of nature, he is reading and watching for more, getting a good kick out of the trip along the road in his car.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A WAY TO FIGHT OFF BRONCHITIS DANGER

Each age group has its peculiar susceptibilities. Babies are most seriously affected by colds and their results. In middle life, pneumonia is a terrible harvester of deaths.

In advanced life, bronchitis is a common affliction and very difficult to control. In babies, too, bronchitis is a serious ailment.

The windpipe divides into two tubes when it reaches the lungs. These divisions are called the bronchi. Each bronchus divides and redivides, branching out like the limbs and twigs of a tree. The smallest of the bronchi are very small indeed, almost like the tiny blood vessels, the capillaries.

Inflammation of the lining membrane of the bronchi is called "bronchitis." When it reaches down into the tiny branches, it is called "capillary bronchitis." The latter trouble is really a form of pneumonia, called by the doctors "broncho-pneumonia."

Some persons are peculiarly liable to attacks of bronchitis. This is true of indoor workers. Indeed it is rare to find attacks of bronchitis in persons who love and live in the out-of-doors.

It is rare for the first symptoms to appear in the throat or chest. First, there is a common cold, with running of the nose, perhaps with sore throat. Then come on hoarseness, wheezing, difficult breathing and pain in the chest and back.

There may be some fever. Cough appears. At first it is dry, then it becomes "productive"—that is, mucus is raised after coughing.

After the secretions become abundant and are easily coughed up, the discomfort disappears. The looser the cough the less the trouble annoys the patient.

In young people, the ailment clears up in a week, or ten days. In old people, however, it hangs on, possibly for months

In acute cases the victim should go to bed. Hot drinks and a mustard plaster on the chest will help a lot. Your doctor will prescribe the remedies.

Fresh air, ventilation of the sleeping and working rooms, simple food, sunlight, lots of sleep—all these fundamental things will help to guard against bronchitis. Bad teeth, bad tonsils, and chronic running ear—all of these are things to get rid of, because they furnish the germs to set up trouble when the powers of resistance are low

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. J. W. G. Q.—My little girl had a cold in her head and now she does not seem to be able to hear very well. What can I do for her?

A.—This may be due to nasal catarrh that has settled in the ear. It would be wise to consult an ear specialist and be guided by his advice.

2.—What can I do for dandruff and falling hair?

A.—Shampoo the hair frequently and use a good tonic. For further particulars, send a stamped, self-addrdssed envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

MR. D. L. Q.—What is low blood pressure and what causes it?

A.—This condition is usually found accompanying such diseases as infection, fever, anemia, diabetes, shock, general debility and auto-intoxication.

If any of these conditions are present, treatment should be outlined by the family doctor. In many instances, treatment over a short period of time eradicates all symptoms.

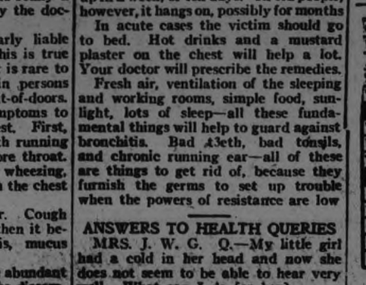
TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5.

According to the predominant astral activities this may be a day of irritating and annoying conditions, precipitated mainly by the general tendency to quarrels and strife, as well as to rash and impetuous deals. To overcome disagreeable situations it is enjoined that great control be exercised over tongue and temper. It is also enjoined that precautions be taken against fire, and that new projects and all manner of speculation be avoided, as the financial prospects are weak.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for the utmost self-control, as rash and quarrelsome conduct may cause all manner of trouble. Also it is urged that all kinds of financial hazard or speculation be shunned. A child born on this day may be disposed to be rash, impetuous and ungovernable, as well as a spendthrift in money matters. It should be given early training and discipline in order to offset these qualities. It may be subject to deception and much opposition in life.



SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS LEARNS SOMETHING NEW ABOUT ANTS.

My, how Doris laughed when Towser, her pet dog, jumped up out of a sound sleep and turned around and around on the back porch.

"Why, Towser, what in the world ails you?" she laughed, patting the yellow dog's head. "Did you have a bad dream, old boy?"

"Dream nothing," barked Towser. "Don't you see that ant? The horrid old thing. I hate them."

"I can't see why you should hate me," laughed a tiny voice and Mrs. Ant sat up on her hind legs and wiggled her feelers. "I haven't harmed you, have I?"

Towser barked and stepped back.

"Not yet and I'm not going to give you the chance," he barked again.

"Oh, you poor, silly doggy," laughed Doris, "Such a big fellow like you afraid of so tiny a creature as Mrs Ant. She's too small to harm anyone."

"Hum," mused Towser, backing off again, "Don't you believe it. Mrs. Ant has two ways of making dogs uncomfortable."

"Towser is right, Doris," laughed Mrs. Ant. "I have three ways of making my enemies retreat. See these jaws of mine?" and she opened her mouth and showed Doris her strong jaws. "I can bite real hard with them when I have to. Then, right here," and Mrs. Ant lifted up her little body and showed Doris the very tip-end of it, "I have a terrible sting right there and when I'm forced to use it, I just grab the fellow I wish to sting with my strong jaws, lift my body up on my hind legs, swing the part of the body with the stinger in it under, and sting my enemy hard. Of course, it doesn't hurt people very much, but it will kill some of my enemies.

"Why, Towser, What Ails You?"

"Must have poison in it, then," said Doris. "No wonder Towser backs away from you."

"Sure it has poison in it," replied Mrs. Ant. "The sting is really made in three parts. There is the needle case that holds the needle, the needle itself and the little sack that holds the poison."

"Yes, but that stuff you throw out bothers me more than anything else," growled Towser. "Why, the other day when I spied your ant hill——"

"You mean, you started to dig it up," chuckled Mrs. Ant. "I did throw out my ant acid in your face. We have to do something like that to keep the dogs and cats from tearing up our houses. You surely did sneeze too, didn't you?"

"Not only sneezed, but my eyes smarted for ever so long afterward," growled Towser. "You needn't worry, I'll never disturb another ant hill. I don't like your ant acid."

"Well, you see, we are so tiny we just have to have some way of defending our homes," said Mrs. Ant. "I'm sorry if my acid hurt your eyes, but let that be a lesson to you to keep away from my ant hill."

"I'm glad you have warned Towser," laughed Doris, "I'm sure he won't bother your ant hill any more."

Towser wagged his tail and ran out in the yard. Mrs. Ant returned to her little home and Doris ran into the house to ask her Mama if what she had heard was true.

STREET NAMES

RUBIDGE STREET.

Captain Rubidge, the first settler in the township of Otonabee and one of the most influential of Peterboro's early residents, was born in London, England, in the year 1787. Like many other English youths of good family, he elected a career at sea and entered the navy as a midshipman. He served under such great sea lords as Nelson and Cochrane, took part in the battles of Copenhagen and Aboukir Bay and was wounded in a minor engagement against the French. He was on one occasion publicly congratulated by Lord Cochrane for his gallantry under bombardment.

At the conclusion of the Napoleonic wars, when retrenchment and reduction were watchwords at the War Office and Admiralty, Captain Rubidge found himself pensioned off, and having no training to enable him to achieve success in any other profession, he boldly pocketed his pride, and like many other naval and military officers of his day, crossed the Atlantic and faced undauntedly the difficulties and dangers of pioneering life in strange surroundings.

His choice led him to what is now the township of Otonabee, in which he was the first to perform settlement duties and to take up land. Many years of hard manual and mental labor were necessary before the gallant captain consolidated himself in his homestead. With the coming of additional settlers, some of the amenities of civilization were introduced, and Captain Rubidge became the first postmaster in this district.

When the Robinson immigration scheme was set afoot, Captain Rubidge rendered yeoman service in settling the new arrivals on the land.

After his appointment as official immigration agent, he came to Peterboro. In 1831 he located 4,000 English, Scottish and Irish settlers in Peterboro County and gained a splendid reputation for his absolute impartiality. A further evidence of the esteem and confidence he inspired was afforded by his appointment as registrar of Peterboro County, a position which he held until his death in 1873.

At the time of his death he was one of the oldest of British officers.

His funeral was one of the largest that had hitherto been seen in Peterboro, all classes uniting to pay tribute to one who had been a help and inspiration in time of privation and discouragement.

TOMORROW: Burnham street.

STILL "MAKING HAY."

Bumper Grass Crop Reported From Marmora.

MARMORA, August 4. — The hay making season is not yet over in this district. There is a bumber crop on most farms. Those most has been cut a large quantity is cocked up, awaiting proper curing before being drawn in.

Quite large hailstones fell in North Marmora on Sunday afternoon during the progress of a storm.

Sometimes people don't mind their own business beacuse they haven't any—mind.

When The Babies Are Cutting Teeth

THE MOTHER SHOULD USE

During baby's teething time, the bowels become loose and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps, etc., manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, and cankers form in the mouth.

This is the time when the mother should use "Dr. Fowler's," and, perhaps, save the baby's life.

VETERANS MEET IN CONVENTION

Will Discuss Policy to Pursue on Many Important Details.

NO EFFORT SPARED

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The sixth annual convention of the Grand Army of United Veterans will be held at Winnipeg from Aug. 13 to 16.

Delegates will be present from all parts of the Dominion, and also from branches in the United States. In view of the plans now on foot for amalgamation with other veterans' organizations, no efforts are being spared to make the congress a big success. Many representative men have signified their intention of being present in the interests of the New Unity movement and every opportunity will be afforded all such to present their views to the convention.

It will be the most important convention yet held by the association. The per capita returns show that, despite all obstacles, the association is in a flourishing condition.

The announcement by H. McLeod, of Toronto, General Secretary, says: "The convention will speak in no uncertain voice and state its policy without fear or favor, on the many important questions it will have to deal with. The bonus or adjusted compensation policy of the G.A.U.V. will be thoroughly discussed. In the years which have elapsed since this fight was first raised, the G.A.U.V. has had to carry on this fight single-handed. Before Parliamentary committees and the Royal Commission it was the only association to give evidence on behalf of this phase of the re-establishment question and in reference to those who are classed as A1. This fight should be continued and it looks as if the association to do so is the G.A.U.V. The solution of the re-establishment question is bound up in that of amalgamation and the latter to be successful must make adequate provision for the inclusion in its elgislative programme of a scheme of adjusted compensation.

"Three important questions stand out to be decided at the convention, namely, amalgamation, re-establishment legislation, and the third arises after a policy has been put into operation with respect to the two former questions, i.e., the means to place needed legislation on the statute books, and this would imply collective legislative action."

Curiosity gets them all, sooner or later.

One of the finest golfers I know, who plays around in a little under eighty and "keeps his eye on the ball," came and asked me, the other day on the golf course, "what kind of a bird is it that runs along the road, on the way between the club and town? It has a habit of waiting until we are almost on top of it and then it dashes into the air and to one side, showing white tail feathers."

When I asked my friend some more questions, he remembered that it was about the size of a sparrow and that the white tail feathers were the ones on the sides of the tail.

That bird is the Vesper Sparrow. It is a sparrow size and generally dull brownish in colour, with the white sides to the tail, flashed when flying off the road.

After the game, my Vesper sparrow golfer took me over to the seventeenth hole again, which was not far from a fence and ditch. There, he pointed out a nice little nest in a tuft of grass, lined with fine grass and hair and four brown spotted eggs in it.

"And not a soul but myself knows it is there," said he, "Unless some other golfer just chanced upon it, and if so, he is also hugging the secret to himself."

The whole point of it is this: That bird—the road habit of almost getting run over, the accidental discovery of a nest of that very bird and other golf course incidents connected with it—raised such a curiosity in that man, that he just had to get the right dope on that little creature. And, having learned one simple truth of nature, he is reading and watching for more, getting a good kick out of the trip along the road in his car.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A WAY TO FIGHT OFF BRONCHITIS DANGER

Each age group has its peculiar susceptibilities. Babies are most seriously affected by colds and their results. In middle life, pneumonia is a terrible harvester of deaths.

In advanced life, bronchitis is a common affliction and very difficult to control. In babies, too, bronchitis is a serious ailment.

The windpipe divides into two tubes when it reaches the lungs. These divisions are called the bronchi. Each bronchus divides and redivides, branching out like the limbs and twigs of a tree. The smallest of the bronchi are very small indeed, almost like the tiny blood vessels, the capillaries.

Inflammation of the lining membrane of the bronchi is called "bronchitis." When it reaches down into the tiny branches, it is called "capillary bronchitis." The latter trouble is really a form of pneumonia, called by the doctors "broncho-pneumonia."

Some persons are peculiarly liable to attacks of bronchitis. This is true of indoor workers. Indeed it is rare to find attacks of bronchitis in persons who love and live in the out-of-doors.

It is rare for the first symptoms to appear in the throat or chest. First, there is a common cold, with running of the nose, perhaps with sore throat. Then come on hoarseness, wheezing, difficult breathing and pain in the chest and back.

There may be some fever. Cough appears. At first it is dry, then it becomes "productive"—that is, mucus is raised after coughing.

After the secretions become abundant and are easily coughed up, the discomfort disappears. The looser the cough the less the trouble annoys the patient.

In young people, the ailment clears up in a week, or ten days. In old people, however, it hangs on, possibly for months

In acute cases the victim should go to bed. Hot drinks and a mustard plaster on the chest will help a lot. Your doctor will prescribe the remedies.

Fresh air, ventilation of the sleeping and working rooms, simple food, sunlight, lots of sleep—all these fundamental things will help to guard against bronchitis. Bad teeth, bad tonsils, and chronic running ear—all of these are things to get rid of, because they furnish the germs to set up trouble when the powers of resistance are low

MRS. J. W. G. Q.—My little girl had a cold in her head and now she does not seem to be able to hear very well. What can I do for her?

2.—What can I do for dandruff and falling hair?

A.—This may be due to nasal catarrh that has settled in the ear. It would be wise to consult an ear specialist and be guided by his advice.

2.—Shampoo the hair frequently and use a good tonic. For further particulars, send a stamped, self-addrdsed envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

MR. D. L. Q.—What is low blood pressure and what causes it?

A.—This condition is usually found accompanying such diseases as infection, fever, anemia, diabetes, shock, general debility and auto-intoxication.

If any of these conditions are present, treatment should be outlined by the family doctor. In many instances, treatment over a short period of time eradicates all symptoms.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5.

According to the predominant astral activities this may be a day of irritating and annoying conditions, precipitated mainly by the general tendency to quarrels and strife, as well as to rash and impetuous deals. To overcome disagreeable situations it is enjoined that great control be exercised over tongue and temper. It is also enjoined that precautions be taken against fire, and that new projects and all manner of speculation be avoided, as the financial prospects are weak.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for the utmost self-control, as rash and quarrelsome conduct may cause all manner of trouble. Also it is urged that all kinds of financial hazard or speculation be shunned. A child born on this day may be disposed to be rash, impetuous and ungovernable, as well as a spendthrift in money matters. It should be given early training and discipline in order to offset these qualities. It may be subject to deception and much opposition in life.

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS LEARNS SOMETHING NEW ABOUT ANTS.

My, how Doris laughed when Towser, her pet dog, jumped up out of a sound sleep and turned around and around on the back porch.

"Why, Towser, what in the world ails you?" she laughed, patting the yellow dog's head. "Did you have a bad dream, old boy?"

"I can't see why you should hate me," laughed a tiny voice and Mrs. Ant sat up on her hind legs and wiggled her feelers. "I haven't harmed you, have I?"

Towser barked and stepped back. "Not yet and I'm not going to give you the chance," he barked again.

"Oh, you poor, silly doggy," laughed Doris, "Such a big fellow like you afraid of so tiny a creature as Mrs Ant. She's too small to harm anyone."

"Hum," mused Towser, backing off again, "Don't you believe it. Mrs. Ant has two ways of making dogs uncomfortable."

"Towser is right, Doris," laughed Mrs. Ant. "I have three ways of making my enemies retreat. See these

"Why, Towser, What Ails You?"

jaws of mine?" and she opened her mouth and showed Doris her strong jaws. "I can bite real hard with them when I have to. Then, right here," and Mrs. Ant lifted up her little body and showed Doris the very tip-end of it, "I have a terrible sting right there and when I'm forced to use it, I just grab the fellow I wish to sting with my strong jaws, lift my body up on my hind legs, swing the part of the body with the stinger in it under, and sting my enemy hard. Of course, it doesn't hurt people very much, but it will kill some of my enemies.

"Must have poison in it, then," said Doris. "No wonder Towser backs away from you."

"Sure it has poison in it," replied Mrs. Ant. "The sting is really made in three parts. There is the needle case that holds the needle, the needle itself and the little sack that holds the poison."

"Yes, but that stuff you throw out bothers me more than anything else," growled Towser. "Why, the other day when I spied your ant hill——"

"You mean, you started to dig it up," chuckled Mrs. Ant. "I did throw out my ant acid in your face. We have to do something like that to keep the dogs and cats from tearing up our houses. You surely did sneeze too, didn't you?"

"Not only sneezed, but my eyes smarted for ever so long afterward," growled Towser. "You needn't worry, I'll never disturb another ant hill. I don't like your ant acid."

"Well, you see, we are so tiny we just have to have some way of defending our homes," said Mrs. Ant. "I'm sorry if my acid hurt your eyes, but let that be a lesson to you to keep away from my ant hill."

"I'm glad you have warned Towser,' laughed Doris, "I'm sure he won't bother your ant hill any more."

Towser wagged his tail and ran out in the yard. Mrs. Ant returned to her little home and Doris ran into the house to ask her Mama if what she had heard was true.

STREET NAMES

RUBIDGE STREET.

Captain Rubidge, the first settler in the township of Otonabee and one of the most influential of Peterboro's early residents, was born in London, England, in the year 1787. Like many other English youths of good family, he elected a career at sea and entered the navy as a midshipman. He served under such great sea lords as Nelson and Cochrane, took part in the battles of Copenhagen and Aboukir Bay and was wounded in a minor engagement against the French. He was on one occasion publicly congratulated by Lord Cochrane for his gallantry under bombardment.

At the conclusion of the Napoleonic wars, when retrenchment and reduction were watchwords at the War Office and Admiralty, Captain Rubidge found himself pensioned off, and having no training to enable him to achieve success in any other profession, he boldly pocketed his pride, and like many other naval and military officers of his day, crossed the Atlantic and faced undauntedly the difficulties and dangers of pioneering life in strange surroundings.

His choice led him to what is now the township of Otonabee, in which he was the first to perform settlement duties and to take up land. Many years of hard manual and mental labor were necessary before the gallant captain consolidated himself in his homestead. With the coming of additional settlers, some of the amenities of civilization were introduced, and Captain Rubidge became the first postmaster in this district.

When the Robinson immigration scheme was set afoot, Captain Rubidge rendered yeoman service in settling the new arrivals on the land.

After his appointment as official immigration agent, he came to Peterboro. In 1831 he located 4,000 English, Scottish and Irish settlers in Peterboro County and gained a splendid reputation for his absolute impartiality. A further evidence of the esteem and confidence he inspired was afforded by his appointment as registrar of Peterboro County, a position which he held until his death in 1873.

At the time of his death he was one of the oldest of British officers.

His funeral was one of the largest that had hitherto been seen in Peterboro, all classes uniting to pay tribute to one who had been a help and inspiration in time of privation and discouragement.

TOMORROW: Burnham street.

STILL "MAKING HAY."

Bumper Grass Crop Reported From Marmora.

MARMORA, August 4. — The hay making season is not yet over in this district. There is a bumber crop on most farms. Those most has been cut a large quantity is cocked up, awaiting proper curing before being drawn in.

Quite large hailstones fell in North Marmora on Sunday afternoon during the progress of a storm.

Sometimes people don't mind their own business beacuse they haven't any—mind.

When The Babies Are Cutting Teeth

THE MOTHER SHOULD USE

During baby's teething time, the bowels become loose and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps, etc., manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, and cankers form in the mouth.

This is the time when the mother should use "Dr. Fowler's," and, perhaps, save the baby's life.

WHO IS YOUR SKINNY FRIEND, ETHEL?

Tell him he won't have to swallow the nasty oil with the nauseating fishy taste, because the McCoy laboratories, of New York, are now putting up Cod Liver Oil in sugar coated tablet form.

Ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets — Warne Drug Co., McDermid and Jury, James Lynch, Bond's Drug Store and every druggist worthy of the name sells them — 60 tablets—60cents. Any man or woman can put on five pounds of healthy flesh in 30 days or your druggist will willingly refund the purchase price.

One woman put on 15 pounds in six weeks. Children grow robust and strong—Feeble old people feel younger in a few weeks.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Is it proper for the girl to take hold of the man's arm when they go out?

BLACK EYE.

BLACK EYE: Nowadays it is considered provincial for the lady to take hold of the gentleman's arm when they are out walking. In rainy weather it is quite permissible for the gentleman to offer his arm to the lady for protection, but otherwise is quite unnecessary. Needless to say, the gentleman never, under any circumstances, takes hold of the lady's arm.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my 'teens and am very uncertain what to do. I have money, clothes, cars, and am told I am very handsome. In spite of all these things the boys do not run after me like a few of the girls I have gone with. I also go with two girls steady who seem jealous of me. When I go out with one the other is sore. Should I drop them both And what can I do to get some boys friends?

Yours waiting,

UNCERTAIN.

UNCERTAIN: You appear to be suffering from what might be termed an embarrassment of good things. Don't you think a little contentment with what you possess might have a beneficial effect on your character? Perhaps you are too pleased with yourself and your worldly advantages to attract men as you wish to do. Even money, clothes, a car and good looks may fail to get you what you want if you are lacking in the qualities which inspire affection. You know, a great writer once said that men are most attracted by "form and character", and that classification leaves out nearly everything you itemize, doesn't it? An interesting review of what movie masculine stars, for instance, like in a woman is given in a recent number of a movie magazine. Conversation, poise, pretty hands, eyes, smile, teeth, well-shaped feet, etcetra, are all listed as the major requirement of different stars. None of them speak of money or cars.

As for your jealous friends, it might be better to drop them both, if they are hard to get along with. There are many people in the world.

How to get boy friends? Well, that depends. Dr. Frank Crane once gave a recipe for attracting men that included as the principal items a smile, a natural, unaffected manner, an absence of sensitiveness about small matters, and personal self-respect.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

"WHAT CONSTITUTES A NARROW MIND?"

Then she attended to her eyebrows and then she put a nice fresh blush on her cheeks and then she dusted her face with powder and then she leaned back in her seat and said:

"This play bores me awfully—it's all about such common people. Narrow-minded things without an interest in life, outside their little old narrow walls.

"Me and my husband. Julie and his doings, sister and her tonsils, mama and her rheumatism—Church and the Missionary Society. The new minister and the gossip about the soprano and the tenor in the church choir.

"Pouf. It makes me feel as if I were smothering only to think about it.

"I can forgive anything on earth but narrow-mindedness but when I meet one of these narrow-minded, live-in-a-groove and think-in-a-rut people, I just want to shake them as hard as I can and wake them up and give them a scare or something. They don't know they are alive, poor things."

I looked at the woman of the world in her smart frock and impudent little hat and delicious little shoes—and thought: "I wonder why you don't realize that you are just as narrow minded in your way as the other woman is in her way."

Why can't you realize my dear, that there are a good many people in this world all of them different and every one of them with just as much right to live as you have?

How much broader is your world, after all. Let's see, how many people do you really know? The husband you divorced and a few of his friends who are so much like him that it is hard to tell them apart in the distance. Poker, bridge, golf, a bit of swimming, a little gambling in stocks, a cabaret evening or so — the same old round over and over. They wouldn't know what to say to a farmer or a woodsman or a vineyardist or a street-car conductor to save their lives. They live in a rut and they can't get out of it.

Now your own friends—the women. What do they ever talk about? Bridge, the new song from the cabarets, what town they got on the radio last night. How perfectly awful the new maid is and what an impossible price she asks for her services. The newest thing in bathing suits—and, whisper, is Tibia really going to run away with Tommy or not, do you suppose?

So many cocktails, so many highballs, where do you get yours, how much do you pay a quart—nothing so very broad and universal about that, is there?

Seems to me I wouldn't call other people narrow-minded, if I were you, my dear. I really wouldn't. Not if I were either type of woman. The church choir type or the highball type.

Somebody might feel like laughing at you.

DID A STRANGE FISH INSPIRE THE PARIS DESIGNER?

Mabel.—"Tom, do, please, tell me if you like Edith's adorable new phosphorescent fan and sheer clocke hose and tell me, if you can, what fish inspired the designer?

They say there's a fish in the ocean depths that carries its own light. Do you think that could have been the one?"

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A CHARMING SUMMER NIGHTGOWN.

The manikins at Madame's shop usually get very busy in the Summer—I mean, busy on their own things.

"Isn't it lovely that Madame's clients are mostly the kind that go away in the Summer," Pam remarked today.

I glanced at Pam, who was seated on a low chair in the manikins' room, stitching away on a garment she was making for herself.

"It seems to suit you to have more time to yourself," I remarked.

"It suits me and, of course, it gives Madame time to go abroad for materials and to design her Fall things," Pam commented.

"It's nice, too, to have the actresses who stay in town drift in to add a few new things to their Summer wardrobe," I added. "I like to see a little excitement about the place now and then."

"Of course I do, too," Pam admitted. Then she held up a dainty garment and asked:

"How do you like this?"

"I like it," I assured her, "and I think it's a nightie."

"That's exactly what it is," Pam responded. "I'm making some new underthings to use when I go away week-ends."

"Is that to go with the skirt and step-ins you made?" I asked Pam.

"That is it," Pam assured me. "I'm glad you recognized it."

I picked up the garment that Pam offered me for inspection, and saw that it was a very lovely gown, made of the finest white batiste imaginable.

"The smartest gowns I've seen all season have been those with fine net folds for trimming," Pam informed me. "They always have it at the armholes and hem, like this one. The lace at the neck was an idea of my own."

The lace Pam referred to was fine filet, and I saw that it had a ribbon belt through the gown, making it like one of the new frocks.

"They all have narrow sshes like this," Pam explained. "I think it does give a gown more dash, don't you?"

I agreed with Pam on the question of dash and she went back to her work on the dainty batiste.

WOMEN JUDGE SAXOPHONE.

One Calls It Immoral, Another Respectable if Treated Right.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Associated Press.)—The effort of the Washington police to define "indecent music," so they can prohibit it under a recently discovered statute, yielded an opinion by one official to-day that "any music played on a saxophone is immoral."

The authority for this assertion was Sergeant Rhoda Milliken of the Women's Bureau. She was contradicted by Officer Clarence Talley, who, having just taken up saxophone playing, reached this conclusion:

Home-Making Helps

By Wanda Barton

When a Bride Entertains.

The June bride who goes into her own home after her wedding trip, hardly gets her pretty gifts placed to her satisfaction before she wants to entertain. It is a natural instinct to try her housekeeping wings and after her duty is done entertaining both families, she is quite likely to feast her wedding party and special friends.

With plenty of new and attractive linens it is not a difficult problem to select a choice set or a dainty tablecloth. In either case the centerpiece may be of pink roses, arranged in a tall gilt basket, or in a flat oblong basket. A rose bud laid at each plate makes a charming bit of color also.

The place cards may be tiny old fashioned bouquets of gumdrops in pink and green coloring, or the new standard candy flowers that come in roses, buds or in pink or white marguerites. Wee lace baskets hold the nuts and papier mache pink rose petals of large size may hold olives, beside each plate. The dinner roll may be slipped into the folded napkin.

Four candlesticks with tall pink candles in them may be spaced in a square outside the floral centerpiece. If it is the usual modern five-course dinner, the bridal silver may be in evidence. The dainty pink-shaded tumblers are new and very dainty.

WOMAN KILLED.

Fell Down Stone Steps at Princeton—Leaves Big Family.

PRINCETON, Ont., August 4. — Canadian Press. — Mrs. Oliver Thompson was fatally injured late yesterday afternoon when she fell about 30 feet down the stone steps at the railway bridge, about a mile west of the village.

She is survived by her husband and five young children. The eldest is 13 years of age and the youngest about six.

Let's Talk It Over

It would be wonderful if our families always approved our choice of husbands, and the husbands we picked shared our most cherished principles and prejudices on politics, religion, prohibition and Sunday outings. However, such is seldom the case. Many a girl has to choose between her family and her fiance, not to mention her favorite topics of conversation.

"Shall I go with him and marry him against my mother's wishes?" she asks. "Or shall I give him up just because my mother holds a grudge against him?".

I am twenty-one and for three years have been keeping company with a young man of Italian descent (he also is twenty-three), whom my mother despises on account of his nationality and because about three years ago he was involved in a fight over a crap-game. For three years she has kept a watchdog watch on me, so that I cannot meet him. I manage to see him twice a week. Every time I go out, my mother sends someone with me, so that they can tell her if I meet him.

Before I kept company with him he was addicted to drinking and kept bad company. Since he has known me he has given up drinking and bad company and is working steadily. In other words, he has reformed entirely. I know that he loves me and would make the best kind of a husband.

Now, please tell me what to do. Shall I go with him and marry him against my mother's wishes, or shall I give him up (I know he would take to drink and bad company again if I did) just because my mother despises him for his nationality and insists upon holding a grudge against him for a fight which occurred three years ago? You may say that if I loved him I would not hesitate. But I have been raised a strict Catholic. I feel sort of bound to my mother. Please tell me what I must do. ANXIOUS.

Never marry a man to reform him or save him, Pal. If you believe that he has lost the taste for his old habits and you really love him, go ahead and marry him. But if you think that nothing but your good influence is keeping him on the straight and narrow, better not take a chance. A real man keeps straight for his own sake and not for the love of a woman.

As for marrying against your mother's wishes—that's life. Anxious. You can't have everything. Decide whether your mother's approval means more to you than the love of this man.

Don't you think this modern criticism of mothers is unjust? I think we owe our mothers a very great deal—everything, in fact. My mother could be youthful, strong, and have an occupation, but it is my duty to support her. Did not our mothers bear us? Didn't they suffer for us? Didn't they deprive themselves of things for us? Yes! Now, when we grow older, shouldn't we love them and support them and care for them until their dying day? And even if our mothers didn't make great and constant sacrifices, they did make a few.

Perhaps others feel differently, but I'd work myself to the bones for my mother, and I know some other readers who feel just the same. TOT.

The Secret of Speed in Electric Range Cooking

Doesn't a fast worker like that appeal to you. That's the new Beach Electric Range.

It's a great range—a range you'll enjoy using every day in the week, every week in the year. It was designed to be "the Best"—to make housewives' work easier, their cooking better, their kitchens prettier.

Let Us Explain Its Quick Heat!

There are so many fine features in the Beach Electric that we hesitate to tell you about one and ignore others.

It uses the open element. That is, the heat comes directly from the white-hot coils to your cooking utensils. There is no covering in between to waste valuable heat and to check the flow of direct heat.

Every bit of heat generated in the coils is focussed directly on your cooking utensils. That is a big thing! In most electric ranges the coils have a large percentage of contact with the porcelain plate. Now porcelain absorbs heat. The result is, there's a lot of heat wasted, and it takes a long time to get the coils up to their proper heat, in addition to using up a lot more current than is necessary.

In the Beach, one coil in eleven in the element touches the porcelain, and then only at two points. The result is that waste heat is cut down to an absolute minimum.

One Coil in Eleven Touches!

Porcelain absorbs heat. Every coil that touches it means less speed in cooking. Only one coil in eleven touches porcelain in the Beach.

Ask a Beach Dealer

When you do, notice what a sturdy, handsome range it is, with its embossed steel, its burners set in recesses at top and bottom of the oven to give you lots of room, its double action oven door spring, the convex edges of the cooking top, its easily reached switches and fuses, its big-grip door handles — its many other striking features!

Ask your dealer to show you a Beach Electric, or write direct for full information and prices.

BUCKEYE BEATEN

But Indian Southpaw Whiffed Ruth Three Times—Goslin's Hits Unavailing.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3—The fast travelling Athletics today went to grips with the Chicago White Sox in another extra-inning tussle, but retrieved their 15 inning defeat of Saturday by a 3 to 2 victory in twelve innings. Rommel and Faber had a great pitching duel and finally gave way to pinch hitters. Slim Harriss was returned the winning pitcher and Sergeant Connally the loser. In the tenth inning Rommel showed great form when the side was retired after the bases had been filled with no one out. Miller made a double in the final inning for the Athletics and went to third on Galloway's fly. Welch, batting for Harriss, was passed intentionally. Dykes' infield hit was snatched by Collins but the winning run was across the plate ahead of the Chicago manager's throw. Score:

DEMPSEY MAY BE SUSPENDED

N. Y. Athletic Commission May Suspend Him and Mickey Walker.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker will be indefinitely suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission to-day if they do not appear in person before the Commission and sign articles of agreement for title matches with their outstanding challengers, Harry Wills and Dave Shade. This was learned from a reliable source close to the Boxing Commission last night.

Dempsey's presence on the Pacific Coast prohibits his attendance, while Walker, it was learned, will not accept the Comfission's invitation to a conference until the arrival of his manager, Jack Kearns, who is now on his way east.

It was learned further that Wills and Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, will be matched for a fight, the winner to be declared the "world's heavyweight champion," until such a time as Dempsey personally appears before the Commission and posts a bond and signs articles of agreement for a match with Wills.

VISITORS WON CRICKET MATCH

SCORE WAS 66-30

Yesterday at the Exhibition Grounds, in ideal weather, the Rosedale Cricket Club from Toronto paid a visit to the city to meet the Peterboro Cricket Club in a friendly game, which they won 66-30. Winning the toss, the visitors decided to take first lease of the wicket and opened their innings with Shenton and Ruthven. The bowling was entrusted to Dyer and Hammond. At the end of the seventh over the latter was taken off in favor of Elliot. With the score at 13, Shenton, in attempting to steal a run, had his wicket smartly thrown down by Thorpe. Two runs later, Ruthven, who had been doing all the scoring up to this point, fell to a catch by Fenton off Elliot's bowling.

Hammond, the next batsman, was getting nicely set when, in playing back to a slow leg break from Elliot, unfortunately hit his wicket, the third wicket falling with the score at 21.

Dr. Hewitt relieved Dyer at the north end, and, bowling steadily, was rewarded by getting G. Percival with a beautiful ball. With the fall of this wicket, half the visiting team were out with the score at 36.

Thorpe took over the ball from Elliot, and after bowling two maiden overs, had the satisfaction of getting Bowbanks caught by Manning. Dyer came on again at the north end and immediately met with success, getting Hardy's wicket with the third ball of the over. Seven wickets for 43.

The next batsman also fell a victim to the same bowler, the eighth wicket falling at 53. The ninth wicket added nine more runs, the diminutive L. Percival creating some surprise at the manner in which he played to the elusive bowling sent down to him. But, like Shenton, he too fell to a smart throw down by Thorpe. The innings was soon brought to and end, the last wicket falling with the total at 66.

Peterboro's Innings.

Coutts and Fenton opened the innings for Peterboro, facing the bowling of Hughes and Shenton. The innings opened disastrously, as, with the score at 3, Coutts fell to a fast ball from Shenton, and with but two runs added, Fenton and Hewitt were clean bowled by Hughes with successive balls.

Three wickets for five runs was anything but cheerful for the home club, but matters became even worse when Hammond, Dyer and Langley were sent back with successive balls by Shenton, the bowler thus performing the 'hat trick,' a unique performance in cricket. The bowler received a fitting ovation from players and spectators alike for his splendid feat.

The bowling of the visitors was very deadly, and quite unplayable, and had the home men always in difficulties. However, Paul Manning, by vigorous hitting, raised the hopes of the locals, but ultimately fell to Hughes—the innings closing with the fall of his wicket, the total reaching 30, a score which at one time seemed beyond their best efforts. Even as it was, but for "Mr. Extras" and Manning's score, the score-sheet would have proved sorry reading.

With half an hour to spare, the Peterboro team went in a second time, opening with Coutts and Stuart. The Rosedale put on two new bowlers for this innings, and the locals took advantage of any loose balls sent down, with the result that 30 runs were knocked up in quick time, Dr. Hewitt and Mr. Hammond settling down to a nice game when time was called.

Bowling for Peterboro, Elliot had 4 wickets for 13 runs; Dyer, 2 for 19; Hewitt, 1 for 4; Thorpe, 1 for 11. For the Toronto team, Shenton (who at one time had five wickets for one run to his credit) took six wickets for 7 runs, while Hughes captured the other four at a cost of 11 runs.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 3 — Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia twice today, both scores being 3 to 2, the final contest going eleven innings. Grantham's hitting won the opening game. LAKEVIEWS WIN MIGHTY BATTLE CINCHING SERIES

SCORE WAS 11 TO 7

Scully and Halliday Vie for Batting Honors in Debacle.

Whatever may have been said about the preliminary heats of the junior series last night's rousing fight wiped it off the slate, and the fans were treated to a contest which for sheer excitement rivals anything which has previously been staged in the park by the river.

Fans saw the C.G.E. squad put a counter over the pan in the first inning, and saw the Lakeviews equalize in the third. In the fourth the Electrics leaped ahead with three, giving them a two-run lead, which they held to the seventh frame, when a horde of Lakeview runs scampered over the safety zone, which, as it proved, cinched the game and the city series.

Although there was a total of fourteen strike-outs, the pitching was not of an especially noteworthy brand, although Inky Woods clearly held the edge, and except for the fourth chapter, wherein he granted four safe touches, he kept C. G. batting averages on a reduced diet, Franks being the only hitter to benefit; that lusty swatsmith helped himself to a ringing trio of hits in four efforts. The other six hits were distributed one to each as far as they would go around.

MacDonough, on the other hand, magnanimously handed out six tickets to first, and added to that, was busted for a grand aggregate of 15 bingos, two of which were for extra bags. Halliday came out of the cyclone with a perfect average. He had two legal appearances and made his presence felt on both occasions; the other three times he was granted a bye. Scully was the real slamming hero. Five times he swung his ashen club and on each occasion the ball departed thence. The last flight was halted by J. Jones and is recorded as his third put-out.

Umpire McCarney banished Le Barr from the pastime at the first stage. Marchen had grounded out, McDonough to Franks, and Le Barr drew a walk. In an attempt to purloin second, Umpire McCarney called him out. The decision drew a wide protest and deep approval from the respective camps. Le Barr, in an effort to maintain his rights, declared that he was "safe as a dollar," but umps, becoming exceedingly wrothy, excommunicated him from the game.

In the seventh another peculiar instance arose. Milloy hit safely. Rody struck out. Milloy went down on Franks' hit. Collins grounded down to Scully, who muffed, but finally had Milloy trapped by a quick throw to Mien. The play was made and the decision due, but none was forthcoming. Le Barr hadn't seen it and McCarney waived the responsibility, so nothing was done. F. Jones then struck out and J. Baird shot a line drive down to Johnston, ending the session.

The C.G.E. in their portion of the fourth netted three runs, which they got by an error and four hits, including a two-bagger by Collins.

The seventh was the long seance for the Lakeviews, when two walks, an error and four hits accounted for six runs before the tide could be stemmed. The Electrics got one back in the ninth by dint of combining an error, Franks hit and a sacrifice. Then F. Jones grounded out, Mien to Johnston, and the game was lost and won.

BRITISH TENNIS STARS IN TORONTO

Kitty McKane, Joan Fry and Associates Delighted Holiday Crowd.

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—The largest tennis gallery of the season greeted the English lady players in their exhibition matches Monday at the Toronto Tennis Club. The first game was a set between Miss Evelyn Colyer, England, and Miss M. Brock, of Toronto. The English girl, making few mistakes and serving very fast, won it 6 to 0. Miss Brock had a chance to take a game or two but always Miss Colyer had some surprising shots in store when she needed them.

Mrs. E. C. Coke of Toronto then played Miss Joan Fry, who was runner-up this year at Wimbledon. Mrs. Coke played very well and took one game. The English girl won the set 6 to 1. In the next match Mrs. H. Bickle, who has won the Canadian championship several times and Mrs. Coke played two very interesting sets with Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss Harvey of England. This was a splendid game, the Canadian team playing well together put up a splendid fight, making many fine plays. It was Mrs. Lambert Chambers' placing shots that won the match for them 6 to 3, 6 to 2.

One of the most keenly contested games of the day then took place. Miss Joan Fry, using her forehand drives, won a splendid contest from Miss K. McKane 6 to 2, 6 to 4. Miss McKane won the Wimbledon tournament in 1924, and is No. 1 on the ladies' team. Then came the tit-bit of the day. Miss K. McKane and Miss E. Colyer defeating Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss Harvey 6 to 4, 6 to 3, in a very exciting and brilliantly played game. Miss Colyer's overhead smashes brought forth volleys of applause from the audience. The game scintillated with exciting volley rallies. The English ladies demonstrated that there are a very strong team and they will carry with them the good wishes of all who have seen them play in Canada. Mr. Battey, the manager of the team, umpired the single match between Miss Fry and Miss McKane, and Captain Innes Taylor umpired the other matches.

The annual meeting of the Canada Football Association will be held at Vancouver on September 7th when following proposed new rule will be under discussion.

Any player residing in Canada who has at any time been registered as a professional, and who has made application for his reinstatement as an amateur or for a permit to play without wages, to the association under which he was last registered as a professional, and who has established a permanent residence in Canada, may pending receipt of his reinstatement or permit to play, obtain from the association a permit entitling him to participate in all games within the jurisdiction of the association, provided he files with the secretary of his district association a statutory declaration sworn to before a Justice of the Peace or Notary Public and accompanied by a fee of $5. If the application is approved by the district association, it shall be forwarded to the provincial association, who, if satisfied of the bona fides of the applicant shall recommend to the association that a permit be granted. These permits shall only remain in force during the pleasure of the association. On the player leaving the jurisdiction of the association, the permit shall immediately become null and void.

Warsaw lost two points through the non-fullfilment of the fixture against the C.P.C. last Saturday.

The Quaker Oats were officially awarded Peck Cup tie against the Thistle and each party shall pay one third.

Masseys play Dummer on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval in a league game. Kick off at 2 o'clock. Referee, Frank McKinley.

J. C. Russell was appointed a member of the Board of Directors.

Discussion reigned supreme in the matter of the cup-tie of the ex-Mayor Taylor trophy which was set for Wednesday evening, on August 5th, has been cancelled after many debates to the date of Wednesday, August 12th, on Nicholls Oval at 6 o'clock, so Dummer and Warsaw spectators please note change of date.

J. Campbell resigned from the vice-president's position and J. Willis was placed in his old place which he filled for many years.

All Massey players are requested to turn out for the practice on Wednesday evening at King Edward Park, at 6 o'clock.

The G.W.V.A. five-a-side tournament has aroused great interest in the old pastime. Masseys have two teams, C.P.C. have two teams, De Laval have three teams, Canadian Woollens two, Quaker Oats two and Thistle one, Caledonian one and three other teams—sixteen teams in all.

A special practice of the Thistle F.C. will be held tonight and Thursday evening on King Edward Park at 6 o'clock.

A fancy dress football game will take place after the Peck Cup tie between the Thistle and Caledonians.

Hensby, the De Laval junior fullback asked permission to participate in a senior game as a Canadian Woollen player, before the junior board.

The following gentlemen are requested to meet in G.W.V.A. Hall on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock to discuss and make arrangements for G.W.V.A. five-a-side tournament: F. McKinley, Alex McKinley, J. C. Russell, F. and G. Burton, I. Hodgson, J. Wylie and Donald Gilman.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Lakeviews again represent Peterboro in the play-offs for the O.B.A.A. junior championship. After a hard struggle, the two-time champions won the deciding game last night from the C.G.E. team. The first game against an outside team will be with Belleville, within the next few days.

* * * * * * * *

There have been many changes in the Lakeview team since it first became a factor in local sport, and of the players that brought home the junior cup in 1923, not one remains with the team. Of the team that defended the cup so successfully last year, only two regulars remain—Second Baseman Johnny Marchen and Third Baseman Jimmy Johnston. All the others, except Whitehouse, are too old, and the pitcher has already made the jump to senior company. Gathering a team from last year's juveniles, Manager Le Barr instilled into them the fighting spirit that has always characterized the Lakeviews and won out.

* * * * * * * *

Bill Bennett and his C.G.E. boys put up a game battle. In midseason their star pitcher, Jeff Hardill, was drafted by the senior team, with which he has played good ball, and, although the team managed to stay out in front in the race, the other pitchers were unable to stem the advancing tide of the Lakeviews. Good pitching by McDonough, who was sometimes troubled by lack of control, gave the Electricians the first game of the play-off, but the second and third games went to the Ontario champions. Manager Bennett and his team have tried hard, and, although victory was not for them, they have earned the reputation of being a fine bunch of fellows, both on the field and off, and they have put up a good brand of ball all through.

* * * * * * * *

The intermediate brand of baseball has not been as much in the limelight as when the C.G.E. team was winning championships in that series, but the East Peterboro League has been staging some tidy games at the Exhibition Grounds all summer, and the fur will fly before the winner is declared. At present any one of the four teams can finish in front in the second half of the rural section, and the winner will have to play the Cogs, who won the first half. Even then the winner of that series won't be out of trouble, as the city section winners will be rarin' to go for a tilt with their country rivals. Tonight, in this league, Royals and Raybestos meet in a game of the city play-off series, while tomorrow the Cogs and the Curve Lake Indians will meet in a rural section game. Both these games will be hummers from the drop of the hat.

* * * * * * * *

Tomorrow the Petes play in Belleville, and all those who got out of the Quinte City, and have money enough to come back, will be there to root for the Trunks. If the Gerow-Mills-Weir combination lives up to its reputation, the old homesters will have something to cheer for, although the Petes expect to, and need to, come home with a win for an old home celebration of their own.

INDIAN TEAM WILL BE HERE WEDNESDAY

Curve Lake and Cogs Meet in Important E.P.B.L. Fixture.

The baseball classic of the season which brings the heavy hitting Curve Lake Indian team here next Wednesday evening to meet the Cognawagas (first-half champs.) will be well worth a trip to Exhibition Park. The Indians have always been favourites with the fans who patronize the Park.

There record in the second half of the rural series is two wins and two losses and a victory on Wednesday will make them league-leaders.

U. S. TENNIS TRYOUTS.

Tilden and Johnston Defeat Richards and Williams.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—William T. Tilden, 2nd, paired with William M. Johnston, defeated Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams, 2nd, in an exhibition match on the grass courts of the West Side Tennis Club yesterday, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5, in the opening match of a series arranged by the Davis Cup selection committee to determine the team which will defend the Davis Cup in the 1925 challenge round.

Tilden, Richards and Johnston are logically sure of their selection with Williams almost a sure bet for the fourth man, but the Davis Cup committee is laying a foundation for its 1926 and 1927 teams in inviting Howard O. Kinsey, of San Francisco; Cranston Holman, of Leland Stanford University; John Hennessey, of Indianapolis, and George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, to participate in the tryouts.

LAWN COMPETITION.

Entries Already Being Received—All Should Be in By August 12.

Fifteen applications have been received for the annual lawn and garden competition. All entries should be in the hands of the secretary at the Chamber of Commerce before the 12th of this month.

The prizes are many and varied, intended as they are to be an award for the care taken and the time spent profitably in beautifying surroundings.

Two cups, donated by A. W. Cressman and T. E. Bradburn, are prizes well worth capturing and may be held one year by the successful entrant.

All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contender, as well as the class in which the entry is made.

The deafening clatter of the riveting gun may soon be heard no longer when the steel structure of a modern building is being put in place. Instead of the riveting gun, engineers predict, electric arc welding will be used. Thus the framework of such a building will be a single welded unit. The work done will be just as strong as the best riveting and considerably cheaper.

KAWARTHA PARK ANNUAL REGATTA DREW BIG CROWD

ficulty in starting his engine, in the outboard motor race. The sailing events were rather tame affairs, owing to the extremely calm water, and contrasted greatly with the sailing races at McCracken's Landing last week, when a brisk breeze sent them flying over the course in quick time. The skiff and canoe events were particularly well staged, with close finishes in every instance.

As a special exhibition number, four crews of young men entered a "canoe four" race, with four paddlers to a boat.

An energetic committee was in charge of events, and ran through a lengthy programme with ease. Officials are as follows: H. W. Morphet, president, J. C. Budree of Toronto, vice-pres., H. L. Beal, secretary-treasurer. Regatta committee, T. H. Glover (chairman), H. W. Morphet, F. Adams, H. L. Beal. Referee, G. Copping. Judges: H. G. Fitzgerald of Lakefield, J. W. Williamson of Toronto, H. C. Weatherspoon of Toronto, E. B. Clegg, Dr. Meyers of Toronto, J. C. Budreo of Toronto, F. Adams. Starter, P. Manley of Toronto Recorder, W. G. Pierdon of Toronto. House Committee, Heber Rogers (chairman), Dudley Jessop of Chicago, Wilfred Adams, L. Killaly; Chairman Land Events, Wilfred Adams. Mr. J. C. Budreo of Toronto acted as announcer of yesterday's programme.

At the conclusion of events, prizes were presented in the pavilion by Mayor J. J. Turner of Peterboro, who, in a neat little speech with his usual friendly manner, congratulated the runners-up in the various sections, as well as the prize winners, and told a little story that was received with much laughter. The Mayor was accorded a hearty triple cheer and a tiger at the end of his brief address. He also extended, on behalf of the committee in charge, the thanks of the Association to those in charge of sports, to all who competed, and to Mr. P. Manley of Toronto for assistance in starting events.

A dance in the evening concluded the day's festivities, with excellent music supplied by Snelgrove's four-piece orchestra. A large crowd attended the dance in the pavilion, which had been decorated with toy balloons and flags, under supervision of Mrs. T. H. Glover. A number of novelty dances enlivened the programme, the "lucky number" prize going to Miss Helen Morphet and Mr. M. Peart.

MARIETTA CREATES FUTURE PROSPERITY

Citizens Oversubscribe Fund By a Margin of Ten Thousand.

His Worship Mayor Turner was the recipient on Monday of The Marietta Journal, which had been sent by William E. Detlor, a resident of Marietta, Ohio, having property interests in this city. Mr. Detlor also spends his vacations in the vicinity of Stoney Lake.

The headline on the number received states: "Prosperity fund is over-subscribed: drive ends with total of $1,110,000," and behind this statement lies a story.

Marietta citizens conceived the possibility of adding to the population and pay-roll by inducing the expansion of industrial firms. Money was essential for this increase, and, accordingly, plans were laid to overcome the deficiency.

One million 100 thousand was the goal set, and Marietta citizens rolled up that amount and added 10 thousand for good measure. The city has achieved that for which its people should be proud. They have paid for future prosperity—for expansion—they have bought recognition in an industrial world and factories and mills which the people have made possible will give work to idle thousands.

Surely the Marietta Register may exclaim with pride through the editorial medium: "I am a citizen of no mean city." Enthusiasm bubbles through the columns, and the journal sees provident citizens outlining a well defined road to better times. They know that boom days don't just happen, but are brought about by concentrated effort and their achievement makes them glad.

SPEAKER TELLS ARAB CUSTOMS

"Arabian Knights" Was a Most Educative Address on These Friends of Britain

AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Arabian Knights was the title given by Dr. Julian B. Arnold to a lecture on the Arabs of the present day, which he delivered in the Chautauqua tent yesterday afternoon. He told of many experiences that he had had among the Arabs, both in Arabia and in Africa. He described their clothing, their habits and their food. For this lecture, Dr. Arnold was clothed in the dress of an Arab of Northern Africa, with a white burnouse and trousers and a sort of yellow shawl.

For the benefit of the young ladies present, Dr. Arnold described a sheikh. The word, he said, does not mean a good looking young man, like a Valentino, but means old man. The oldest man in the tribe, or caravan, is the sheikh, which is pronounced "shake." The sheikhs are very dirty, because water is at a premium in the desert. Mohammedan law prescribes that all should wash before prayer, but they believe that Allah looks on the spirit of the cat, that they wash with sand, and the box of sand before the door of every mosque is usually very black, from the dirt of so many pairs of hands.

The Arab is tall, lean, and intellectual, and western civilization owes a great deal to him. He kept said the speaker, the classics of Greek and Rome when the west was in the dark ages. Paper, sugar and coffee were all first imported from Arabia. Chemistry also came from the Arabs, as did algebra, the name of which means a mode of calculation. The numerals used today came from the Arabs and are known as Arabic numerals to distinguish them from the clumsy Roman numbers.

The Arab eats dates. Not the dates that are bought in the stores here, but hard yellow dates, picked while green. Mint and rice are other staple foods. Milk is used, but not until it has hung for several days in a sheepskin bag, exposed to the sun. By that time, said the speaker, it is rancid. Eggs and chickens, when served in the desert, are usually very old, while many dishes are eaten which it is wiser for a white man to eat without enquiring about the composition.

Generosity and courtesy are two cardinal rules of the Arab, and Dr. Arnold told seevral legends about Ali, a favorite of the prophet, who was noted for these virtues, even in a race where everyone possesses them. The word of an Arab is always kept, for the Koran says that men witnesses to a covenant do not count but Allah is the witness of every covenant between man and man.

It is usually the poor man among the Arabs who has more than one wife. The rich man needs only one but the poor man has his full quota of four because they help him along. The women do not object to having another woman brought in, and in fact, the first wife will often insist after two or three years, that her husband takes another wife to do the work, so that the first wife may sit on a cushion all day.

Whenever a funeral is passing through a town, the coffin is usually borne by ten or twelve men. Every man rushes out as it passes, relieves one of the bearers, who goes back to his work, and runs along until some one else relieves him. The idea is to hurry the body to the tomb before the devil gets a chance at the man.

Two hundred thousand of these men fought by the side of the English under General Allenby, on his word that they should be free from the Turk, for the prestige of Englishmen is such that every Arab will trust an Englishman no matter what he wanted to do, or whatever he promised should be done. In the event of a war in the Pacific, said Dr, Arnold, the followers of Confucius and of Brahma could be discounted as these are non-fighting religions, but the 220 million Mohammedans would be a great factor, and the real fighting spirit of Islam, the Arab, is on the side of the English speaking peoples.

PREMIER URGES

"There remains the suggestion of annexation to the United States. I believe Canadians are concerning themselves with such possibility to about the extent that the United States is concerning herself with annexation to the British Empire. Save as an instrument of political propaganda to discredit political opponents, annexation is not so much as thought of in Canada today." In conclusion, the Premier said:

"Our opportunity being what it is, should we shirk responsibilities of that largest citizenship of all, world citizenship, of which our membership in the League of Nations is an expression. I believe that as a country, as a nation, we have arrived at men's estate and that it is for us to do our part in the world affairs. Wether we will it or no we shall be compelled to play some part."

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

CRITICS ENTHUSE ON "CHECHAHCOS"

That "The Chechahcos," the Alaskan epic which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday for a limited engagement of three days, is one of the big pictures of the year is indicated by two criticisms which have just come to our desk. Mabel McElliott, brilliant writer of The New York Daily News, the largest morning newspaper in America, writes:

"This vivid melodrama of the Klondike has that desired something new for which frenzied directors and producers are ever striving."

While Grace Kingsley, writing in "The Pre-View," a San Francisco magazine, pens the following glowing eulogy.

"There is more genuine thrill in watching these bits of actions taking place against these real backgrounds than in all the hokum pictures of the far-north ever made in the salt snowfields of Hollywood."

"LEARNING TO LOVE."

A programme exceptionally well suited to the season of the year is the light and airy movie diet afforded Capitol patrons for the first three days of this week. "Learning to Love," the feature picture, is one of those dainty romantic comedy affairs that are entertaining and impose no great burden on a warm-weather mind. The comedy is hilarious in the extreme, with a farcical hero going through all sorts of weird adventures when he becomes involved on a sea voyage with a crook and a million-dollar ruby.

Constance Talmadge is the star of "Learning to Love." Although not as dramatic an actress, possibly, as her more famous sister, Norma, she gives an admirable and fascinating presentation of a very modern type of girl, the "petter," who kisses every man she meets and falls in love with bewildering rapidity. As Patricia Stanhope, New York society girl, just out of school, where she has had several romantic episodes, she gets the heads of half a dozen men in a whirl and entangles herself in a number of embarassing situations. One of the most nonsensical of these is the scene at her party, where three men engage in a free-for-all fight for her favor, while the lady herself is visiting a fourth gentleman. When Patricia decides that she wants to marry her young legal adviser, a role taken by Antonio Moreno in fine style, she lands him by the simple process of going to spend a night in his apartment, unknown to him, then telephoning "Town Topics" of the occurrence. The glamor of the movies glosses over this sort of action on the part of a reckless girl in a way that makes it appear quite all right to the audience.

However. Patricia is very much in love, for the time being, and she cries artistically when she thinks she can't have the obdurate gentleman. He finally succumbs to her wiles, and all is peace and happiness at the close of an entertaining picture. Whether the remarks of the gossipers in the opening scene apply to Patricia's success or to her later defeat leave a question mark in the minds of the watchers. — Jeannette.

AT THE ROYAL.

CHILDREN'S 5c MATINEE THURSDAY AT ROYAL.

Thursday afternoon is Kiddies' Day at the Royal, when the admission price is lowered to 5c. The Ranger Rider, Unguarded Women and complete comedy programme will be shown.

G.W.V.A. NIGHT THURSDAY.

A military tinge will be given to the programme at the Royal Thursday night, when the songs the boys knew so well in France will be flashed on the screen. Other military novelties, including a parody, "When I Left the Front Behind," and a monologue by Mr. Harris will be presented.

BEBE AT THE ROYAL IN "THE MANICURE GIRL"

Bebe Daniels in "The Manicure Girl," her latest Paramount starring production, heads the bill at the Royal theatre to-day. The story, a screen original, has to do with Maria Marietti, who holds hands with New York's most exclusive set daily at the Curzon Hotel.

Maria possesses the natural womanly desire to enjoy the marvellous side of life. Her surroundings, the people she meets, only tend to make her more and more dissatisfied with her lot in life. Then happens along James Morgan, millionaire man-about-town. Like hundreds before him he falls for Maria's soft Italian beauty. Result: Gorgeous presents.

It is at this turn of events that Tony Luca, who is engaged to Maria, decides to take a hand in affairs and what follows always results when a young man starts to tell an equally young girl just what she is to do and what's she's not to do. The engagement is broken.

In the days that follow Maria sees a great deal of Morgan until her little dream of new found happiness is shattered when she learns that Morgan already has a wife on his hands.

One of the finest scenes that have happened along in some time is that between Bebe and Mrs. Morgan. A call for a manicurist brings Bebe to her home. She finds the woman most unhappy because her husband is deeply interested in another woman. Bebe confesses that she is that woman and instead of the usual hair-pulling contest the women take to putting two and two togeher. A fake telegram to Morgan to the effect that his wife is seriously ill brings matters to a climax. Off he goes on the run to her side, forgetting all about Bebe. An equally humorous scene brings Tony Luca back begging for mercy.

ROYAL
is—that instead of cutting the quality of the program for the summer months as most theatres do—we have increased the quality and are booking the best pictures available regardless of the price.

BEBE DANIELS
in
"THE MANICURE GIRL"
is proof of this fact and Richard Dix in "Unguarded Women" on Thursday, and Betty Compson in "New Lives for Old" next Monday and in program after program as they come and go—you will notice quality—which is one of the reasons for the big crowds at the Royal.

Particular people patronize the Royal — the others will as soon as they become particular!

Bebe wants to see you tonight!

MANY REASONS FOR PAR DOLLAR

Canadian Money Has Dropped Below Parity Once Since May.

NOW AT PREMIUM.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press)—Confidence of United States capital in the Dominion, optimistic preparations for new Canadian financing, prospects for an excellent crop, large United States purchasing in Canada and the heavy expenditures of American tourists in the Dominion were some of the reasons offered by financial experts here last night for the consistent above par stand of the Canadian dollar on the New York exchange.

Yesterday the Canadian dollar stood at a premium of 3-32 and since April, save for a single dip in May it has been on a parity with the United States dollar or at a premium.

BERRY PICKERS FROM DISTANCE

AMUSEMENTS

HATZIC, B. C., Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—An article on the berry-pickers of this fruit centre appearing in a Vancouver paper deals with the Island Fruit Farm and the women berry pickers, who have been employed by Mr. and Mrs. Shook. Some pickers have been at work for seven successive years. The girls include many from distant parts, some come from Alberta, others hail from the Fiji islands, and the present matron has recently arrived in Canada from Australia. She is working her way around the world. While at the farm they enter ito the life there with enthusiasm and oftentimes with a lasting friendship for their employers. Mrs. Shook carries on an interesting correspondence with pickers who have travelled far and and wide since the days at Hatzic Island. One girl descended on Hollywood with such success she is one of the most advertized movie stars of the day, while another is a musician whose name is well known in musical circles. In former years when the army of pickers was numbered in hundreds the farm was a little world of its own. Mr. and Mrs. Shook had a private moving picture concern on their grounds, and dances, bathing and launch parties filled up the evening hours of the farmerettes. Now there is a cafeteria where the meals are served at 6 p.m. There is a modern system of spray baths, and laundry facilities.

HEAR WITNESS IN SCOTT CASE

Mother of Russell Scott Testified on Behalf of Her Son.

SOME RULED OUT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press). — Mrs. Rilla Scott of Bay Village, Ohio, mother of Russell Scott, testified to-day in behalf of her son in the sanity hearing before Superior Judge Joseph B David.

Under the law excluding witnesses until they have testified, Judge David ordered all alienists from court.

Mrs. Scott said Russell was her second child, born 31 years ago. A question as to the condition of her first child was withdrawn after an objection by the State.

Questions as to the birth of Russell were also over-ruled. W. S. Stewart of the defence counsel said he would connect the mother's testimony in regard to the child's birth with the insanity plea through the testimony of alienists. Stewart was granted permission to withdraw the witness for the time.

When Dr. H. S. Hulbert, first defence alienist, testified that Scott's mother "had been in ill-health and his father was alcoholic," Judge David ruled this part of the evidence out.

Dr. Hulbert said examination convinced him that the prisoner has become insane since February 14, the date of sentence to the gallows.

The defence brought out that Scott had been a drug addict, but the court halted an effort to establish habits a factor contributory to insanity.

Dr. Hulbert said Scott told him he had been persecuted by crown attorneys of Canada.

TORONTO GIRL WINS HONORS

Miss Mona Bates Has Been Playing in Europe for Some Months.

HIGHLY PRAISED

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press)—As 'Anon Setab' Miss Mona Bates of Toronto has won enthusiastic recognition as a pianist following her first continental recital in Vienna early this year. This young Canadian pianist has been playing in Hungary and Austria for some months. She has also given a recital in Dresden, Germany, European newspaper comment is very interesting.

Miss Bates' recital in Dresden was spoken of by the Suchsische Staatszeitung as follows: "The piano recital introduced us to a Canadian pianist whose name sounds like an inversion of Mona Bates, which would have sounded less exotical. She played a dignified programme and left a most favorable impression."

Der Tag, Vienna, followed the Vienna recital with this: "The owner of this strange name is a beautiful blonde from Canada, from which we are accustomed to expect all sorts of adventures but certainly not good music. But we were wrong. Miss Bates is a pianist who deserves the adjective first class."

That Miss Bates has a conspicuous pianistic talent is the comment of Dresdrer Machrichten, following her first recital in Germany. "Every indication is that hers is a pianistic talent that will make the world take notice."

Miss Bates has been orchestral soloist under several famous conductors both in America and abroad, and guest artist with the New York Symphony Orchestra, in one of Walter Damrosch's concerts. So it was not for purposes of publicity that she took the psuedonym "Anon Setab." She made her debut in Dresden and was given a wonderful reception. Following this Miss Bates gave recital at Prague, Budapest, at which latter place she was presented to the Archduchess Augusta, and at Vienna as well as other lesser places.

Miss Bates had the privilege in Europe of playing the piano of Franz Listz in Budapest. "It was one of the proudest moments of my life," Miss Bates says, "when I was granted the honor of playing on the wonderful old piano used by the great Franz Listz himself and on the sounding board of which this revered master has himself placed his signature."

"The occasion was a musicale arranged for me my Count Apponyi, member of one of the oldest families of Hungary, at his beautiful home. I think that rarely has a pianist played before a more brilliant and exclusive audience that I did on that night."

That gathering included the heads of Magyar aristocracy and political leaders, besides the American and Spanish ambassadors at Budanest, and the representative of His Holiness the Pope.

During the summer Miss Bates is playing in France and Italy. She will probably appear in London as well before taking a short rest and returning to America next fall.

Notable among the events of Field Marshal Lord Haig's trip to Hamilton was his visit to Adam Brown, the grand old man of the Ambitious City. The former commander of the British armies brought to Mr. Brown greetings from his son in England, Sir George McLaren Brown, European general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railways. In honor of the visit of his fellow- countryman, Mr. Brown donned a tam o'shanter. Despite the act th at he will be a hundred years old next spring—having been born in Edinburgh on April 2, 1826—Mr. Brown is still hale and hearty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Public participation increased as trading in Wall Street to-day progressed. The demand for the so-called "Richmen's stock," selling above $200 a share, continued unabated with buying influenced by reports of capital splitups and increased dividend distributions. Continued agitation for lower taxes and increasing indications of trade expansion also were stressed by the operators for a rise as bullish factors. General Motors, which is expected to declare a substantial extra dividend this month, rose to a new record high for present stock, and was followed into new high ground by Dupont, which has large General Motor holdings. United Drug and Ginter Company also eclipsed their previous high prices. Heavy accumulation of public utilities sent several of these issues above their previous maximum prices for the year, ready absorption of recent power and light stock offerings being a stimulating influence. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent.

Adverse Crop Reports Sent Wheat Market Up

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Unfavorable crop reports from Canada, together with indications of improved European demand gave a fresh upward swing to the wheat market to-day, after a decline at the opening. Advices from Saskatchewan Province said excessively hot dry weather was turning the fields grey, and that the late wheat would suffer severely if high temperatures continued. On the other hand, initial weakness of the market here was ascribed to the fact that Liverpool quotations failed to reflect fully the advance which took place yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. Chicago opening prices, ¼ to 1¼ cents lower, September 157 to 157½ and December 156 3-4 to 157¼, were followed by a slight further sag, and then by a rise all around to well above yesterday's top level, September reaching 159 3-4 and December 159 3-4. Corn and oats trailed after wheat. Opening at a quarter cent off to a quarter cent up, September 105 3-8 to 105½, the corn market underwent a moderate general set-back and then scored gains, September touching 106 1-8. Oats started at a quarter cent decline to a quarter cent advance, September 42 3-8 to 42½. Later all the months showed a rise.

Toronto Stock Exchange Falls In Summer Slump

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press).—With the exception of some interest displayed in Consolidated Smelters, the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning appeared to have struck the regular "summer slump."

Trading was lethargic, transactions being scattered mostly in single lots. Consolidated Smelters opened strong and improved, then declined down to 107 7-8, a net decline of 7-8. Atlantic Sugar Common, Brazilian and C.P.R. all registered fractional improvement.

Weather Reports Lend Bullish Swing To Wheat

Winnipeg, Man., August 4. — Canadian Press. — Unfavorable crop reports from the Canadian West swing to the wheat market here to-brought about a pronounced bullish day. October advanced 6 1-2 to close at $1.45. An excellent demand also prevailed for other futures, December gaining 6 5-8c at $1.42 and May up 6 3-4c at $1.46 3-4.

Vacation Leaves Firm Tone In Mining Stocks

TORONTO, August 4. — Canadian Press. — After the holiday recess a firm tone was shown on the standard mining exchange this morning. Cons. W. D. Lake was strong at 115 and Baldwin receded fractionally to 2 3-8 Keora advanced 1 5-8 to 15 while Castle Tretheway remained steady at 90. Lorrain opened steady but declined a half to 11½.

COLONIST 'BROKE' BUT NOT BROKEN

"Alfalfa Bill," Oklahoma Pioneer, Seeks Recruits for New Venture.

THISOMINGO, Okla., Aug. 4.—(United Press).—"Alfalfa Bill" Murray, twentieth century pioneer, is back but not beaten.

A year ago he left with some 60 venturesome followers to spend two years experimenting with agriculture in South America. The plan was to colonize an expanse of land in Bolivia.

Now he is back here—and his colonists are also here—and "Alfalfa Bill" is enjoying a breathing spell during which he is recruiting new colonists. He seeks new blood and harder spirits for the adventure.

With a year's experience in the profession of colonization, Colonel Murray, as he is known to the Bolivian government, is determined to make a success of it this time.

First Colony Fails.

Two months ago the last of his band returned disillusioned, homesick, almost broke. Lack of knowledge of how to cope with conditions existing there wrought havoc with the pioneers. Murray and his family were left there alone with a great tract of land and no one to work it.

Those who know him say "Alfalfa Bill" Murray is the man for the job of colonizing. Once a rich Oklahoma owner, he staked his "pile" on Bolivia. Speaker of the first state house of representatives, Murray is known here as "the sage of Tishomingo." He gained distinction as a lawyer and a politician and was one of the first settlers of Oklahoma in its wild six gun days.

PESSIMISM FELT IN CAPITOL CITY

Washington Doubtful of Coal Situation Shown By Parley.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— Growing pessimism from the anthracite coal parley, was shown here to-day over reports While Washington has become accustomed to all sorts of manoeuvring, in negotiations between hard coal miners and operators, the feeling here that a walkout will come September 1st is much stronger than at any time yet. The announcement that President Coolidge will not take a hand unless there is a strike, has added to the pessimism.

WINDSOR FIREMEN SAVE BELLE RIVER

Overheated Stove Over Ladies' Wear Shop Causes Blaze.

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Fire to-day threatened the whole village of Belle River, when an overheated stove in an apartment over a ladies' wear shop, conducted by Mrs. D. Desbourghs, set fire to the building. The two-storey building was gutted completely as well as an adjoining drug store, owned by Leo Sylvester. Buildings on both sides of the blaze were badly damaged and were it not for the record-breaking and heroic response of the Windsor fire department with pumper and a staff of firemen, the village would undoubtedly have been completely wiped out. The damage, according to estimates, will amount to $20,000, of which only a small amount was covered by insurance.

ANTHRACITE COAL CONFERENCE COLLAPSES BY DISAGREEMENT

WAGE CONTRACT EXPIRES SEPT. 1.

The motion to adjourn sine die was proposed by C. J. Golden, president of District 9, United Mine Workers, was seconded by several operators and passed by the joint committee. The conferees reported they were in complete disagreement on the miners' demands and that further negotiations appeared useless.

Flat refusal of Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, to attend the coal wage conference yesterday as President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, had demanded, was regarded as an important factor in the collapse of the parley.

Lewis has refused to comment on Warriner's reply to his demand that the "big guns" of the operators attend the conference.

Opposes Suspension

Discussing the question of a suspension of activities in the anthracite fields at the expiration of the present agreemnt on September 1, Warriner, in his letter, said:

"You again make the entirely unjustified assertion that 'the anthracite operators are not desirous of concluding an agreement and averting a cessation of operations on September 1.'

"Permit me to remind you that I proposed to you on July 9, at the joint conference, that we then and there agree that there should be no suspension. Surely you have not forgotten this proposal.

"In view of the fact that you continue to ignore the proposal which I then made, that the mines should continue to work, let me take this opportunity to repeat and reaffirm it. I would therefore suggest that, as the first act of your joint meeting to-morrow, you agree with our committee:

". That, regardless of the course the negotiations may take, there shall be no suspension of anthracite production.

"2. That as to any matters upon which we are unable to agree prior to September 1, such matters shall be referred for determination to a board of impartna persons.

"This sure way of avoiding a suspension is open to you."

Coolidge Likes His Tub But Mrs. Swims Outdoors

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 5.—(United Press). Enthusiasm over aquatic arts possibly engendered the feats of those attempting to swim the English Channel has invaded the summer White House.

Mrs. Coolidge is learning to swim. In the private pool a few yards from the White Court, which is filled twice daily by obliging high tides, the "first lady of the land" is taking swimming lessons. Heretofore Mrs. Coolidge has merely paddled and splashed about. Now she gets as much thrill from crossing the little pool as Gertrude Ederle will get if she conquers the Channel. President Coolidge remains faithful to his bath tub.

Monkey May Be Man's Nephew Instead Of His Parents And Orang-Outang Is Our Nearest Animal Relative

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(United Press)—The monkey may be our nephew instead of our parent, according to a late scientific declaration. The Exchange Telegraph's Melbourne correspondent to-day reported a lecture of the scientist, Prof. Wood Jones, at Melbourne University, in which he declared that exhaustive investigations led to the conclusion that the anthropoid ape was a descendent, not an ancestor of man. "Both man and the ape," he said, "sprang from the primitive tarscoid, but man was the earlier development. The orang outang, not the gorilla, is the animal nearest man. It is time to drop the erroneous assumption that Darwin proved that man was descended from the monkey. It is absurd to search for the missing link, since man's evolution occurred so early that it antedated the remains discovered in comparatively modern earth layers." In moving thanks for Prof. Jones' lecture, his colleague, Prof. Agar, remarked: "Many came believing that the ape was man's parent or at least man's uncle, and learned that the monkey was man's nephew."

Porridge of the Province To Undergo Rigid Inspection

TORONTO, August 5. — Canadian Press. — Investigation of the diet at the Toronto municipal jail, following complaints of prisoners suffering from "porridge rash" has been widened into an inquiry into the diet at all provincial institutions, prisons, county jails, and four jail farms, Hon. W. H. Price, acting provincial secretary, stated to-day.

The report on the Toronto jail will be held up for the completion of the provincial enquiry.

MANITOBA'S SECOND BEST CROP HINGES ON WEATHER THIS WEEK

YIELD TO AVERAGE 25 TO 40 BUS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 5—Manitoba has in the making the second largest crop in the history of the Province, according to a survey conducted by the Winnipeg Tribune. During the past two days more than 300 miles of widely separated territory were covered and the general summing up was to the effect that with the exception of a few isolated districts, particularly in the southern sections, the Province will produce a bumper yield.

The field experts admit that much depends upon weather conditions during the present week. Reports of red rust infection in the southern part of the province is substantiated, but in the central and northern districts this menace has not manifested itself to any extent, and many fields give indications of producing anywhere from 25 to 40 bushels to the acre.

Harvesting has commenced in several districts, but cutting will not be general for another ten days. The coarse grains are reported to be making good progress and to give promise of an average yield.

Favorable at Moose Jaw

MOOSE JAW, Aug. 5—Crop report for Saskatchewan issued Tuesday by Kern Agencies, this city, shows conditions in the Moose Jaw farming area favorable, with a need for rain slightly fell in some localities. No hail, no damage by insects and no rust has been reported.

It is expected that cutting will be general here by the end of the week cutting having already commenced Mortlok, west of the city and near Tuxford, to the north, where white tip has begun to damage standing fields of grain.

Rain at Saskatoon

SASKATOON, Sask., Aug. 5—Fairly heavy rain fell at Biggar and Keppel, Sask., Monday night. In the Biggar district on light soil grain had been burning very badly, and the rain is expected to add several bushels to the acre to the crop there.

BALTIMORE, Md., August 5. — Canadian Press. — All down town fire fighting apparatus and a heavy police guard were rushed to the Maryland penitentiary here at noon today to fight a three alarm fire which attacked the shops of the penitentiary and the city jail.

LEAVES JOB ON LEPERS' ISLAND AFTER 25 YEARS

John D. McVeigh Has Been Superintendent at Molokai.

REVIEWS SERVICE

Industry, Movies and Chaulmoogra Oil Specific Have Been Great Steps.

HONOLULU, Aug. 5.—(Associated Press).—Almost a quarter of a century in the service of the inmates of Kalaupapa, the "saddest spot on earth," on "the lonely leper isle of Molokai," was completed recently when John D. McVeigh retired as superintendent of the settlement and assumed a supervisory and advisory position for the leprosy receiving station at Kalihi, Honolulu.

McVeigh was succeeded as superintendent by Ralph L. Cooke, former superintendent of the wireless department of the Mutual Telephone Co. Dr. W. J. Goodhue, who has served as physician at the settlement since 1902, also retired and was succeeded by Dr. Harold Marshall, who has been at the settlement in Louisiana.

Reviewing his service on the small triangular shelf between raging ocean breakers and the virtually impassable windward cliffs of Molokai which houses the settlement, McVeigh said that the three greatest changes were the building of a poi factory, the introduction of motion pictures to the colony, and the discovery of the Dean Chaulmoogra oil specific for the treatment of the inmates. These provided palatable food, distraction for the mind, and relief and perhaps cure for the body, he said.

The Chaulmoogra oil specific is more efficacious at the Kalihi receiving station, for its greatest effect is obtained in the early stages of the scourge and Kalaupapa receives only relatively advanced cases. So highly does McVeigh regard the treatment that he predicted the close of the Molokai settlement within 20 years if diseased persons would surrender themselves and receive injections in time. Education and the enlisting of public support for the territory's fight against leprosy are aims to which he intends to devote himself.

PROGRESSIVES BAR REPORTERS FIRST

Will Discuss Relations With Other Federal Parties.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press).—One of the first acts of the 53 delegates and Federal members of Parliament attending the Provincial Progressive Convention here yesterday was to exclude the press. A committee was appointed to draw up statements to be published after each session.

Little was accomplished Tuesday morning beyond registration and consideration of the form of agenda, the main items of which are the relation of the Progressive party to other parties and to their fellow-members in the House. Those in attendance also will consider election matters under four sub-heads of platform, finance, publicity and organization. John Evans, M.P., Saskatoon; T. H. McConica, M.P., of Weyburn, and J. F. Johnston, M.P., of Last Mountain, were present at the opening.

SEE NO RELIEF IN ANTHRACITE MINE OUTLOOK

SEPTEMBER 1.

Miners Check Owners' Proposal By Demand For New Advantages.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 5. —(Canadian Press).—Suspension of work on September 1st by 158,000 anthracite coal miners in the Pennsylvania field appears certain unless an outside influence, Federal or State, bring together the United Mine Workers and anthracite coal operators.

Negotiations for a working contract to replace the one expiring on August 31st were broken off here last night.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, charged that the owners wanted to cut wages to "increase profit margins," and that they had opposed every "constructive suggestion that would have meant cheaper coal."

The conference then voted to adjourn.

Miners are demanding as the terms for a new contract that wages be increased 10 per cent. for contract miners and $1 additional for all-day workers, recognition of union with adoption of check-off, two-year contract and various other advantages.

REEVE APPEALS ON ASSESSMENT

Oxford County Council's Equalized Valuation to be Laid Before Court.

HEARING MONDAY.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 5. — (Canadian Press).—The threat made by Reeve Johnston of South Norwich to the effect that he would appeal to the Lieutenant-Governor against the equalized assessment of Oxford County on the ground it was unjust to increase the assessment of his township by two dollars per acre was made good yesterday when, in response to an order from the Provincial Secretary's office, a court was convened to hear the appeal of Reeve Johnston.

The court, which was composed of Judge Wallace of Oxford, Judge Boles of Norfolk and Sheriff McGhee of Oxford, met Tuesday afternoon and adjourned after inviting the Reeves of all the municipalities of Oxford to be present to give evidence at the next session on Monday next. The assessment of South Norwich prior to the increase was $44 an acre, and was the lowest of any township in the county. At the June session of the County Council, on resolution of Warden Innes, adopted by the Council, it was raised to $46.

Sheep Tonic Brings Hope For Bald Heads

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(United Press).—Here is hope for baldhead men.

According to assertions made at Chester, England, before a meeting of sheep breeders, a Japanese scientist has just compounded a new tonic which when injected into the veins of a sheep produces an ordinary year's growth of wool in two months time.

Under the new method it is said two or three shears a year are possible where formerly breeders only got one.

Up to the present time, so far as is known, the new tonic has not been tried on human beings.

EXHIBITION IS TO BE BIGGEST EVER PLANNED

Directors Turn Out in Force to Make Final Arrangements. ONE DAY FREE.

Children's Day to be Observed Wednesday—Half Holiday.

More than forty directors of Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board met last night to make further arrangements for the coming Fair. Enthusiasm was general, as the directors contemplated an enlargement of the Exhibition and a record number of entries. One of the features was the large number of county members of the board present.

It was decided to hold one free day Tuesday—when the side shows will all be in place and Al. Sweet's Singing Band will be present. Wednesday will be Children's Day, with all the exhibits in place and the buildings open. The Board of Education and the Separate School Board are being asked to grant a half-holiday on that day so that the children may take advantage of the big Fair. The musical ride, so much talked of in Toronto and elsewhere, will be a part of this year's show.

Never before have the directors presented so enthusiastic a front and so optimistic an outlook as this year. They are all pulling together in perfect harmony and the result of this co-operation is seen already in the smooth-running preparations It will be seen by the citizens in general when the Exhibition opens on September 15.

69,000 HARVEST HANDS REQUIRED FOR WEST CROP

Prairie Province Will Likely Supply 19,000 Men—Rest From the East.

OTTAWA ESTIMATE.

Department of Immigration Not Arranging For Help in Old Land.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — (Canadian Press).—Enquiry at the Department of Immigration and Colonization yesterday elicited the information that approximately 69,000 harvest hands would be required for this year's western crop. Of this number, it is estimated that the Western provinces will supply about 19,000, and that a complement ranging from 30,000 to 35,000 may be secured from Eastern Canada, owing to the early harvesting in the East. No definite indication, however, had been given as yet by the railways in regard to the number available from the East.

"Are you arranging a programme to bring harvesters from the United Kingdom?" the Department was asked.

"We have never arranged any programme of this kind," was the reply. "It is always left to the transportation companies, but, as in the year 1923, we are always prepared to co-operate. There can be no doubt that if we were approached by transportation companies for co-operation in bringing harvesters from the United Kingdom to Winnipeg, at an approximate rate of twelve pounds, arrangements could be put under way at once which ought to bring anywhere from 3,000 to 5,000 men who would fit in in the harvest work. We have, however, not been approached by any transportation company, so far. It may be, however, that they expect to get the required number from Canada and the United States."

EXECUTIVE RECOMMENDS TAKING BISHOP BIDWELL'S RESIGNATION BECAUSE OF HIS WIFE'S ACTION

ELECTED IN 1913.

Brilliant Career Ends and Bishop May Take English Parish.

KINGSTON, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press) — The resignation of the Right Rev. E. J. Bidwell, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, submitted some time ago to the House of Bishops of the ecclesiastical province of Ontario, owing to the fact that his wife had joined the Roman Catholic faith in Kingston, was today submitted to the executive committee of the synod by the Archbishop of Algoma, who asked for its opinion. After due deliberation the executive decided to recommend that the resignation be accepted. Two months ago Bishop Bidwell went to England in connection with the Church of England emigrating settlement scheme, he being chairman of the Canadian Anglican Committee. Mr. Bidwell sailed for England on July 18. His lordship is expected to return to Kingston at the end of August.

Elected on First Ballot

Bishop Bidwell was elected Bishop of Ontario by the Synod in 1913 on the first ballot, a circumstance said to be without parallel in Canada.

He was born in England and as a scholar stands in the front rank of the clergy of his church in Canada.

Bishop Bidwell was ordained deacon in 1891, and a priest the following year in Worcester, England. He was assistant master of Leamington college, succeeding to the head mastership, which he held for three years, to 1897. For the six years following he was head master King's School, Peterborough, coming to Canada in 1903. For six years he was head master of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Que., and was inducted dean and rector in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, in February 1909.

Mrs. Bidwell was Frances Mary Morris, daughter of Joseph Morris of Leamington Spa., England. They were married in 1894 and there are one son and five daughters of the marriage.

Toronto Anglicans have not been taken unawares by the official announcement of the resignation of the Bishop of Ontario. Among the clergy of the Anglican Church appointment of Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, rector of Christ Church, Toronto, as commissiary of the the Diocese of Ontario yesterday indicated that some line of action was contemplated in connection with the administration of the diocese.

Members of Toronto clergy who have been visiting Kingston within the past few months have been told of the decision of Mrs. Bidwell to join the Roman Catholic Church. As far back as February last, the press were informed. Last night, Bishop Bidwell had confided to a Toronto rector the information that Mrs. Bidwell had taken the first steps toward her reception into the Roman Catholic Church. His Lordship, Bishop of Kingston at that time, seemed to be greatly distressed, because he regarded his wife's action as prompted by "direct opposition to him."

Dissatisfied with Church

In discussing the resignation of Bishop Bidwell, a leading Anglican said last night that he understood that Mrs. Bidwell quite openly expressed her "dissatisfaction with the administration of the Church of

FARMER SUPPORT ASSURED MEIGHEN

Progressive Measures Will Receive Progressive Backing.

REGINA, Aug. 5. — (Canadian Press).—When the Government introduces progressive measures they will be given Progressive support, declared Robert Forke, M.P., leader of the Progressives in the Federal House, who addressed a largely attended public meeting here last night.

"I am prepared," continued Mr. Forke, "to say the same thing to Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, when he introduces Progressive measures he will get Progressive support."

Mr. Forke described the 1925 budget as a stand-pat budget, and went on to declare that high protection was more likely to lead to United States domination than free trade between the two countries. The Progressive leader declared great fault of the King Government was that it had not stood true to the Liberal platform, while he said the Progressives would appreciate it if ability to bring forward something constructive.

NOTED ORANGEMAN HAS PASSED AWAY

W. H. G. Armstrong, Founder of a Peterboro' Lodge, Stood High in Order.

In the death of William Henry Grattan Armstrong which occured at Saskatoon on Sunday last, after five months' illness, the Orange Order has lost a prominent member, who all his life was a warm adherent of the Institution and an Imperialist of the soundest type. The late Mr. Armstrong was born at Armstrong's Hill, Teemore, County Armagh, Ireland, and came to Canada when 19 years of age, identifying himself with the Royal School of Artillery. He moved to Peterborough in 1892, and in 1909 went with his family to Saskatoon. He had joined the Orange Order in Ireland when 15 years old, being initiated in R.B.P. No. 1, the oldest Preceptory on the register of the Institution. He was Past Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of British America, and Honorary Past Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America, this honor having been conferred upon him at the recent session of Grand Lodge held at Vancouver.

Work in Peterborough.

The late W. H. G. Armstrong was County Master of West Peterborough 1906 to 1909. He instituted Duke of Manchester L.O.L. No. 50, Peterborough, and is recognized as its founder. This lodge was named after the Duke of Manchester, with whom Mr. Armstrong was associated in Tandragee, County Armagh, Ireland, in connection with the Orange Order there. He was also Worshipful Preceptor of Weir Royal Black Preceptory No. 261 of Peterborough. He moved to Peterborough from Sherbrooke, Quebec, with the Canadian General Electric works in 1892, when their first plant commenced operations.

Few men in the Order were more popular or better known. It is a well-known fact that the late Mr. Armstrong instituted more Orange lodges and initiated more Orangemen than any other man in Canada.

His son, Melville, of Saskatoon, is a Past Grand Master of the Orange and Black Institutions, and his second son, Cecil W., of Toronto, holds high office in the Institution, he is one of its leaders in Toronto to-day. He is well known to local Orangemen, having visited the city and addressed the members on various occasions.

In 1909, while County Master of West Peterborough, he was appointed as Grand Organizer for Saskatchewan. At that time Saskatchewan was the second lowest Orange jurisdiction in point of membership in British America. Through his work during the past sixteen years, Saskatchewan is to-day the second highest jurisdiction. Since taking up his duties in that province he organized 225 primary Orange lodges, reorganized 55; instituted 18 County Lodges, 19 Scarlet Chapters, and 24 Royal Black Preceptories. He also instituted the Provincial Grand Black Chapters of Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the Grand Lodge of the L.O.B.A. for Saskatchewan in addition to 27 ladies' primary lodges.

Instituted Many Lodges.

In 1918 he was elected Grand Lecturer of the Grand Lodge of British America, which position he retained until 1923, when he voluntarily reliquished it. He has attended 20 annual sessions of the Grand Lodge of British America, and there were few men more popular or better known in Orange circles. He was known and respected for his excellent judgment and sound opinions on matters pertaining to the Association from Newfoundland to British Columbia. In connection with his duties he initiated 10,454 Orangemen. From 1909 to 1924 he travelled over 320,000 miles in the interests of the Order.

Gifted Speaker.

In 1920 he was one of the chief speakers at the sessions of the Grand Orange Lodge of England, which were held at Birmingham, and he addressed the Orange gatherings at Glasgow and Belfast on the 10th and 12th of July respectively that year. He was also a representative at the meeting of the Grand Orange Council of the World at Belfast. At this session he was instrumental in having a "universal Orange password" adopted by that body. He was made a Deputy Grand Master of the Imperial Black Chapter in 1921 in recognition of his services to the Order.

In 1918 he published a book entitled "Separate Schools in the New Provinces," which is considered a very able presentation of the case against Separate schools.

Courage and Enthusiasm.

The Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, present Grand Master of British America, in his annual address to Grand Lodge at Vancouver on July 22nd, made the following reference to the late Mr. Armstrong's work: "He brought to his work a courage which never dreamed of compromise, an enthusiasm and earnestness which never wavered, and a well-trained mind stored with intimate knowledge of general conditions, which enabled him to grasp, as few men could, the significance of the problems confronting the Orange Order."

The late Mr. Armstrong was a life-long Anglican, and was also a member of the Masonic and Oddfellows' Orders.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

INCUBATOR BABY IN LOVE THEFT

Father Deserted Sick Mother to Elope With Sister-in-law.

COMPLEX TRAGEDY.

In an incubator in the Orange Memorial Hospital at Orange, N.J., there is a baby girl who came into being only by grace of a surgeon's skill.

Her name, if she lives, will be Ruth Lydia Donten. She is only twelve days old—

Yet—

The baby, prematurely brought into the world by a Caesarian operation judged necessary to save her mother's life, appeared yesterday in one of the principal characters in one of the strangest and most complex tragedies of the home, ever recorded in the State of New Jersey.

Cast Of Characters.

Here is the cast of characters:

Mrs. Gertrude Kent, of No. 380 Carroll street, Orange, the mother of three children—Doris, two; Muriel, four, and Frederick III, six.

Harry Donten, of No. 293 Heywood street, Orange, a painting foreman.

Mrs. Harry Donten, his wife, sister-in-law of Mrs. Kent, and the mother of three children—Elizabeth seven; Lillian, nine, and Ruth Lydia, the incubator baby.

Frederick Kent, a toolmaker, husband of Mrs. Kent, brother-in-law of Donten, and brother of Mrs. Donten.

The drama began more than a dozen years ago, when the Kents and Dontens became related by marriage. Thenceforth the two families were almost inseparable. There was nothing of a surface nature appearing as unusual in the relationship.

One Child Dies.

But on July 15 last, expecting the arrival of Ruth Lydia, Mrs. Donten went to the hospital. She asked Mrs. Kent meanwhile to care for her two children. Her sister-in-law, apparently gladly, agreed. But five days later little Elizabeth, who always had heart trouble, dies suddenly.

News of this so affected the childs' mother in the hospital that her life was despaired of. A Caesarian operation was performed and Ruth Lydia was born the next day.

Then, on July 24, Mrs. Kent vanished. Her husband asked the police to find her. But three days later he reported he had discovered her through his own efforts, working in an establishment in Summit.

Strangely, though he did not think so at the time, she was living there with friends of Donten.

"I felt that the neighbors were criticizing me, feeling I did not give poor Elizabeth sufficient care," she told her husband. "No; I cannot go back with you now and face them. Oh, Elizabeth's death is driving me mad!"

The disconsolate husband returned to Orange alone. The situation remained unchanged until last Tuesday. Then——

Doten called at the hospital that afternoon to see his wife, still in a pitiable condition because of the death of her daughter and the physical ordeal she had undergone in the birth of Ruth Lydia.

"Don't you think that people will believe it strange," she asked him, 'that Gertrude should be living in Summit with friends of yours?"

Through With Her.

Then, she says, he stormed out of the hospital, saying:

"I'm through with you for good."

He did not see her again. Yesterday he drove his automobile to the Kent home, telling his brother-in-law he had a new set of tires and asking him to help put them on. Kent obligingly assisted. Then Donten drove away.

That was the last seen of him in Orange. And subsequently Kent, going to Summit, learned that his wife had left there Tuesday afternoon and had not returned. And Donten had given up his apartment, it was learned.

An older sister, Mary, was badly burned in an effort to rescue the younger child. Mr. Boland and his son escaped through a window. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

BEAR ON ROAD.

Hastings Folk See Bruin Out For a Stroll on Ninth Dummer Line.

HASTINGS, Aug. 5—On Monday evening when a party of Hastings residents who spent Sunday and Monday around Stoney Lake was returning home it was stopped in the road near the Ninth Line of Dummer, by some of the workmen, who were doing road work. While the party waited for a load of crushed stone to be placed in the road a good sized black bear came out from the bush and crossed the road about fifteen yards ahead of the car. Mr. Bruin looked both sides of the road and leisurely walked off in the bush at the opposite side of the road.

WARKWORTH CALLS REV. E. E. PRESTON

Non-Concurring Presbyterians to Fill Vacancy in Village.

(By a Staff Reporter).

WARKWORTH, Aug. 5. — With Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings presiding, a congregational meeting of the non-concurring Presbytertans in this village was held Tuesday night, when a call was unanimously extended to Rev. Edwin E. Preston, of Colborne, to become pastor in succession to Rev. G. O. Hammond, who resigned when the congregation voted by a majority to remain out of the Union. The call will be dealt with at a meeting of the Peterboro Presbytery on August 18th, when arrangements will be made for the induction. It is expected that Mr. Preston will accept the invitation which has been so heartily extended to him. The congregation has had him in mind ever since he preached his first sermon in the vacant pulpit.

A Returned Soldier.

Mr. Preston gave up the ministry for a time on the breaking out of the war to enlist, and saw actual service in the trenches in Flanders. He suffered from the effects of German gas, and was obliged to take a long rest in quitting the army, the state of his nerves rendering it impossible for him to take up ministerial duties. He has been living quietly in the country in the vicinity of Colborne, and has fully recovered his health. He has for some time been preaching acceptably in various churches in the district, and the Warkworth people consider themselves fortunate in securing his services, in what has always been regarded as one of the most desirable rural charges and one of the most loyally supported in Ontario.

LEAVES JOB ETC.

has some contribution to the tuberculosis sanitariums," he commented. "But little is done for the lepers. There is too much of the attitude, 'Oh, he's a leper; send him to Molokai to die.'"

As the first man who gave his undivided attention to the settlement, McVeigh was called upon to do a great deal of pioneering work, interested the inmates in baseball, horse racing and other sports that would help them to forget their condition and brought them to realize that they were not out-casts, but "victims of a certain disease."

Describing the patients, McVeigh said: "They are first rate. They come into my yard to work, but they would never think of entering my house. They are law-abiding and it is remarkable what little disciplining they need if they are all treated alike.

"When the United States entered the war I called the lepers together and told them that things might be a little hard and food short. 'That's all right,' said their spokesman. 'So long as the country is in trouble we'll not complain.' They invested all they could in war savings stamps, some buying more than they could afford, but they never tried to sell the stamps until the war was over. During a Red Cross campaign the settlement raised $999.70, and the lepers wanted to make clothes for the boys in France. I explained to them as carefully as I could that we could send nothing because it would not be accepted, but that did not stop them and they subscribed money to have clean persons do the work."

HYDRO CONCESSION.

(By a Staff Reporter).

WARKWORTH, Aug. 5. — The Hydro Commission has made at least a partial concession to the consumers of electric light in this village. The local Commission, finding itself with a surplus of $2,500 on hand, and this increasing month by month, asked for authority to reduce the rates some time ago. The Hydro promised action, but nothing definite has yet been done.

Beginning a few days ago, the candle power of the street lights has been doubled, so that the streets of Warkworth are now more brightly illuminated than ever. The cost of these lights remain the same, $75 a month. The change benefits the taxpayers as a whole, but no relief has yet been extended to the private consumers.

REFUGEES FROM POLAND IN NEED

Hundreds Huddled Together in Crowded Hall—Berlin Aroused.

RELIEF MEASURES.

SCHNEIDEMUHL, Germany, Aug. 5.—Several measures for the amelioration of the situation of the thousands of Germans evicted from Poland during the last few days have resulted from the visit to the refugee camp of the Prussian Minister of the Interior, Herr Severing.

In one hall, which is oppressively hot, and where the air is vile, 500 children and grownups of both sexes are huddled together promiscuously, with thin layers of straw as beds. In other halls conditions are almost as bad.

Of the 6,000 refugees in the camp one-fourth are children; Herr Severing said that nurseries must be established for them.

Special efforts will be made to persuade parents to permit children to be taken temporarily to children's homes in order to avoid possible epidemics. Many children are to be given quarters in the homes of peasants.

Minister Severing confidently expects to be able within three days to reduce the personnel of the camp to 2,000.

President von Hindenburg, to whom the refugees had sent a telegraphic appeal for more humane treatment, conferred at length with Foreign Minister Stresemann and Herr Schiele, the Federal Minister of the Interior, who, being a Nationalist, has little in common with Severing.

The most significant of all was the action of the Nationalist faction in the Reichstag in making an interpellation, inquiring what measures the Government had taken for the relief of 30,000 Germans driven out of house and home by the Polish Government?"

This query, of course, is aimed at the Socialists who are still holding Ministerial office in Prussia, and upon whom devolves the duty of caring for the expelled folk.

The questions put to the Government by the Nationalists are:

"What was done to prevent Poland from taking the expulsion measures?"

"What was done to preserve the refugees from the bitterest misery?"

"What is being done, if necessary, in the form of reprisals to protect the German inhabitants of Poland from further brutal and inhuman measures unworthy of a civilized State?"

Refugees Assail the Minister.

Officials there informed him that the principal trouble had been a lack of funds, whereupon he directed that 300,000 marks immediately be placed at their disposal.

Threading his way upon going early among the recumbent figures, asleep on straw or the bare floor in the hugh shedsthe camp still harbors more than 6,000 despite hourly shipments to other places—the minister was greeted by such cries as:

"Are we animals?"

"This is a death trap you have given us."

He was told that about one-fourth of the refugees were children, whose parents, however, refused to permit them to be removed to a children's home, and that only one trained nurse was available for several hundred sick.

He directed that all ill persons be transported to hospitals immediately, that the police provide mattresses for everybody, and that 3,000 in the camp be divided among other nearby cities and towns. He also ordered 9,000 blankets sent from Berlin.

Polish Attitude Explained

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The Polish Government, it was stated at the Legation, has not objected to Germany's eviction of certain Polish citizens and surprise was expressed that there should be the resentment reported in Germany because of Poland's eviction of German optants from Poland.

"Press reports published in the United States, in stressing the sentimental side of the evictions," the Legation declared in a further statement, "have failed to explain the underlying causes behind the action of the two Governments.

"By virtue of the Versailles Treaty and the Minority Rights Treaty, Germans residing in the territory ceded to Poland were given the sight to reject Polish nationality and retain their German citizenship. Article 3 of the Minorities Treaty imposed an obligation on those residents of Poland expressly rejecting Polish citizenship to leave the country within three years and transfer their residence to their chosen fatherland.

'Similarly, Polish emigrants and their descendants permanently residing in Germany were given a legal right to renounce their German citizenship, but with the same obligation to return to Poland three years after their choice of Polish nationality."

STARTING WORK AT NO. 4 DAM

Men Are Engaged in Building a Camp and Clearing Ground.

FINISH IN 1926

A Lotion superintendent of the Russell Miller Construction Co. of Toronto, is at Dam 4 above Nassau, with a foreman, a team, and a gang of five men, engaged in cutting away brushwood and erecting, camps and contractors' offices in preparation for the work of reconstructing Dam 4.

Some machinery has also arrived and is being unloaded. Much of the plant will be brought by scows from the Severn river, where it has lain since the company carried out a construction contract some years ago. The timber for the erection of the coffer dam has bene bought from the Peterborough Lumber Company and is expected to be available at the end of this week, when additional help will be hired. It was stated today that the work will be well under way next week and employment will be found for 40 men.

Owing to the late start of the work this summer it is expected that only one half of the contract will be finished before the freeze up, and to complete the remainder of the work will require the greater part of next summer.

David E. Eason explained today that the primary object was the replacing of an old timber dam, one of several built in 1892 between here and Lakefield to dam up the waters sufficiently to make the river navigable. Through course of time numerous leaks have developed and the old dam will now be replaced by a modern structure. Mr. Eason said there was some talk of the Hydro Commission erecting a power plant concurrently with the building of the dam.

Originally, when, the Trent Canal was only partially complete, the dams were numbered from Lakefield, and the dam now being replaced was No. 4. When the canal was completed, the dams were then numbered from Trenton, hence the present official designation as the dam at Lock 23.

KEENE DEFEATS LAKEFIELD 10-5

CIRCUS CATCHES.

KEENE, Aug. 5.—Keene defeated Lakefield at Keene Tuesday night by the score of 10 to 5. Robertson, pitching for Keene, was again in good form, striking out 10 men and allowing no earned runs. Woodhouse, for Lakefield, was good too, but he received ragged support at times. Payne, the Lakefield centrefielder, made a good catch of a line drive off Eugene McCarthy's bat, leaped in the air and snared it with his gloved hand as it was going over his head.

Eugene McCarthy, the Keene first baseman, also made a good running catch of a high foul fly. He fell in making the catch, but managed to hang onto the ball.

The rest of the team gave Robertson good support for Keene. The line-up:

Keene.—C. Robertson, c; C. Nelson, rf; M. Renwick, 3b; M. McCarthy, ss; M. Robertson, p; E. McCarthy, 1b; A. E. Fletcher, 2b; W. Fletcher, cf; R. Comrie, lf.

Score by innings:

DROWNED YESTERDAY.

Youth at Brantford — Two Children in Ottawa River.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — (Canadian Press). — Leonard Akeson, 18, got into difficulty when swimming at Brantwood Beach yesterday afternoon and was drowned before help could reach him. Two others, seven year-old Maurice Payment and nine-year-old Leopold Barbeau, were also drowned yesterday in the Ottawa River.

COUNTIES TAKE NEW ROAD PLAN OF GOVERNMENT

Formal Acceptance of All But Peterborough Are Announced.

LARGER GRANTS.

Uniform Allowance of 50 Per Cent. Made to County Raods.

TORONTO, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press) The final decision of all Ontario counties except Peterboro to accept the new scheme of road classification which was made available by the legislation of the last session of the Provincial House was announced yesterday at Parliament Buildings. In Peterboro County, only formal details remain to be arranged before it also will enter.

The new classification substitutes a uniform grant of 50 per cent. to county roads in place of the former grants of either 40 to 60 per cent., depending upon their grades. The 50 per cent. grant to all county roads will mean a greater drain upon government subsidies, Hon. Mr. Henry estimating the increase yesterday at about $250,000 annually. There will also be the highways, the minister pointed out, and a greater expenditure upon township roads. As the grant to them under the new scheme is increased from 20 to 30 per cent, with strict provision, however, that no subsidy is to be paid upon statute labor.

GIRD THEIR LOINS IN POLITICAL WAR

Parties Get Into Harness on Northumberland Front—Plans Go Astray.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 5.—Whether or not there is to be a Federal election this year is still a moot question, but in the meanime all parties are preparing for the fray. The Conservatives will hold a picnic and grand rally at Presq'ile on August 27, when some of the leading speakers in he party will discuss issues of the day. A. R. Willmott of Cobourg, secretary of the Conservative Association, has just returned from the West, bringing with him a bride., and he say that the campaign will be in full swing when formally opened by the projected picnic. Mr. Maybee is organizing his forces, men and women in all parts of the riding.

Fred J. Slade, the Liberal nominee, has provided himself with a new high-power auto, and is going among his supporters getting them in line. Cobourg Liberals are already talking of holding a picnic in that town to offset the one that has been planned by the other side.

Something like consternation has been carried into the camps of both regular parties by the announcement that the Progressives will hold a convention in Warkworth on Friday afternoon to nominate a candidate. The handbills carry no names of those who are behind the movement, the only Progressive mentioned being R. H. Halbert, M.P., of North Ontario, who is advertised as one of the speakers.

Until the previous political affiliation of the proposed third candidate is known, it is impossible to estimate the effect of his entry in the race on the final result.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE COVERT

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 5—Samuel Covert received a telegram Tuesday informing him of the death of his brother George in Little Falls, N.Y., where he had resided for over 20 years. Mr. Covert will leave Wednesday night for Little Falls to attend the funeral which will be held Friday. He will travel by auto, crossing to the American side at Brockville. He made two trips within the past few weeks to see his brother who suffered from a long illness.

The late George Covert was born in Warkworth 49 years ago, and was the son of the late Alpheus and Mrs. Covert. The father was a cooper by trade and manufactured many of the large tanks that are still used in the cheese factories in this district. George left for the United States when a young man and was successful in various manufacturing lines. About 20 years ago he was married in Little Falls and his wife survives him.

Samuel and Walter Covert of Campbellford are brothers of the deceased, and Mrs. Robert Stephens and Mrs. John Sanders, both of Seymour, are sisters.

ELECTION IMMINENT SAYS REPORT TODAY

Dissolution of Present Government Will Not Be Long Delayed, Says Toronto.

TORONTO, August 5. — Canadian Press. — "A Federal election is imminent and the announcement of the dissolution of the present Dominion Government, will not be delayed much longer. Persistent rumors that the King Administration will appeal to the electors in the coming fall are evidently based upon a solid foundation. The latest and perhaps the most significant of all portents is that the local patronage committee of party officers of the Toronto Men's Liberal Association, having official recognition in this regard at Ottawa, last night drew up a list of recommendations for appointments as returning officers for Federal ridings is the local district.

"It appears that word that gone out to the men in inner councils where organization work is concerned, to prepare for a Dominion election, irrespective of the result of the provincial election in New Brunswick on Monday next."

A LITTLE Polish boy, without telling his parents, changed his name the first day in an American school. He had a fine Polish name, but he was in America, in a new world, and he wanted a name that would symbolize his great change.

European women, upon coming to America, quickly revolutionize the manner of things they buy for their tables and their homes. An authority has estimated that foreign-born women ask for goods by their advertised names within two weeks after they have begun housekeeping in America.

They are quick to sense that in the new world the good things are advertised, and that unknown goods in unknown stores are likely to be of unsatisfactory quality.

An advertised product bears a proud name. It has a reputation to uphold

CANADA'S STRONGER POSITION.

There is seldom any disposition on the part of MacLean Building Reports, or other MacLean publications, to be unduly optimistic regarding Canada's industrial outlook. Genuine significance may be attached, therefore, to the report issued by MacLean's for the month of July. After an encouraging summary of building activities throughout the Dominion, including prediction of continued improvement, the report says:

"It is conceded that taking all into consideration the Dominion is in a stronger position than it was a year ago. Our dollar is better than par. Our exports have increased. Our imports decreased. The promise of a bumper crop is in itself an assuring factor. The mining districts of Ontario and Quebec report good prospects of a record year and much development work is taking place."

The national outlook is supported in London's building figures for July, which show $308,155, compared with $157,370 for July of last year.—London (Ont.) Advertiser.

SCHOLAR AND GENTLEMAN.

Dr. S. E. Mezes, President of New York City College, said the other day:

"A scholar is a man who knows some small field of knowledge accurately and knows why that knowledge is secure. A gentleman is a man who respects himself and exacts respect from others, not only in small but in large things."

Some of us are scholars and some are gentlemen. But few are gentlemen and scholars at the same time.

Scholarship depends on how much you know well. A gentleman is told by the way he knows it and what he does with his knowledge.

It is one thing to have the strength of a giant and another to know how to use that strength in the proper way.

Great knowledge is like great strength. It only becomes those who have self-control.

The essence of gentlemanliness is doing what you ought to do in large things and small, just because they are right.

The essence of scholarship is knowing things that are true and knowing why they are true.

The gentleman and scholar is a rare bird. Still we have some specimens.—New York American.

MOTOR BUS EXPANSION.

Although Great Britain lags far behind this continent in the number of automobiles individually owned, it seems to have forged ahead with pleasure motor buses and charabancs. These machines for community transportation appear to abound within range of very moderately filled purses. In the United States, too, a recent observer was struck with the ubiquitous motor coach. A New Englander, for example, attracted to his home town reunion, finds he can reach his old friends even in remote places by climbing on a bus. No longer is he dependent on a railroad, nor need the new vehicles rolling smoothly automobile ride. Wherever he turns, we are told, he sees one of the new vehicles rolling smoothly along the highway, or waiting before the post office or the bank to take up passengers. Hardly any village is now inaccessible, provided it is on an improved road. What with the accommodation afforded by the motor bus, rural free mail delivery, the telephone, the radio, and moving pictures, the countryside now is quite a modern affair.

Under the title, "Future of the Motor Coach," John A. Ritchie, President of the Omnibus Corporation and the Chicago Motor Coach Company, has produced a stimulating little pamphlet. The future of the rubber-tired bus is a very large subject. Take this comparison: "Last year there were carried in motor buses of the United States more than three times as many passengers as were carried on all the steam railroads in the country put together." Less than ten years ago the motor coach had made no impression upon the country. In fact, it was rather a curiosity. But today for touring purposes motor buses are beginning to swarm. Do you want to run up to the White Mountains or the Maine coast for a week of sight-seeing? There are several companies that will accommodate you with a de luxe service. A trans-continental route, New York to San Francisco, is promised. Soon one will be able to visit the Grand Canyon and the Yellowstone in a coach leaving cities in the East on schedule time. There are companies operating 100 buses in Estes Park, Colorado. In the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago there are companies using from 100 to 400 buses. New services spring up overnight.

In the large cities street cars can no longer be operated at a profit unless buses are added to the "rolling stock." A street car costs $60,000, a bus $6,500. The bus can not only run on parallel roads, but can seek patronage in streets where the trolley has no tracks. The cost of operating is very much less. In making comparisons, Mr. Ritchie frankly says that highways "are open to the motor coach without the necessity for roadbed or track." All it has to fear is competition with its kind. The progress of the new transportation "can be impeded," we are told, "only by unwise throttling legislation of the automotive industry, the chief form of which would be excessive or inequitable taxation." At the beginning of 1925 there were 470,000 miles of improved highways in the United States, and every year from 25,000 to 40,000 miles of new surfaces are added. For these highways the citizen has to pay, the owner of motor vehicles more than the non-user. Government aid comes out of the taxpayer's pocket, although the operation may seem to be painless. Nothing is more intricate than apportioning the burden for new roads and keeping up the old. It behooves the citizen to be alert to see that he never pays in excess of his share. But more and better roads is the demand of the times, and it will have to be satisfied.—St. Thomas Journal.

IMPRACTICAL IDEALISM.

College students study it, scientists theorize on it and a handful of men use it as an excuse to run for office, but the multitude, knowing it to be impractical, are no longer interested in it. It is unnecessary to add that that which is here referred to is the theory of socialism. There are some idealists who still cry for a socialistic state, but are there not also those who still believe the earth is flat? As E. W. Howe says:

"Every intelligent man, in writing truthfully of life, is compelled to deny the doctrine of socialism. If a nation adopts the socialistic plan, it is compelled, from sheer necessity, to abandon it, for the simple reason that socialistic policies will not work: they are opposed to nature. In the great world, with its millions and millions of individuals, all of them selfish, the unselfish doctrines of socialism will not work."

It is difficult to state whether man is unfit for socialism or socialism unfit for man. Neither can it be said with a certainty that the theory of socialism is a hint of what will exist centuries hence. Before socialism can work evolution must create for it a new man. None of the component parts of the intellectual and spiritual man of today are adapted to this most idealistic of theories or the government of man.—Montreal Herald.

HENRY FORD ON LASTING YOUTH.

How To Keep Young.

That headline, with its countless variations, is seen in newspapers and magazines so often that the wonder is that it is not standardized and kept in type. The articles that follow it generally apply to women only, which is a weak surrender to conventionality, for men are as much interested as women in the subject. Henry Ford, for example, on his sixty-second birthday made it the subject of his remarks. He quoted the Rev. B. Z. Stambaugh, formerly of Detroit, now of Adrian, as saying that the phrase: "The good die young," means that the good are always young, no matter how long they live. The context shows that Mr. Ford meant those who work interestedly and productively are good.

Well, Mr. Ford is right about that. The man or woman who keeps hands busy and mind active and open to new ideas is really young in that life remains an adventure to him full of the zest of childhood's explorings along uncharted roads.

There is also the illusion of youth, the Peter Pan type, the adult who refuses to accept the responsibilities of maturity. He may be a drunkard, or neglectful of his family, or a hobo. He is carefree, he boasts; in fact, he is a grafter on society, abusing friendship and cheating friends. Still, he is childlike in his dependence on others and insistence on his own helplessness, and therefore lays claim to a spurious youth.

But the type of youthfulness in later life that the Rev. Mr. Stambaugh and Mr. Ford extol is youthfulness in ideals and willingness to sacrifice self and do good to others.—Detroit News.

WHITE COLLAR WAGES.

The organization of several thousand municipal engineers in New York to conduct an educational campaign for better wages will be watched with keen interest by many thousands of such workers throughout the country. The engineers have drawn up charts to show that on the average they get less than ditch diggers, mechanics, bricklayers, plumbers, plasterers and many other classes of workers, skilled and unskilled.

"Ten per cent. of the engineers," they say, "get less than the ditch diggers, 76 1-2 per cent. less than the skilled laborer, while 80 per cent. get less than foremen." Engineering is a profession requiring a great deal of education and training, and these civil servants believe they are unjustly treated.

It is another phase of the old plaint of white-collar workers that society fails to appreciate the services they render. Teachers and preachers come within the same classification and have in various ways made their demands for a higher wage slowly effective. But there is much to be done yet. The engineers are wise in choosing a campaign of education in preference to the strike and other forms of revolt to call public attention to their claims.

Just why the pay of intellectual workers lags so far behind that of the more material employments it would be hard to say—why teachers and preachers, for example, average to receive no more if as much as the average of unskilled labor. Preparation for these professions costs largely in time and money. On the basis of investment alone they ought to rank high in earnings.

But the engineers need not think they are alone. What other corporation than a city or a State would pay their chief executives the insignificant salaries paid to Mayors and Governors all over the United States? As the head of the biggest financial corporation in the world President Coolidge's salary is a mere bagatelle.

The white-collar job and pay are subject to economic laws and conditions that are not likely to be changed overnight. Fortunately, in almost every line they have other compensations which are none the less real because they are not recognized in the payroll.—Philadelphia Ledger.

N. Y. FUR SHOPS TO HIRE GUARDS

Losses of More Than $250,000 Cause Move to Protect Costly Stocks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Aroused by leases of more than a quarter of a million dollars, the Furriers Security Alliance is planning to place 25 guards, each one a former service man with a sharp-shooter's record, in the fur district to supplement the work of the police.

In addition to the guards, the association is planning also to endeavor to bring about an amendment of the law so that the fence who disposes of the stolen furs, will not have the protection he does at present. By merely preparing a fake bill of sale, the association holds, several men have become millionaires through stolen furs while others, still in the business, are accumulating wealth also.

The declaration of the intent to guard the fur district, which extends from Broadway to Seventh avenue and from Twenty-sixth to Thirtieth streets, came two weeks after the robbery of the Eitington-Schild Co. Furs valued at $175,000 were taken from this place and at the time, John S. Scott, manager of the Furriers Security Alliance, made the announcement the association would advertise for guards who know how to shoot.

Protection To Limit.

According to Mr. Scott, the hiring of the guards is no reflection on the police, it being impossible for the department to put enough men into this one district, compact though it is, to patrol it in such a manner that full protection would be obtained. But because it is compact, with the 25 guards, Mr. Scott believes a cordon could be thrown about it through which no thieves could break, especially as they must use conveyances of some kind to remove their loot.

The robbery which caused the alliance to act was no different than many others. A hole was broken through a wall—in this instance one so small that either a boy or small man was used—through which one of the gang crawled and opened a door. The band was evidently composed of experts as only the most costly furs, including sables, were taken. So quietly did the thieves work that a watchman down stairs was not disturbed.

As every furrier marks each pelt he receives with his own private stamp, it would seem that loot of this nature would be disposed of with difficulty. However, a clause in the New York law makes it comparatively easy. Under the law, the purchaser must have guilty knowledge that the goods was stolen. By providing himself with bills of sale from non-existent firms, the fence makes it practically impossible to convince a jury "beyond a reasonable doubt" that he didn't receive the furs in legitimate course of business. So "practical" is this that within the last three years, though furs worth well over a million have been stolen and not recovered, only two fences having been convicted.

Makes Millionaires.

Several millionaires in New York have made the major part of their fortunes acting as receivers for stolen furs," said Mr. Scott. "And some of the receivers acting now are men of great wealth. Our men at Albany at the next session of the Legislature will attack the guilty knowledge section of the law.

"We keep a close watch on the fur market and this makes it impossible for the thieves to dispose of their takings in large lots. But they do dispose of them because they are not recovered and the thefts continue.

"Despite the growing energy and resourcefulness of the bandits, the Fur Alliance, through its vigilance, has been able to prevent depredations from increasing. The total of robberies for the first half of 1925 compared with 1924 was no greater and compared with the same period in 1923 was no less. We believe with the increased patrol of armed men, we will be able to reduce the loss materially."

The sables taken in the last robbery were worth $100,000. A reward of $25,000 has been offered for the recovery of the goods.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the hot weather prevailing there was little demand for any grades of eggs, but prices remained firm. The receipts were 2,102 cases, as compared with 1,300 the previous day and 1,318 on the same day last year.

The demand for butter showed a decline over the pervious day. A little export trade was done, but generally business was somewhat quiet. Prices remained firm. The receipts were 3,624 packages, as compared with 6,787 on Monday and 1,211 on the same day a year ago.

The cheese market remained steady, with a fair amount of export business being done. Prices were steady. Receipts of cheese were 13,211 as compared with 10,363 on Monday and 7,232 on the same day last year.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Wheat ran up in price today to nearly 12 cents a bushel above figures which were current on Saturday. Disquieting crop reports from the spring wheat belt, Canada in particular, aroused new speculative buying, and so, too, did scantiness of the movement of winter wheat to primary markets. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 2 1-8 to 4 3-8 cents net gain, September $1.60 1-8 to $1.60 1-4 and December $1.60 3-4 to $1,61; with corn 1-2 to 7-8c up; oats showing 3-8 to 3-4c rise, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents higher.

Some purchasing of wheat to be shipped from Chicago to Montreal aided impetus to the new upward price swing, which began here soon after the opening despite the fact that Liverpool quotations had failed to reflect fully the advance that took place yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. The fresh upturn here was started by advices from Saskatchewan, saying that scorching hot dry weather was turning the fields grey, and that late wheat would suffer damage if the high temperatures continued. Indications of improved European demand tended to hoist the market, especially in view of 3,616,000 bushels falling off in wheat supplies on ocean passage, together with reports of storms delaying the harvest in Hungary, Russia and France.

Stubborn resistance to selling pressure developed after midday in the wheat market, and was largely responsible for the soaring of prices to the day's top level. The selling was much a profit-taking character, and was associated with predictions of cooler temperatures in Western Canada. On the other hand, total domestic primary receipts of wheat today were reported as only 1,674,000 bushels compared with 2,077,000 bushels a week ago and 3,083,000 bushels a year ago. Chicago arrivals of wheat today amounted to barely 122 cars.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Aug. 4. — Opening market today remained steady, although there is a large supply of all cattle on hand that have come in over the holiday.

Export steers and good butcher cattle were selling firm at last week's advance. Common butchers remain draggy. Heavy steers sold for export at $7.50 to $8.25, with choice handy weights bringing $7 to $7.50. Good butcher cows sold from $4 to $4.75. Export bulls steady at $4.50 to $5.50 a hundred. Light western stockers sold from $4 to $5 a hundred.

Rogers and Maybee shipped 800 cattle to the seaboard.

Calves opened strong at $11 to $11.50, good to choice $10 to $11.50.

Lambs were unsettled; prospects were $14.50 for best lambs.

Sheep steady at $6 to $7.

SPRINGVILLE LADIES SEW FOR MISSIONS

Annual Birthday Meeting of Two Societies Held Recently.

SPRINGVILLE, Aug. 5.—The joint societies of the Springville Mission Band and the W.F.M.S. held their annual birthday party on Monday, Aug. 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whitfield. The meeting was attended by an unusually large and enthusiastic crowd of women workers and many of their good husbands also found time to come and enjoy a pleasant afternoon discussing topics of common interest with their neighbours.

Although the women and girls talked and laughed and had a good time, the work went along quite rapidly, and early in the afternoon three well made quilts were completed for the foreign field. An offering was also taken up, which more than doubled that of the previous year.

When the work and business of the meeting was completed, all seated themselves comfortably on the lawn and over seventy people partook of the sumptuous supper which was provided by the ladies of the congregation. Among those present were guests from Montreal, Hamilton, Calgary, Ohio, Brandon, Toronto and Peterboro.

After supper a short musical programme was rendered by the Misses Daisy Murray, Marie McBain and Alma Blanchard.

The afternoon was brought to a close by a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Whitfield, moved by Mr. A. E. Sanderson and seconded by Mr. Albert Hunter.

"What I cannot understand, Sir, is why people will pay a good price for a pair of shoes only to ruin them with neglect.

BRITISH RUBBER INDUSTRY GROWS

Progress Satisfactory and Acreage May Be Added to Soon.

The progress of Great Britain's rubber growing industry during 1924 was, on the whole, satisfactory so far as producers are concerned, according to figures forwarded to the Bankers Trust Company of New York by its British Information Service. Messrs. S. Figgis have just compiled the following table of shipment of plantation rubber during the year, together with figures for the preceding five years, as follows:

Ceylon (and India)	43,000	37,200	40,100	47,000	37,000	37,000
Malaya, &c. (inc. re-exports	219,000	187,000	159,900	248,000	252,000	259,000
Java	35,500	31,000	29,600	32,000	33,500	*38,500
Sumatra (East Coast)	26,500	22,400	29,900	39,000	47,000	*41,000
India, Burma, &c.	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	11,000

* December shipments estimated.

The fluctuations shown above are, of course, due to the variations in the amounts allowed to be exported under the Stevenson restriction scheme. Apparently the restriction scheme has the hearty support of the great majority of growers, but protests against prolonging it have come from manufacturers both in England and America. The substantial improvement which more recently occurred in the plantation industry came too late to have any appreciable influence on the result of the producing companies for 1924. Mr. H. Eric Miller, Chairman of the Rubber Growers' Association, recently summed up the industry when he observed that: "I hold the opinion that before very long it will be necessary to add to the acreage planted with rubber." This view is said to be in harmony with the present optimism in England regarding the industry to date.

LLOYD GEORGE'S FORTUNES SEEM ASCENDING NOW

Union With Conservatives Thought Possible as Baldwin's Strength Declines.

FOR LAND ENQUIRY.

Labor Envisioning the End of British Capital System.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The political fortunes of Lloyd George are rising again, following his temporary eclipse after disappearance of the coalition government.

Yesterday the newspapers gave much prominence to his demand for an inquiry into the land situation in Great Britain, but without being too enthusiastic in endorsing it. This is the only cry left to Lloyd George as a Liberal that would have popular appeal, but it is indicative of his desire for the positive element in politics, which will be welcomed not only by Liberals, but by many Tories.

Party Unpopular.

With the persistent attacks on Premier Baldwin, both by Beaverbrook and the Rothermere press, and the rising tide of opposition to the government owing to the miners' subsidy, the Tory press here is flirting with Lloyd George, refusing to believe that he has forsaken any hope of returning to the Premiership, and wondering what his plans are. That he can return to the premiership as a Liberal is regarded as beyond the immediate range of possibility, for Liberalism is unpopular at present and the party is disorganized.

Say Join Tories.

It is suspected, however, that he would be willing to enter a progressive wing of the Tory government if there was a possibility of leadership. Hon. Winston Churchill is credited with a desire to bring Lloyd George into the Tory fold as a sort of Tory left wing-Liberal right wing leader, which has made Churchill's loyalty to Baldwin suspected by Tory members. It is certain now that Baldwin's authority and prestige are declining. The Tories will not have Churchill as their next premier, and Chamberlain has been very unimpressive at the Foreign Office. Balfour is considered too old, and none of the young men has shown any ability.

Baldwin will therefore remain for some time yet, but the rise of Lloyd George again is pregnant of the political possibilities which are being discussed in all the clubs.

Plain Speaking.

While many of the rank and file of the government supporters are prepared to make allowances for the decisions surrounding the Cabinet in connection with averting the threatened miners' strike, it is certain there will be much plain speaking from the governmental side of the House of Commons concerning the settlement of the trouble. The impression gains strength that Premier Baldwin has considerable difficulty in obtaining the Cabinet's consent to the settlement in face of a small but powerful minor of the Ministers.

The estimated cost of the proposed coal subsidy tends to increase, although the matter is so technical that even financial experts at present are indisposed to give any but the vaguest calculations thereon. Anyhow, between £15,000,000 and £20,000,000 per annum is commonly discussed as the probable amount, and this may easily be exceeded if the coal trade becomes worse than it is at present.

End of Capitalism.

A query from many quarters that are not unduly hostile to the government is being made as to what guarantee there is that during the unemployment in the winter the railway and the transport workers generally fortified by the present precedent, will not make equally crushing demands with those made last week by the coal miners. That these apprehensions are not unjustified seems to be supported by the sentiment of the Labor organ, the Daily Herald, which says:

"Labor's opponents know quite well what this first success means. It means, if it is steadily followed by other successes, the end of the British capitalist system and the social arrangements based on it."

PORPHYRY FIND IN GOLD FIELD

New Discoveries Near Port Arthur Hearten Horde of Prospectors.

BEARDMORE AREA.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press).—The discovery of porphyry on the Longworth claim and the finding of tourmaline in an old gravel pit, were the features of the week of events in the new gold area of Beardmore, where a score of engineers and field geologists from some of the largest mining corporations in the Dominion are now engaged in making a survey of the properties.

The finding of porphyry has given an added interest in the new gold field as it is an indication of value. Tourmaline, the engineers say, usually indicates deep mining and these two things combined with the somewhat copious findings of free gold, have caused engineers and geologists to place their confidence in the strike and give encouragement to the horde of prospectors who have spent the past month in hard work.

Millionaire Adopts Sixteen Year Old Girl To Be His Daughter From Host Of 12,000 Applicants

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Edward W. Browning, millionaire realtor, yesterday named the lucky little poor girl who is to be his adopted daughter, a companion to Dorothy Sunshine.

Mary Stars, of Astoria, Long Island, who was 16 years old last Friday, was selected by the millionaire from among 12,000 applicants.

Browning advertised in June for a "pretty, 14-year-old girl" to be adopted and reared in luxury as his own daughter.

After sorting out thousands of answers, and interviewing hundreds of applicants, he announced yesterday he had decided upon the Stars girl.

Mary Stars will take the name of "Mary Louise Browning" when she is formally adopted.

Men and women from all walks of life rushed or wrote to obtain a share of Browning's wealth when his advertisement for a 14-year-old girl appeared.

An ex-pugilist, "with only one eye and one ear," and a 43-year-old spinster with "six dimples, three in each knee," were among the 12,000 who wanted to be adopted.

SUNHINE AIDS FEEBLE MINDS

CURES RICKETS

If it is combined with a systematic exposure to ultra-violet rays the improvement on the child's mind is still more noticeable.

These are the conclusions reached by expert radiologists at their International Congress held here. They were arrived at by Sir Henry Gauvin, and other noted light specialists after a long series of experiments with backward-minded children. In practically all cases, he declared, some improvement was noticed, and in some instances the increase in mental aptitude was truly extraordinary.

Ultra-violet rays had also, it was said, been effectively employed in the treatment of rickets. Experiments are also being conducted to determine their effectiveness in the cure of consumption but it was yet too soon to draw any conclusive opinions as to its effect on this disease.

NEW BOOK DEALS WITH EVOLUTION

Work Discusses Nature of Life, Its Genesis and Plasticity.

By ALICE ROHE

(Written for the United Press)

Of course the Scopes trial makes the publication of "The Ways of Life" of particular importance. It is, however, a book that no thinking person can aford to miss reading. Obviously Richard Swann Lull, Professor of Paleontology of Yale University, was inspired to compile this decidedly readable book which Harper and Brothers have published by the Tennessee affair. The arguments over evolution had broken out with a violence which called for a plain, cohtrent, authoritative statement of facts from a leading scientist. It is a book which bears conviction and information but it is written in a manner understandable by the reader who has not the time to ponder over academic phrasings.

"The Ways of Life" is the evidence for evolution revealed in a colorful and comprehensive outline of the history of living things.

One vital point for the anti-evolutionists to consider is the clear presentation of the development of species. In describing the history of life in its manifestations he explains how they were changed or destroyed and most interestingly he tells how the ancestors of men differed from the species that became apes.

Especially vital is this book for those who though interested in the subject, are not fortified with scientific arguments about the thing they believe. For through this history evolution becomes not a debated theory but the name of a great process, dealing with the facts of man's origin.

One feature that claims respectful attention is Prof. Lull's statements of the unproven facts of science.

The book includes a discussion of the nature of life and the genesis of the universe; the plasticity of living things and their adaptation to environment; the insurgence of nature and the entailed struggle for existence, the discussion of the outstanding events in the evolution of animate nature as the paleotologists reads the record culminating in the evolution of man.

MELBOURNE MAIDS TO MARY U.S. GOBS

50 Engagements From U. S. Fleets Visit to Sydney.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 5.—Hopes on the part of the Australians that the visit of the American fleet might be prolonged beyond the scheduled stay were dissipated Monday when Admiral Coontz issued orders for the final departure on Thursday.

The cruisers leave to-day for Hobart, Tasmania, and the remainder of the fleet will sail early Thursday morning. One destroyer will remain to pick up stragglers. This duty was performed in 1908 by the Yankton, which stayed for several days in each Australian port to gather up those who had overstayed leave.

Frank Querey, a member of the crew of the destroyer McDonough, on Monday married Miss Violet Ryan of this city, thus taking honors as being among the first of the visiting American navy men to wed an Australian girl. The Police Court issued a special dispensation to enable the ceremony to be carried out, waiving the necessity of three days' notice after obtaining the license. Mrs. Querey will follow her husband to America. There are to be several other international weddings in Melbourne as a result of the fleet's visit before the vessels depart, while a press despatch from Sydney reports fifty engagements of blue jackets to Australian girls have already occurred. Many of these sailors will have their fiancees go to America, where they will be married.

A unique expedition was oganized by Governor Dechair of New South Wales, a skiing party for Admiral Robinson and senior officers on Mount Kosciusko, one of the few places in Australia where snow can be seen in winter. Miss Dechair, the Governor's daughter, and Mrs. Robinson led the party in the herringbone and kickturn, intricate skiing manoeuvres.

For some purposes you'll want the Bon Ami powder in its handy, sifter-top tin—it's so easy to shake out on a damp cloth. For other uses you'll prefer the solid Bon Ami cake that you can rub on the cloth like soap.

CHAUTAUQUA SPEAKER SHOWS PATHWAYS TO POWER ON WHICH YOUNG CANADIANS MAY TRAVEL

Stirring Address Containing Wealth of Humor Makes Appeal.

LYRIC SINGERS.

A bad boy is a normal boy blowing off steam. There are some children in the world who are supercharged with such an abundance of energy that an outlet must be discovered or the whole organism of boy will be blown to bits. Accordingly Nature in her wisdom has provided for the exigency with the result that the youth indulges in a temporary fit of irresponsibility and the unfortunate victim is consequently stigmatized as a bad boy.

These words together with a delightful torrent of followers were uttered last night in the big Chautauqua tent by William Rainey Bennett, a minister and advocate of the Optimism religion, and all who heard him felt the potent forces emanating with his voice.

No drivelling soap box orator held the crowd breathlessly hanging on every word last night, but a master interpreter of human nature who swayed moods as easily as a wind blows the tree tops.

Quick response was the keynote and it was evidenced by the changes from gay to serious expressions, from glimmering phantasms to solid rock-bound reality.

At one moment the audience would ripple with quick laughter which would be immediately suppressed as some instance of pathos and gripping power was depicted. Although for the greater part the lighter mood was invited, the vital moments were the more vividly portrayed, becoming by contrast grimly positive in their characteristics and bearing the hall-mark of reality.

"Many people," he continued, "would chain down the safety valves of vapourous youth by halting their activities and inflicting punishments for slight misdeeds, but no good ever comes of repression—What is needed is directionturn those energies into channels which will make of them positive factors and provide a fresh solution for the equation of life. Guide the activities and untold forces will be released which will spur discovery to new miracles."

Mr. Bennett pointed to Henry Ford, giving him as an example of a man who had arrived. Who, forty years ago would have chosen him as a possible ruler of commerce and national business figure head?

Did the teacher, who tried patiently day by day to instil bits of accomplished facts into the brain of Henry Ford, ever conceive the greatness of his exploits and the daring of his ventures? Would that teacher have predicted a career of greatness for the boy, Henry Ford?

No one ever knows the magnitude of that which has not happened. Big things have been done and the world is yet in its infancy. Possibilities!—

Power of Influence

Many promising lives are handicapped by riches. Riches, the possession of materials, shackles a youth with heavier bonds than could ever restrain the most poverty-stricken child. Heights climbed steadily give poise, a sense of balance, and an adaptation to surroundings.

Those thrust upon such eminence without preparation must succumb when forced by adverse circumstance to feel the privation of a lower strata while those with the forward look never recede.

Each individual has an enveloping atmosphere which gives his prospective as viewed by others. It depends on what you look for in a man. If you look for good, you will find it, and if you look for bad you will find that, to, and plenty of it.

As the future is ultimate one should live for it. No community can live on glories of the past; the mere fact that it might attempt such a procedure is an indication of its death. Accordingly the community must live for the future, and the future is not material things and not great buildings, but children. It is they who will fill unborn history with gleaming records of deeds which determination wrought.

High Speed Age.

It is true that the present day is widely considered as overstimulated. It may be briefly and correctly termed the Speed Age, but Mr. Bennett doesn't care; let them shorten their skirts and roll their own; one of their great grandmothers with voluminous hooped skirts couldn't get seated in three Ford cars.

For down under the frivolous surface maintained with such meticulous sang-froid is a depth of feeling and real sentiment of which grandmothers were never aware.

Wise?—Yes they know, do these girls of to-day, things which through ignorance or shame were kept from them in other years as carefully guarded secrets.

How many girls faint now to gain masculine attention? When a woman of these days wants to get something to talk about she doesn't faint, she goes to the hospital and gets a doctor to remove her appendix "just in time."

No, this is no time to stop; there must be advance. The only place provided in this world for a halt is a grave yard, and who wants to join the population there? But many have stopped and are not under the sod either. No, they actually move about simulating life, while actually they are dead from the chin up. All they ever feed is their stomachs.

Those of you who attended this meeting, if you take anything home for future consideration, it will be because you brought something in which to hold it. Many go to places hear and see things, but could not tell anything about it an hour afterward. With them it is an impossibility, for a pail in order to contain a fluid must have no leaks in it. The only way to keep mentally alive is to give public service; death is caused by faulty elimination; men gain immortality by losing the thought of self and sinking the individuality which they possess, into the common fund. We die because we fail to tap unused energies, which recoil to our ruin. All are chained by a lack of faith; if faith were released there would be no limit to the resulting forces. The deadline comes when it is admitted. Defeat never rests where it is not acknowledged and some never are defeated because they never know when they are beaten.

Spreads Optimism.

The speaker said that he recently met a young man whom he had formerly known. This young man, whose name was Hanks, had suffered the loss of his sight and both hands by a premature explosion while engaged in mining operations. Due to speedy first aid work his life was saved, but as he lay in the hospital ward he was obsessed with gloomy thoughts of his plight. At one time someone said to him, "You're not through yet; get up and fight." He got up and fought. People came and read to him knowledge which he quickly assimilated, he was tutored and got his degree from Columbia University. Now sightless and handless, a living monument to gigantic effort, he is lecturing. His subject is optimism.

There was another young man whose circumstances were possibly more adverse, for from the time of infancy his tenure on life was very insecure. Wishing to save him his mother called in many physicians, but the boy got well. He was deadly anxious to become an athlete and to that end he boxed, wrestled, ran and fought in his effort to conquer the damning heritage of youth; and he won. History records the fact for the thin, anaemic frame of the child developed into the forceful, big game hunting, beloved Teddie Roosevelt.

There are myriad voices inviting toward success, but only the few are granted the privilege of obeying their dramatic beckonings. Millions of ether waves are pounding on the ear drums, but the radio receiving equipment is essential in order that they may be sorted and presented for hearing. In the same way there must be some medium of alert interest to sensitize the spiritual ear to the degree whereby appreciation of possibilties and active response may result.

Advancement does not come so much from the reading of books on How to Win as it does as a direct result of careful direction supplied by a mother's heart.

Young minds are gaping, ready to be filled. What is to form the content of the satiating supplies. They must absorb something, if not there is no place in organized human society for the individual. Now shall the cells be packed with a lurid assortment of junk, so easily obtainable ,or shall people of influence seize the opportunity of aiding destiny?

"You're never down and out till you admit it," reiterated Mr. Bennett. That, he said, was Roosevelt's slogan, and his entire life epitomized that rousing statement. Mr. Bennett told of his own life on the farm and dealt at length on the catalogue of injuries suffered from a certain acetic tempered heifer which necessitated long distance and wary milking after she had been finally rounded up after the usual two hour pursuit.

In poignant accents he wished for a return of the good old days on the farm, more particularly he wished to catch, once more, a glimpse of that white heifer—stuffed. He said he had been licked many times in school. One time every pupil but himself had been made the recipient of an unmistakeable thrashing., and he was then belabored on general principles. "But," he quaintly added, "it hurts just as much to get licked on general principles as anywhere else."

The evolution theory may lead to retrogression if practised and taught consistently. No person is going to go out into the world and make a raving, rearing success of life if he is impregnated with the idea that he was forefathered by a hairy simian. For himself, Mr. Bennett was not concerned with where he sprang from, but where he was springing to. Notwithstanding that he believes in evolution—from now on.

Young people emerging on the highway of life should not allow heredity to influence them. Nor should they endeavor to peer through the ramifications of the family tree in order to discover distinguished forebears. It is quite possible that some ancestor may have swung from a yard arm for piracy on the high seas or penalized for the commission of some felonious offence, which instances would certainly put a damper on further research. Let the dead past keep its dead buried. Why dig them up again and harrow their feelings by renewed unwelcome attentions? Let them sleep.

A Woman's Age.

This is the woman's age—if you can find it out. All women are receiving hitherto unheard of consideration in political, business and economic fields. There is no limit to her invasion. But she must not forget her specific duty, the continuance of the race.

All unmarried women are not old maids; that term is a misnomer, especially to-day, when a fourteen-year old maiden stepping out to her first dance is indistinguishable from the forty-year-old with bobbed locks and abridged garments. No, they are not old maids, they are ladies-in-waiting.

Then rapidly the speaker plunged into a matter of the most vital importance regarding the current situation.

War is killing off the best men. A farmer would be hailed as a fool if he were to kill off the best of his male herd, and yet wars are legalized by mighty nations, and about every generation the flower of the world's manhood is cut off in its early bloom. Women must outlaw war; they must get wars stopped before they start.

The next war will be no namby-namby affair, but will be the greatest elimination contest of all time. Liquid fire, poison gas and disease germs will play their part in the deadly game of extermination.

Nor will it stop as easily as the last one. Red revolution is predicted as the universal aftermath. There is a big gun in the States which will shoot tons of metal seventy-five miles. A dusky son of Ham said when hearing this, "Good Lawd, Ah could run and run all day long an' den git shot at night time."

Mr. Bennett is an ardent believer in the destiny of the white race, but it must be accomplished by the youth for only the youth has the lofty conceptions, the straightforwardness of purpose which will lead him unerringly to the desired goal.

Physical death is necessary, for ideals grow stagnant and die, bringing with them the slowing up of universal progress. The world must move and the youth alone are fitted with the motive power. The ulysses of this world are few and of an indeterminate character, so the universe law exacts payment for the lease it granted.

Three Factors.

Three salient factors find their uses in the drive for power. They are Imagination, Will Power and Conscience. A great banker once said that character was the best collateral which a borrower might present. Religion is not now synonomous with the skies but finds its practical uses in every-day business dealings. Many things will come to this city not requiring a guarantee, but neither do they issue a guarantee against evils which may result from their patronage.

Women must plant conscience in the souls of youth.

The modern young man is sadly lacking in imagination. All he knows that he wants to do is to take out another girl to-morrow night, to go to another dance, or to add one more wild party to his assembly of affairs. Imagination should be cultivated. A mark should be set to shoot at and firing should not cease till a bull's eye is scored. Imagination is the factor which draws the line of demarkation between the genius and the plodder.

Everyone should have framed in the room a picture of a bull dog as a synonym of will power. A bull dog commands respect—everybody acts well in front of a bull dog. Did anyone ever see a can tied to a bull dog's tail or that appendage floating at half-mast? No, a bull dog has an acquired sense of power, of immense capabilities, and co-ordinates that sense with every majestic movement every emotional play of feature. No one ever kicked a bull dog twice.

If you feel that you're a down-and-outer, don't lock it. Every time you walk down the street you advertise yourself if some one kicks you, take down the sign.

You can attain or simulate greatness. The cauliflower is only a cabbage with a college education, and a grapefruit is a lemon that's had a chance. How far did they get. Make your own changes and note the difference.

And hand out a little hope occasionally. People live for encouragement; there is nothing like a kind word to boost the prospective genius along the path to accomplishment. If the good wife burns the morning biscuits on both top and bottom, encourage her; say, "Well Done."

The only way to beat the game was to play it hard and play it fair. "Success," Mr. Bennett concluded, "never comes to great men, for they never reach a limit of attainment. Burbank, the great naturalist, although over seventy, has still a thousand new experiments ready in his laboratory. Only little men succeed and I have seen many succeed, and then go to seed."

Lyric Singers.

The Chicago Lyric Singers proved to be a very agreeable attraction, and submitted a variety and quantity of numbers which satisfied but did not satiate. The personnel of the quartette was James Brewer, tenor; Grace Coffman Brewer, soprano; Virginia Burch, contralto; and A. W. Callam, baritone.

They provided the entertainment prior to the address by William Rainey Bennett. Some of the more popular selections were a baritone solo, "I Passed by Your Window"; Tosti's "Farewell," a quartette ensemble, one of their own arrangement; some old favorites by a soprano and contralto duet more noteworthy being "Just a Song at Twilight."

Afternoon Programme.

The Chicago Lyric Singers staged the entire performance in the afternoon, and by an effective change into gypsy costume quickened the interest which must of necessity grow somewhat lax from continued attention to one style of entertainment.

There was, however, no lack of interest manifested, as the singing was of such a brand as to merit the closest observance to finesse of rendition.

Miss Virgania Burch was especially good in her interpretations of The Creole Love Song and The Little Brown Thrush, her encore number. By the joyous abandon which she managed to lend to her voice, aided by the rippling accompaniment pictures and thoughts were readily conveyed.

The quartette harmony was particularly pleasing and a humorous touch was added by Park's composition of James Whitcomb Riley's famous poem, "Little Orphan Annie."

Songs sung in gypsy costume were "Where My Caravan Has Rested," by Herman Lohr; "Kerry Dances," a quartette by Milloy; a contralto and baritone duet, "O Lovely Night"; "Home to Our Mountains," a selection from Verdi's Il Trovatore; and a quartette, "Gypsy John."

LONDON, ONTARIO, IS CONSIDERING QUESTION OF STREET CLEANING

City Engineer Near Says in London Free Press That Modern Sanitary Method Has Won General Approval.

Vacuum sweepers for the city streets are certain to displace the white wings brigade and the street flushers, according to City Engineer Near. The modern trend towards "spotless town" methods will bring this about within a number of years. The present method of cleaning the streets is not the most sanitary and it is not the most satisfactory, from other viewpoints, it was stated. Where the dustless street sweepers have been adopted merchants and citizens in general, who were inclined to criticize the innovation at first, have been completely won over and they are now solidly in favor of the new methods.

There are three or four dustless sweepers on the market, Mr. Near stated, one of which has been developed right in Ontario and is being manufactured in this Province now. This method has been adopted in several Canadian cities, Winnipeg among the number. The Canadian machine is more or less of a vacuum sweeper. The dirt is picked up from the streets without the escape of any dust, and the refuse is carried to bins in the sweeper truck, which are emptied as often as necessary.

Among other advantages which Mr. Near claims for the dustless sweepers is the fact that they can be used even in freezing weather. It is impossible to flush the streets in frosty weather because of the danger which would result from icy streets. For this and other reasons the dustless sweepers will soon become general throughout Canadian municipalities, it was stated.

OWNERSHIP TITLES DIDN'T STOP THEFTS

Took Cars and Dismantled Them to Fool Cuban Police.

HAVANA, Aug. 5.—Issuance of a title of ownership with each automobile license in Cuba kept the republic practically free of automible thefts until a shot time ago, when several machines disappeared in rapid succession. A general checkup by the police, who stopped machines with regularity demanding that title be shown, failed to bring the stolen machines into the hands of the authorities.

Then two rural guards found an underground storehouse near here where machines were being dismantled and sold piece by piece to unscrupulous garage owners. Rural guards believe all of the half dozen or more machines, which had disappeared several months ago, were taken to the underground workroom for dismantling, as well as many accessories which sneak thieves removed from parked automobiles.

HIGH MASTS AT NEW WIRELESS STATION

New British Station Has Masts That Take a Half Hour to Climb.

RUGBY, Eng., Aug. 5.—(Associated Press).—Six times as high as the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square, London, are the 12 masts of the new British Government wireless station here, through which it is anticipated telephonic communication with the United States as well as wireless communication with all parts of the British Empire will be effected.

There is an electric lift inside each mast to carry four men to the top in 15 minutes. There is also a ladder up which the top of the mast can be reached in half an hour. The masts are supported on porcelain insulators and can rock slightly on a joint at the base. In a high wind the top of the mast sways to the extent of eight feet.

But wait a moment! The discussion, strange to relate, is on what golfers tell me about nature and what they have run into on the course, apart from golf balls and arguments.

One ardent golfer told me that a foursome, playing on the shores of Lake Erie, arrived at a green close to the shore, and who should be present, nest and all, but a spotted sandpiper.

What peculiar fancy made the bird make a nest on the sandbank which formed an edge to the green is hard to say, but there she was, sitting on the nest in full view of every golfer who came to that green. Her nest was poorly hidden.

The eggs must have been nearly hatched, for the bird was so anxious about them that she put on her prettiest circus tricks; she waited until they got onto the green, then slyly hopped off the nest and, when a few feet from it, began the stale old broken wing trick. She fell over on her side, cried, trailed her poor, drooping and badly broken wing, which was not broken at all, and tried in every way possible to make the men follow her in an effort to capture her and help to fix that wing.

Three of the men fell for her pleading fluttering and she led them away from the nest, but one of the golfers was wise to that broken wing stunt, so he not only remained at the nest, but recalled the others to see it, with its four nicely spotted eggs, in a cup shaped depression, lined with grasses.

The moment Lady Tip-Up, (for that is one of her names), saw that the game was up, and she couldn't fool anyone, she must have said, "Ah, what's the use? these folks are wise to me." At any rate, she went right in under their legs and sat on the nest and our golfers decided she must be a regular member of the club, so they left her in peace with her eggs.

You will see the spotted sandpiper on the shore, tipping her tail as a tight rope walker, to balance herself. She cries "peet-weet," is called Pewit, Teeter-tail, and has a spotted breast, with greenish back, showing white edges to wings when flying.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY FINDS THE WALKING-STICK TWINS.

Peggy was just about to put her hand on the fence post when something that looked very much like a stick moved to the top of the post, and over the side came another brown stick-like creature walking on five of the funniest little thin legs you ever saw.

"Well, of all the funny looking things I've ever seen," Peggy fairly gasped. "I thought you two fellows were sticks, and here you have legs."

"Certainly we have legs," laughed the fellow with five legs. "We are sticks, Miss Betty, and Mr. Paddy Walking Stick are our names. We are Walking-Stick twins."

"Of all things," laughed Peggy. "Please don't run away. I won't harm you. I sure would like to get a good look at you, Walking Stick Twins. Pray where is your Mother?"

"We never had a mother that we know of," said Betty Walking Stick sadly shaking her funny little Walking Stick head. "Maybe if we had one we, ——"

"Never had a Mother," Peggy shivered. "My! How terrible! Where did you come from then and how did you know what was proper for a Walking Stick to eat so you could grow?"

"Old Granny Tree Toad who live

"I Thought You Were Sticks."

in yonder tree," said Paddy Walking-Stick, "told us she saw our Mother, a very dignified, genteel looking Walking Stick drop her eggs right here on the grass beneath this tree and then run away and leave them. Granny Tree Toad watched the eggs, so nothing would harm them and sister Betty and I hatched out of two of them. All the rest of the family took to their six legs and scurried off across the meadows just as soon as they were hatched. Sis and I decided we'd rather stay near old Granny Tree Toad."

"Yes, and a lot of help they have been to me too," croaked a hoarse voice, and Granny Tree Toad hopped out on a limb over their heads. "Yes, I saw their Mother lay her eggs and as she didn't want her babies I have tried to take good care of them. Now Paddy there, maybe you have noticed he only has five legs while his sister has six." Peggy hadn't noticed but she saw the difference when Paddy held up his five legs. "One day a Robin gathered Paddy Walking Stick up and carried him up on this very limb. I happened to see it and pulled Paddy Walking Stick away from him. Robin Red Breast tried to hold him and in getting away, Paddy Walking Stick lost a leg."

"I don't mind one bit, Granny Tree Toad," chuckled Paddy Walking Stick. "I'm just as happy as if I had six legs and I guess I get around almost as quickly as I did before."

"Now if Paddy Walking Stick were like Biddy Spider, he could grow another leg," laughed Betty Walking Stick.

"Not for all the world would I change places with any spider," snapped Paddy Walking Stick. "I'd rather travel on three legs than be anything but just what I am."

"Good," croaked Granny Tree Toad. "But you'd all better run for home. It's going to rain before long," and she began to croak out a warning to the meadow folks.

Peggy ran for the porch just as the big rain drops spattered on the walk, and after the storm when she went back to the fence post the Walking Stick Twins were gone.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE RUNNING AMUCK IS CONSIDERED QUITE PROPER.

We often use the phrase "running amuck" to describe a man who has temporarily lost control of himself, who makes wild, senseless movements. But among the Malays of the Indian Archipelago the phrase has a very definite meaning.

Running amuck, or amok, is a sort

semi-voluntary insanity. Under certain circumstances, it is considered a justifiable thing to do. If a man has met with an accident or a great grief, it is quite right for him to permit himself to be overwhelmed with uncontrollable emotion.

This emotion takes the form of a violent and unthinkable rage against the whole world. And the Malay vents this rage in wholesale slaughter. He dashes out with his kris drawn and he slays anybody who comes his way.

His people have learned to know the signs of this condition, and when they see him coming they spread the alarm of "amok! amok!" and run for their lives. The men get out their daggers and clasp their weapons. Everybody is astrain to avoid the peril or to capture the demented man.

As long as this condition lasts, he will kill everybody who comes his way. Friend or foe, if you cross his path, our end is near. He runs along, brandishing his bloody kris, perhaps bleeding himself from shots and gashes and wounds, and as he goes he spreads destruction in his wake.

The end comes when he drops from exhaustion or is surrounded and pinioned against a wall by the police. They have a specially devised weapon for dealing with him. It looks somewhat like a short-pronged pitchfork of enormous size. This they aim at him, as he stands at bay against a wall, kris in hand. They finally get the prongs about his throat and hold him against the wall, while the kris is taken from him.

He is tried and executed by law. But as a matter of fact, he does not usually live to stand trial for his wounds will probably dispatch him before the law can takes its course.

This is the origin of our comparatively peaceful phrase "running amuck." It is a sufficiently common occurrence so that the natives recognize the first signs of it and know how to deal with it as effectively as possible.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE VACCINATION MAY NOT TAKE EFFECT.

Health officials throughout North America are begging people to be vaccinated. It is good advice.

I am not saying this because it is easy to tell people what they should do. I am advising you to do what I have done for myself. As I write, I have a sore left arm and am wearing a celluloid shield over a very ugly spot.

It isn't pleasant to be vaccinated and to be truthful about it, one can feel very miserable for several days.

Let us analyze my own experience. I have been vaccinated a dozen times I suppose. The last time was on my return three years ago from Glasgow, Scotland, where they were having a rather serious epidemic of smallpox.

But for at least twenty years no vaccination has "taken" until the one I just had. This may mean that I have "run out" of the effects of previous vaccinations. It may mean that previously the vaccine was too weak, not well applied, or that some cleansing agent neutralized it.

In any event had I been content to accept the non-taking in the past as an evidence of present immunity, I might have been one of the future victims of smallpox.

I am extremely confident to-day that if a vigorous "take" is a proof of its need, I was in desperate need of vaccination.

I had what the doctors would call a "beautiful take." It was an uncontaminated vaccinia. There was no infection and no pus formation. It was an honest-to-goodness, simon-pure vaccination. Certainly I was not immune to smallpox and probably was not three years ago and ten years ago and a dozen years ago.

The point I wish to make is that if you have not had a successful vaccination for ten years and that all efforts fizzled, it does not prove necessarily that you are safe from smallpox. My advice is to try again. If it does not result in a reaction, no harm is done anyhow. It may take this year. I am sure it will take if Dr. Oberwager of the New York Board of Health will tell you what serum he used so successfully in my case.

I am glad I was vaccinated and I'm glad it is over.

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

GEORGE STREET.

The Methodist Church secured an early footing in the town, the first place of worship being erected on the west side of George street, a small frame building, the land being granted by the Legislative Council. In 1844 the growth of membership led to the erection of a larger building, the old church being converted into a parsonage.

For the first 40 years of its existence the church took a step forward in equipment every 10 years. The second church, which was built in 1844, was enlarged in 1854, a new organ was added in 1864, and in 1874 the present church was built, exactly opposite the site of the old building, at a cost of $60,000, a huge sum in those days, and was dedicated at Christmas, 1875. George Street is modelled on the Metropolitan Church, being designed by the same architect, and is Gothic in style, of white brick with a stone basement, which houses a lecture room, class rooms and Sunday School rooms. George Street Sunday School has been one of the largest and most efficient in the city.

The main auditorium is lighted by stained glass windows and has a gallery surrounding it on three sides, the fourth side in rear of and above the pulpit being the organ loft containing a fine organ, costing $3,000.

No description of George Street United Church would be complete which did not mention the tower which was completed many years after the erection of the church, being finished with large and intermediate pinnacles, which give to the exterior of the building a dignified and impressive effect.

The Rev. J. E. Todd preached his first sermon in George Street Church on July 5 of this year, succeeding Rev. W. Harold Young.

YOUR GARDEN

PEONY PLANTING.

From the middle of this month, to the middle or end of September is a good time to plant peonies. If planted much later, however, they are not able to become thoroughly established by the time that winter sets in and are therefore liable to heaving by frost.

As the home gardeners aim will be to obtain flowers in profusion, he will leave his plants in the same location for a number of years: consequently the ground should be thoroughly prepared to a good depth. Two feet is none too much and this ground should that has stood for more than two years, be moved without division.

To divide a plant, dig all about it and remove it carefully, taking care to retain as many of the roots as possible. Shake off as much dirt as you can or with a difficult subject or if you lack experience the roots may be washed so that the twistings of the roots may clearly be seen. Then with a strong, sharp knife rather broad in the blade proceed to divide the crown into pieces each having from two or three to half a dozen eyes or buds. Peony roots vary so in the twining of the roots that each one is an individual problem. At first one is liable to lose a good deal of the root in the process of cutting, but experience will have the effect of reducing the loss to a minimum. Special care should be taken in cutting down towards the bottom to avoid severing crossing roots, as a root will start from one side and branch out on its opposite side making a regular tangle. A good root with two or three eyes will make a better plant eventually than several eyes on a poor piece of root. Very old root should be discarded and the planting material taken from the sound, younger portions. Young plants from two to four years old make better divisions than old ones.

Whether dividing your own plants or buying new stock from the nursery, the division should be planted so that the buds are two inches below the surface of the soil. Too deep planting will result in the checking of the growth of the plant. The tops, all but about six or eight inches of stem, may be cut away. Three feet each way is a minimum distance and four feet is much better.

Avoid planting peonies close to foundations or near trees and shrubs where they will not only be shaded but forced to compete with the roots of these other plants.

Should your peony roots arrive in a somewhat dried condition they may be soaked in water for a few hours before planting.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, AUGUST 6.

Although this may be forecast as a successful day for business and all workaday propositions, with opportunity for substantial gain and progress in these, yet an adverse figure may cause trouble, sorrow and affliction, especially in domestic and personal associations. With Mercury and Venus afflicted by Luna and Mars in aspect with Saturn, annoyances and grievances of divers natures are presaged. The trine of the moon to Saturn, however, sustained by a friendly Jupiter, may be productive of much permanent good fortune.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a successful and prosperous year in their business undertakings, but may meet sorrow or trouble in domestic or affectional affairs. It might be well to be discreet in the matter of contracts, as all writings are under an adverse figure. A child born on this day will need the most careful training and discipline in the matter of truth and honor. It should be persevering, industrious and succeed to a fair degree.

The successful man is the one who succeeds in making others think as well of him as he does of himself.

STREET NAMES

BURNHAM STREET.

The Rev. Mark Burnham was born in 1802 at Cobourg and was the son of Zaccheus Burnham who was one of the pioneers in the early settlement of the Colborne district. Choosing the ministry of the Church of England as his profession he studied at the University of Toronto and at Queen's College, Oxford, where he graduated. His first charge was at St. Thomas where he labored for 23 years until his appointment as rector of St. John's Peterborough. In 1858 he retired from immediate parochial duties but gave his services freely and unreservedly to preach in the churches at Otonabee and Warsaw until within a year of his death in 1877 leaving behind him an enviable record of service and a reputation for honorable dealing. For many years before his death he was a member of the old Grammar School Board and took an active interest in all local affairs.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

CHAPTER 9.

Three Puffs of Smoke.

From a ledge on the mountain, above the road, the Indian Komi, wide-eyed, had been watching the runaway buckboard, and the pursuit of the bandits.

Sensing the situation, he quickly started a fire. When it was going well, he half-smothered it with his blanket. Then deftly raising the blanket a thick puff of accumulated smoke rose into the air. Komi repeated the operation till three such puffs had followed in succession.

"The smoke, he talk—Komi's friends they hear," he muttered.

He returned to watch over the ledge again for a few moments. Then he repeated the signal of three puffs of smoke.

"They must hear smoke—if not hear first time, givum more."

* * *

Terence rode his rearing horse right down the rocky incline, slipping and stumbling, heeding nothing—down, down, down, on to the bank, and, with never a stop, directly into the water of the reservoir.

Mary, struggling in the water was clinging to the drifting wreckage of the buckboard with one hand, and to the money bag with the other. The buckboard horses, freed from the tontue of the buckboard in the fall, were swimming to shore.

Terence, on his horse swiftly swimming out to Mary, dared not come too close to her for fear his horse's pawing hoofs under water might harm her. So he loosened his lariat, and swung the rope to the girl, Mary succeeded in grasping it. Terence turned his horse back toward shore, drawing Mary after him.

When the horse reached shallow water and found his feet, Terence leaped from the saddle, and quickly drew Mary into his arms, and carried her back to the bank. Exhausted and almost fainting, she nevertheless still clutched the bag with the money intact. Terence's smile, as he looked down into her face, revived her, but she would have liked to rest there longer in his supporting arms.

But they could not linger. Suddenly recovering her memory of the danger still hovering, she jumped up with wild anxiety in her eyes and looked back towards the road. Yes, they were still coming.

"The bandits," she reminded Terence.

Turning, he saw them coming like mad, their horses on the dead run. He leaped to his saddle, and lifted her on in front of him. They dashed off the bank, in between huge boulders, and picked up a trail. The bandits came on in pursuit, but Terence and Mary had a good lead on them.

The trail, they found, led them past a small, rock-ribbed blind gully, with a narrow entrance. As his eyes took in this place, Terence wheeled his horse and drove into it.

"We can hold them off here," he said, leaping from the saddle, and lifting Mary down.

He drew his gun from its holster, and prepared for the expected attack. The rocks protected them from all sides. All he needed to do was guard the narrow entrance.

"One man can hold this place against an army," he said. "We are in luck."

They did not have to wait long for the bandits to catch up to them. Two of them at once attempted to break through the entrance to the gully, but shots from Terence's revolver sent them fleeing back.

He signalled them together. The four conferred.

"We've got 'em holed up in a trap," said Buck. "We'll keep 'em holed up until they're ready to come out peaceable."

They grinned, dismounted, tied their horses, rolled cigarettes, and prepared for an easy siege.

After a short rest Buck got an idea. The bandits put their heads together and listened to him.

"I think they're going to try and rush us," said Terence, grimly, fingering the trigger of his gun. They remained alert.

Suddenly three of the bandits began to advance steadily firing their guns, the leader placing a hat on a stick and shoving it toward the gully entrance to draw fire. Terence fired back. For several minutes the bullets flew thick and fast.

Terence tried to conserve his ammunition. But he was forced to fire by the bandits who kept stealing up to rush in.

As she looked at him, grasping the significance of his words, both their eyes filling with love at this moment of their extreme peril together, a new horror suddenly transfixed her. From above them had dropped the nose of a lariat, encircling Terence, and quickly drawn back so that it caught him under the armpits. Struggling to free himself, he was lifted from his feet and slowly drawn up the mountainside.

While the others had been drawing Terence's gun-fire, the fourth bandit, under Buck's instructions, had made a detour around the side of the gully, and climbed up to a ledge overhanging the spot where Terence and Mary had barricaded themselves. He was a huge strapping, muscular fellow, this bandit, and once he had caught Terence in his lariat, had no difficulty in hauling him up.

A hard bump, as he was being dragged up, caused Terence to drop his gun. It fell at Mary's feet. Staring at it wild-eyed, she suddenly recovered her presence of mind—snatched it, and, taking careful aim, fired upward. The bullet struck the rope, cut into it, the strands parted, and Terence dropped back on the ground beside Mary. Mary knelt beside him and raised him up in her arms. He came out of his daze and staggered up dizzily.

Watching over the barricade, he saw that the bandits, surprised and angered by the failure of their lariat maneuver, were getting ready to rush them. He gazed at his hands.

"These are all I have to fight with now, dear," he said grimly.

The battle was on almost before they knew it. The three bandits charged the entrance, and the fourth slid down from his ledge above upon Terence. Terence caught him with the butt of his revolver and laid him out; then turned his attention to the three at the gap. He caught the leader, Buck, by the throat, and hurled him out on the road.

While he was desperately battling the other two, the reports of a volley of pistol shots sounded from nearby down the road. The hoofs of wildly galloping horses were heard. Buck, picking himself up where Terence had hurled him, looked off in the direction of the sound, and took alarm. He made a dash for his horse, yelling:

"Beat it, men. Looks like a posse."

He started off at posthaste. The others rushed to their saddles. The man who had dropped in from the ledge above, and been laid out by Terence, had just come to, and was menacing Mary, trying to drag the money bag from her hands. Terence dealt him a heavy blow to the jaw which sent him reeling out of the entrance, after his fellows. Perceiving them fleeing under the rain of bullets from the new attackers coming down the road, who were now almost upon them, he jumped to his horse and fled also. The rescue party drew up to the gully and dismounted. It consisted of Mary's father, Bud Hughes, Miquel—and Komi.

Marshall rushed in to his daughter.

"Mary, dear, are you all right? Have you been hurt?" he cried.

Mary rushed to his arms.

"It is I, now, how have to thank you, O'Rourke, and for so much—my little girl, Mary—you have saved her."

Marshall took Mary into his arms again.

"But what brought you here, Daddy?" she asked. "I don't know what would have happened if you had not arrived just when you did."

"It was three puffs of smoke," replied Marshall. "We have Komi to thank for that. He saw your trouble and built his fire. He sent his message into the air in Indian smoke talk. Three puffs—I saw it curling up in the air. I knew the signal. It was repeated again and again. Good old Komi. We rode to the rendezvous. On the way we picked up Miquel, returning to tell us what had happened when you were attacked at the springs. Komi was waiting at his fire, and led us here."

All turned to the old Indian chief.

"Komi, he watch," mumbled the chief. "Komi, he knows his friends, he help them. Komi knows too his enemies—they beware Komi if they are wise."

CHURCH SERVICES

First Morning Service in Baptist Church—Rain Prevented One Service.

WARSAW, Aug. 5.—The Baptists are holding service in the church on Sunday morning. Pastor Pinkerton conducted his first morning service Sunday. His subject was "Prayer". Next Sunday the service will be conducted by two young Evangelists from McMaster University.

The United Church service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Harrington, whose subject was "Jesus Bearing His Cross.' Two weeks from Sunday he will speak on science and religion, as he does not think the greatest Christian thinkers find any quarrel between these two subjects. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the close of the service.

Mr. Harrington preached at Carmel in the morning. Rev. Mr. Rogers assisted him. Two car loads from Rush Point, one of the appointments on his former Cordova circuit, came to Carmel church, for the service.

There was no service at Zion. The minister and two other families were there, but sat in their cars in the shed and watched the storm. The church was locked and the janitor did not face the storm to open it.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid held a picnic in Mrs. Tucker's Grove on Thursday afternoon. This was to be their final meeting but when it came to the point, no one wished to discontinue the meeting, so the Aid will carry on as usual to the end of the year.

The United Church, Warsaw, W. M.S. will hold its next meeting (by invitation) with the United Church of Cottesloe, W.M.S. at the home of Mrs. Wm. Forsythe on Wednesday, August 12.

The Warsaw Woman's Institue will hold its regular meeting on Thursday, August 13. Preneveau and Norwood branches are invited.

A very heavy storm passed over North Dummer Sunday afternoon. It is considered that about an inch of rain fell; also there was a big hail storm and thunder and lightning.

BYNG IN NORTH

The governor-general's trip northward from the Peace River Crossing culminated with his arrival at Aklavik in the delta of the Mackenzie River near Beaufort Sea, a subdivision of the Arctic Ocean. In all, Lord Byng will have travelled about 2,000 miles over Western Canada's great inland waterways. The above map shows his route along the Peace, Slave and Mackenzie Rivers.

WELCOME HAS ITS DECORATION DAY

After Decking Graves in Port Hope, Oddfellows Visit Welcome.

WELCOME, Aug. 5.—The quarterly communion service of the Wesley circuit was held in Zion church Sunday morning.

Representatives from all appointments were present. Those from Welcome were: Mr. and Mrs. McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. Will Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lewis, Mrs. Alford, Mrs. Clare, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Bosnell and family.

On Sunday afternoon, Decoration Day was held in Port Hope and Welcome cemeteries. The cemeteries were very beautiftul as the friends of the departed had scattered flowers with a lavish hand. When to this was added the three links on the Oddfellows' graves, placed by the brethren, both cemetries were bowers of beauty.

When the Oddfellows, headed by the band, arrived at the Port Hope cemetery, they were met by a large gathering of people who had met to do honor to the departed.

An impressive service was held at which Rev. A. G. Emmett gave the address and Mr. George, of Port Hope, sang a solo.

After the audience joined in singing, "We'll all gather home in the morning," the brethren scattered, each carrying his floral emblem to the grave assigned to him.

Later, the graves in Welcome cemetery were also decorated.

On Sunday evening the Wesleyville choir gave a song service in the Welcome United church. During the service, Mr. Hayden, leader of the choir, spoke of Wednesday, the 11th anniversary of the commencement of the war, and said some of the choir's selections were chosen with that in view. He recited Kipling's Recessional.

Rev. D. R. Clare based his remarks on the same subject. He spoke on the value of memory, the steps taken by means of monuments and other memorials to keep alive the memory of the 50,000 Canadian heroes who gave their lives for their country and also spoke of the heroism of the mother who gave their sons.

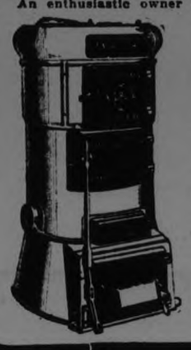
Very Satisfactory in Every Way

Pease "Economy" BOILER

An enthusiastic owner reports as follows:



"To say the Pease "Economy" Boiler is every way is very satisfactory, would just half express our feelings and our appreciation toward it. We claim that it is nothing less than a blessing."

The specially designed firepot and other exclusive features make this a very economical heating system. The water circulates quickly and presents great surface to the heat. Write direct for fully descriptive literature.

VACATION'S PERFECT ENDING

By Mary Lawson

Vacation is over—for another year, at any rate, and oh, what a wonderful time she has had! What wonderful memories she is carrying home with her, and what marvelous times she will have regaling the girls with stories of her adventures. Poor Dan Cupid, though, isn't quite so happy. All his love darts have been bent and broken and he's so downcast, for he was sure that this time he would enroll her as one of his subjects. But all he sees is the trail of hearts which she is leaving behind. She thinks they are broken, but they aren't—only chipped and cracked a bit. And they'll heal quickly. Vacation philanderings are never very serious, you know. They seem so for the time, and the hearts which are declared broken, soon mend—when the next pretty vacationist comes along. But to every girl vacation's end is truly the end of a perfect summer.

Let's Talk It Over

A WIFE LONGS FOR THE SUITOR OF LONG-AGO

"Despondent" married the wrong man. She's been married four years and she sees it now. She should have taken the other suitor. Her husband is a good man, there is a sweet little girl, the home life is ideal—and yet—

Well—you know how it is, Pal. I wonder if any one was ever really sure they'd taken the right man—or the right woman—or the right job—or even the right hat. The one you didn't take always looks so much more alluring.

Am sending my problem to you in hopes that you will help me. I was going with two young men at the same time. One we will call A, the other B. I couldn't tell which I liked the best. However, I had known A since school days—and he was Mother's choice.

B was a little older than A and so much more sophisticated.

Mother was hep to all his family history, so therefore forbade me to see him. But as far as character and morals were concerned, he could be classed right beside A.

Each boy knew I went with the other. Both proposed. I married A. I thought I liked him best. "That was the big mistake." I had no sooner said "yes" than I realized it was B I loved—and I still love him.

This was four years ago. I've tried to kid myself out of it. I have fought myself, but I just can't help loving B, and that's all there is to it.

B has never married. Whenever we see each other we have never so much as referred to bygone days, etc., but looks—oh, he knows that I know and I know that he knows that we just love each other to pieces.

I have no grounds for divorce, my husband is so perfect. He is simply wild over our little girl and it would break his heart if his home were broken up. He is so very good that I would have to be poor stuff indeed not to appreciate him.

Neither he nor Mother know that anything is wrong, but, really, I am heartbroken. What would you do, Pal? Don't you think four years is time enough to forget each other if we didn't really love?

DESPONDENT.

No, I don't. I've known old ladies to sit and sniffle over an ancient valentine or a dried rosebud that the "other suitor" gave them forty years ago. Great love. Great Imagination! Anyone can work up a grand passion for any man they don't have to live with, and cry real tears over him, too.

If you'd married B you'd be sighing over A. No, I'm not being unsympathetic and hard. I am just trying to make you see that yours is not an unusual case. It's what happens to everybody. If you're sensible and loyal, you'll just grin over your own foolishness and Forget It. Ten chances to one B also nods over his paper in the evening and is cranky before breakfast. Don't forget that distance lends enchantment.

Have you a guest-room in your home? Or even a spare bed in little Willie's room—or a davenport in the parlor? If so, you'll have a fellow-feeling for the author of the following letter:

I want to ask your advice. Do you think I should be a slave to my husband's folks?

I am happy and contented and have a fine husband—could not be better—only his weak point is his relatives. Every year one or two of them come and spend two or three months, never writing to say they are coming before they arrive. Just send a telegram the day they leave for us to meet such-and-such a boat. It certainly is a task to look after them, both in money and work. We just plan and save all Winter—I do without lots of things I need—and in the Summer everything goes.

I really believe the only weak point that my husband has is his relatives. He goes to work at 7:30 and is home at 5.30. I have all the work to do. In three years, nine of his relatives have visited us, and the shortest visit has been four weeks. The rest stay from six weeks to two or three months. I am tired of it. Will you tell me what to do?

A PAL.

I see no reason why a red-blooded human with two legs and a backbone should be a slave to anyone. You're evidently suffering from the effects of having too large and comfortable a home. If it isn't convenient to take smaller quarters, rent the extra room or rooms. You say you are trying to save money. Then if you must have boarders, make them be paying guests. Tell your husband you have decided to help him save.

After Aunt Sophronia has been stung and Aunt Jemima has likewise found someone in her favorite feather bed, your husband's relations will begin to scratch you off their calling list. After they get over the visiting habit you can go back to the old way of living in perfect safety. Good luck.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

MEAT DISHES FOR LUNCHEON AND SUPPER.

Meat dishes for luncheon and supper use are generally the so-called made-over dishes that require a special knowledge of this kind of cookery to be successful. Left-overs are frequently used in combination with crumbs, seasoning and sauces that are suitable, and are cooked in ramekins, casseroles, fried as croquettes and cones, in patty shells, crustades and in other containers.

Liver and Chicken Ramekins.

Take the remainder of a boiled chicken, pick from the bones and chop rather fine; also chop the liver, heart and gizzard and add with a minced slice of bacon cut rather thicker than for frying. Add to two cupfuls or a little less of the meat a grated onion, a teaspoonful of chopped celery leaves, a half cupful of dry fine crumbs, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of sugar, a tablespoonful of soft butter, a saltspoonful of curry powder and a half cupful of cream. Fill buttered ramekins lightly with the mixture and bake in a medium oven twenty minutes to a half hour.

Veal Tomatoes.

Wash and hollow the stem end of four large tomatoes. Chop fine enough cold roast veal to make a cupful, add a grated onion, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, a teaspoonful of chopped celery leaves, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of powdered sweet herbs, two tablespoonfuls of crumbs, and a tablespoonful of catsup. Moisten with a very little cream. Butter over the tomatoes and stuff them with the mixture, hollow them out well so they will hold it, then arrange them on a baking dish, dust with pepper and salt, and sprinkle with a little grated cheese. Bake until the tomatoes are done, but not soft.

TODAY'S FASHION

Cut Steel Buckles Trim This Unusual Blue Crepe Dress.

The dress is made on the simplest possible lines. There are groups of inset pleats on either side. These are held down by strips of the material, which are continuations of the front and back panels of the frock.

Mourning Clothes

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (United Press). —The very thought of mourning garments is distasteful to the average person to-day. Deep mourning is seldom worn except during the first days of mourning. The time when black crepe veils, black gloves, hosiery and garments were worn for one year after one's bereavement is past.

To-day one very soon passes from entire black to second mourning, which is black and white or gray. The wearing of black does not relieve one's sorrow. It is getting so that a woman who decks herself out in heavy widow's weeds is looked upon with suspicion. One suspects that she is somewhat of a poser or that she finds black becoming.

The ideal and sensible mourning clothing should be that which does not attract undue attention. A woman of refinement does not wish to attract attention to the fact that she is in mourning. Neither does she attempt any startling effects of black and white or second mourning. Black and white, if used indiscriminately, can be as startling as a vivid color.

The present vogue for prints offers many ideas which are appropriate for mourning. Frocks of black and white print design are not conspicuous and they are in keeping with the mode. Small figured patterns are chosen by the woman of refinement. The background may be either white or black and the pattern must never be startling. One's hat, naturally, is black or black and white. Shoes should be black, since black and white shoes are out of taste. Since black hosiery has been discarded one may wear oyster white or light gray in comformity with the general effect of the frock.

Gray is also a good mourning color and the same millinery and footgear which is worn with the black and white frock may be worn with gray. The wrap should be all black rather than a mixture of black and white.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Sometime ago I met a young man and we went out together for some time.

I lent him money and he promised to give it back to me.

I am returning to city. Shall I ask him for it? UNDECIDED.

UNDECIDED: Probably the young man has forgotten about your kind loan and would be grateful if you reminded him of it, my dear. I suggest, when you see him next, that you tactfully ask him to return it. This should in no way affect your friendship, though.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and have been going with a young man two years my senior for almost a year. He is very jealous, and because he does not care for any other girl's company, he thinks I should not go out with any other young men. As we are not engaged I would like to have your advice regarding this. QUEENIE.

QUEENIE: You are quite right, my dear. Since you are not engaged to be married you need not limit your friendships—and, indeed, it would not be wise for you to do this. Meet all your friends, even if you are very much interested in one of them. If the young man in question feels that you should devote all your time to him, you must explain the situation tactfully but frankly and ask his co-operation.

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a girl of nineteen and will be twenty in two weeks.

I am in love with a good honest fellow that I have only known two months.

Do you think it would be all right to marry him when I have only known him for two months?—Rose Bud.

I think you should marry him, Rose Bud. At twenty years of age you should be able to judge for yourself. This is a rapid age, and two months can give you just as good an idea of a man as two years, if you have seen him often enough in that time. If he is "good" and "honest" you will probably be quite happy with him.

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a young girl, nineteen, and am in love with a young man the same age. We went together for about eight months, and were very happy. He was very thoughtful of me and always put me first in everything, but through some misunderstanding he got mad, and won't speak to me, and I am very unhappy for I love him more than I can every love onyone else. I have only been out with two fellows since we quarrelled, but I am not going out with them anymore. I used to be giddy, but I have quieted down a lot. Please tell me what I should do.—Babe.

I will look out for your answer.

Now, I know very well, Babe, that you feel very unhappy and are quite sure that you could never love anyone as well as this young man, but, at nineteen, you can't judge such things properly. It is quite likely that in a year's time you may be feeling just the same way about someone else. That is one of the blessed things of life—hurts don't last forever. You see you started "going together" when you were both only about nineteen years of age, and that is just the time when "calf love" is at its height. In any event don't forget that this may be all for your own good. Perhaps you have been too "giddy" and needed something to make your quieter. I don't think I would go out with any more fellows for a while, if I were you. Can't you manage in some way to let your friend know that you feel badly about the misunderstanding, that is, if you were at fault in the matter.

Dear Annie Laurie:

About three years ago the boy friend whom I loved went away and I promised to wait until he came back and we would be married. But three years has passed since then, and he said he would only be away a year. I have fallen in love with another man and he has asked me to marry him. Shall I accept him or be true to my former friend? I hardly think he will come back to me now. —Troubled.

Your problem is an old one, Troubled. "I loved him, but he left town," is the cheap way of summing up many of these affairs. You know an ironical rendering of the old saying puts it: "Absence makes the heart grow fonder—of someone else." I believe, if I were you, I would remember the admonition "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." If your former friend has not come back during three years' time, he has probably forgotten about you entirely, fallen in love with some one else, or he is one of that type of young man to whom time is no object, who would just as soon have a girl wait for him a quarter of a century, while he placidly enjoys a free bachelor existence.

If you have fallen in love with the second man you had better accept him. In the meantime, if you have the first one's address why not write and explain the situation, saying to give him at least a chance to declare himself?

TO END SMUGGLING.

Drastic Changes on Border to Stop Flow of Liquor.

WASHINGTON, August 5. — Canadian Press. — As a first step in a concerted effort to curb liquor smuggling over the Canadian border, Assistant Secretary Andrews yesterday ordered the transfer from the prohibition unit to the customs service of all authority over the Canadian border patrol from the Detroit River to Port Huron.

Customs Collector Ferguson at Detroit was directed to augment his force immediately, and then to make a complete survey of the entire territory to determine the number of men and fast launches and automobiles that will be required to close up the avenues through which liquor now is reaching this country from Canada.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

KEEPING THE HAIR ATTRACTIVE.

I am very insistent in my beauty advice on the subject of your hair. The reason for this is that I know for a fact that every woman who possesses good health can have hair that is bright and glossy, and a source of pleasure to herself and to her friends.

Of course the woman who is ill or who does not take good care of herself and her hair cannot expect it to show the beauty that really well-cared-for hair can possess.

You must sleep your allotted time, eight or nine hours, every night. You must eat simple, well proportioned meals, and you must keep your body and your scalp scrupulously clean, so both can breathe freely.

Now, as to the special care you lavish on your hair and your scalp, I am going to give you some good, simple shampoo directions, with a small amount of general advice about your hair.

You must brush it briskly and thoroughly every night to remove the day's accumulation of dust and to bring the blood coursing through your scalp. This means brushing it from the roots out. The pull on your hair is good for it and while your brush removes the dust the brushing movement invigorates your scalp.

Wash your brush directly afterward, and have it clean and fresh for the next brushing. This is most important, for a dusty brush will never clean your hair thoroughly.

Now, when your hair shows need of a shampoo, which it should not do oftener than two weeks if it is healthy, proceed as follows. If you can go three or even four weeks between shampoos, so much the better. You will need the following ingredients:

Pure olive oil	1 teaspoonful
Lemon juice	1 lemon
Any pure soap	castile is good

Massage the olive oil thoroughly into your scalp with the tips of your fingers and leave it there about twenty minutes. Massage as deeply and vigorously as you like. All this is good for your hair.

After the twenty minutes is up, wash your hair thoroughly with a good soapsuds and water. I find a small brush for the scalp an excellent aid to the shampoo.

Rinse your hair through three waters, and in the third rinse put the juice of a lemon. Dry your hair by rubbing it with a Turkish towel, and if you can dry it in the sunshine, so much the better. Massage your scalp as it dries. Your hair should be glossy and fresh and lovely after this treatment.

The man who knows the least is often in the biggest hurry to tell it.

"Poor Dorothy—
she's still too weak to romp and play"

THE hand of sickness touched her—and it was all so pitifully unnecessary.

She touched a door handle, a book, money, telephone, or something upon which other hands had left invisible disease germs. The germs passed into her system by way of her nose or mouth. Then the fever—the days of dread—the long convalescence—the impaired vitality.

Mothers—protect the tender health of your children. Have everyone in the family use Lifebuoy frequently—because Lifebuoy is a real health soap and combats the ever-present dangers of dirt.

The rich, creamy lather of Lifebuoy carries a gentle antiseptic deep down into every pore and leaves the skin purified. The wholesome odour soon vanishes—but the Lifebuoy protection remains.

Lifebuoy is a pure, bland soap, made from the rich oils of palm fruit and cocoanut. It agrees with your skin—keeps it soft, clear, glowing with health.

THE ATHLETICS CLUB WHITE SOX IN SAM GRAY'S ELEVENTH VICTORY AND SENATORS DEFEAT DETROIT

Mack's Leaders Clicked Up Sixteen Hits—Chicago Rally Nipped.

SHOCKER WINS ONE.

Yankees Take Three Out of Four From Cleveland—Browns Sweep Series.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4—The Philadelphia Athletics found their batting eyes today and won their second game of the series with the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 3. Gray pitched great ball to gain his eleventh triumph of the season but took things too easy in the ninth and was relieved with the bases full and none out by Baumgartner, who stopped a Chicago rally. The score:

Philadelphia .. ..00203040x—9 16 0

Thurston, Cvengros and Crouse; Gray, Baumgartner and Cochrane.

Washington 5; Detroit 2

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 — Tom Zachary held Detroit to four hits today and the Senators made it three victories in four stars by winning 5 to 2. Zachary allowed three of the hits in the second inning and these, with an error, gave the Tigers their two runs. The Washington pitcher fanned seven batsmen, hit a triple and scored two runs. The score:

Detroit .. ..020000000—2 4 2
Washington .. ..00101030x—5 10 1

Whitehill and Woodall; Zachary and Severeid.

New York 4; Cleveland 1

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—The Yankees made it three out of four from the Cleveland Indians by winning today's game, 4 to 1. A seventh inning rally which brought across three New York runs, contributed largely to the downfall of the Speaker tribe. Karr's wildness and erratic play by the Cleveland infield aided the victory. Shocker went the route for the Yanks, keeping the seven hits garnered off his delivry well scattered. The score:

Cleveland.. ... ..010000000—1 7 1
New York .. .. ..00000130x—4 9 0

Karr and Myatt; Shocker and Schang.

St. Louis 10; Boston 7

BOSTON, Aug. 4—The St. Louis Browns made a clean sweep of the three game series with the Boston Red Sox by taking the final 10 to 7. The issue was decided in the third inning when Fuhr was scored on seven times. Two successive pitched balls resulted in five runs in this inning, when McManus doubled with the bases filled and was brought in on Jacobson's home run over the left field fence. The score:

St. Louis.. .. ..017100001—10 15 3
Boston .. ..01001040I— 7 11 1

PIRATES AND GIANTS BOTH LOSE TO PHILADELPHIA AND ST. LOUIS

Cards Made It Three in a Row and Phils Three Out of Five.

DODGERS BEATEN.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 4 — Philadelphia made it three out of five games from the Pittsburgh Pirates by taking the final game of the series today, 8 to 4. The Phillies drove Morrison from the mound in the first inning before a batsman had been retired. Sheehan, who relieved him, was effective with the exception of the fourth inning. He retired in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Culloton pitched the final inning. The score.

Philadelphia .. ..400300010—8 14 1
Pittsburgh.. .. ..000102010—4 9 1

St. Louis 4; New York 2

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4 — Playing without Manager Rogers Hornsby, who is under suspension, the Cardinals made it three in a row over New York by winning 4 to 2 in the series final. Bell's freak circuit clout in the eighth, with one man on base, broke the tie and won for St. Louis, his high fly dropped on the corner of the left field pavilion for a home run. The score:

New York ... ..000010010—2 9 2
St. Louis .. .. ..10001002x—4 10 2

Dean and Gowdy; Sherdel and O'Farrell.

Chicago 5; Brooklyn 2

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 — Chicago gained an even break in the four game series with Brooklyn by taking the final game, 5 to 2. Osborne pitched in fine form until the eighth inning when he weakened. The game was loosely played on each side, errors helping the Cubs to their first two runs while a wild pitch aided them with a third run. Score:

Brooklyn ....002000000—2 9 4
Chicago.. .. .. ..02010002x—5 7 3

Osborne and Taylor; Alexander and Churry.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

PIRATES ARE COMING.

After a tremendously poor start, equaled only by the getaways made by the Yankees and Tygers, the Pittsburg Pirates, during the last few weeks, have been prancing along at a remarkable gait.

In that stretch they have worked their way from a lowly second division berth to the leadership of the league. And what is more they are still going strong.

Recently the McKechnie crew tossed quite a crimp into the McGraw team's aspirations by beating the Gothamites four times in a row. The quartet of triumphs sent the Pirates on the road to the leadership of the league.

Last spring the experts were picking the Pittsburg outfit to be in the thick of the fight all the way. In training the club looked good. But it got off to a miserable start, just the reverse of what had been anticipated.

For a while it appeared like the team had been given the wrong "once-over" in camp through failure of some of the star hurlers to round into form was greatly responsible for the poor beginning.

Like Real Challengers.

From the way the Smoky town gang has been playing of late, however, it looks like the one best bet to dethrone the Giants and keep them from hanging up a new major league record by bagging five successive pennants.

The McKechnie unit has been getting good hitting during the past few weeks and the hurlers have been delivering, too.

Yde, 1924 sensation, has apparently hit his real stride after floundering around in the early weeks of the chase and should prove a winner from now forward.

Wright, Cuyler and Moore, three star youngsters of last season, have been playing first-class ball in all departments and Grantham, obtained by the club in the triple trade with the Cubs last winter, has been doing some nice batting and exceptional fielding at first, though out of position.

Since coming into their winning gait the team has been playing heads up ball, taking advantage of every opportunity possible. True, the Pirates have been getting their share of the breaks. But a team when on a victorious rampage usually does.

On Scoring Spree.

Those Philadelphia Athletics seem bent on hanging up a new record for scoring runs.

In two days the Macks counted 29 runs against Cleveland, scoring 17 one day after going into the eighth inning on the short end of a 15-4 count.

Figuring it more closely the team ran across 25 tallies in five consecutive innings. On the first day it scored a run in the sixth and seventh, 13 in the eighth and the following day shoved over 10 counters in the first two games.

It certainly showed that the Macks have their old war clubs primed and ready to swing on offerings of opposing hurlers. Practically every regular on the team has been getting his share of safeties, too.

If the Mack sticks to the clouting pace they have set of late they'll be a hard outfit to stop, indeed.

CHARLIE CUMMER IN MEAFORD GAME

Before a wild eyed leather-lunged throng, Charles Cummer, the veteran "comer," of the Express Homecomers Club, led his soft ball team to the market square on Tuesday evening for the opening game of the annual series with ye editor's nine, composed mostly of his colleagues at the council board—the dining-room where the town's hash is digested from year to year.

Mayor Cooper was all "dickeyed up" for the occasion and "hobbled" to the box to open the ceremony by pitching the first ball. Unfortunately, however, he was forced to retire on account of suffering from a bone spavin on his right hind leg, contracted from a sprain while attending the recent Masonic picnic. He was replaced by Sullivan.

Final score read 29-21 for the visitors.

For the locals Sullivan pitched good ball all the way but his support was anywhere but on the diamond.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The Petes play in Belleville today, and should win. A victory is necessary to keep them right on the Ponies' heels in the league race. Oshawa and Kingston meet in the Limestone City, which is also holding an old home celebration. The Ponies should win at home, while the loss would pretty well relegate Oshawa to the scrap heap for this year. Without Duke Dainty their chances are none too bright.

Lew Le Barr's Lakeviews and Ken. Colling's Belleville team will play their first game in the O.B.A.A. junior playdowns here on Wednesday, August 12, which is one week from today. The return game will be played in Belleville on the next Wednesday. The Belleville team will be a hard team to beat. Gerow, their hurling ace, pitched one game for the Grand Trunks against Kingston, and it was a dropped fly ball by Peenie Mills that cost him a victory. The Lakeviews are hitting the pill hard and a good series should result.

The name of Harry Halliday was left out of the list of last year's Lakeviews who are still wearing the old uniform. Halliday was also with the team in 1923.

Royals are safe in the Midget League, having won five and lost three. Kiwanis and Rotary have won three and lost four each, while one game is in dispute. The Rotary team claims the game, while the Kiwanis team insists that it should be played over again. The mix-up occurred when Manager McCarney sent in a pinch hitter, and then when the Kiwanis team took the field again the pinch hitter stayed on the bench, while the man he relieved went back out to field. The playoff will take place as soon as the dispute is settled.

The C.G.E. girls went to Toronto on Monday for a game with the Danforth team. The score was deadlocked at 7-all in the eighth, when the home team scored three, and the C.G.E. girls could get only one in the ninth. They were royally entertained, being guests of honor at a banquet.

Oshawa will be here on Saturday. This will be the last appearance of the Motorists in Peterboro during the 1925 season. After keeping in the struggle all through, the Oshawa gang fell off in the last few games, and the loss of Dainty just about spoiled their chance.

WHEN CRICKET WAS CONDEMNED

"It draws numbers of people from their employment to the ruin of their families. It propagates a spirit of idleness at a juncture when, with the utmost industry, our debts, taxes and decay of trade, will scarcely allow us to get bread. It is a most notorious breach of the laws, as it gives the most open encouragement to gaming and people have little respect of the laws regarding betting."

But it so happens that this was not written about golf. It was written about cricket and, what is more, it was written in England in 1743, nearly 200 years ago. At that time cricket was expected to wreck the British Empire just as golf is said to be wrecking the United States now.

And, it is quite likely that the United States will "survive" golf just as the British Empire "survived "cricket."

* * *

Incidentally we learn that the great Duke of Wellington never made the remark so widely attributed to him that the "Battle of Waterloo was won on the cricket fields of Eton." But we are told that while the great duke would have to deny making the remark he would also express his deep regrets that he did not make it. He would admit that it was a happy thought.

Cricket has proved a valuable national asset to England just as golf is proving an invaluable national asset to the United States. A few men may be ruined by golf but that does not indict the game. Where one is ruined a thousand and more are helped immeasurably to a better enjoyment of life, to better health and to finer accomplishments. Golf is teaching us many things that we never would have learned otherwise. For that the game deserves our eternal gratitude.

"There can no longer be any doubt in England that we really have some athletic talent on this side," writes F.P.S. "That we are athletically inclined must impress itself upon any Englishman who read the lineups of Oxford this year. An American strokes the 'varsity shell at Oxford and in her track and field competition Oxford relied upon Americans in six events."

* * *

"The other day I again read a statement that nowhere in the world do such large crowds gather for a single sports event as in America," says Fred Broomfield. "There have been huge crowds at football games, boxing bouts and world series ball games in this country but none has yet approached the crowd that saw Bolton Wanderers defeat West Ham United 2 to 0 in a soccer match in Wembley Stadium on April 28, 1923. This event drew 150,370 paid admissions. The fence was torn down in several places and thousands who did not pay admission invaded the playing field so the crowd was really in excess of 150,370.

"One man paid five guineas for an admission ticket. During the rioting he was knocked down and trampled on. He was finally rescued and taken to a hospital in an ambulance. He had several broken ribs and a fractured arm. It cost him five guineas to get in and about 30 times as much to get out and he did not see the game.

"Promoters of sports events in this country will shoot at the 150,370 attendance mark for some time to come. Not that they would be unable to draw that many people but because they can not accommodate that number in any of the stadiums on this side."

* * *

South Africa has produced some of the best long-distance runners. They hold long distances races frequently and a few big "classics" each year. One of the big long distance events is a race of 54 miles, from Durban to Pietermaritzburg. The official Marathon distance is less than one-half as long.

A remarkable feature of the annual event was the running of a young woman. Her name is not mentioned. She did not win but she finished the 54 miles grind, covering the distance in 11 hours, 37 minutes. Any entrant covering the course in less than 12 hours receives a medal and the young woman was one of the comparatively few that got the award.

Which is another argument referring to them as the "weaker" sex.

TYGERS FINALLY WIN CONTEST FROM MACKS

When Detroit beat the Athletics the other day it was the first time Cobb's outfit had been able to turn the trick this season. And at that a sensational Mack rally in the ninth almost kept the Tygers from accomplishing the feat.

DELORO HANDED POINT ANNE FIRST DEFEAT OF THE SEASON

Smelters Piled Up Eight Runs in First Three Innings.

STILL IN RUNNING.

MARMORA, Aug. 5.—Point Anne, leaders of the Bay of Quinte League, met their Waterloo on Monday when they opposed Regan's Blackcaps on the Deloro enclosure. The weather was the warmest for any game this season. The fact that Point Anne were invincible up to date was responsible for the largest crowd of the season. Three hundred and twenty-seven persons paid for admission. Ada opened the pitching for the Smelters, and speedily Point Anne went out in order. Bennett handled the ball for Point Anne. Deloro in their half of the first frame replied with three runs. Ada singled, but attempting to steal, was caught between first and second. Schultz singled, and Quinn reached first through an error. Boudreau reached the initial sack likewise. Regan hit, but Schultz was put out at home. By a passed ball, Quinn reached the home plate. On a wild throw to first, Boudreau and Regan also registered.

Point Anne for the next four innings went out in order. In the second inning, after hitting a two-bagger, Lamoreaux finally registered for Deloro. In the third inning, Boudreau sent a splendid throw to Hughes, averting a possible score.

Due to errors on the part of the visiting nine, Deloro increased their score by four in the third inning, and completed it for the balance of the game. There was no reply by the Cement Boys until the sixth. Through a wild throw over first base by Johnston, they obtained two runs. The seventh inning was again scoreless. Going in to bat at the eighth, Point Anne showed some recovery. Through a good lead by Goyer, vigorous hitting by Point Anne yielded them an additional three runs.

Deloro well deserved their 8-5 victory on the run of play.

Collings of Belleville on plate and Kerr of Deloro on bases were the umpires.

Line-up of teams:

Point Anne—Gaulin 3b, ss, M. Green cf, E. Green 3b, 2b, F. Goyer c, L. Bradshaw 1b, I. Maracle lf, F. Bennett p, H. Reid 2b, rf, R. Hutchins rf, ss.

Score by innings:

Point Anne .. .. 000002030—5

This result of the game necessitates a replay at Deloro of the tie obtained with Picton in the first half of the schedule. This game will, in all probability, take place on Friday next.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

With the wood having a heavy head, the player must give some consideration to the matter of whip in the shaft.

A fine, steely resilience is what you want — a "give" that makes the shaft feel alive. Where this springiness takes place in the shaft is imporant. It should be some eight or nine inches above the wrapping on the shaft just above where the head is joined. Stand the club on end then bear down on the shaft, and observe if it gives at this point. If it does the whip is in the correct place. If the shaft yields far up in the wood—up toward the leather—the shaft is what is called as "woody" and will not deliver as it should. It will be seen that a heavy head may give too much flexibility to a whippy shaft, and perhaps just the right amount to a stiff shaft. You can expect to find these qualities only in the finer makes of clubs. It pays to buy them.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

TORONTO UNDER NEW MAIL PLAN

Metropolitan System of Dividing City Into Districts is Adopted.

TEN DIVISIONS.

Postmaster General Charles Murphy announces the adoption in Canada of the metropolitan system of dividing large cities into postal districts or zones for the purpose of facilitatnig the distribution and delivery of incoming letters and other mail matter received for city delivery.

Montreal and Toronto have expanded to such an extent of late years and now cover such large areas that the expeditious handling of incoming mail in those centres is fast becoming a serious problem to deal with.

To overcome this difficulty and to speed up the sortation and delivery the Post Office Department at Ottawa have for some time past had under consideration the question of dividing these two cities into postal districts or zones similar to the plan which has been in operation in London, England, for many years.

Special geographical divisions of Greater London have been made, and letters and other items of mail matter intended for delivery in England's metropolis are addressed to a given street and number in London, N.E. or London, S.W. or London E. etc., as the case may be. This system, which has also been in force in some of the larger European cities, has been found to greatly lessen the amount of time consumed in sorting the mail before it is delivered to the various street addresses.

The scheme possesses more advantages from an operating standpoint and particularly to the public in the way of a more expeditious handling of letters, etc., received for delivery within the city.

At the outset the new plan is to be introduced at To ronto and later on in Montreal. Toronto is to be divided into ten Postal Districts Nos. 2, 3 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 12 and 13.

The new system can only be brought to a successful issue by the wholehearted co-operation and support of the citizens, not only of Toronto, but of all Canada.

The main principle involved is that all residents and business public of Toronto notify all their correspondents—no matter whether in Canada, Great Britain, United States, Australia, or in what part of the world—to include the number of their Postal District after the word "Toronto" when addressing letters and other mail to them. Thus mail for John Smith living in District No. 2 should be addressed:

Mr. John Smith,
196 College Street,
Toronto, 2,
Ontario.

The other districts would be indicated in the address as follows: Toronto, 3; Toronto, 4; Toronto, 5; Toronto, 6; Toronto, 8; etc.

It is most important that the full street and number address be given in every instance otherwise delayed delivery or non-delivery may result.

The general public including residents in every city, town and village in Canada are asked by the Postmaster General to kindly co-operate by including the Postal District number after the word "Toronto" at all times when addressing mail matter to that city.

BRITAIN DODGES RUSSIAN FILMS

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Bolshevik Russia is in the film business, and making pretty good films, too. The only trouble is that most of the good markets for films outside of Russia are Bolshe-shy. And everyone is coming to recognize the value of motion pictures as a propaganda agent. That is the reason that scores of Russian films which have been brought here still remain in the Russian embassy. The film houses are afraid to show them.

One of these pictures has an American interest. It is entitled "The Extraordinary Adventures of Mr. West in the Land of the Bolsheviks." This Mr. West is pictured as an American newspaperman who takes a trip to Russia. He is full of hatred of the Bolsheviks and the object of his trip is to get material to show them up.

Strangely enough, when he arrives in the country his worst fears are confirmed. He is suddenly leaped upon by hairy ruffians and made a prisoner. This was fine, from the journalist's point of view. He was prepared to be a martyr for the sake of getting a lot of good dope on the Reds. And these supposed Soviet officials were worse even than his imagination and training had painted them .

Rescued by Soviet.

He was acquiring a lot of bruises and lecture material when suddenly he was rescued. Rotten luck! And what made it worse was the fact that it turned out that his captors were brigands and his rescuers the Soviet police. And what spoiled everything was the undoubted fact that the policemen and all the officials of the new Russian regime were perfect gentlemen. They arrested the naughty brigands, got back all of the journalist's property, Good Samaritaned him in the best modern style and sent him home full of enthusiasm for Communism.

This is a rather extreme type of the propagandist film. Some of the others content themselves with showing the remarkable improvements which have been brought about in the lot of the Russian people under the new order as compared with that under the rule of the Czar. One of these called "One from Twenty," is a harrowing tale of Siberian refugees, who suffered such terrible experiences that all died save one. Still another picture contains the prophecy that Communism is the form of government finally to prevail. This picture is entitled, "Aelite," and in it the hero visits Mars and finds the Communist system in an advanced form in complete sway.

Many More Theatres.

The Russian people always have been very fond of theatrical performances and the number of picture houses in the country have multiplied under the Soviet regime.

As might be expected, all cinema business in Russia is controlled by a department of the government. The government has its film-producing agency, but film making is not confined to this. There are six film-producing organizations in Moscow and Petrograd, and others in various parts of the country.

In addition, foreign films are accepted readily and there is a goodly showing of American pictures. It is reported, however, that the government is not without guile in this liberality. It has been found that a good many American pictures lend themselves to a very subtle sort of propaganda. The numerous photoplays dealing with the extravagancies of the idle rich in American society are presented as fine examples of capitalism bringing forth its fruits unhampered. The method of getting the most out of the object lesson is to present the pictures without charge. But at times point is given to the moral by running parallel captions upon an auxiliary screen.

Say Own Films Best.

The Russians claim that they are developing a superior type of motion picture due to their national sense of beauty, proportion and rhythm. The head of the Russian governmental film department is quoted in an English publication as saying:

"Our films mark something new in the art of film production. Every movement is strictly defined, worked out and executed in accordance with rhythm. There is nothing at all accidental or chaotic about them. The players act without grimaces and are selected for their natural characters. We have a studio of rhythm in charge of Kuleshov, where experimental work of this kind has been going on for more than four years."

ITALY WILL BUY COAL FROM RUSSIA

Contract Concluded for Supply of Six Million Tons in Three Years.

MOSCOW, Aug. 5.—(Associated Press).—A contract for the supply of 6,000,000 tons of Russian coal and anthracite to Italy within the next three years recently was concluded by the State Coal Trust of the Donetz basin with the Italian firm, Tchiche. The first 2,000,000 tons will be exported not later than November 1st of this year.

The Donetz coal basin, which for several years after the revolution remained in a semi-ruined state, yielding an insignificant amount of coal, was re-established during the last two years by the state. The yield of coal has been brought up to the pre-war level, but as the Soviet industries are working only at 45 per cent. of the pre-war standard, they are unable to consume the quantity of hard fuel brought to the surface. Consequently an enormous supply of ready coal has accumulated at the Donetz basin which finds no market. Before the World War Russia exported only a small quantity of coal.

At the election, which should take place within a very short time, the Chancellor of the Diocese will preside There will be as little delay as possible in electing Bishop Bidwell's successor. As to the future plans of Bishop Bidwell nothing was known here last night but it was suggested that he might remain in England and assume charge of a parish.

AT THE ROYAL.

FINE ROMANTIC PICTURE DRAMA

"Unguarded Women," a Story with a Moral, due at the Royal Theatre.

"Unguarded Women" is the title of the picture scheduled for showing at the Royal Thearte to-morrow. It features Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix and Mary Astor, with Walter McGrail, Frank Losee, Helen Lindroth, Harry Mestayer, Donald Hall, Joe King and others playing in support. The story was adapted by James Creelman from the Saturday Evening Post serial, "Face," by Lucy Stone Terrill. It tells of a young man who gives up the girl he loves to marry another for whose social position he feels himself directly responsible.

The story is only too well known to the readers of the Post. It literally overran with picture possibilities and Paramount took advantage of each and every one of them in making the screen version of the tale. The scenes are laid for most part in Pekin, China—colorful Pekin in the land of romance and adventure. Then too there are scenes on Long Island, scenes of the ultra-fashionable smart set, with its beautiful homes, gorgeous gowns, etc.

Alan Crosland, who made "Enemies of Women," "Under the Red Robe," ""Three Weeks" and other pictures equally as successful produced "Unguarded Women." It is his first Paramount picture, and a fine example of what is to be expected from the same source in the near future.

If there ever was a picture that hold's an audience's interest from title to final fade out, "Unguarded Women" is it. It has everything a screen success should have—and then some! If you had to walk five miles to get to the Royal you won't regret it after seeing this one! Sure fire? You bet!

READ WHAT THE EX-GOVERNOR OF ALASKA THINKS OF THIS PICTURE

"'The Chechahco' has a peculiar interest to me for I was one of those pioneers of the great gold rush of 98 who crossed the Chilkoot Pass and floated down the Yukon to the Eldorado of the Klondike. I, too, have stood on the summit of the pass and seen the injured carried back over the trail, by willing and sympathetic friends. It is these extremes that the picture seeks to portray.

"Unlike most Alaskan pictures the scenes have been shot in Alaska itself and not in Hollywood or in the Sierras of California, therefore the settings are as perfect as could be obtained from the location.

"I find it hard to express my appreciation of the scenery—the caving off of the wonderful Child's Glacier, the rapids of Copper River, the scenes on the Portage and Baird Glaciers, the winter landscape showing the hurrying dog teams.

"We 'sour dough,' as the old timers are called, can find no fault with the details of dress of equipment.

"There are few of us who have lived in the North who do not know 'Cap' Lathrop, the prime move in the productions. 'Cap's' great wish for years has been to produce an Alaskan picture, taken in Alaska. May the efforts of that sturdy old pioneer meet with every success.

"'The Chechahco' should be seen by all who love the greatness of the forces of Nature. One can almost hear the thunders of the crashing ice as the huge masses break away from the towering glacier cliffs and fall into the swirling waters of the Copper River. One can almost feel the bitter cold of the winter storms of the North, before the lengthening days of perfect Spring have carpeted the hills and valleys with flowers.

—"Thoms Riggs, Ex-Governor of Alaska."

Addressing a mass meeting of miners at various points in Cape Breton to-day while balloting on acceptance or rejection of proposals are going forward, John W. FINANCIAL NEWS.

General Declines Feature Standard Exchange Moves

TORONTO, Aug. 5. — (Canadian Press.) — Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day was somewhat quieter, transactions totalling 106,420 shares. Teck Hughes weakened three points to 168 and Vipond also declined two points to 120. Hattie Preferred declined fractionally to 5 under heavy sales. Argonaut dropped 1 1-4 points to 24 3-4 and Crown Reserve also displayed weakness at 16, a half point lower.

Export Demand Improvement Promotes New Price Upturns

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—New upturns in the price of wheat today developed in connection with the assertion of material improvement of export demand together with enlarged business with domestic millers. Persistent European buying of future deliveries was also said to be in progress, and there were further pessimistic crop advices from Canada. The opening 1-4c off to 7-8c up, September 160 1-2 to 161 and December 160 to 160 1-2, was followed by moderate general set-back, and then by an upturn that lifted September to 161 3-8 and December 161 1-2.

Corn and oats lacked support. After opening 3-4 cent decline to 1-8 cent advance, September 105 1-2 to 106, the corn market made little further gain in some cases and then receded all around to well below yesterday's finish.

Oats started unchanged to 3-8c higher. September 43 to 43 1-8. Later the market became easier. Provisions scored gains, despite lower quotations on hogs.

Consolidated Smelters Lead Substantial Advances Follow

TORONTO, August 5. Canadian Press. — Two substantial advances were recorded in the comparatively quiet trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. On a moderate turnover Dominion Stores sold at 45, up 3½, and Christie, Brown sold at 60 up 4 points. Consolidated Smelters led the market which was still dull though more active than yesterday. Smelters sold a point higher at 109. Winnipeg improved a point and F. N. Burt a half. McIntyre was active but sold down 24c to 19.75.

Many Wall Street Issues Take Rapid Climb Upward

NEW YORK, August 5. — Canadian Press. — The rapidity of advance in many issues invited profit taking and bear selling in Wall street to-day which brought about considerable irregularity but failed to halt the main upward movement of prices. Schulte was hammered down 3 3-4 points to a new low for the year at 105 and American Can slipped back 3 points from its top price.

Speculators for the advance continued their energetic bidding up of special stocks, concentrating for a time in the motor accessories among Bosch Magneto being lifted three points, and Stewart Warner Speedometer 2½.

Atlantic Coast Line, which had yielded 2 points to 180 under the pressure of realizing sales, rebounded to 187½, a new record top, before noon, and Du Pont reached a new high at 201½. American brake shoe jumped 5 1-2 points and Porto Rican sugar 3.

BRITON HOPES TO RIVAL FORD

To "beat out Ford" is the modest ambition of W. R. Morris, maker of the most popular British small car, the Morris - Cowley. Mr. Morris watches competitive sales charts for Britain daily with much the same interest that a general does his battle order.

Numerous local victories in pleasure car sales have gone to Morris-Cowley. On a holiday roads out of London to the seaside are thick with the low, round-nosed, usually pearl gray Morris-Coleys. Legends are gathering about Mr. Morris and his car begins to enjoy some of the free publicity as a butt of music hall jibes which formerly all went to the "flivver."

In view of the distance to seashore in Britain and the scant area for travel, Morris can hardly dream of turning out cars by the million. But he is pushing Ford in the English small market in Britain and is now expanding on the continent, beginning with a factory in France, says a London correspondent of the Wall Street Journal. With improved roads in the Empire there is already more demand for Morris-Cowleys. This comes as a challenge to Ford in what was almost an exclusive field.

Present Morris output, 4200 cars a week, is to be increased to 1500 this year and probably to 2000 next. Mr. Morris owns about 80 per cent. of the stock in the Morris-Cowley Co., registered as a private company. Last year he is said to have received more than $5,000,000 as his share in net profits.

A Self-Made Leader.

Less than two decades ago he was a poor mechanic. Like Ford he has put his heart into his work and still keeps a sharp eye on operations.

His personal wants are said to take less than $10,000 a year. Though still young he suffers from ill health. However his ambition to make a world-known popular car is as vigorous as ever.

He took the lead in opposing the withdrawal of the McKenna duties which put a 33 1-3 per cent tax on foreign cars and is now in the lead favoring putting it back on motor cars. But occasionally he misfires when dealing with matters outside his works. He asserted there would be 1,000,000 motor car workers in Britain out of a job if the McKenna duties were removed. The speech made a great sensation until somebody looked up the figures and found there were not that many workers in the entire industry.

This proved a momentary boomerang for Mr. Morris and the British motor industry and did more to get public support for withdrawal than anything the Labor government said in favor of abolishing them.

Low Cost Production.

But Morris was undaunted. Instead of reducing personnel after the withdrawal of protection, he set the pace in cutting prices and enlarging his plants. His reductions on various models ranged from $97 to $150, though it was widely said before that his profit was only $25 a car.

The Morris-Cowley works come nearer to large scale series production than any other in Britain. There is however no factory in England like Ford's, with manufacture systematized from start to finish, largely under one roof. Morris makes most of his car parts in Oxford. His works are several stories high rather than on one level. He gets many accessories from Birmingham factories. His electric installation comes from the Lucas Co., in which he is interested. His wheels and tires come from Dunlop.

He knows how to make the most out of large outside orders for spare parts and has cut costs in this way.

He builds a car which appeals to British taste for a low, somewhat sporting type, and he has managed to meet the average man's pocket-book. His small horse power lessens the government tax and the consumption of gasoline. Morris-Cowley cannot stand up against Ford in pioneer countries where roads are bad. But in countries where conditions are fairly similar to those in England, Morris-Cowley proposes to give Ford a run.

When the Prince of Wales visits Buenos Aires and sees it by night for the first time he will view a municipal illumination of great splendor. Plans for this electrical illumination are already worked out and they call for an almost countless number of multi-colored electric lamps as well as electric searchlights and batteries of electric flood-lighting units.

LAYS CORNER STONE OF NEW BLOCK.

Acting Premier Geo. S. Henry, Ontario's minister of public works and highways, "well and truly laid" the corner stone of the new "east block" of the Ontario parliament buildings in Queen's Park. The ceremony was largely attended. The new block will cost $2,000,000 and is expected to be ready in about a year. In the picture can be seen Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Mayor Thomas Foster and Rev. Canon Baynes Reed, who offered the dedicatory prayer.

STAMPEDE FAILS.

The location of the Gold Pan Creek in the Cassiar field of British Columbia is shown on the above map. The area round Dease lake and Dease river and the old mining town of Laketon, is also being re-prospected. Gold Pan Creek itself has not as yet justified the high hopes entertained when the stampede started there last winter and spring.

SEES CHEERFUL SIGNS IN WEST

Hon. Manning Doherty Says Prairies Are Looking For Prosperity.

FROST DANGER.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—"The most striking impression I had was the very optimistic spirit which prevails in the West," was the declaration by Hon. Manning Doherty, when interviewed after his return from Regina. "While the farmers may not have more money in their pockets at the moment, they feel reasonably assured now, unless something happens in the next week, that they are going to have a pretty satisfactory yield," he said. "They are hoping for a fairly satisfactory price. The business and professional classes are naturally affected by this buoyant feeling. In my talks with men from all the three prairie provinces, the prevailing optimism struck me most forcibly."

In beginning his references to the crops, Hon. Mr. Doherty said: "Going through in the train and seeing such a small percentage of the country, he would not come to a conclusion in his own mind as to what the yield would be. But he had had an opportunity of talking to farmers from the prairie provinces, and he thought that when the yield was known it would be less than the maximum that has been predicted and substantially above the minimum. It would probably go, so far as he could gather, from 350,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels. Mr. Doherty stated he did not think that cutting would be general for two weeks. If the same weather continued for another ten days—warm days, cool evenings, with occasional showers—it would very materially add to the crop. The only danger was frost, and if they escaped that for another week, the farmers would be pretty well out of the danger zone.

"The wheat pool in the three Western provinces has accomplished in its first year all that any reasonable man could have expected," affirmed Mr. Doherty, who attended a big co-operative marketing rally in Regina last Thursday. Mr. Doherty was out in the West two years ago helping in the campaign to organize the wheat pool. He says the pool to-day has the almost undivided support of all the people. The farmers throughout the three provinces are highly delighted. They have been already paid $1.55 per bushel, and there is another payment still to come.

"The operations of the wheat pool are almost of amazing magnitude," asserted the former Ontario Minister of Agriculture. "The Saturday before I arrived they made to the farmers their third payment on the wheat. The first payment was $1 per bushel on the delivery of the wheat; the second was 35 cents and the third payment was 20 cents. The amount given to the Saskatchewan farmers alone in that last payment (the 20 cents), was $10,000,000. The pool," stated Mr. Doherty, "had handled a very considerable percentage that will be handled in 1925-26, will be substantially greater. Handling such a considerable proportion of the crop, the pool was a very important factor throughout the year in the market. Speculators and traders never knew exactly whether the pool was selling or whether it was not. At the co-operative marketing rally in Regina, where Mr. Doherty was one of the speakers, there were 6,000 people present.

Reports to date show 750 self-supporting congregations, 150 organized minority groups, and in addition a large number of minority groups yet to be placed on a self-supporting basis.

LAWN COMPETITION CREATES INTEREST

Record Entry List Anticipated as Citizens Have Best Gardens Ever.

There has never been as much interest shown in Peterborough in the matter of lawn and garden upkeep as there has been this year, and most of the credit is due to the officers and members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

As a result of the great number of pretty lawns and flower gardens, and the well-kept vegetable gardens, a record entry list is expected in the annual competition.

All entries should be in the hands of the secretary, at the Chamber of Commerce, before Wednesday next, the 12th of August.

There are two cups donated by Messrs. A. W. Cressman and T. E. Bradburn, which are well worth capturing, and in addition there are a number of prizes to be given the winners. Outside of winning any prize, however, is the satisfaction of knowing that the individuals interested have helped to make the city cleaner, and prettier, both for our own citizens and the many visitors who pass through.

VETERANS OF NORTHERN ONTARIO OVERSEAS BATTALIONS REVIVED OLD ASSOCIATIONS AT NORTH BAY

Pledged Support to Earl Haig's British Legion of Canada Yesterday.

EVENING BANQUET.

NORTH BAY, Ont., August 6. — Canadian Press. — Soldiers' Day on the programme of Old Home Week activities brought a throng of returned men, mostly members of the 159th and 228th battalions, from all parts of Northern Ontario, and many were in North Bay from points in outside provinces.

Among the chief guests of the day were Brig.-General J. A. Gunn of Toronto, Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines in the Ontario Government, Lt.-Colonel E. F. Armstrong, formerly O. C. of the 159th Battalion, and Lt.-Colonel Earchman formerly O. C. of the 228 Battalion.

The early part of the day's events included a parade in which some 200 returned men marched to the Memorial Park, where at an impressive service scores of floral wreaths were placed on the monument erected there in honor of North Bay's contribution to the Great War.

In the evening a returned soldiers' banquet was held in St. John's Parish Hall at which General Gunn was the principal speaker. The General made a strong appeal for unity among the veterans advocating the British Legion of Canada as proposed by Field Marshal Earl Haig as the ideal means of amalgamating the interests of returned men and securing concerted action in matters where such interests are concerned. At the close of the General's address the returned men present rose en masse and gave assurance of their whole-hearted support in making the proposed new organization an accomplished fact.

Other speakers at the banquet were Lt.-Col. W. H. Milne, O.B.E., chairman; Captain George Cole, South Porcupine; Hon. Charles McCrea, Lt. Colonel E. F. Armstrong, Major MacLang, M.L.A., Captain Gilbert Oliver, M.C., Captain T. H. Dall, Major E. J. Young and Nursing Sister Corbett.

Peterboro is to be congratulated for the fine accommodation to tourists, fine grounds and buildings along with every convenience under the courteous and hospitable direction of Mr. Gillespie. This party was deeply indebted to Mr. Gillespie for the pleasant visit at the park there, and were loud in their praises of Peterboro's selection of such an able caretaker to look after the needs of tourists or other visitors.—Oshawa Reformer.

GENEVA, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Senator Raoul Dandurand, chief Canadian delegate, is being prominently mentioned for the presidency of the Assembly of the League of Nations, which will begin its session here Sept. 1. Senator Dandurand, who is the leader on the Government side in the Senate of Canada, was one of the Canadian delegates at last year's meeting of the Assembly in Geneva.

HARVESTERS READY FOR TRIP TO WEST

Quebec Harvest Gathered and Men May Be Released.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 6—With crops in Quebec nearly all in and those in Ontario well on the way to being harvested, a considerable number of expert harvesters will be released for the work of gathering the crops in the prairie provinces. Meanwhile and judging by the letters of enquiry with which the Canadian railways are being inundated the 50,000 harvesters needed as the East's quota towards the bringing in of the 1925 crop should be forthcoming.

Reports from the West are encouraging. Ample rains are at present putting the finishing touches on the ripening of the wheat crop, estimates for which are far ahead of last year's harvest and which represent a crop not so much behind the banner year of 1915.

Victoria Heights.

Regarding the question raised at the City Council meeting on Monday regarding Victoria Heights, H. J. McCannan informs The Examiner he has been handling this subdivision for the past two years, and has had repeated enquiries about the two lots at the corner of Monaghan Road and Charlotte Street. Those enquiring would like to put an up-to-date store on the corner lot, and each time an enquiry was made they were told that the lots were covered by a by-law prohibiting any store being built on the said lots, and in order to make the matter definitely clear, a letter was sent to the City Council, asking if this by-law could be repealed, and the reply was that it could if the people in that district wished to sign a petition to have it done. The by-law reads "to the western boundary of the city," and does not mention any street, hence the reason for asking the City Council to state the exact terms of restrictions.

Victoria Heights came into the city the same year as the by-law was passed, and there was a little doubt in the minds of some people whether the western boundary of the city was Monaghan Road or Albertus Avenue. The above will make it clear to those having purchased lots and to any intending purchase that no store can be built on the said property.

DOCTOR GUILTY SELLING DRUGS

Six Months, Plus $3,200 in Fines ,or Three Months Extra, Imposed.

TO MAKE APPEAL.

TORONTO, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press). — Convicted on sixteen counts, Dr. Ezra Herbert Adams, 378 Lake Front, Toronto, a well-to a patient for self administration, charged with breaches of the Narcotics and Drugs Act, was yesterday afternoon sentenced by Magistrate Jones to a fine of $200 in each case or $3,200 in all, or three months, plus six months. R. H. Greer, K.C., who defended, gave notice of appeal and the rehearing will be before a division court or county court judge. Bail during the present case had been fixed at $30,000.

"Norwithstanding the very able argument there must be convictions in these cases," said Mr. Jones. "I find that the doctor did not act bona fide but used the cloak of his profession to make money improperly by trafficking in drugs. There was more than stupidity on his part in dealing with these patients. No man who desired to deal fairly with the drug addicts would have given them drugs in the way accused handed them out. Apart, therefore, from the amendment of the act from June 12, which makes it illegal to give drugs to a patie tnfor self administration, I find that the doctor is guilty."

World's Worst Liquor Alibi Heard in Cleveland Court

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 6. —(United Press).—What Judge Corlett called the "world's worst liquor alibi" was presented to him by Joe Bonica.

Bonica was asked to explain the presence of a still, 15 gallons of liquor and several barrels of mash when the police found it in his home in a raid.

"I used the liquor as an alcohol rub for my sore back, while the mash was fed to my four children as breakfast food," Bonica said.

PARIS, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press) The peace terms which France and Spain have submitted to Abd-El-Krim through his agents at Tetuan follow:

Abd-El-Krim must recognize the spiritual authority of the Sultan of Morocca and his successors over the Riff.

France and Spain shall allow the Riffian authorities a police force, the officers of such force to be supplied by France.

The boundaries of the Riff state would be the Ouergha and Lukkos Rivers and twenty kilometres of the line east of the Fez-Tangier railroad. These terms should be subject to approval by the League of Nations.

If no reply is received from the Moor chief by August 15, reports indicate France and Spain will launch a general offensive.

COMMITTEE MAY ISSUE STRIKE CALL

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 6. —(Canadian Press).—The miners' scale committee yesterday voted full power to a committee of six, headed by John L. Lewis, to issue a strike call, effective September 1st, and, if requested, to arrange with operators for the safety of mines. Resolutions vesting plenary strike power in a committee carry the safety clause, "In event that such action becomes necessary," indicating that their adoption at this time is largely for moral effect on the country.

With the announcement of the committee's action, it is specifically stated that any request for the resumption of negotiations with the operators would be granted.

Waterworks System Threatened By Forest Blaze.

VICTORIA, Aug. 6—Fire which was sweeping through the woods around Sooke Lake and threatening to cause heavy damage to Victoria's water works system was represented as under control yesterday. Through the efforts of 135 fire fighters the blaze was held up one mile from the water works intake and before it had secured a footing in rich watershed timber.

BREAK IN MINE CONFERENCE IS NOT PERMANENT

158,000 AFFECTED.

Adjournment Was Indefinite But Deadlock May Yet Be Breached.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 6. —Adjournment of the anthracite wage parley sine die has increased the prospects of a walkout of 158,000 miners in the hard coal fields September 1.

Early resumption of the conference was expected by both sides, however, since it stood adjourned "subject to the call of either side through the chairman."

The temporary break in the negotiations, in which union leaders and spokesmen for the anthracite operators had reached an apparently hopeless deadlock, came Tuesday evening, on a motion by the miners, which was unanimously adopted.

President Lewis and members of the conference committee will remain here for several days at least, it was stated yesterday, but none appears to have any idea what will be the next step, if any, toward reaching some settlement.

There was speculation as to whether President Coolidge, or some one designated by the President, would step in as mediator and avert the threatened strike or suspension in the anthracite fields. Hope was expressed by the operators that some intervention would take place, although Lewis has refused arbitration.

KU KLUX KLAN OF CANADA IS HEADED BY A PETERBORO' BOY

Legally Constituted and Operating, Says Local Organizer in Interview.

"WIZARD" ABSENT.

Dr. Hawkins, of Rival Organization Failed to Appear, Report Says.

"Dr." Hawkins, self-appointed Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire, failed to put in an appearance last night at a meeting scheduled to be held in a Peterborough hall. He had hoped, it was said, to organize a branch of the Klan in this city in opposition to the Klu Klux Klan of Canada, already organized in strength.

In an interview today, the Peterborough organizer of the Klu Klux Klan of Canada declared Dr. Hawkins was expelled from the original Klan. Although an American citizen, the organizer said, Dr. Hawkins is endeavoring to form a "British Empire" Klan. This is not in accordance with the legal requirements, since he has no charter, it is said.

Peterborough Leader.

Asked further as to the leaders of the Klan proper in Canada, the organizer told The Examiner the chief executive is an old Peterborough boy now resident in Toronto. He is well known here, and visited the city some time ago when The Examiner published a speech he made on a public occasion.

The rules of the Order, it was explained, prohibit the publishing of names of those in the Klan. The Peterborough organizer was quite willing, personally, to have his name attached to statements he made, but is not allowed by the terms of his oath.

He explained that the Canadian Klan is legally organized and constituted, working under a charter granted by the government, and expressed the hope that local people would not part with the $10 initiation fee demanded by the pseudo Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire, until its legal standing is assured.

Raises Klan Ire.

"Dr." J. H. Hawkins of Toronto, who is said by the Canadian Ku Klux Klan organizer in Peterborough to have been expected here last night to organize a branch.

Transvaal Native Found To Have Typical 'Boskop' Skull

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press).—South Africa has yielded another cranial curiosity, from the body of a native which was dissected at the anatomical school of Cape Town University.

It was found to have a typical "boskop" skull, virtually identical with that discovered in the the Transvaal in fossil form in 1923 and traced to the ice age of probably thirty-five thousand years back.

Anatomists emphasize interest and importance of recurrence of type of man hitherto unknown except in fossil remains.

FRENCH BOMBED TWO MOUNTAINS

LIGHT ACTIONS.

PARIS, Aug. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Reports received from the French front in Morocco yesterday said that quiet generally prevailed. The greatest activity seems to be along the Spanish line.

A French mobile group moved without difficulty from the Asejen range, which was cleared of rebels Monday by tanks, to Arbaoua, from which place they bombarded Mount Sarsar vigorously. Aviators dropped twenty-two bombs on Mount Amergou. These two mountains are important strongholds in this sector.

FIRE IN LONDON FANNED BY GALE RAGES AT NIGHT

DAMAGE $225,000.

People vacate Homes, Leaving Goods To Pilferers.

LONDON, Ont., August 6. — Canadian Press. — Loss of nearly $200,000 to the London Box Co., the Canadian Cartage and Storage Co., and the Dyment-Baker Lumber Co., in one fire, and a damage of more than $25,000 in W. J. Ruttle's upstairs clothes shop at 201 1-2 Dundas street, resulted last night from a brief but furious electrical storm that swept the city and district.

The fire in the Ruttle store broke out in the early evening a few minutes after a heavy thunder clap, and brought all the fire apparatus in the city to the scene. The fire spread so furiously that the whole department was concentrated on that conflagration, when a second fire was discovered at the box company's plant on Bathurst street.

A stiff northwest gale fanned a tremendous supply of highly inflammable dried woods and sawdust and showered the district with a storm of blazing embers.

The adjacent large frame buildings of the Canadian Cartage and Storage Company, and the trucking service of the Canadian National Railways were set afire a score of times, and as many times extinguished, before the intense heat drove back the firemen, causing a temporary collapse of two members of the Central station staff.

The flames from this added to the furnace increasing the ceaseless shower of embers for blocks in the direction of Victoria Hospital, threw the entire district into a panic, and 32 families vacated their homes.

Their household goods, carried on to lawns for blocks became the object of an outbreak of petty pilfering, and in many instances of loss of many small articles of value were reported.

During this phase of the situation a mother and a new born babe, housed in a building in the menaced district, were removed to Victoria Hospital.

Fire swept east and west through piles of valuable lumber owned by the Dyment-Baker Co., and length enveloping also the huge stables of the Cartage Company, formerly the Shedden Forwarding Company.

LUSITANIA CLAIMS LISTED IN REGINA

Two For Lives Lost By German Navy's Act.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Two claims for lives lost on the Lusitania, one for a collection of pictures executed under commission of the Canadian War Memorials Commission, were among the eight presented to the Canadian War Claims Commission here yesterday. Inglis Sheldon Williams was the artist who presented the claim for his work lost by enemy action at sea. The pictures were intended to be hung in the House of Commons at Ottawa. He claims $4,000.

Mrs. Gertrude Alice Dowlsey, now of Winnipeg, is claiming $30,000 for the loss of her husband on the Lusitania, and Martha Ellen Matthews, of Moose Jaw, asks $20,000 for herself and $10,000 for each of her two daughters in respect to the loss of her husband on the same ship.

Khamis Michael, of Mortlach, Sask., who now lives in California, asks $56,377 for the loss of his son, personal injuries to his wife and family and loss of his property in Armenia.

GOLD STANDARD IS DEFENDED BY BR. CHANCELLOR

Discouragement of Foreign Loans Resulted in Loans at Home.

ISSUES DOUBLED.

Bank of England Now Commands Nine Million More Pounds Than Before.

LONDON, August 6. — Canadian Press. — Great Britain's return to the gold standard, which during recent weeks has drawn forth a swelling though discordant chorus of adverse criticism from various sources staunchly defended yesterday in the House of Commons by Winston Spencer Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"If England had not taken the action she did," the Chancellor said, "the British Empire would have taken it without us and soon on to the gold standard, not of the pound sterling, but of the dollar."

Mr. Churchill admitted that foreign loans had been discouraged, but in consequence of lending less abroad there was more lending at home. The capital issues for domestic purposes during the first six months of the present year, he asserted, were more than double those of last year. As for the bank rate, the chancellor said bank officials were perfectly prepared to raise it if necessary, but it had not been necessary, or had it been found necessary to use large dollar credits built up in the United States as a contingent precaution.

Many experts, the chancellor went on, had warned that Great Britain would be forced to make large gold exports. Preparations for that contingency had been made but instead of having to face it the very opposite had happened. To-day the Bank of England commanded about 9,000,000 pounds more gold than it did before the standard was restored.

Among other happy results were the easing of the general money rates, the establishment of equilibrium with Australian and South African exchanges, which were on par with the pound, instead of at a premium, as formerly, and lastly, the approximate success in the level of wholesale prices in the United States and Great Britain which has come about since the restoration of the gold standard.

HULL PRESENTS ELECTION SIGNS

Liberals and Conservatives Preparing For Nominations In Near Future.

LIBERALS ACTIVE.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6. — (Canadian Press). — Election manoeuvres in Hull, which have been rife for some time, seem to have at last taken a definite turn, and from reliable sources the following candidates have been named as those who will be brought forward at the coming Liberal and Conservative conventions, the dates of which, it is understood, will be announced shortly.

For the Liberals, the choice will be between J. Wilfred Ste. Marie, city solicitor, and Dr. J. E. Fontaine, the present member for Hull. The Conservative standard-bearer for Hull, it is announced on good authority, will be between L. A. Leduc, lawyer and Dr. S. A. Dumas.

An activity arising no doubt from a foreknowledge of the date of the election and impending Federal events is noticeable in Liberal circles in Hull, and voting lists are being unearthed and carefully set in order for immediate action upon the official announcement of the coming elections.

MINERS VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK ON RHODES PLAN

Large Majority of Those Voting in Favor of Government Scheme.

MANY DID NOT VOTE.

Will Work at 1922 Wages With 1924 Working Conditions For Six Months.

HALIFAX, Aug. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Cape Breton coal miners on strike for five months, yesterday voted, by a large majority, to return to work on the terms proposed by the Nova Scotia Government.

There were only 6,693 votes polled, many of the miners abstaining from balloting. The directors of the Corporation meet in Montreal to-day to further consider the same terms.

It is still undecided whether or not there is to be an early resumption of work, which, as proposed by Premier Rhodes and his Cabinet, will be under an interim six months' contract pending a thorough investigation of the industry.

The wages paid would be those of 1922, or a reduction of six to eight per cent. from the 1924 rates and the working conditions would be those of 1924. The Government would rebate one-fifth of its coal royalties and the controversal check-off system of united union dues committed to a referendum held by the mitted to a refendum held by the Government.

BRITISH LIQUOR EXPORTS TREBLE

Since 1922, Sale to Ports Near U.S.A. Has Increased Greatly.

A MILLION GALLONS.

LONDON, Aug. 6. — (United Press).—British exports of spiritous liquors have more than trebled since 1922. While an official announcement to-day says nothing of bootlegging or rum-running, it was deemed significant in some quarters that this great bound had occurred since America went dry and that ports near the United States had shown enormous increases in their reports of the products of British stills.

The 1924 exports amounted to 984,000 gallons, while in 1922, two years after the Volstead law had gone into effect, the exports were only 289,801 gallons.

The biggest increases were noted thus:

St. Pierre Miquelon, off Newfoundland, from 119,000 gallons in 1922 to 409,966 in 1924.

Honduras, from 111,000 gallons in 1922 to 161,000 in 1924.

Guatemala, from 8,000 gallons in 1922 to 86,000 in 1924.

Nicaragua, from 6,500 gallons in 1922 to 65,000 in 1924.

A young man at Greenville was locked for two hours in the refrigerator room of a creamery with the temperature at 10 degrees above zero. The rumor that he was some realistic author gathering material for stories on "The Frozen North" is being investigated.

FAITH WANING IN GIBRALTAR

England No Longer Regards Its Trusted Stronghold as Impregnable.

LONDON, Aug. 6—The Rock of Gibraltar is losing its strength and is no longer trusted as one of the impregnable strongholds of the British Empire. For years Britain boasted not only that this mighty rock, strengthened by every known means of fortification, could not be captured, but that it gave to its possessors complete control to the entrances of the Mediterranean. It therefore was held to be a necessary safeguard of Great Britain's communications with India and the East.

But times have changed and with them methods of warfare. When forts had to be stormed by foot soldiers, a rock towering precipitously 1,400 feet above its surroundings was tolerably safe. Even later, when mighty ordnance carried upon ships had been developed, Gibraltar still frowned haughtily, confident in the strength of its rock-ribbed sides and the support of the British navy.

Puny in Comparison

But the value of ships of war is no longer certain, and the height of Gibraltar is but puny when thought of in terms of the flight of airplanes. Therein lies the weakness of the celebrated fortress. It is peculiarly vulnerable to attacks from the air, but it is not well suited to airplane defence. It does not afford room enough or satisfactory landing and taking-off of military planes and, if for any reason the naval arm should fail, the isolated rock would be subject to the good will of those who held the hinterland.

These are the considerations which prompted the sending of Maj.-Gen. E. B. Ashmore and J. M. Steele, air vice-marshal, to take a look at Gibraltar and make recommendations with reference to the possibilities of its defense against hostile aircraft. It is known that a strong sentiment exists in Spain that a demand ought to be made for the return of the rock to that country.

Belonged to Spain

Gibraltar originally belonged to that country and it has been the object of more than a dozen sieges, many of them famous in history. England captured the stronghold in 1704 during the war of the Spanish Succession, and has held it continuously since, although the Spaniards have tried again and again to regain it.

The suggestion has been made that perhaps Great Britain and Spain might come to agreement which would restore the ancient fortress to the latter country in return for the cession to the British of Ceuta, a lofty promontory on the African coast. Nothing official has taken place to this end, and it is certain that objections would be met on both sides.

Nevertheless, from the point of view of British interests the claim is made that Ceuta would be more favorable. The hinterland would be less open to attack and would be more easily protected. There is said to be more room for the maneuvers of modern warfare.

Held for Centuries

Those who oppose the idea say that the British government has spent millions in bringing Gibraltar to its present state and that public opinion would be slow to abandon it. Probably the sentiments associated with the famous fortress would be a much weightier consideration, and would really be the deciding factor. For more than two and a quarter centuries, Britons have kept a foothold upon this mighty rock. They have there endured siege after siege, and have made the spot memorable by heroic military exploits and sacred by patriotic sacrifice. It will require much persuasion before they will give up the idea that Gibraltar is not impregnable.

DO THIS AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

How To Speedily Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines extracted from the livers of the common codfish to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

So nowadays, medical men who keep up with times are ordering a tablet containing the vitamines that give to frail folks vigor, strength and weight—a tablet that is known as McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablet — and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after any severe illness.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on five pounds in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Extract Tablet. Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch and Bond's Drug Store have a big demand for them and millions are sold monthly all over North and South America. They are sugar coated and as easy to take as candy. 60 Tablets—60 cents.

STINNES FLEET SOLD.

BERLIN, August 6. — United Press. — The Stinnes fleet of ships engaged chiefly in the South American trade, was reported to-day in the Essen advices to have been sold for 25,000,000 gold marks, a rate of about $25 a ton. The unconfirmed message did not reveal the buyers.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

WARKWORTH IS COUNTY HUB AND IF LIVING COMES HIGH PEOPLE GET MONEY'S WORTH Prosperous Village Is Rallying Place For All of Northumberland.

TAX RATE OF 42 MILLS.

New Sidewalks Last Month Cost $500—No Water System.

WARKWORTH, Aug. 6.—Warkworth's tax rate last year was 42 mills on the dollar as compared with 41 mills in Campbellford. The rate in the latter town this year is 47 mills and in the police village here is likely to be no change over the figure of last year. About all that Warkworth lacks as compared with Campbellford is a water system and a paid police force. Upwards of $500 was spent in the village last month for the construction of cement walks, this work being paid for by commuuting what in the township would be known as statute labor.

Living may be a trifle higher in Warkworth, but residents are ready to declare that existence in that picturesque little village is worth all that it costs. The community spirit is highly developed and there is plenty of social activity summer or winter. It is really the hub of the County of Northumberland, being easily accessible from all parts, although it lacks a railway, and every gathering in the nature of a public gathering is held there. Its educational advantages, possessing as it does a good Public and Continuation School, are equal to those of the larger towns. The Township Council will raise a total of $4,500 to be spent on the schools in the police village during the coming year, the district including the village and a small part of the surrounding township.

Some Interesting Figures.

At a meeting of the Percy Council on Monday, Reeve McCubbin brought some interesting facts to the attention of his colleagues. One of these was contained in the statement that while the members of the Council control an expenditure of a little over $6,000 a year, the school trustees of the Township have the last word in laying out about $1,600. All the Council has to do is to raise this money when requested. The County rate is fixed by a higher power than the Township Council, which has not say either in the fixed charge of one mill for the memorial fund or the special levy of 1½ mills on the rateable property in Warkworth. With these powers so circumscribed while that of other officials is practically unlimited, how asks the Reeve, is it possible for the Council to prevent an increase in the tax rate?

Looking Into the Future.

Reeve McCubbin has a well developed habit of peering into the future and around sharp corners in search of financial bogeys. Warkworth pays a tax in proportion to its equalized assessment on 25 miles of county highway. In the recent shuffle none of this mileage was thrown back upon the township as Percy has no provincial highway. Municipalities that are close to that thoroughfare that receive the least Government aid for the upkeep of county roads. Darlington, the highest assessed municipality in the United Counties has only 12 miles of county roads.

Reeve McCubbin says that every five years there will be an equalization of the charges, just as there is in the cost of building bridges and that Percy Township will be called upon to help pay a percentage of what has been withheld from Darlington and other townships similarly situated.

Refuse Request for Grant

On motion of Deputy Reeve Nelson and Councillor Sykes, the request of District Representative Walter H. Smith of Brighton for a grant of $20 for the bacon hog show which will be held at Colborne on October 15,was refused. It was at first proposed to hold this show in Warkworth under the auspices of the Percy Agricultural Society, but the directors insisted that it be given in connection with their Fall Fair and the department declined to agree to these terms.

Building New Bridge.

The county is building a new bridge at the foot of Maybee's Hill, just outside the village, work on which was started Monday. The old bridge was built and paid for by the township, but the county acquired it when that highway became a county road. Now the county offers to sell the new iron work back to the township at a low figure. It is likely that the offer will be accepted as the material could be used to replace wooden culverts on township roads.

Will Charge Up Expenses.

Members of the Council made a tour of part of the township Tuesday to inspect roads for which grants have been asked. For the first time they will charge up to the public treasury the hire of the auto in which they made the trip. Heretofore, they have always paid their own expenses on such occasions and this expense has taken a large slice of their yearly indemnity.

A PRESENTATION.

Miss Lillian Hinton Receives Gift From Epworth League.

The president of the Epworth League of Hastings United Church, Miss Hazel McDonald, on behalf of the members of the church, presented Lillian Hinton with a nurse's kit and address on August 1st. The presentation was made while Lillian was home visiting her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Hinton.

She highly appreciated the beautiful gift because of its usefulness and appropriateness. She cannot speak too highly of the kindness of the matron, Miss McWilliams, and her superiors in the Oshawa General Hospital, where she is training as a nurse, and also of how well she likes her work.

The following is the address:

Dear Lillian,—We, the members of the Hastings United Church, felt that we could not let you leave us without giving you some small token of our love and esteem. You were always a willing helper, and the deep interest you have taken in the different church organizations has endeared you to us all.

On behalf of the church, we ask you to accept this small token of appreciation. We all join in wishing you every success in your new sphere of labor, and pray God's richest blessing upon you in the future.

Signed on behalf of the church members,

Hazel McDonald.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS CUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach,' says a well know authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

THE FUTURE OF CANADA.

Living out in the west or on the shores of the Pacific, with one eye on Western Canada and the other on the great hordes of people bordering the Pacific bowl, what man with vision could fail to catch the importance to Canada and the British Empire of the West and of Vancouver? Today, the population from the head of the lakes to Vancouver is two and a half millions; this is 30 per cent. of the population of Canada. Our eastern statesmen and leaders of commerce and industry must now see that the day will come in less than 25 years when the predominant population of Canada will be west of Winnipeg, and when that western territory will be looked upon and prized as the most valuable part of the British Empire. —Vancouver Sun.

THE UNLIGHTED BUGGY.

The other night another accident occurred on the Lambeth highway through an auto running into an unlighted buggy, and four people were flung into the ditch. The menace of the unlighted buggy has been condemned in these columns before, but the buggy users seem utterly indifferent to this elementary step for their own safety. Conditions on the road have changed since only buggy overtook buggy, but the mentality of the farmer in this respect has not. In the case under notice the bright lights of an approaching car blinded the auto driver and he could not see the buggy. Had the latter carried a tail light, the auto driver would have had previous warning of its presence and taken precautions accordingly.

Next year a new law comes into force which empowers county councils to pass legislation requiring all horse-drawn vehicles to carry lights. It is hoped Elgin County Council will lose no time in using that power. —St. Thomas Journal.

FIT TO FIGHT AT 90.

Can you imagine Daniel Boone or Davy Crockett letting two callow young thugs maltreat and rob them.

Do you remember the way the citizens of Northfield, Minn., and the farmers in the vicinity, fought off and broke up the James boys' gang of robbers?

Right with those men in spirit is Zora McGonegal, 90 years old, who defeated and wounded two bandits in his farm house near Jackson. Both thugs were armed, but the old man, using first a tack-puller, then a pocket knife, and lastly a sword cane, routed them, and one was so badly injured he had to go to a hospital. This led to the arrest of the other attacker and two companions who had waited in an automobile for their confederates.

"I'd do it again," said the indomitable old man through lips puffed from blows received, one eye snapping visibly, the other doubtless as fiery under the bandage which covered it.

He made his living on a farm, with only a crippled son to help him. That takes courage and resource. Men developed under such conditions are bad medicine for alley rats and pool-room boys.—Detroit News.

EVERYBODY EDUCATED.

This autumn, when schools, colleges and universities re-open there will be far more students than ever before. Thre is an enormous drive in favor of education though that term is a pretty vague one. To some, it means the acquiring of certain specific information that may be of use in a definite calling. To others it just means attending an institution to pick up whatever the bill of fare may offer, in the hope that, having acquired this, the world will have an opening for the graduate.

But so many young men and women are going to school that there must be some doubt as to whether the world can assimilate them equipped with their new knowledge. It is a certainty that when they have spent time and money on so-called education they will start off with a determination not to be a worker in the ranks of any menial task. To them education suggests an easy berth with big pay. There is bound to be disillusionment there. The white-collar jobs are almost all filled up. We must import a lot of privates from somewhere or our own people must get into the ranks or the army will become a big problem. No one seems to be willing to undertake the plain jobs any more. The rush is to get "educated" and thereafter look for the job at the top. How long can that trend keep going without the business of the country getting ino a lane with a blind end?—Galt Reporter.

BETTER TIMES.

Politicians may paint glowing pictures of the future that is in store for the Dominion, or may cry "blue ruin," according to their varying shades of policy, but for an unbiased, expert opinion as to the nation's prospects, we must, in the last analysis, fall back upon the astute business man.

Such a one is Mr. Leopold Goldman, president of the North American Life Assurance Company. A prophecy from him that Canada is on the threshold of prosperity is worth listening to. He has crossed the continent more than 20 times, and on account of his position in the business and financial world, it has been to his interest to become a student of affairs. Therefore, his opinion is valuable

In short, Mr. Goldman's declaraton that, for the first time in many years, he sees prospects of great success throughout Canada, is the best news that has come to the Border in some time. It should be an inspiration to us all to knuckle down and work a little harder to bring about the era he prophesies, at the same time paying no attention to the "calamity howlers" and taking with several grains of salt the foolishly optimistic utterances of those who tell us that all we have to do is fold our hands and wait for wealth to pour in.—Border Cities Star.

WHOLESALE WASTE.

"Chicago wastes more water than the total amount pumped by many of the larger cities of the United States." This is a sentence taken from an editorial in the Times-Tribune of Bay City, Mich., which gives the Chicago Daily News as its authority. The statement is of peculiar interest to the people of Ontario and of the lake cities of Canada and the United States which are adversely affected by Chicago's "water steal." If there was not good warrant for the charge the Chicago Daily News would be the last newspaper in the continent to make it. The Chicago authorities themselves practically admit it by urging the necessity of inaugurating a meter system for the city. The ordinance providing for this measure has not been passed yet, but it will come up for consideration after the summer vacation.

Perhaps the people of Chicago are no worse than the citizens of most other large urban centres in this respect. On a flat rate basis, there is little incentive to conserve and where water is abundant, and no other interests are injured by its lavish use, there is no great harm in dealing liberally with consumers. But the case with Chicago is different. There the sanitary district commissioners claim that they are under necessity to take more than the law allows from Lake Michigan, for the purpose of sewage disposal. Without this excessive withdrawal, we are told, the public health of the great metropolis would be endangered. On this plea other interests are called upon to suffer great loss and inconvenience and submit to conditions which are admittedly indefensible.

The level of the lakes is being lowered in order that the people of Chicago may be able to waste "more water than the total amount pumped by many of the larger cities of the United States." The first thing the city of Chicago must do is to remedy this position. Perhaps when this huge wastage has been checked it will be found the legal allowance is sufficient for all legitimate means. In any event, there will be a general insistence that an end be put to this extravagant use of lake water which is so badly needed elsewhere.—Hamilton Spectator.

RELATIVE UNEMPLOYMENT.

More people are employed in England today than ever before. Their wages are higher and their working conditions better than at any previous time. Moreover, their consumptive power is greater than before the war. They eat more bread and meat, wear better clothes, and spend more on amusements than they did in 1913. By the test of deposits in savings banks and the sale of war savings certificates, they have a margin of income over expenditure. These are some of the facts adduced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Churchill, in his recent speech at the Mansion House.

They ought fairly to be taken into consideration in estimating the problem of unemployment in England. This Mr. Churchill did not deny to be exceedingly grave. At present about 1,250,000 workers are unemployed. The increase over last year is very largely due to the number of coal miners who have been thrown out of work.

The population of England is increasing at the rate of 250,000 a year. At the same time emigration has been falling off so that the number of people looking for work is relatively greater. Consider also the fact that women have become wage earners on a far greater scale than used to be known. The actual enlargement of the working population, as shown by the rolls of the Health Insurance Office, has been more than 100,000 a year. That increase is in the classified industries. It would mean that in ten years 1,000,000 men and women have been added to those seeking employment. Before the war the average number of the unemployed in England was never less than 400,000. It is not strange, then, that the causes enumerated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer have brought about the disquieting increase.

With every explanation and abatement made, the seriousness of the unemployment evil remains. It is a grievous and dangerous state of affairs when the Government has to contribute to the support of more than 1,000,000 people out of work. The mischief is heightened when one remembers that England is not self-sustaining in the matter of food. She has to import a considerable percentage of her supplies. This means that the very existence of her population depends upon a prosperous export trade. And the pinch lies today in the fact that her industries are depressed partly for lack of foreign markets. How to get them back or enlarge them is the chief task laid upon English statesmanship today. This accounts for the anxious endeavors of the English Government to do everything within its power to bring about assured peace and economic recovery in Europe.—New York Times.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Wheat today touched a new high price record for the season, May delivery over-topping by 1 5-8 cents the best figures of the day before, but most of the advance disapepared just at the last. There was heavy selling in which a prominent eastern trader took the lead. On the other hand, estimates were current that the new Canadian crop is only 73,000,000 bushels more than in 1924, and that the world has actually less wheat for the 1925-26 season than in the previous crop year. Closing quotations on wheat were irregular at 1-8c net decline to 5-8c advance, September $1.60 to $1.60 1-4, and December $1.60 3-4 to $1.61 with corn and oats both 1-8c off to 1-8c up, and provisions varying from 10c decline to an equal gain.

The wheat market was a big broad affair throughout the day and price fluctuations were of a swift two-sided character, but the offerings whether from profit-takers or from speculative sellers were readily accepted by strong hands. On the whole, the general run of news was regarded as favorable to owners. This was especially the case concerning a statement from a crop authority here, that the total Canadian yield this season would be about 335,000,000 bushels, as against the Canadian government July 1 forecast of 365,000,000 bushels. He also said the world's exportable surplus was only 610,000,000 bushels, whereas the latest European estimate was only 610,000,000 bushels, whereas the latest European estimate of world import needs is nearly as much, 600,000,000 bushels.

Foreigners were represented as being sharply after Canadian wheat for early shipment, and were said to have been persistent buyers of future deliveries here. Enlarged business with domestic millers was also reported. Meanwhile, hot dry weather continued in Canada, and additional crop damage advices came to hand. Primary domestic receipts today were 1,546,000 bushels, compared with 3,941,000 bushels a year ago.

Rapid shrinking of supplies of old corn tended more or less to steady the market for corn and oats. Active buying on the part of previous sellers of lard made the provision market relatively firm.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand $4.85 1-4.

Sterling cables $4.85 3-4.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press.—A stronger feeling developed in the winter wheat flour market and prices were advanced 20 cents per barrel. The spring wheat flour situation remains unchanged, prices were steady and the trade was active.

The demand from outside sources for all kinds of millfeed continued good, but the local enquiry was limited. Prices were unchanged. Prices for standard grades of rolled oats were marked up 20 cents per bag, which had the effect of diminishing sales to a certain extent.

The local egg market was reported quiet, little trade being done, on account, it was stated, of the prevalent hot weather. Prices remained the same as Tuesday's. The receipts were 1,495 as compared with 2,102 on Tuesday and 1,803 on the same day a year ago.

A good local demand for butter was reported, but there was little foreign demand, practically no orders forthcoming from overseas' buyers. Prices remained firm. The receipts were 1,014 as compared with 3,624 Tuesday and 980 on the same day a year ago.

Receipts of cheese today were 5,696 as compared with 13,211 on Tuesday and 16,170 on the same day a year ago. Business continues to be very quiet with a fairly moderate local demand and a little cable business being done. Prices were unchanged from the previous day.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONO, Aug. 5.—The cattle market was still holding steady today for good finished cattle, but the unfinished stuff is not moving, with 800 stale cattle left over from yesterday. Store cattle trade is quiet. The export trade is holding steady at $7.75 to $8.40; Rogers and Maybee shipped 750 cattle. Heavy steers sold from $7.50 to $8.50, with fair to good butchers at $6.25 to $7.50. A few baby beeves sold up to $11.50 a hundred.

Calves were holding steady at $10.50 to $11.50 for choice.

The hog market is unsettled, with packers bidding a quarter lower. Prospects are $13.75 off car for thick smooths and $15.08 for selects.

Lambs were draggy. Sheep were firm at $6.50 to $7.50 for good light ewes.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

CHAPTER 10.
Burning Lips.

"I'm needing a new foreman at the ranch, O'Rourke. Will you help us out?"

Terence looked at Mary. The smile on her lips seemed to say, "Please say yes." He turned back to her father, and answered,

"I'll be glad to, sir."

And so it was arranged that Terence should accompany Mary to Latigo to bank the money for the purchase of the 2,000 feeders needed on the ranch, and then go with her to the ranch with the balance of the money to pay off the men.

Mary kissed her father good-by affectionately, and Terence and he again shook hands. Then the lovers started off on their errand, Marshall, having given up his horse to his daughter, mounted double with Miquel, and, Bud following, started back toward Paradise Canyon. Komi vanished into his hills.

* * *

The phone in the Pico Bar rang. Topaz Taggart and Doc Willets were still sitting at their table awaiting the outcome of their scheme.

"Mr. Taggart," the bartender called.

Taggart grabbed the receiver with excitement. A fierce scowl crossed his face as he heard Buck McLeod's voice reporting:

"A bird named O'Rourke mixed in and spoiled the play. He and the gal are heading for Latigo to bank the coin. Then they're going to the ranch."

Taggart roared an oath. Then after a moment's thought he commanded into the telephone,

"Well, get your boys together, Buck, and come up to the ranch—secretly. I'll have more work for you to do."

Taggart returned to his table.

"Marshall's girl got through," he snarled. "She's banking the money in Latigo, and then coming up to the ranch. Some bird named O'Rourke is with her."

Doc Willets whistled meditatively.

"Now this Marshall girl mustn't get wise that we framed to have her lose the money," Taggart went on. "I don't want Marshall to know I'm double-crossing him until it's too late."

Willets nodded, then asked, with a leer.

"Look here, Topaz, what're you so anxious to get hold of Marshall's land for? You ain't no real dyed-in-the-wool cattleman."

Taggart, nervously fingering his topaz watch charm, scowled suspiciously at the other man, studying his face trying to read what was behind the question. Finally he forced a grin, and with assumed good-nature, replied.

"Ain't telling you all my secrets, Doc. But you help me get that Marshall ranch and maybe I'll wise you up a little deal I'm aimin' to put through with that fool Injun. Komi."

Willet's eyes glanced furtively to the topaz charm, and he smiled queerly to himself.

Taggart rose.

"Well, I better run up to the ranch and prepare for my visitors," he siad. Both men grinned.

"I want you to come along with me, Doc," Taggart added, "but not to act on the reception committee. You'll just keep yourself out of the way with the boys, and be ready to help when you're called."

The two men then left the bar, mounted their horses, and galloped off.

* * *

"And this is poor Daddy's ranch."

Mary's voice trembled with sad emotion.

"Think, Terence—fifteen years since I was last here—and then, of course, I was only a little bit of a girl, and I can't remember a thing about it now. Except it all seems vaguely familiar and homelike—as though I belonged here."

They had pulled up their horses in front of the entrance, and were gazing at the corrals, the ranch buildings, and the cowboys trotting hither and thither.

Mary had been impatient to complete her mission. So after arriving in Latigo she and Terence had remained only long enough to deposit $45,000 in the bank, and then had set out at once for the Bar M Ranch.

Mary's expression was melancholy as she sat in her saddle, thinking now of the tragic night her father had fled with her in his arms from the very ranch house she was now gazing at, the place that had been his home—and crossed the Mexican border, never to return. Terence reached for her hand, pressed it, they looked into each other's eyes earnestly, and Mary's smile returned.

The door of the ranch house opened, and a man came out and strode down the path to meet them. As he reached the gate where they were waiting he raised his hat fomrally.

Mary greeted the man shyly, saying, "I'm Mary Marshall—aren't you Mr. Taggart, my father's friend?"

"Well, well, well—John Marshall's girl." Taggart cried with a smile and a gesture of eager welcome. "This is a surprise."

He lifted her from the saddle and placed her on her feet with a show of gallantry that did not arouse any enthusiasm for him in Terence, who also dismounted, and stood waiting.

"Why you're a real, grown-up fine young lady now, aren't you?" Taggart went on. "When I last saw you you were just a toddling wee bit of a kid. This is indeed an unexpected pleasure."

Taggart's welcome of the girl, originally feigned, had become genuine. His eyes sparkled with admiration and real delight as he took in the fullness of her beauty. Not in many years had anyone cast such a spell over him. In spite of his hard heart, and the bitter cynicism with which his crafty, evil, villainous life had filled him, there still remained in him something which responded to the delicate, irresistible blue of Mary's eyes, and the wisps of gold [illegible] mystically from beneath her [illegible].

"Father sent me with the money for the bills, taxes, marketing of the yearlings, and payrolls," said Mary. "We've made a deposit in the bank at Latigo, and brought up enough with us to pay off the men."

"Oh, yes. The business can wait a little while," replied Taggart, continuing to eye Mary with unconcealed admiration while Terrence stood uneasily by. "I haven't yet begun to get over the delightful surprise of seeing you Do come in, Miss Marshall and make yourself comfortable."

"Mr. Taggart, meet my friend, Terence O'Rourke," said Mary, bringing Terence forward to introduce him. If it hadn't been for his help the money would never have reached you."

She beamed dazzlingly upon Terence, who felt a moment of awkward embarrassment as he grasped Taggart's hand.

Taggart stiffened perceptibly as he greeted O'Rourke. His "glad to meet you" was cold and formal. Somewhere back in his head the name O'Rourke beat a familiar sound—his thoughts rolled back the years, and he was suddenly seized by fear—panic showed even in his face for a moment, but he quickly bit it down. Terence's eyes caught a trace of this fleeting emotion of Taggart's, and was puzzled over it.

"Father has appointed Mr. O'Rourke to become the new foreman you need here," Mary announced.

"Ah, so—fine—fine," said Tagga "But do come in now and rest yourselves."

He led the way to the ranch house. As they stepped on the porch Mary paused a moment with her emotions—then quickly stepped across the threshold through the door their host was holding open, into the parlor. Terence and Taggart followed, and all three seated themselves.

Mary quickly brought the conversation back to the business at hand, and Taggart, now anxious to get his plans under way, eagerly came back to it.

"Well, I'll tell you what, Miss Marshall," he said. "You have brought this money just in the nick of time. We owe for 250 head of cattle already on the ranch, and the cowboys are refusing to work until they get their pay."

Mary handed him the bag containing the remainder of the money.

"There's $5,000 in there to take care of the payroll and current bills," she said. "The other things can be taken care of through the bank. I deposited $45,000 there today."

"Ah, good enough," said Taggart, taking the bag. "Well, you folks make yourselves at home, and I'll go right out and fix up the boys' back pay, and tell 'em it's round-up day tomorrow."

He smiled jovially at Mary as he passed out the door.

Now that they were alone, Terence came over and sat aside Mary on the sofa.

"I can't say that I altogether like this Taggart fellow," he said. "He doesn't look quite—straight, to me. I can't help being suspicious of him."

"Oh, but he's been Daddy's friend for years and years," Mary protested.

"Well, I can't help thinking there's something wrong, Mary." He smiled tenderly at her, and added, "Maybe it's simply that I'm jealous because he likes you."

His hand sought hers, and their thoughts shifted to sweeter things. Terence's other arm stole around her shoulder and drew her closer to him.

"I'd love to have a home like this—with you dearest," he said dreamily.

She replied only with a pressure on his hand, but that spoke volumes. She was dreaming too.

"My lips are still burning from last night," Terence murmured into her ear. "I'm going to kiss you again."

She did not demur.

SPOKANE WOMAN WISHES TO WED AN OTTAWA MAN

Few Divorces in Canada's Capital Impressed Widow Who Owns Ranch.

BARS DRUNKARDS.

Writes "Postmistress" at Ottawa to Mediate in Quest For Husband.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Ottawa men have a reputation, especially the husbands. It is spreading far and wide. Latest evidence of this is forthcoming in a letter, addressed to the Postmistress, Ottawa, and which was opened by A. G. Acres, Ottawa's Postmaster. The letter is from a lady in Spokane, Washington, dated July 29, duly signed, and with home address given.

The lady says: "I was reading in the paper of you having such few divorces. It speaks well of your town and country. It must be the men that are good, for I have met so many men and families from Ottawa and they seem to be so nice, any of the men, to their women."

The lady is prepared also to back her judgment in this respect. She is looking for a husband and she would like one from Ottawa. She indicates she has had experience and should be able to judge.

"I would like to have a husband," writes the lady. "One about the age of 45 to 50, with some means to go into the chicken business. I have a small ranch. It would make a fine home and chicken ranch, 80 acres. I would like a good business man with some means. I am a widow, 42 years old. I don't want a drunkard. I like a jolly man, good-natured, full of life, so if you can direct me to a fine man, do so," is the final request of the lady.

The letter is being held by the Postmaster in view of possible developments.

CARS CRASHED.

Boy Had Narrow Escape at Keene—Saved By Mother.

KEENE, Aug. 6.— While attempting to turn the corner at the Methodist church, Keene, on Tuesday evening, a car driven by Mr. Edwin Fife struck a car driven by Ralph Plunkett. The little son of Mr. Plunkett was cut by flying glass of the windshield, requiring medical attention, and only the quick work of Mrs. Plunkett saved the little fellow from more serious injuries. The force of the impact bounced the child of of her knee, and she just managed to catch him in time to prevent his being thrown through the windshield. Mr. Plunkett had some slight cuts from flying glass but the occupants of the other car were not hurt.

The damage to both cars was about the same.

STORE ROOM CAT GOES ON SPREE

DIED A WRECK.

George Perinne is sad. Ernest is dead. Mr. Perinne is the caretaker of the Prohibition Department's liquor storeroom in the Federal Building. Ernest was his assistant. It was six months ago that Ernest first went to work for Mr. Perinne. Then he was as lively, as industrious, as sober a tiger cat as you could find in all the country round. But it was a sodden, asthmatic, bleary-eyed Ernest at the last.

"It's the old story: wine, woman and song," said Mr. Perrinne as he arranged simple obsequies for his friend.

"Ernest was all right until he started drinking. Then he went from bad to worse. At first, it was only the best liquor. Then it was just liquor. And finally, he went on the dope.

"Here's how it all began. One day, a confiscated bottle of the choicest old whisky in the cellar was knocked down and broke. The liquor spread over the floor. Ernest had been working hard, rounding up a new family of rats that had just moved in.

His First Drink.

"He was hot and tired and thirsty and he took a little lap of the liquid on the floor. He took another, and another, and finally he licked up the whole mess. The next morning, he had lined up 26 dead rats for our inspection.

"That's the way it always starts. Just a little drop when you're tired, and after awhile youre tired all the time. It was only a few days after that Ernest accidentally brushed against a bottle and knocked it over. It broke, and he went on another jag.

"That seemed to give him an idea. After that, there was a broken bottle on the floor almost every morning. Ernest used to knock them down himself. At first, it was only bonded liquor, pre-war stuff. But later, he grew careless and would knock over anything that came handy.

Going Out At Night.

"Then he started going out at night. He was seen several times romping around with those fly tabbies they have over in the Postoffice part of the cellar. Usually so conscientious, he began to neglect his duties.

"Last week, oJe Dedrick began to notice that little packages of dope over in the narcotic division storeroom had been broken open. Ernest had formed the habit of slipping in there and taking his sniffer every day. That was the end."

Now that Ernest has gone to the Happy Catnip Patch, Mr. Perrine is going to ask the Anti-Saloon League to recommend to him a cat that has taken the pledge.

OTTAWA VALLEY HARVEST LARGE

Drying and Ripening Weather This Week Ensures Splendid Crop.

CORN IMPROVES.

OTTAWA, August 6. — Canadian Press. — The weather of the last three days has maintained a fairly uniform temperature throughout the Ottawa Valley district, and with the brilliant skies and rainless nights, has added great benefit to crops and gardens around Ottawa. At no time during the three days has the mercury fallen lower than 54 degrees, recorded during the night of Monday.

At noon yesterday the temperature was 76 degrees.

The crop is heavy and most of it now will be gathered in first class condition. The grain crops are very promising, according to the reports of the officials at the Central Experimental Farm. Some of the early oats have been cut and are already in the stocks. Some of the later grains have been held back by the rains and winds but the harvest will be large this year, grains rapidly ripening here in the bright sunny weather that prevails.

It was stated at the Experimental Farm that the corn crop which had been backward on account of the cool and wet weather, has greatly improved in the last two days, the present mean temperature being just what this crop needed.

WOMEN'S WOOL UNDERWEAR SELLING AT HALF-PRICE

A camp for boys, a few years ago, was mostly games and boating and swimming. Not so now.

Last week end, I had occasion to visit a huge boys' camp in the Laurentian Mountains, and the wonderful change in the things that interest boys is very decided. The main club house was tuned to a note of general interest in the outdoor things.

Hardly had I arrived, when I heard the note of a house wren. Now a house wren is not out of its element there, but we seldom see them so far in the forest. At any rate, the boys were delighted that I had noticed it, and they promptly took me over to the open space for baseball and other games.

There, on a pole, stuck up at the very top, was the skull of a deer, and on the topmost tip of bone sat or perched Mr. Wren, warbling at ease. Presently he decided that he would take a peek inside, to see how things were going. He hopped down on to a lower projection of bone and entered by way of his eye socket.

What a house! And this is the fourth or fifth year of wrens in it.

There were the tents in a wide crescent, paddles, hatchets and blankets neatly arranged at the front or side of each tent, a huge square, enclosed by four logs, for a campfire, from which a thin curl of soothing wood smoke was rising, and the deer skull pole just to one side of the campfire logs. The wrens are naturally present at all the evening campfire talks. If they are anything like the boys know them, they must wonder at times, what sort of queer woodland folks these lads are, to appear very suddenly and people the woods for a few weeks, sit by fires and talk endless Indian jargon, and then paddle away.

When I informed the boys that the House Wren's first cousin, the Winter Wren, was probably only a few yards away in the brush, they were very astonished and are now watching for him.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

HONEST WORK BRINGS YOU GOOD HEALTH.

As I write I am on a railroad train enroute to Kansas City. It is a beautiful day, much cooler after a hot spell, and all Nature is smiling.

The farmers are busy in the corn fields. That is their job and they do it well. Out of agriculture comes a living for most of the human family, and with it comes the vigorous health which an out-of-door life is likely to give.

If it were not that the hoe makes blisters and calluses, and the weeding of the flower bed breaks the nails and grimes the hands, there would be more workers in the gardens. The backache and kneeache of gardening frightens others. Some are afraid of the thorns of the roses and of the little green worms found on their leaves. Others are fearful of snakes and toads. But the honest-to-goodness truth is that too many are afraid of WORK.

It is a great thing for health to use the muscles, to tear down their fibre by vigorous effort, to make demands upon the forces of body repair.

When you have built one house you say, "I wish I could build another house. I could make it much better." You would. In a sense, Nature works along similar lines. You have good muscles, but every time you tear them down, Nature rebuilds them better and stronger than before.

You can't make your heart muscles strong by pussy-footing through life. Your heart and lungs rejoice in the vigorous demands you make upon them by systematic strenuous effort. They grow firm and forceful under the whip of use.

It is no wonder the kidneys rebel at times. It isn't fair to make them alone responsible for the elimination of the body waste. Why should not the skin be called upon to render powerful aid in this important matter of carrying away the poisons of the body?

When you prespire freely, the sweat which pours from your skin is taking from your body waste substances which are worse than valueless. They are real poisons. You want your blood to be clean. In order to be clean it must be cleared of the waste, enriched with the oxygen you get from deep breathing of pure air, and diluted by the free drinking of pure, fresh water.

Vigorous exercise makes you perspire, it makes you breathe deeply, it makes you thirsty. It causes your heart muscles and other muscles to become better and stronger through their rebuilding. So you see, your kidneys, heart, lungs and blood are all benefitted when you work in the gardens and in the fields. Honest work makes for honest health.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

It was many years ago, in the editorial room of the New York Sun. About 3 a.m. The editor in charge was playing chess with a reporter.

What's Wrong With Peterborough?

Another reporter had fallen asleep in his chair, waiting for something to turn up. Then, suddenly the sleeper sprang to his feet, gave a loud yell, looked around in a bewildered way and began to laugh.

"That's awfully funny," he explained. "I fell asleep and had a dream. I dreamt that I made a bargain with the devil—Old Nick himself—that he was to have my soul and, in return, I was to write the greatest book that ever was written. So I wrote the book and it kept getting better and better, until the very end. I distinctly recall that when I wrote the last line I thought it was the greatest sentence that any human being had ever uttered. It summed up all the wisdom in the world.

"Then I woke up—I was quite excited—and I happened to remember that wonderful line. And this is what it was.

'He had unravelled the fathom and had unfathomed the ravel'."

Well, in a dream, this line probably had a sonorous, convincing sound. The fact that it was meaningless would never occur to a person asleep. Queer things go on in the mind during a dream, and the sweet intonation or the impressive reverberation of a fancied voice easily passes for a fact.

The joke of it all is, however, that the same process goes on among certain strata of the public when they are awake. A honeyed voice, a well selected phrase, or a sentiment that touches the heart is accepted by many as gospel truth.

A member of Parliament said recently "... and I thought, in my soul, that this man would make splendid leader."

Many people were impressed by this utterance. The phrase "in my soul" made them feel that the M.P. really was sincere. What the speaker meant was that he had "unravelled the fathom and had unfathomed the ravel." Because what he said was just as meaningless and just as idiotic.

A man who tells you that he "thinks in his soul" is either a fraud who is trying to harp upon your emotions or an ignoramus who does not realize that all human thinking is done in the mind alone.

"But," say you, "supposing he has no mind!" Ah! Very true. But then you may be sure he also has no soul.

Seriously, however, it is a vats pity to see masses of mankind misled by slogans and phrases and jingles and epigrams just because they sound well and suggest a great hearted love of humanity. There ought to be a cure for it, but, just at present, there isn't.

And the people solace themselves with these things. Like a cat nosing around an empty salmon tin. It smells well, and looks well, but there's not much in it. And sometimes the cat doesn't realize this until it has it's head caught.

Peterborough wasn't built by slogans. Peter Robinson didn't stand on Armour Hill to "watch Peterborough grow." He and his pioneers took spade and hoe and planted things that MADE Peterborough grow.

The soul of man must go down into the dust with the body before it can be elevated to those transcendental planes, and so must the mind of man return to the elemental on which to build the firm structure of a lasting success.

Peterborough's worst enemies are not tyrants and despoilers and vicious exploiters. The city is not held back by men who hold its lands and buildings and money. Indians, storms, snows, blazing suns and devastating floods failed to conquer the first settlers here.

The worst enemies of Peterborough to-day—the brakes on the wheels of progress—the chains on ambitions youth—are those in the city who think "in their soul" that they "have unravelled the fathom and unfathomed the ravel."

Conscience is more even than William Rainey Bennett claimed in his lecture last night. Not only is it that which keeps you from letting yourself down; it is that which keeps you from letting society down.

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

By Temple Manning

HOW THE DERBY ORIGINATED

"They're off! They're off!" The entire grandstand, a riot of color, becomes electrified. Staid, dignified men are standing up in their seats, waving their hats and screaming wildly. Women in gay, modish costumes are waving their handkerchiefs or the colors of their horse, or banners, or whatever happens to be at hand. Children barely old enough to understand what the commotion is all about, add to the noise and confusion by jumping up and down and screaming in shrill trebles. Young college men and the inevitable "flappers" run up and down the course, vainly trying to keep up with the horses but find themselves hopelessly outclassed.

"Come on there, you Bramble Bush!"

"They're Off! They're Off!"

"Baby Mine, we're depending on you." "That's the way, Lord Jeffrey!" "King's English is ahead." "No, he's not. Lord Jeff has passed him."

Everybody is calling, screaming, shouting something to his favorite. The grandstand is a perfect bedlam. The field is gray with the dust of the racing horses, streaked with the bright shades of the jockeys' silks, the only way of ascertaining which horse is which.

Then comes that breath-taking moment when the leading favorites are neck and neck. A deep silence falls as the horses kick the dust from under their feet, and thousands hold their breath. Step by step, one horse noses out the other. King's English has passed Lord Jeffrey again. But look! Who is this mare that is suddenly stealing the lead? It is Mayday. She is steadily gaining on the favorite; now she's ahead. "Come on, old Mazie! Hurrah! Hurrah! Mayday's won!"

This scene, with little variation, is enacted day after day, and year after year. Yet always people are thrilled by a horse race. But there is one raised almost to the point of hysteria. This is at the annual Derby held at Epsom Downs, Surrey, England, on the Wednesday after Trinity Sunday of each year.

Racing existed in England from the time of Charles I, according to Clarendon, who, in his "History of the Rebellion" says:

"A meeting of the Royalists (1648) was held on Banstead Downs under the pretence of a horse race, and six hundred horses were collected and sent to Reigate." (Banstead Downs included much of Epsom Downs).

After the Restoration, racing again became a popular sport, but it was not until 1780, during the reign of George III, that it became the national institution it now is. In that year, Lord Derby instituted a race for three-year-old colts, mares or stallions. This race aroused so much interest it became an organized event and rapidly gained the honor of being the greatest racing day in England.

In 1872, Colonel M. Lewis Clark of Kentucky, the founder of the Louisville Jockey Club, visited England. There he studied the system of stakes and the racing rules and methods of the country which made of racing a national pastime. During his visit to England, Colonel Clark became so imbued with the enthusiasm of Derby Day that he decided to fashion an American Derby day in the pattern of the English. In 1875, his plans took material shape in the form of a horse race similar to those then run in England.

For some time after the institution of Derby Day in America only a select few, who had witnessed the English races were sufficiently interested to attend. But little by little the enthusiasm of these few attached itself to sport-lovers all over the country, and within a few years the Kentucky Derby was established as a popular racing event.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DICKY MEETS A REAL, TRUE FRIEND.

Dicky picked up a stick and was going to throw it at the great big bird perched on a log by the roadside, when the bird nodded his ugly wrinkled head and laughed.

"Sure, go on and fire the stick, if it makes you feel any better. I'm nothing but an old, red headed Turkey Buzzard," laughed the bird. "Go on and throw the stick."

Dicky dropped the stick as if it had been a red hot iron and looked embarrassed.

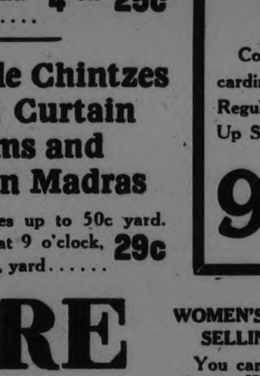
"Why in the world did you change your mind?" asked the bird. "I won't hurt you. Don't run away. Stay and talk a while."

"That's just it," said Dicky confused. "I didn't know little boys could under stand Turkey Buzzards."

"Because you never took the time to try and understand them," laughed the bird. "I could have talked to you the other day, when you threw that stone, but I was just a wee bit out of sorts, so I flew away instead. So many little boys would rather throw things at us than stop and talk."

"They are like me, I guess," laughed Dicky. "I never dreamed you could talk."

"Indeed I can talk, see, hear, feel and smell," laughed Mr. Turkey Buzzard. "That's why there is a law forbidding folks to kill us, because of the wonderful sense of smell. True, I know we'd never take a prize in a beauty contest, but I guess our usefulness will make up for it all right. Anyway, learned men think and don't let people shoot us." asked



"I Never Dreamed You Talked."

Dicky sitting down on the log beside the bird. "In what way do you mean?"

"Why, in cleaning away all dead things," replied Mr. Turkey Buzzard. "If we didn't do that, your Father's farm would soon go to rack and ruin. What's the matter, haven't you ever seen a Turkey Buzzard before?" he questioned when he saw Dicky looking at him so intently. "All right, take a good look," and he turned all around so Dicky could get a good look at him.

He was about the size of the small turkey on the farm. His feathers looked a faded black. His head and neck were bare and the skin all wrinkled and red. His bill was hooked. His feet were very large and ugly.

"Oh, I'm no beauty," chuckled Mr. Turkey Buzzard, "but I try to make up for my bad looks by being useful. You tell your Daddy I'm one of the best friends he has. He has been good not to shoo my wife and me from his farm, and I'll keep his farm cleaned as nicely as I can in return." And spreading his great heavy wings, Mr. Turkey Buzzard flew away.

Dicky watched him out of sight. Then he ran into the house to ask his Mama about his new friend.

"Turkey Buzzard is right," laughed Dicky's Mama. "He is the street-cleaner of the woodlands and one of the best friends to mankind."

STREET NAMES

PERRY STREET.

Charles Perry came to Peterborough to engage in the lumber business and was not long in making his presence felt in the rising young community. He became a manufacturer as well as a dealer and was a pioneer in developing a trade with the American market. He became the owner of the Nassau Mills which were said to be then the finest in the Province. Proving his worth to the community he was honored by his townsmen who elected him Mayor, 1861 to 1864. He was called up to represent his home town in a wider field, in 1867, when was returned with a majority of 17 over G. Gordon of Toronto, as Conservative member in the first election held after Confederation. He held the seat for 5 years when he was defeated. He was then appointed Collector of Customs at Peterboro, a position he retained until his death in 1878. His remains are in Little Lake Cemetery.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

COUNTRY BEFORE PARTY.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—We are all interested in the welfare of our country. Country before party is the motto of most of us anyways. Hon. W. H. Price, M.P.P., of Toronto, made on Monday the chief speech at the "biggest of all" pienics ever held by Mr. Lennox, M.P.P. annually. He said, as reported in the press, "It is necessary for a party that expects to win at this election, to offer something concrete to the people. Talk on old policies and subjects won't do it. They were tried out already." Now I agree with that. If it is to be the same old fight that has been fought out already two or three times, people will not go to the polls. Mr. Price is to be commended for his courage in telling the truth to the politicians and party men. We want something "concrete" to fight about.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, AUGUST 7.

This day's sidereal operations point to unsettled and annoying conditions, with the prospect of removal, change or travel which may not prove of benefit. They may result in disappointments or obstacles, or be of a disruptive or disintegrating nature and of suddenly precipitated events. Those in the employment of others are possibly under a baneful influence and should be careful not to give offense to those over them lest they lost their positions.

Those whose birthday it is should avoid change, removal and important journeys. Those in the employment of others are likewise urged to use veery precaution to safeguard their positions. A child born on this day will be inclined to be restless and unsettled and probably will have a roving life, travelling far.

PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

One year after the first Irish settlers came here a Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Father Ahern, settled in the infant community as resident pastor of the Roman Catholic congregation.

Mass was regularly celebrated in a little log house occupying the site now covered by the City Buildings and the Police Court. With the growth of the congregation, a new building was required and a small frame church was erected on a site at the corner of George and Brock Streets. This building shared the inevitable fate of wooden structure in the pioneer days, being burnt in 1826. The site was sold, and the new church built on the present location granted to the Church by the Government of that day, and was dedicated to St. Peter in chains during the pastorate of the Rev. John Butler.

On the decision of the Church authorities in 1882, to make Peterboro the centre of a new diocese comprising the Counties of Peterboro, Victoria, Northumberland and Durham and the districts of Algoma, Muskoka and Parry Sound, it was resolved to enlarge the church into a cathedral. At the north end was built a transverse addition forming transepts east and west, making the whole cruciform in shape. A sacristy was added, a new tower and spire and a new metallic roof was built and the old stone work repointed throughout. The cost was about $40,000.

St. Peter's Cathedral is of white limestone, has fine Gothic windows, filled with stained glass and has a handsome entrance porch with a groined ceiling.

Two remarkable features are the grand organ and the bell in the steeple, which is one of three cast in Spain over 200 years ago, and is said to contain a large quantity of silver in its composition.

The Right Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., who is a native of Peterboro, and was for 10 years a curate at St. Peter's, was elevated to the Bishopric of Peterboro on Wednesday, September 24, 1913.

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

BURNBRAE OCTOGENARIAN STILL TAKES AN ACTIVE PART WITH THE THRESHING MACHINE IN DISTRICT

William Fry, 86, Expects to be on the Job for Several Years Yet.

A LONG SERVICE

Has Been in Business 53 Years, Using All Sorts of Threshers.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 6.—Eighty-five years old and still travelling with a threshing outfit! What district, what man in Ontario—or in the entire Dominion for that matter—can equal such a record? It is almost needless to say that the district in Burnbrae and that this octogenarian marvel is one of the pioneers of the corner of the township of Seymour that has turned out so many men who have been able to fight off the advances of Father Time.

53 Years a Thresher.

William Fry has been a thresher for the past 53 years and in all that time has never missed a season or been off duty a single day on account of illness. No one but a Burnbrae Scotchman could have survived such an experience. He has been through every grade of the industry, from the days of the flail, or "poverty stick," to the age of the monstrous steam driven machine that will take grain as fast as it can be forked into the cylinder.

A Case of Evolution.

Mr. Fry's first start as a servant of the farming public was with the old open cylinder machine which threshed the grain but the work of separating it from the straw had to be performed by men with pitchforks. This machine raised dust in clouds and sometimes when a foreign substance got into the cylinder and broke a tooth, the flying fragment of metal buried itself in the timber of the barn if the helpers were fortunate enough to escape a missile as deadly as a bullet from a gatling gun.

After the open cylinder came the canvas machine, driven by 10 horses that walked around in a circle, a man standing in the centre keeping them going by the aid of a long whip and a constant stream of raucous yells. Their task was an art in itself, strange horses of all sizes and temperaments being introduced to the driver every day as the threshing outfit made its rounds among the farmers.

Hand feeding a machine is another of the last agricultural arts, for an art it was. When it was in vogue, Mr. Fry was regarded as one of the best who ever faced a cylinder or who objurgated the driver who failed to keep the speed up to the proper pitch.

The Modern Steam Thresher.

Mr. Fry has adapted himself to every new condition. He knows every wheel and pulley in the modern thresher or engine. His ear has been so attuned to the hum of the machinery that he can detect the first indication that anything is out of order before the inveitable break that comes unless remedies are applied in time.

Ready For The Circuit.

Mr. Fry has everything in readiness to start out on his rounds just as soon as the weather permits the farmers to get in their grain. He takes with two men, his son William, who handles the engine and a hired helper to drive the team and haul the water required.

The dust, which has sent many an old time thresher to an early grave, a victim of tuberculosis, appears never to have injured the physique of Mr. Fry, who laughs at the idea of giving up work for some years to come. This year's crop, he says, is one of the best that he has ever seen in Seymour so that he predicts a busy season for the threshing outfits.

Another Octogenarian.

Burnbrae, however, is that the only place that can boast of a young and active octogenarian, although none may follow so strenuous calling as Mr. Fry. Fred Dinwoodie, of Campbellford, is 84, a fact of which in his happier moments he is inclined to boast. This year, merely in the way of exercise, and not because there was any financial necessity for him exerting himself, he worked through the haying season on the farm of W. M. Stephens, building the stacks, a line in which he is an expert. Once he has completed a job of this kind the stack is impervious to any rainfall that ever descended from the clouds. The proverbial duck's back is porous by comparison.

RAINS HOLD UP HAY HARVESTING

Still Some Hay to be Taken In—Wheat is Nearly All Cut.

CORN IS GOOD

WARSAW, Aug. 6.—Farmers are all busy. There is still hay to be taken in. The rains have made the hay harvest very difficult.

Falls grains are nearly all cut. Some report the whole fields not so good as expected, but, on the whole, the grain is good.

Some of the corn looks exceedingly good. Sow thistle is showing. The season has been no wet there was not much chance to kill it.

Eggs went up a cent last week.

The cheques for Warsaw factory were put in the bank on Tuesday of last week.

MORE BUTTER.

Butter exports to Japan from Canada have slightly increased, according to the statistical report of the first six months of the year ending June 24, issued by the Japanese consulate. The total amount sent to the island kingdom through this port during that period was 165,957 pounds.

HEAVY HAY CROP

Norwood Farmers Were Kept Busy—Thresher Being Prepared.

NORWOOD, Aug. 6.—Having is in full swing, but some have finished already. The crop is an exceptionally heavy one.

Mr. Percy Wilson is getting his thrashing outfit ready for operations, which are expected to begin about next week for the fall grains.

Raspberries are very plentiful around Norwood and are selling at 15 cents a single box or 13 cents in quantities. All small vegetables are on the market, as well as new potatoes which have been selling at 50 cents a peck.

PASTEUR'S WORK AMONG ANIMALS

Vaccinated Sheep Against Anthrax — Vaccines for Chickens and Pigs.

PAID IDEMNITY

The modern scientific method of dealing with disease in animals was developed by Pasteur, the great French investigator, whose wonderful investigations finaly led up to a crucial experiment by which he undertook to prove that he could successfully vaccinate sheep against anthrax, a disease which was devastating the flocks and herds of France and also causing great loss of human life. The test was begun on May 5, 1882, at the Pouilly-le-Fort farm near Melun, and Pasteur's reputation hung on the result. A large crowd of farmers, veterinarians, doctors, and others gathered for the event, says a circular published by the American Association for Medical Progress. Most of them were sceptical to say the least. Fifty sheep were used in this experiment. Pasteur inoculated twenty-five of the sheep with his protective vaccine. On May 17 he gave the same animals a second protective vaccination. The unvaccinated ones "unprotected." Then other twenty-five were not vaccinated. On May 31 he declared the twenty-five vaccinated sheep "protected" and the unvaccinated ones "unprotected." Then he gave all fifty a full strength inoculation of anthrax virus. By June 5, he predicted, all the unprotected sheep would be dead and all the protected sheep would be alive.

Quick Results.

He did not have to wait even that long for his results. When he arrived at the farm on June 2, 22 of the unprotected sheep were already dead and the other three were dying. All the vaccinated animals were in perfect health. The sceptics were convinced, France rang with Pasteur's praises, and his methods were adopted everywhere. The saving of animal life in France due to Pasteur's discoveries more than paid the Prussian War indemnity of 1871, which amounted to five billion francs. Anyone with an imagination must realize that this also meant that millions of animals were saved from the suffering incident to disease.

Among the many blessings for which we are indebted to Pasteur are a vaccine for chicken cholera and another for swine erysipelas. The former was discovered by experiments on hens. The latter discovery required the sacrifice of some scores of pigs, but when we find that in one year (1879), a million dollars worth of pigs had died of this disease in France alone, the sacrifice seems very small.

SHOW VALUE OF IRRIGATED LAND

In Dry Areas Wheat is Ripening Too Rapidly—Large Crops Where Wet.

BEETS GOOD, TOO

LETHBRIDGE.—Surrounding this city is one of the great wheat-producing sections of Western Canada, and just now the situation in the dry land areas is doubtful. The original estimate of the crop, including all grains, was 42,000,000 bushels. That was three weeks ago, when the outlook was ideal, good growth on a large area, plenty of moisture, and the crop ten days earlier than usual. Then a dry spell set in, which has not been extensively broken. Local rains have helped in districts northwest and north of the city, but generally speaking the situation to-day is not rosy. At the same time, it is not altogether pessimistic, for it is held by those who have made a close study of the situation in the field that the district will market more grain than it did last season—24,000,000 bushels.

The crop, as mentioned, was fully ten days earlier than usual, and when the hot, dry weather struck and continued, the grain resisted it surprisingly well, and is still doing so. Then, too, the heads were well formed in the boot, and while it is now ripening too rapidly there are numerous fields that will give a per acre return of from 12 to 16 bushels, which ordinarily would be a failure.

The two favored sections of Southern Alberta this year are the districts from Calgary, south to Nanton, and southeast to Vulvan. On the Aldersyde line the crops as far south as Vulcan are better than they were on July 12 last year. Other sections of the south need rain badly. Corn is doing nicely, and is in the tassle.

In the irrigated areas the picture is altogether different. Crops are magnficent, as the farmers applied the water early and plentifully. Sugar beets are making splendid growth, and an early estimate of the crop is 90,000 tons, cutting to start at the new Raymond factory of Canada Sugar Factories, Ltd., about September 20. The per acre average will probably be 12 tons. The company officials are delighted with the situation the initial year of the sugar enterprise in Southern Alberta. Haying is in progress in areas "under the ditch," both alfalfa and timothy yielding heavily. Potatoes are also looking good.

Canada's Resources

When opposition is raised to the export of raw material from this country, those who are against shipments on the ground that these resources are strictly limited have not a full conception of what these really are. One-half of our arable land has not yet been occupied. Of course we cannot export arable land —it is not suggested—but the fact is mentioned as a national asset and a guarantee of a great future population.

The estimated total of this arable territory is 300,000,000 acres, not fifty per cent of which has as yet been improved. So far as the timber of this country is concerned it is stated that the total forest area comprises 1,200,000 acres, of which, about forty per cent is covered with merchantable timber.

We have reserves which are unsurpassed, except possibly in Russia and Siberia, and with our modern methods of forest conservation, reforesting and the like, Canada is not running any very great risk in parting with some of her raw material in that particular. Besides many land holders, particularly in Northern Ontario, would be very hard put to it if they were prohibited from exporting pulpwood.

As to minerals, not a man living know the mineral wealth of this country. Our coal reserves in the western field alone represent a very considerable fraction of the total coal deposits of the world. It is estimated that sixteen per cent of the world's known reserve of bituminous sub-bituminous and lignite coal is to be found in the four western provinces of Canada.

So far as gold is concerned, we have one mine, which, alone, is at present turning out the second largest gold production in the whole world, and is the centre of a great mining district, which at the beginning of this century was unknown. If we stop to consider mineral exports we need not fear that we are parting with the nation's inheritance.

Our development is pretty sure to be along lines that will help, perhaps to discover untold fields of wealth hitherto undreamed of. But since the present government assumed office there has been a material reduction in the amount of raw material exported, as compared with the total exportation of the country, and the Canadian manufacturer, who, it is alleged, has had a hard time in the last two or three years, has nevertheless, been able to export his products in increasing quantities to other countries where he receives no protection.

MOVING BEES TO NEW LOCATIONS

Making Them Stay in New Home is Most Difficult Part.

BUMP THEM WELL

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Moving bees consists not only in transporting them to the new location, but in making them stay there.

As bees range two to three miles from the hive in search of nectar, they will, if the new location is within this area, likely return to the old home; if, however, it is outside they will remain where placed.

The best time to move bees is in the spring or fall when the weather is cooler and the homing instinct weaker than in the summer.

To move in summer time to a point inside the range of flight, first move the bees to a point outside of it, or down cellar for a week, then to the ultimate location.

If the move is a short one, use a wheelbarrow and bump the bees well, place an object to attract their attention in front of the entrance and change the appearance of the old location as much as possible.

The colony should be prepared for transportation in the evening or early morning to prevent loss of field bees.

The bottom-board and cover should be fastened to the hive body by staples sold for the purpose or by wooden cleats and nails.

To close the entrance and give ventilation, take a piece of wire gauze six inches wide and as long as the entrance is wide, and fold it along its longer centre line. Thrust the "V" edge into the entrance and fasten one leg of the "V" to the bottom-board and the other to the face of the hive by laths and nails.

Should the weather be hot, make a two-inch frame of dimensions similar to the hive body, and cover or roof it with wire gauze. This stapled to the hive in place of a cover gives top ventilation and clustering space.

If transportation is by waggon or automobile, place the hive so that the frames will be parallel to the axles of the vehicle; if by railroad, let them be parallel to the rails.

THEY DIDN'T FIND ANY.

Niece: "No, Auntie. The hens were scratching all around as hard as they could, but they hadn't found a single egg!"

Improve your work and you improve yourself.

LEGUME MEAL IMPORTANT IN FEEDING CHICKS

REPLACES SILAGE

Legumes Build Up Land, While Corn Needs Much Manure.

Alfalfa and sweet clover do not link up with chickens in the mind of the average Ontario farmer. That this combination—plus a few dairy cows—can be a very successful one may be proven by a visit to the farm of Ivan W. Folliott, a York county farmer, in the vicinity of Newmarket. The secret of the combination lies in the grinder, which is an important part of the farm equipment, a grinder which, run by a tractor, turns the alfalfa and sweet clover into meal. This legume meal forms an important part of the nation, not only for the cattle but for the flock of five hundred laying hens, which average around 100 dozens of eggs per week during the winter months. The grinder in addition, handles grain, green bones, and even stones for grit.

Last season Mr. Folliott had fifty acres of his hundred-acre farm in alfalfa, and ten acres in sweet clover. In addition to the meal used on the farm, he sold three carloads to wholesale feed houses and five tons locally, and has half a carload on hand. In addition, there was a plentiful supply of loose hay for feeding. "The better part of my alfa fa land," said Mr. Folliott, "gave a return of at least one hundred dollars an acre, and I took in about $2,000 of my last year's crop, without counting what was used on the farm." The alfalfa is from locally-grown seed. This season there will be eight acres of sweet clover, while 29 acres have been reseeded.

Replaces Corn Silage.

This farmer is enthusiastic over sweet clover meal as a substitute for corn silage in the ration of the dairy cow and for winter feeding of steers. He cuts his sweet clover with a binder and stooks it up four sheaves to a stook. "After cutting and stooking it, I forget about it for three weeks," he said, "but as soon as it is really dry, I get it into the barn, for it is getting wet after it is once thoroughly dry that makes the trouble. I leave both the sweet clover and alfalfa in the mow or in the stalks for a few months before I grind it. Sometimes I grind small quantities a little early as a supplementary ration for cows on late pastures." Sheaf-cutting of the sweet clover is also instrumental in saving a great proportion of the leaves.

For the Cows.

For both cows and steers Mr. Folliott feeds a scoopshovel full of either kind of legume meal three times a day, together with the usual ration of roots and grain, the meal replacing the silage. He now feeds the meal dry, but it can be moistened by mixing with the pulped roots and left standing for twenty-four hours. The meal provides home-grown protein feed, together with sufficient roughage, and there is no waste as there is in the hay form. For cows he does not grind the meal too fine, in order to avoid bloating. "Like very bulky oat chop," Mr. Folliott described it. In putting cattle on this ration care should be taken at the start not to feed too heavily, as too sudden a change to the meal may result in scouring. This feeder believes that the cows find the sweet clover meal the more palatable of the two. He also believes that it would be a first-rate feed for swine, and intends to try some on it this winter.

Mr. Folliott ventured the opinion that the day of the silo was done. "Why," he asked, 'should a farmer raise corn when he can raise sweet clover, and build up the land without needing manure, while with corn he must give a liberal application of manure and has all the labor of cultivation throughout the season? Sweet clover is easier to handle, and the meal keeps well and can be stored conveniently."

Has Winter Layers.

Mr. Folliott raises around one thousand chicks and has five hundred laying hens for the winter months. The real season of production is the winter, when the pullets strike their stride with the aid of electric lights, for the farm has hydro power. The hens are bred-to lay Rocks, from stock that came from the Central experimental farm at Ottawa, where Mr. Folliott once spent a year in the poultry department. He has been in the chicken business for the past twelve years. A special trade has been worked up with one of the large retail stores in Toronto, and the eggs run practically all extras. In the spring the flock is culled down to breeding stock only. Mr. Folliott raises his own chicks with a 1,200-egg incubator.

His laying ration for winter use, he claims, has two merits: it is cheap and it gives results. The grain part of the ration consists of equal parts of oats, barley, wheat and buckwheat (run through the grinder) 15 pounds to the 100 of alfalfa or sweet clover meal, 2½ to 3 pounds of oilcake, 15 pounds of beef meal, 2 pounds of charcoal and 1 pound of salt. "This mash," said Mr. Folliott, "shouldn't cost more than two cents a pound in an ordinary season." The skim-milk from the small dairy herd goes to the hens, and the cream goes to the Toronto creamery.

On this interesting farm the owner has three separate specialties which bring an immediate cash return—eggs, cream and the surplus alfalfa meal. The market for the latter he does not consider a permanent one, since he expects to see the grinding of sweet clover and alfalfa soon become general. In addition to these specialties, Mr. Folliott feeds a few steers. Practically all of the feed is home-raised, and the bulk of it leaves the farm in the form of some finished, and, consequently, more profitable product. And not least important, the legumes are building up instead of depleting the soil.

GROWTH IS HEAVY

Rains Have Caused Rapid Progress in Stirling District.

STIRLING, Aug. 6.—The recent rains have caused a great growth of all vegetation in this section. The haying is completed with a few exceptions, and harvesting has begun by the cutting of rye and fall wheat, with some pieces of barley, which appear to be a heavy crop.

The berry crop is also good. Raspberries are coming in plentifully and the price has dropped to 10c per box.

The County road men, under Mr. Hiram Dafoe's direction, graded and fixed the road bed from the bridge on Front Street, eastward as far as Thos. Cranston's residence, which was needed badly.

APPLE CROP IS GOOD THIS YEAR

Pests Are Absent, Due to Careful Work of Orchardists.

TOMATOES SLOW

COBOURG, Aug. 6.—It is now generally conceded in this district that the 1925 apple crop will be good, comparing favourably with that of 1923. There is a general absence of scab and insect pests, due, no doubt, to the care evidenced by orchardists in spraying, and otherwise caring for their orchards. Spies, regarded by many as the best of the winter varieties, indicate a heavy yield. Golden Russetts also give a much better promise than they did in 1924, and McIntosh Greenings and Snows all forecast a heavy yield. Weather conditions in this locality have been unusually favourable this season for the apple crop.

Tomatoes Backward.

The tomato crop in this locality is very slow and backward this season. Considerable warm weather is required if tomatoes are to be at all plentiful.

The different canning plants are still busy with the pea crop, and some are employing a night shift.

EXPECT STORM IF PITCHER SWEATS

Moisture Gathers Quickly on Surface of Jug of Cold Water.

If the surface of a pitcher "sweats" when newly filled with cold water on a hot, sticky, summer day, a thunderstorm is quite likely to occur. The sweating process is due to the warm air giving up moisture on contact with the cold surface of the pitcher. The drops do not come from the water itself. The more humid the air, the more profuse is the sweating, and also the more likely are the cumulo-nimbus clouds to occur.

Often on such a day the cumulus clouds can be found rising to great heights, increasing in breadth, or combining with other clouds into dark, ragged, threatening masses, the tops of which may rise from one to four miles above their bases.

In these clouds the moisture in the warm ascending air currents is rapidly condensed into visible form, and rain soon follows. The winds in the clouds increase in violence and break up the rain-drops, causing them to pelt back and forth against each other. This active friction, together with the vigorous uprush of the air, creates great electrical tension, and so lightning, with the consequent thundering, is the natural result.

Sometimes, when the turmoil in the cloud is greatest, the strong currents carry rain-drops into the upper air, where the temperature is much below the freezing point. There hail is formed, and there by repeated fallings, and hurlings upward with additional coverings of rain, the stones may attain to considerable size. True hail is produced only in a thunderstorm. Thunder and lightning also seldom occur except in the cumulo-nimbus cloud. The rainbow, too, is rarely seen except against a retreating storm of this kind.

A fully-developed thunder-storm looming up from the far horizon is an awesome spectacle. Above and in advance of it may be seen a sheet of the thin cirro-stratus cloud. At the very edge of the cumulo-nimbus (piled-up rain-cloud) a gray roll of wind-cloud frequently occurs. Back of it the air ascends into the inky mass, against which plays the lightning, and from which comes the downpour. At the front of the roll, chilled descending gusts replace the torrid heat for the moment with delicious coolness. Sometimes a "deluge of rain" follows upon a terrific peal of thunder. It is the excessive formation of rain in the cloud which causes stronger electrical tension and therefore sharper lightning and louder thunder. As sound travels faster than the rain, we hear that in advance of the downpour which soon follows.

IRELAND MOVES ONWARD

The Irish Free State is progressing rapidly toward financial independence. The latest report shows a budget deficit for the last fiscal year amounting to only $2,500,000, against a deficit of $35,000,000 the preceding year. In the present fiscal year the state's revenues far exceed expenditures and a $10,000,000 surplus reposes in the treasury.

President Cosgrave's encouragement of agriculture and the development of electricity is sound policy. The insistence of the Government that Irish products should be of supreme quality rather than vast quantity is wise. With soil fertile and climate favorable, the farm and dairy produce of Ireland should command top prices in any open market within short shipping distance.

COMPLETE SET FIXTURES MAKES HANDLING EASY

Birds Can be Looked After in Less Time in Fully Equipped House.

BROODY HENS

Marking System Will Help to Eliminate Non-Producers From Flocks.

A complete set of fixtures in a poultry house will tend to lower the time required for handling the flock. Even though some of the ideas that are advanced may seem useless they should be given a fair trial before one forms a definite opinion of their value. This does not mean unnecessary additions but only the more urgently needed.

One innovation in this structure is the use of wire beneath the roosts. Most of the more common diseases in poultry flocks are of the digestive tract and are spread through the droppings. One of the reasons for a lower classification on eggs is caused by dirt on the shells.

The roosts are made of 2" x 2"s with the upper edges slightly bevelled. A strip is nailed to each end and are pulled together by wire that is twisted until taut. Each section is five feet long which permits esy removal whene cleaning. Two short legs support th roost in the front and the rear is held by a wire loop and attached to the wall.

One-inch wire mesh is pulled taut and nailed to the under part of the roosts. The droppings fall through to the boards but the fowls cannot get down into the droppings and eggs that are laid while the flock is roosting are held on the wire. Such an arrangement in any coop is well worth while.

The dropping boards are required at least during the winter to assure sufficient floor space per bird. If one cannot possibly attend to leaning the house at regular times during the summer, the dropping boards may be removed. This is not recommended but can be done and is preferable to a house that is not cleaned all summer.

Four roosts the entire length of the house will accommodate 100 to 125 birds. The roosts are, of course, placed along the rear wall on a level and have a dropping board beneath that is about two and a half feet from the floor.

Nests are banked along the end wall and can be made four tiers high. By putting the hinge on backward the landing platform during the day can be closed at night to prevent the flock from roosting in the nests.

A pail will serve as a water pan and should be elevated above the floor at the same height as the mash feeder. A slat frame can be made that will hold the pail and remain fairly clean.

Proper attention to selection of the equipment and proper arrangement will make a house roomier, reduce labor in caring for a flock, and add greatly to the appearance. The cost is not excessive and the results are decidedly worth while.

If one does not wish to make home equipment there are numerous commercial makes on the market from which a selection can be made.

A special pen can be used to very good advantage in the house. This can be built above the nests and may that are a little out of condition and are removed from the flock as a precaution; broody hens can be broken up in this coop or an extra male may be carried there for a time if he is used at regular intermissions with the other breeders. There are so many opportunities to use a place like this that one should not overlook the necessity of its construction.

Broody Hens.

At this season a number of hens are showing a tendency toward broodiness. One finds so many in a flock that they begin to think that the entire bunch is continually broody. If it were possible to breed every flock up to a 200-egg production, this matter would be eliminated because broodiness is indicative of a lower production.

One mighty easy way to check on this is the adoption of a system of marking each hen each time that she is taken from the coop. A few colored leg bands or hog rings can be hung up in the coop and one placed on the hen's leg for each offense. It will soon be found that a relatively few hens are consistently broody and are giving the rest of the flock a bad reputation. When they have enough bands collected to resemble the bracelets on a Hawaiian dancer, they should be sold for meat since they are not devoting enough attention to egg production.

Back in the good old days we alway-"broke up" the broody hens by allows ing them to stand in a tub of water for about 24 hours. The results were favorable since the hens broke up and would not produce again for a long period. It knocked about everything out of them and only the strong would survive.

One should have a slat bottom coop that is placed in a shady spot and elevated from the ground. Each night the hens should be collected as regularly as the eggs. When placed in this jail the same ration should be given as they had when with the flock. This means mash, grain, and water.

A good hen that is found the first night will be back producing in about a week or ten days. Each additional day that she is allowed to set will prolong the period as the developiug egg yolks will be reabsorbed more rapidly than she can mature them. Added to this is the fact that fertile eggs will be incubated and infertile eggs will be somewhat evaporated.

Regular collection, proper feeding, and good management will make the better producers return to laying. Culling out the persistently broody will improve the flock average and lower the production cost.

HIGH PRICES AT AUCTION SALE

Ordinary Cows Brought $50 Each, Due to High Milk Prices.

HAY ABUNDANT

WARKWORTH, Aug. 6.—At a auction sale here the other day, ordinary milk cows sold for an average of $50, the high price being due to the figure that the farmer sare receiving for their cream or cheese. J. S. Battisby, of Campbellford, who conducted the sale drew for the benefit of the assemble farmers a roseate picture of their prospects. Hay, he said, an excellent crop in this district, is certain to command a high price before the winter is over, as, owing to the drouth, it is almost a total failure in Western Ontario. For the same reason pastures are burned up and dairy farmers are almost at their wit's end. The price of milk has been raised two cents a quart in the cities. In Central Ontario, Mr. Battisby said, the outlook for the dairyman was even better with pasture and the promise of winter feed in abundance.

According to the same authority, the fruit belt along the lake from between Belleville and Toronto will, this year, produce a bumper crop of apples, pears and plums.

CROWN RUST IS EASILY BEATEN

By Removing All Buckthorn Hedges on Which Spring Stage Develops.

Not infrequently the oat crop in Canada is injured seriously by crown rust. Data collected by the Dominion department of agriculture indicate that this is one rust pest against which we can readily protect our selves. For, a heavy attack of this rust is almost a sure index that somebody in the locality is tolerating a hedge or clump of European buckthorn. Get rid of thesse buckthorns and you will eliminate crown rust. The spring stage of this rust develops on the European buckthorn and on this shrub only. The rust spreads from the buckthorn to oats, and without the early start which these shrubss give the rust, it practically never assumes serious proportions.

Consequently every farmer should become acquainted with the European buckthorn. It is not native with us, so that it will always be introduced for use in hedges, windbreaks or clumps. Watch in such locations for a shrub or low tree, with rather small oval leaves. The leaves are much lighter in color on the lower surface than on the upper, and the veins are very prominent on the lower leaf surface. The margin of the leaf is marked by small rounded teeth. Finally, the presence on the leaves of a few or many round, yellow to orange-colored rust spots will complete the identification. Send doubtful specimens to your nearest experimental farm for identification.

Owners of buckthorn hedges in towns and villages are inclined to think this matter does not concern them. However, if they will watch their hedges carefully during May and June they will almost certainly find rust on them. If rust traveled from distant oat fields to their hedges, there is nothing to prevent it returning to those oat fields. Therefore, it is the duty of every public-spirited citizen in Canada to replace his buckthorn hedge with a harmless one. Only the shortsighted will hesitate over this contribution to a basic industry

To get bees out of the supers, put bee-escapeon each hive latk in the afternoon. The supers will be clear of bees in from twelve to 24 hours. To places the escape, tip the stock of supers to be removed and slide the escape board underneath. Be sure the springs in the escape are just right—just far enough apart to let the bees pass through. After placing the escape, look closely to see that there are no openings through which robber bees can enter the supers to be removed.

SHIPPING CHEESE FROM MENIE FOR WEMBLEY FAIR

Dairy Instructor Praises Work of Frank Little of Menie.

MANY SPECIALS

Cheese From This Factory Has Often Been Graded as Special.

BURNBRAE, Aug. 6.—Frank Little of Menie, whose profession is cheese-making, has been noted in the past for his prowess as a champion tug-of-war man and also as a home-run hitter on Burnbrae ball team. Just now he is coming to the front in his natural sphere of labour. For three years he has operated the Menie cheese factory and has consistently turned out good cheese, on one occasion getting special grade for almost three months. His greatest triumph, however, was won last week when his cheese graded July 24th went into the special class for the second time this season. Mr. Publow, chief dairy instructor for Eastern Ontario was present at the grading station and considered Frank's cheese to be of sufficiently fine quality to deserve a place in the exhibit at Wembley, England.

As well as being an honour for the maker, this feat places credit upon the patrons of the factory for the quality of milk they are delivering, and also gives the Menie district another boost as one of the premier dairy districts of the province.

In addition to turning out first-class cheese this season, Mr. Little with the co-operation of his wife has succeeded in making the surroundings of the factory more pleasant and home-like than is usually the case. By the judicious use of paint, and careful planning of walks and flower-beds, the factory presents a very pleasing appearance from the road, and will undoubtedly leave an impression on tourists who pass that way.

The Menie plant is a comparatively new one, being built four years ago to accommodate a group of dairymen who were poorly situated as regards cheese factories. A joint stock company was formed of the interested farmers in the district, and they are now being repaid for their labour and money invested, by a well-equipped paying concern which will grow, rather than decrease, in value, as the dairy industry gains confidence in itself.

Crops are Good.

The heavy rains of the past two weeks have promoted very rapid growth in all crops. Second growth pasture is coming on so fast that a good deal of bloat is reported. However, the milk flow is responding by a substantial increase. Oats are filling extremely well, the straw being of just fair length and quite stiff with very little lodging reported. This will promote even, rapid ripening as well as being a saving on twine and temper at harvesting time. Early oats will be ready to cut by August 8, while barley is being cut alrendy. Wheat threshing has started the first crop to be threshed being that of Mr. Harry Bedford on July 30. Twine is higher in price this year, being from 17 to 18c per lb.

Corn, roots and potatoes continue to make strides. Some of the early corn has now reached the six-foot mark and gives promise of a bumper crop. A few fields are noticed where there has been poor germination. These thin stands remind one of the importance of testing the seed for germination. The potato bugs are as thick as ever and the old sprinkling-can has been much in evidence during the past weeks.

Raspberries are a good crop, although some of the wild patches are not as good as usual. They have been selling at 15c per box and 2 for 25c in crates. All garden stuff seems to be very plentiful.

CANADA'S CROPS

There is such a thing as being too optimistic in crop reports for Canada. It is only natural that people should make estimates of what can be expected from the acreage sown, but it is absurd to count upon the greatest possible yield from this without taking into consideration the many adverse conditions which may arise to prevent this. This year early conditions seemed to hold great promises and many optimistic reports appeared in consequence but it will be just as well for the country to notice that the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, was not responsible for any of those. He has just returned from studying affairs—political as well as agricultural—in the west and he discounts the statements as to a tremendous wheat crop. "The bumper yields spoken of and anticipated two or three weeks ago," he said, "have been modified considerably by a shortage of rainfall, and severe heat in certain districts. Notwithstanding this, however, there is every promise of a good, fair, average crop. Moreover, it will be earlier than usual and will be distributed over practically the entire grain growing areas."

We do not refer to this in order to cause any disappointment, but in order that people may not raise their hopes too high as to what may be expected from the harvest this year. A bumper one would be of immense service, of course, to the country, but it is better to recognize now that this cannot be expected, than go on thinking that it will come. A good average fair crop is something very well worth while being thankful for, and we will go so far in being so optimistic as to think that, judging from reports of crops in other countries, Canada's average one this year may be worth more than the average price. In the meantime the people can go on endeavoring to build up the prosperity of the country in every possible way. They can, for instance, wherever they go, abroad, boost the advantages and opportunities which Canada offers for the investment of capital and the development of its wonderful resources.

FIRE BILL HAS JUMPED $24,000 IN PETERBORO'

Advance of 15 Per Cent. Last Saturday and More Expected.

NO RELIEF SEEN.

Crude Rubber Now $1 a Pound—Once Was 30 Cents.

Ontario motorists will foot an additional tire bill of no less than approximately $4,480,000 per year, as a result of the rise in price since April. The last jump is costing motorists of the province at the rate of no less than $1,680,000 per year.

On Saturday last, the prices of tires went up 15 per cent. and more increases are cominng. This latest raise will cost each motorist $6, while the total yearly increase in cost to each motorist as a result of rising prices during recent months will be in the neighborhood of $16, thus Peterborough's 1,500 motorists will fork out something like $24,000 increase in tire bills this year as compared with 1924. If prices are increased further, the cost will be more than proportionately larger than these figures, for any increased percentage in price will be based on the present new high selling rates.

There are about 3,000 car owners in Peterborough County, and approximately 280,000 in the province as compared with 271,000 last year.

The owners of the larger cars will, of course, be hit the hardest. The average extra cost for the owners of what are usually referred to as light cars, will probably have to pay an additional $9.40 a year for tires, where as the owners of heavier cars will probably contribute, on the average, $24 to $26 a year more for tires than formerly.

No Relief in Sight.

It will be some time yet before rubber prices recede, according to John Western, vice-president and general manager of the Dunlop Rubber and Tire Co., Limited. He points out that rubber plantations have been allowed to get into poorer condition than formerly, on account of the export restrictions of the Stevenson plan, and that these will have to be rehabilitated before the output meets the demand and creates a surplus. He thinks this may take a year.

Big Fluctuations.

"Tire prices are not yet quite so high as they were during the war," J. W. Watson told The Examiner today, "but they are coming along." Since March 16 there have been altogether two drops and six advances in prices, and two more advances are probable. The early advances did not affect smaller tires, but that immunity is now disappearing and the next increase will probably chiefly affect the smaller sizes of tires.

Mr. Watson illustrated the fluctuations in the rubber market by quoting wholesale prices for an oversize 33 x 4 tire since March. The prices for the same type of tire were:

March 16	$19.00
April 14	$16.60
June 4	$17.45
June 24	$19.20
July 20	$20.25
August 1	$25.60

Crude rubber, he said, touched $1.25 per pound some weeks ago, the highest price ever recorded and is now quoted at $1 per pound. The rise in prices may be appreciated when it is recognized that 30c per pound was long a usual price.

The costs of tires to local motorists, says Mr. Watson, would be still higher were not prices kept at the lowest possible level on account of very keen competition, which will keep figures at the bottom level consistent with the increased prices for raw material.

MAGISTRATE FINDS HIMSELF IN DOCK

As Member of Police Commission, He Views Traffic Signals From Every Point.

It is not often that a magistrate finds himself placed in the dock. When this does occur, it is usually an affair calling for screaming headlines and crowded court houses. But this unusual spectacle was witnessed at yesterday's demonstration of the proposed street signalling system, in the Court House, and strange to say aroused little comment. As Magistrate, as Police Commissioner, and as a motorist Magistrate O. A. Langley is vitally interested in traffic problems. Yesterday he studied the line of approach to the signals from all angles and spent several minutes in viewing the lights from the dock, which has been occupied by so many, to whom His Worship has administered fitting retribution or tendered advice and admonition.

RADIO INTERVIEW WITH EXPLORERS

Questions Asked MacMillan Expedition and Answers Received.

MANY POINTS HEARD.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ills., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press)—News interviews by personal contact and other ordinary domestic means today gave way to the romance of radio when Associated Press interviewed the MacMillan polar expedition 3,700 miles away in the Arctic wastes.

Lieut. Commander Eugene F. McDonald of S. S. Peary which conveyed the expedition to its base at Etah, Greenland, answered a series of five questions radioed to him by Associated Press from station 9XN of the Zenith Radio Corporation, Chicago.

Beginning with midnight, Eastern Standard time, radio code was resorted to with station 9XN calling "WAP" and McDonald answering "Okeh McDonald."

It was explained to him that Associated Press wished to interview him. The questions and answers as recorded are:

"What point and greatest distance you have heard or transmitted human voice by radio?"

"I have heard code from New Zealand. Have worked code with England, France, Holland, Sweden and Catalina Island, heard voice from Chicago and Schenectady in daylight, transmitted voice and have been reported heard in Seattle, New England and London."

"Have missionaries begun using radio receivers and what do they say about it?"

"We found only one missionary using radio, Rev. Perett, Hopedale, Labrador, who has been to his home in London only three times in 32 years, gets mail seldom and says radio is a great boon. I presented missionaries with set."

"Is the Eskimo guide Itookashu with you?" (Itookashu was guide with Peary and MacMillan on previous expedition).

"Itookashu is now with us."

"Will it be possible to reach your planes by radio" (Referring to three planes carried by the expedition in its attempt to reach North Pole).

"Have difficulty in maintaining two-way communication with planes but expect to eradicate this."

"Do Eskimos fully appreciate radio concerts?"

"He just accepts it as another great work of the white man and to him it is not more wonderful than the phonograph."

The expedition plans, before it returns to arrange its broadcasting outfit with stations in Chicago and other cities to relay its messages throughout the country in order that all may tune in and hear concerts by an orchestra aboard Peary and Bowdein as well as impromptu concerts of Eskimo band.

MUSIC TRANSCENDS A REALM OF WORDS

Mendelssohn Considers That Expression Is Definite and Far Reaching.

"Programme music" has become so much the mode, music which dismisses that "beauty" of the kind that might be called classic," that it is interesting to read an expression from Mendelssohn—who probably surpassed all others in the balance of the classic and romantic spirits in music—in a letter written by a young poet, to the composer, asking if he had succeeded in embodying the sentiments of certain of his compositions in a set of poems written for this purpose.

"You give the various numbers of the book such titles as 'I Think of Thee,' 'Melancholy,' 'The Praise of God,' 'A Merry Hunt.' I can scarcely say whether I thought of these or other things while composing the music. Another might find 'I Think of Thee' where you find 'Melancholy,' and a real huntsman might consider 'A Merry Hunt' a veritable 'Praise of God.' But this is not because, as you think, music is vague. On the contrary, I believe that musical expression is altogether too definite, that it reaches regions and dwells in them whither words can not follow it and must necessarily go lame when they make the attempt as you would have them do."

LAWN SOCIAL.

Immaculate Conception Church Had Record Crowd at Outdoor Affair.

The Lawn Social and Sale held last evening on the grounds of The Immaculate Conception Church was a great success. A record crowd was in attendance, and the various booths and the Country Store had splendid patronage. The grounds were illuminated by electricity, and the weather was ideal for the event.

An object of great interest was "Freemona Ormsby Echo" the prize Holstein-Freisian heifer, who will go to the lucky person who was able to compute most correctly the number of beans in a large glass jar. Guesses last night ranged all the way from 1,022 to [illegible],000 odd.

On a large truck, placed in a convenient position, the Woodbine Orchestra, composed of Messrs. Leslie McCormick, Jim McCormick, H. Vinette, and Jno. Smith, provided excellent music during the evening hours.

There was a variety of useful and fancy articles at the Country Store, which was in charge of Miss Mary Murphy, with Mr. T. Turcotte doing good work in connection with the evening sale.

Messrs. M. English, Wm. Moher, P. J. Devlin, W. McConkey and W. Armstrong, were looking after the guesses in connection with the Holstein. Jack Morency was in charge of the wooden milk bottles that formed a target for more or less lucky marksmen.

The Sodality booth did a rushing business all evening. This was a long enclosure, decorated with paper streamers and Japanese lanterns, and was supervised by the president, Miss Stella Brady. Coffee, pie and cake were served here at the supper hour, with ice cream and soft drinks also on sale.

The fish pond, a magnet for the younger fry, was in charge of Miss Helen Collins, assisted by the Misses Louise Flynn, Ethel Perdue and Patricia McAuliffe.

KEEP IDENTITY.

Saskatchewan Progressives Are Not in Favor of Party Merger.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press.)— That the Federal Progressive Party should retain its identity and not be merged into any other parliamentary group, was the substance of a resolution passed at the closing session of the Saskatchewan Federal Progressives here yesterday.

Member Of Audience Breaks Into Programme

In last night's large appreciative audience at the Chautauqua, there was one auditor at least, who disapproved and showed that disapproval in no uncertain manner. During Miss Kemp's exquisite delivery on the 'cello of Beethoven's "Minuet," the only dog in the audience entered into competition with the artist and, commencing with low murmurs of distress swelled out into a crescendo of howls and yelps that perturbed the 'cellist and proved too great a strain on the gravity of the audience. Miss Kemp continued without a break while the intruder was escorted to the street.

PLAN LAID FOR GREAT PROGRAM

Civic Holiday in Peterborough Will Be Well Worth Remembering.

ON MONDAY.

Peterborough has been wishing for years for a real peppy, bang-up, stay-at-home holiday—and Civic Holiday appears to be it. Monday first will see all the place of business closed, and all the places of amusement in Exhibition Park open. There will be sports, booths, horse racing, community singing, football, baseball, soft ball, dancing—and a hundred other attractions.

The big sports day is being put on under auspices of the Great War Veterans' Association, assisted by the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and other organizations. There are races and contests for old and young. Even the very old may compete for a five dollar gold piece, to be given the oldest person present, and the largest family will benefit to the same extent. The youngest baby will receive a silver cup.

Music will be provided by the Band of the Peterborough Rangers and Sedgewick's Orchestra.

This will be the first real stay-at-home Civic Holiday attraction Peterborough has had in years. It should not be missed, for it's not often Peterborough people get together to enjoy themselves—but when they do.

It's up to everyone to be there, and see what happens.

LAKEFIELD PERSONALS

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 6—Mrs. L. H. Grahame was the hostess of a delightful tea at her home on Reid Street on Tuesday afternoon, the occasion being in honor of Mrs. Donald Fitzgerald, whose marriage took place in Montreal recently. The dining room, where tea and punch were served by several assistants in gay colored frocks, was decorated with sweet peas and marguerites. The guest of honor wore a dainty frock of white crepe with touches of green and green hat.

Among those present were: Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Lampman, Miss Kate Simpson, Mrs. Todd, Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. Osborne, Miss Ruth Crawford, Miss Gwendolyn Simpson, Miss Helen Simpson, Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Fred Brown, Mrs. Ellwood Northey, Mrs. J. W.M.S. Meeting

The Women's Missionary Society of the continuing Presbyterian church held a meeting on Friday at the home of Miss Tanner. The president, Mrs. J. M. Simpson, conducted the meeting. As the Presbyterian women are opening a new school home for both girls and boys at New Liskeard, Ont., a call has come to all the Auxiliaries of the church to help with the furnishing of this home. Steps are being taken by the local group of women to provide bed linen and towels for the institution.

Road Improved

The citizens of Lakefield and the surrounding country are pleased to see the road work that is being done on the Peterboro-Lakefield highway this year. The widening of such a well-travelled road has been felt to be a long felt want and when the grading is completed and is surfaced with gravel, it will become one of the main roads of the country. There are many who hope that what is known as Phelan's corner will not escape the superintendent's notice, and that this really dangerous intersection will have the cedars which are such a menace to the view cleaned away.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Steer and family of Peterboro motored to the village on Saturday and were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Smith.

Mr. Frank Erskine of the Royal Bank staff in Lindsay was a visitor to the home town over Sunday.

Each afternoon many bathers enjoy a cool dip in the river. On Monday afternoon Mrs. Gordon Northey entertained a number of her friends at a "swimming party." The ladies had tea on Mrs. Northey's porch after the daily swim.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ridpath have returned to the village from a holiday at Clear Lake, where they occupied Mr. Ayette's cottage.

Dr. and Mrs. Ross Jewell of Toronto are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Tanner.

Mrs. W. M. Graham and Miss Blanche Graham who are on a western tour send back most encouraging reports of their trip There are one hundred and forty in their party, most of whom are teachers. They will cover 6000 miles and expect to return to Lakefield on Wednesday, August 12.

The Value of Labels.

Labels as step and time savers are of real economic value. A parcel, or box, barrel or bundle that is distinctly labelled need not be opened to see what it contains for it is obvious and the search is ended at a glance.

Every package that is put away in closets or trunks should be distinctly labelled. Not simply what the article is but whose it is and all that is needed to identify the contents should appear.

The boxes and bags are all in need of labels to be certain of their contents. It is also an excellent idea to mark all the silver bags clearly. This will save opening several to find a certain set of spoons or forks. When all such things are labelled, it is well to take a list of the packages for future reference. This should always be done when the things are sent to safe deposit in order to have a complete record.

There is nothing that gets away from the housekeeper like linens if they are not listed and frequently checked. Packages should be carefully labelled of linens not in use every day. A list hung on the closet door, its duplicate held with other valuable household papers, helps in the immediate location of what should be in the closet.

Clear and distinctive labels on all food containers make it very easy for help, or the housekeeper, to locate her wares.

One careful housekeeper labels her various brushes and brooms so that they will be used in the right places. She also labels her various dusting and other cleaning cloths. They appear on a list of her own and when one gets worn that particular one is replaced by new.

Upstairs pails, dustpans and other household implements are also labelled, and questions are asked at once if they are found out of their own place. This may sound complicated and troublesome to the hit-or-miss housekeeper, but to the woman who really takes her home in the right way and makes a business of housekeeping she will understand and probably profit by some of the suggestions that are offered here.

Household equipment costs money, some of it real money in these days of special tools for all branches of the work, and we should take care of this property as we would any other kind. If labelling and listing helps keep track of it for us, let us label and list. It does not take long to label with the ready-gummed labels and they are quite inexpensive in all sizes.

Jam pots, preserve jars, jelly glasses, crocks and bottles containing the goodies that we have taken pains to do up should be labelled carefully with a record of the contents.

The woman who keeps her shoes neatly in boxes will find it a great help to label each box clearly, then she won't have to open all to find what she needs.

Let's Talk It Over

SOME PLAIN FACTS ON A HOUSEWIFE'S JOB

Robert Service wrote a poem about a telegraph operator stranded in a lone station in the Far North. It begins:

I will not wash my face;
I will not brush my hair;
I "pig" around the place—
There's nobody to care.

That verse makes me think of Ellen Wellborn. Ellen's a married woman. Twelve years ago Ellen was a vivacious blonde. Then she fell in love and married Ned Wellborn. Today Ellen is thirty-three years old and looks a faded forty-seven! "My life is as dull as dishwater! The same old thing—day after day. No one on earth could keep young and pretty and full of life doing housework. It's different with you business women. You've nothing to do but sit at a desk all day. It's easy enough for you to keep your looks and disposition. You ought to try housekeeping for a while. You wouldn't care after six months whether you ever saw a marcel again or not."

That's a very important speech. It's important because it voices the inmost thoughts of practically every married woma who didn't have a "job" before she married, and it touches on that deep and dangerous misunder[illegible] has risen between "married" or "domestic" women. I'm going to answer Ellen today, and also the other thousands of women who "pig" around the house and then wonder why "hubby," after a dozen years of domestic life, elopes "with some fool little steno without a thought in her head."

So you think it's different with "business women," do you, Ellen? You think such women just naturally keep their looks and disposition. You are quite sure that if you were a "business" woman you would keep your looks and disposition. Well, let me give you a little inside dope from the "Scarlet Chapters in the Life of One Business Woman,' namely—ME.

I have a job. It's a good job. I'm really my own boss. I can go where I like—do what I please—follow my heart's dictates. Sounds wonderful, doesn't it? All right; here's how it works out.

I like waffles for breakfast—and sausage and fried apples, also coffee with thick cream—or perhaps ham steaks with hot muffins, or pork chops with cream gravy. I also like cream puffs. Lobster a la Newburg, peach melba, fried chicken and other trifles like that. But what do I eat? I eat bran bread, stewed prunes and black coffee for breakfast, I eat lettuce and tomatoes and more bran bread for lunch, and rare beef, spinach and fresh fruit for dinner. Get that? All right, go on. I like to lie in bed until 8—maybe 9—and I won't feel peeved if I can stay there until 11. I like deep, warm baths. I like to doll up and go out gadding in the middle of the afternoon. And the rest of the time I like to lie around looking like a German mark. All these things I like to do. But—

I rise at six and take a cold shower. I write regularly every day, rain or shine, mad or glad. I do my work whether I'm feeling like a June morning or a December murder. I do not do these things because I want to attain beauty or fame. I do them because I want to be Fit. I Want To Make Good. Unless I fight continually for that fitness, I won't make good, Ellen. And if that day does come for me, no bored but kindly husband is going to keep on supporting me because of my "years of devoted service." I Will Just Naturally Get The Can, and I Will Deserve It.

That's the intimate plan of this "business woman's" life and it is also the plan of every successful business woman that you may know. You ought to know that plan. It might cast a great light upon your problem.

I don't doubt that you keep your housework up, Pal. But if you are going to succeed in anything, business or housework, you must do more than keep up the work. You Must Keep The Fire In Yourself Up. You must keep yourself, bodily and mentally, in fighting trim.

How hard are you trying to keep fit, Ellen? How much rich food, comfort and petting do you deny yourself that your body may keep eager and willing? Do you ride hard on your hours or do you waste twenty minutes here talking to Ellen over the back fence, or a half hour there phoning Mabel?

Is It Housework That's Getting You, Ellen, Or Is It Your Own Laziness, Lack of System, Lack of Self Restraint? And how about that husband of yours? He's boss at the office; he sees a girl fired or hired for inefficiency every day of the week. Suppose he takes it into his head to fire you some day for the same reason?

PROBLEMS OF DECORATION

ATTRACTIVE ACCESSORIES FOR GARDEN AND TERRACE

Where one boasts a real garden in which to potter around through the hot Summer days, the natural thought is to make it a place not only for flowers and a kitchen garden, but a real addition to the house. Even a few square feet of back yard can be transformed into a haven for the warm evenings.

Some of the accessories—if one may call them such—which go far toward determining the layout of a garden are pictured above. All of these can be had in concrete, which is within the reach of the most modest budget.

Can you imagine a small back yard with the fountain pictured above as the centerpiece? A plumber can connect this at a moderate price and the tinkling of dhe water on a hot evening more than repays any expense. With a mass of flowers, petunias, sweet alyssum, phlox, or the star-like rock flowers, with their winsome blue blossoms nestling around the base, and a border of bricks, standing on end, or even ordinary stones, this makes a center around which one may build an adorable garden.

Either of the bird baths shown are also good centerpieces, and the joy you will have in watching your feathered neighbors enjoy them will be equalled only by their pleasure.

The pottery jar—which can also be had in concrete—can be tucked away in an odd corner, filled with sand, which has been topped with rich earth and planted in ivy, as can also the urn and pedestal. This is particularly good where one has a terrace, or a terraced porch.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY
By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A GOOD-LOOKING DANCE FROCK

The other night I was invited to a party on the roof of one of th big hotels, and I fared forth in great spirits.

It was a warm evening, so I wore my coolest Summer evening frock. As the taxi sped toward the smart hotel I thought:

"It will be fun to see what the part of New York that is still in town is wearing in the evenings."

My escort and I alighted at the hotel and were soon speeding skyward in a very fast, very cool elevator.

We stepped out on the cool roof, which gave a good view of the lights of the city below, and found the rest of our party at a long table.

We were seated at one end, where I had a good view of the people at the table, and also of the dance floor.

I had already noticed the lovely soft blue chiffon one of the girls in my party was wearing. I could only see that it had a small V neckline in front, and when she rose to dance I had a pleasant surprise.

"What a lovely frock Mabel is wearing," I remarked to a friend.

The frock was perfectly straight in front. The back was shirred and finished with a flounce and a bow of the material.

The friend I had addressed eyed Mabel carefully and remarked:

"It is a good dress, there's no doubt about it. Mabel told me she brought it from Paris."

"I thought I detected a very advanced note in that fulness at the back. You know it's the new idea for Fall, after such a long run of fulness at the front," I informed my neighbor.

She listened attentively, and then remarked:

"I am so jealous of you girls who work with clothes and know what the new fashions will be months before they come out. Imagine knowing what will be smart for Fall at this early date!"

"My dear, it's our business to know," I reminded her, as I rose to dance.

ALEXANDER THE GREAT AND MUSIC

The opinion of royal people about the value of music varies as much as does that of others, and while some monarchs have been fine musicians, others have known little about the art and have despis[illegible] it accordingly. King Philip of Macedonia was one of those who thought little of it and when his son, Alexander, acquired a great knowledge of it and began to promote competitions among the pipers and harpists of the time, the king asked him whether he were not ashamed to know so much about such effe[illegible] subject. The reply of Alexander is not [illegible]orded but he continued his interest in music and it evidently did him no harm in the matters which were regarded as of importance to a king in those times for later he became th greatest general in history, and is now remembered more as Alexander the Great, the leader of armies which conquered the world, than as Alexander the musician, who encouraged people to play and sing.

Skirts and Knees

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (United Press)—

Upwards, oh! upwards,
Skirts soar like a kite,
Making dames girls again
Both day and night!

At last comes a style that all women agree upon and that is—short skirts. From Boston to New Orleans the short-skirted wave finds women aligned against the long hem-line.

In New York, famous for sky-lines and hem-lines, it is not unusual to see a woman of fifty Summers and as many Winters, strutting her kneecaps up Fifth Avenue. Some of them, whom avoirdupois has given ample knee dimples, wear fancy little garters below the knee so that when the wind blows, one's attention is focussed upon the garters rather than on the over-fat knee.

Odd, indeed, are the short, pudgy women whose frocks look scarcely long enough for a ten-year-old child. From a rear view one sees childish legs, half-sized frock and bobbed hair crushed into a peanut sized bonnet. From the front one sees evidences of a varicose vein and a double chin. But—girls will be girls this year and they probably will be for some time to come, since there is no evidence of skirts getting back at half-mast.

Men have grown too blase to take notice of feminine nether portions. It is the women who gasp at their sister's leg displays. A skirt an inch below the knee causes no comment, but one above the knee stirs emotions in the breasts of the Sisterhood akin to murder.

Short skirts have solved the question of "who women dress for." A sneer from another woman is deemed a compliment worth risking the kneecap for, since none but the shapely leg deserves a sneer in these days.

ADVICE TO GIRLS
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
Should a girl kiss a young man when she has gone about with him for about a year, but is not engaged?
WAITING.

WAITING: All demonstrations of affection between people who are not engaged to be married, are improper, my dear. No young man will ask you to violate conventions that you hold sacred—if he really respects you. And if you choose your friends with care you will not be confronted with these embarrassing problems.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
Is it proper for a woman to take hold of her husband's arm when walking down the street?
GREY EYES.

GREY EYES: Nowadays it is considered provincial for a woman to take hold of a gentleman's arm, or vice versa, except in cases of necessity. In crossing a crowded street, or going down stairs, it is quite proper for the gentleman to offer his arm, but otherwise this gesture is unnecessary. Of course, the same rule holds good for members of your family as for friends.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

CROPS DAMAGED.

Severe Electrical Storm in Dover Township Stripped Corn.

CHATHAM, Aug. 6. — (Canadian Press.)— A severe electrical storm, followed by hail, swept over a portion of Dover township yesterday afternoon, causing considerable damage to the crops.

The corn was exceptionally hard hit, the leaves being practically stripped from the stalks in many of the fields.

Sunny Mexico early this summer experienced a most unseasonal cold spell, during which one electrical dealer sold 450 electric heaters. The almost medieval charcoal brazier which, until recently, was the universal Mexican means of heating and cooking, is being supplanted by modern electric ranges and heaters.

My Hair Was Quite Gray
"My hair was gray. It was falling out. My scalp itched and dandruff appeared. A few applications of Kolor-Bak stopped the itching and dandruff. My hair soon stopped falling out and now is again its original shade. I look ten years younger." (A typical letter)

Don't Worry about Gray Hair

This Clean, Colorless Liquid Will Restore the Original Shade

Thousands of people have quickly banished grayness and have restored the original shade to their hair with the remarkable preparation known as Kolor-Bak.

Physicians and scientists know that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells in the scalp because these cells have become inactive. No matter what the cause, it is amazing to see how the grayness disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also banishes dandruff and stops itching of the scalp and falling hair. If you are gray, Kolor-Bak is all you need to make your hair look "young" again. No need to [illegible]h a sample of your hair—no tests to make—as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Money back instantly if Kolor-Bak is not satisfactory.

PETES SPOIL BELLEVILLE'S OLD BOYS' RE-UNION FESTIVITIES BY DEFEATING GRAND TRUNKS 5 TO 1

ONE BIG INNING.

Petes Clicked Up Four Runs in the Sixth—No Thrills.

The ball game provided for the Belleville old boys must have been somewhat disappointing, as the game was rather listless, and the Peterborough team won from Belleville by the score of 5-1. A large crowd witnessed the game, which was late in starting, due to a parade and grandstand performance which preceded it.

There was nothing very spectacular on either side. Belleville is hopelessly out of the running, while the Petes are pretty well assured of a place in the playoffs, so the result was not of material importance to either team.

Each team made six hits, but Heckman had the edge over Gerow, the Belleville junior hurler. The Peterborough veteran struck out nine while his youthful opponent struck out four. "Heck" walked only one but Gerow passed four, and hit two, besides cutting loose with a pair of wild pitches. Errors too, proved costly to the Belleville hurler. Peenie Mills had two which figured in the scoring, while Weir had one. None of the Peterborough misplays helped the Belleville score.

A little dumb base running by both teams gave occasion for two double killings. In the first inning, with Wicky Ross on second and none out, W. Mills hit to Johnston on the hit and run. The Petes' manager tossed out Mills and Ross, instead of stopping at third, kept on going and was an easy out, Harrison to Swanston. For the Petes, Heckman stood on the third base line, watching Ash being thrown out on a tap that hit the plate, and, thinking the ball had been called foul, made no attempt to elude Weir, who tagged him out.

There were no heavy hitters. Most of the safeties were of the scratchy variety, due to the roughness of the ground, caused by artillery manoeuvres recently. The Petes especially profitted by the rough gound.

In fielding, Helson provided the feature. Running at full speed toward second base, he picked off a sizzling grounder from Weir's bat, recovered his balance and threw out the speedy Belleville third baseman. Wicky Ross also made a couple of good catches while running at top speed.

The Trunks used some junior players. None of them showed any great promise, although Gerow needs experience, as his slow out cannot be hit very far.

Play By Innings.

Wolfe opened the proceedings by slamming one back at Gerow, which the pitcher knocked down and recovered in time to throw out the Petes' speedster. Johnson was walked and Swanston laid down a neat sacrifice. Heckman struck out.

Dumb base running stopped Belleville. Wicky Ross was walked and Weir sacrificed. W. Mills rolled to Johnston. Weir started with the windup and didn't stop at third, but a good throw from Harrison to Swanston completed a double play.

The Petes were easy in the second. Harrison lifted to W. Ross, Hall rolled to Meagher, and Ash grounded to Weir.

The Trunks had two men on but didn't score. Harry Mills was out when Heckman knocked down his hot one and Johnston recovered in time to catch him at first. Blakely lined over Holyman's head for a base, and Meagher followed with a similar drive over second base. Hagerman rolled to Helson, forcing Blakely, and R. Ross struck out.

The Scoring Starts.

The visitors started in the third, but failed to complete their work by putting a run across. After Helson had lifted to Meagher, Holyman shoved one out of Weir's reach. Blakely covered fast and made a nice stop but didn't recover in time for the put out. Wolfe was hit and moved up on Johnston's roller to Blakely. Swanston rolled to Weir.

Belleville opened the count. Gerow gave Holyman a high one. Ross hit to left centre for two bases and scored on Weir's single over second. Peenie Mills flied to Ash in deep right, Weir holding first. Harry Mills singled to right, sending Weir to third. Mills stole second but Blakely swung at three high ones.

In the fourth the Petes got a hit but no runs. Heckman sent a scorcher over second, that Meagher stopped but couldn't hold. Harrison bunted to Gerow for a sacrifice. Hall struck out and Ash rolled to Weir.

Belleville was easy. Harrison made a circus catch of Meagher's sky scraper on the foul line back of first, juggling the ball before holding it. Hagerman struck out and R. Ross grounded to Holyman.

In the fifth no runs were scored. Helson's fly and Holyman's grounder were both taken by Weir. Wolfe beat out a tap and stole second and Johnston walked. Swanston popped to Meagher.

For Belleville, Gerow struck out and W. Ross flied to Ash. Helson made a beautiful stop and threw on Weir's hard grounder.

The Winning Runs.

Four big runs, enough to win, were piled up by the Petes in the sixth. Heckman drew a walk to start. Harrison bunted for a sacrifice and Gerow threw to third instead, all hands being safe. Ash bounced a foul off himself, but Umpire Colling thought it had hit the front of the plate, and permitted W. Mills to throw out the batter. Heckman started for the plate and then changed his mind, and was tagged by Weir, completing a double play. Harrison took third and Hall second during the mixup. Helson's hard grounder to third hit a bump and dodged Weir, permitting Harrison and Hall to score. Helson took second on the throw-in and went to third when W. Mills threw to centre field. Holyman was walked and then Wolfe slammed one to centre field, sending in two counters. He took second on the throw to the plate, and stole third. Johnston hit to Gerow.

For the home team, W. Mills rolled to Holyman, and H. Mills raised one to Wolfe. After Swanston had dropped Blakely's foul the batter singled past shortstop. Meagher swung at a wild pitch for the third strike and reached first. Hagerman struck out.

The Petes added another in the seventh. Weir balled up Swanston's bounder. Heckman was hit. The runners were held while Harrison's Texas Leaguer was taken by W. Ross, who made a nice running catch, and Hall's high one fell to H. Mills. Ash hit a fast one towards third, but the ball hit a bump and bounced over Weir. Johnston, running for Swanston scored and Heckman reached third. Helson lifted to W. Ross.

For Belleville, Latchford, batting for R. Ross, rolled to Helson, Gerow struck out, and W. Ross rolled to Heckman.

Holyman and Wolfe started the eighth with strikeouts. Johnston singled to left. Swanston sent a long fly to right which Latchford dropped. Johnston tried to score on the play but a good relay throw, Latchford to H. Mills to W. Mills cut him down at the plate.

Weir got a life when Wolfe ran into Hall's territory and then dropped the ball. W. Mills forced him, Johnston to Holyman, and the play at first on Mills was close. Harry Mills' fly to left was easy for Hall and Blakely struck out.

In the ninth Heckman rolled to Gerow, Harrison rolled to Blakely, and Hall raised one to W. Ross. Meagher lifted to Hall, Hagerman was safe when Helson fumbled his grounder, Latchford struck out, and Keon, batting for Gerow, rolled to Holyman.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Yesterday's games leave the teams in the same order as before, but with a wider gap between Peterboro and Oshawa. The standing now is:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Kingston	13	7	.650
Peterboro	13	8	.619
Oshawa	10	10	.500
Belleville	5	16	.238

Besides last Saturday's games, Kingston at Peterboro and Belleville at Oshawa, which were postponed, Oshawa and Kingston have another postponed game to play. The scheduled games left are: Belleville at Kingston, August 7; Oshawa at Peterboro, August 8; Kingston at Belleville and Peterboro at Oshawa, August 12.

Peenie Mills must have thought he was playing football when he went after Harrison's bunt in yesterday's game. The Belleville catcher kicked the ball a couple of times and then fell on it. The touchdown didn't count.

The Petes very unkindly spoiled the festivities in Belleville yesterday. Their victory was the only blemish on an otherwise perfect day. The parade was a great success, with clowns, floats, bands, decorated wagons, the fire brigade, etc. The grandstand performance drew loud applause. The old Bellevillians were enjoying themselves to the full, and a victory over the old rivals would have made the return to the old home a complete success; but the visitors needed the game and consideration for the home-coming natives was not allowed to interfere with business.

Chummy Gerow will have to pitch better ball against the Lakeviews if he hopes to beat them. Yesterday he got by for a while against the Petes ,but his wildness at critical moments was very costly. The slow out he served up to the batters didn't fool many of them, although it was difficult to hit any great distance. Latchford and Ross, also juniors, showed nervousness at the bat and will hardly stand up to Carl Wood's fast ones. Latchford dropped a fly when he was well under it.

The Knights of Columbus team, local juvenile champions, will play in Oshawa on Saturday, against the Oshawa kids. With Masterson pitching wonderful ball and getting air-tight support, the series should result in a win for the Peterboro lads, althouh good games may be expected.

COGS WON GAME IN SIXTH FRAME

Indians Falter in Outfield When Locals Start Batting Rally.

After playing sparkling baseball for five innings, Curve Lake Indians fell down in the outfield in the sixth frame, and Cognawagas won a much needed victory at Exhibition Park last evening by a shutout, the count being largely restricted to the infield, and, while there was little to choose between the two teams, the work of the Indians was given more attention by the fans. The splendid pitching of Merritt Taylor, the exceptionally good work of his catcher, A. McCue, and smart infielding held the Cogs to a single tally, the lone score coming in the fourth when Williams counted on a short passed ball following a low pitch.

In the sixth with one down, a long fly to left as dropped by Jacobs, and F. Cripps reached second. He scored on Prest's single over second. W. Cripps' liner went through Muskrat and both runners scored when Wilson's long double got away from L. McCue in the middle garden. Wilson was run down between second and third. Shadgett hit for to bases to score Cripps and Smiths single scored Shadgett. Rooke ended it on a fly to McCue.

Throughout the game, the Cogs played baseball that was hard to beat. Harvey Smith held the usually hard-hitting Indians to a single, only one of the visitors getting to first after the second frame. His infield gave him errorless support on twenty fielding chances. That's a good evening's work for any team. Prest handled the only chance in the outfield.

Between four and five hundred fans watched the game.

MILE FROM DOVER.

British Officer Handicapped By Effects of Many Wounds in War.

DOVER, England, Aug. 6.—Beaten by the tides and icy waters of the English Channel, Lieutenant-Colonel Bernard Cyril Freyberg, V.C., was forced to abandon an attempt to swim from France to England yesterday, within a mile and a half of his goal.

At one time, Colonel Freyberg, a world wad hero, who was nine times wounded and won many decorations at Gallipoli, was within a mile of the cliffs east of Dover.

Less than 17 hours previous to the disappointing end of Col. Freyberg's gallant effort, Mme. Jane Sion, a French woman, who made the same attempt on Tuesday, was taken from the water a mile and a quarter from the English shore.

Thus, twice within 24 hours, the English Channel proved an insurmountable barrier to the ambitions of swimmers, who, like Gertrude Ederle, sought the fame that goes with a successful crossing.

Lieut.-Col. Bernard C. Freyberg, in his battle with the English Channel, was handicapped by the effects of numerous wounds received in the World War. He served in the British forces from the beginning of the war to the end, including the Dardanelles campaign and held the rank of brigadier-general at the close of the conflict. He was wounded nine times, mentioned in despatches six times, and besides the Victoria Cross, won the distinguished service order with two bars.

Col. Freyberg is 35 years of age. In 1922 he was made a doctor of laws by St. Andrews University. His present army command is in the Grenadier Guards.

Col. Freyberg has long been famous as a swimmer. When [illegible] champion long distance swimmer of New Zealand, where he was educated.

He was awarded the D.S.O. for his famous exploit during the Gallipoli campaign. One night he swam from a British destroyer four miles to the shore and lit flares which lighted up the Turkish trenches and facilitated landing operations of the British forces.

Grew Weaker.

Great disappointment was felt that Col. Freyberg should have failed when victory was within his grasp, but during the last half hour of his swim he had been struggling desperately, growing weaker and weaker against adverse tides off Saint Margaret's Bay. Finally, the swimmer and those who followed him on an Admiralty tug realized it was impossible for him to reach shore.

IS CONGRATULATED.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 6. — Mme. Sion, plucky, 48-year-old French woman, who was forced by cold and exhaustion, to abandon her Channel swim after 13½ hours in the water Tuesday, received thousands of congratulations on her gallant attempt yesterday.

Diving into the Channel near Cape Gris Nez at 8.10 a.m. Tuesday, Mme. Sion nearly succeeded in her attempt to be the first woman to swim from France to England. She covered 37 miles, battling against the strong tides of the Channel which swept her from her course, and finally, with victory within her grasp, was lifted aboard a tug one mile and a quarter from Dover.

Mlle. Sion came closer to success than any woman who ever tried to negotiate the treacherous 21 miles of the Channel between Cape Gris Nez and Dover. In addition to establishing a record for submersion by women, she came closer to the English shore than any other of the several women who have tried to swim across the Channel from France to England.

WON CANADIAN TITLE.

Leo Diegel, of Glen Oaks, Long Island, Canadian titleholder, whose playing again featured the golf championships at the Lambton Golf and Country Club.

KINGSTON BEAT OSHAWA BADLY

Visitors, Minus Dainty and Tyson, Were Never in the Hunt.

MANY PITCHERS.

KINGSTON, Ont., August 6. — (Special). — Kingston disposed of Oshawa here yesterday in a Central Ontario League fixture by the score of 10 to 1 before the largest crowd of the season, the occasion being the Old Boys' Week.

Thousands saw the locals wallop Lennox out of the box in the sixth innings, to be replaced by Breckenbridge.

Gallagher started for Kingston but retired at the end of the seventh inning in favor of Cairns. Gallagher was not hit hard and only six hits were collected off him while Cairns allowed one. Lennox was touched for eight hits during his term of office and Breckenbridge for two.

"Teddy" Saunders starred for Oshawa pulling a snappy double play in quick style.

The game was good for six innings and then the locals had an easy time. The visitors were without Dainty and Tyson, who was suffering from a wrenched shoulder.

CHAUTAUQUA CLOSES SEASON IN SPLENDID HARP CONCERT

Tent Filled to Capacity Last Night For the Last Performance.

RETURN ASSURED.

Citizens Show Appreciation By Pledging Purchase of 1926 Tickets.

Large crowds attended the closing performances of this season's Chautauqua activities yesterday. A concert by the Harp Ensemble Company and a dramatic entertainment by Everett Kemp were the features of the afternoon performance.

The musical items were exceedingly well rendered by the company, which consists of two harpists, a violinist, a violoncellist, with a small portable organ accompanying, all the players being ladies. The programme was: "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise," "Barcarole," from Tales of Hoffman, "Zallah" by Lorraine, two songs, "Love is a Merchant" and "Daddy's Sweetheart," sung by Miss Fiertag, two harp duets, "Song Without Words" and "Believe me if all those endearing charms," followed by a concert piece, "Waltz Blue" and a solo, "My Wild Irish Rose," by Miss Fiertag.

Dramatic Recital.

Mr. Everett Kemp is a remarkably versatile artist. He gave a rendering of a drama in which he depicted twelve different characters as they appeared in major and minor roles in the plot. The story, the scene of which is laid in the Adirondacks, hinges around the efforts of the hero, Jim Fenton, to effect the release from an asylum of his friend, Paul Benedict, an inventor, incarcerated in the institution through the machinations of a rascally capitalist who had secured for himself the fruits of Benedict's labors. Mr. Kemp, in unravelling the plan by which Fenton succeeds in procuring the escape of his friend, passes swiftly from the assumption of one character into another by the changes in the inflection of his voice. In the course of one act, he speaks with the voice of Fenton, of Benedict, of Benedict's son, and of the superintendent of the asylum, his wife and the pompous conceited doctor in charge of the patients.

The imprisoned man is carried out during the night, and is brought through a terrific storm to the hut of Fenton in the depths of the forest. Benedict, his mind partly unhinged by his terrible experiences and his body, weakened by long confinement, seems on the verge of succumbing in spite of the attentions of Fenton and an Irishman, Mike Connor. Through the ministering of his friends and the prayers of his son, Benedict recovers his health of body and mind. At this point the story switches somewhat abruptly to the village of Seven Oaks, where we are introduced to Miss Kezia Butterworth, a dressmaker, to whom Fenton appeals, to make a suit of clothes for his convalescent friend. Eventually after much persuasion, the lady agrees to accept the job, and the last act is ushered in with wedding bells and 'happiness ever after' for Fenton and the dressmaker. The story as rendered in 4 acts by Mr. Kemp, was expressive and full of light and shade. Mr. Kemp showing considerable dexterity in passing from humor to pathos.

"The Shepherd's Dream."

The curtain rang down at night on the Chautauqua activities in Peterboro for this year by the rendering before a tent packed to capacity of a special feature, "The Shepherd's Dream," by the Harp Ensemble Company.

The plot, which is very thin, and is evidently introduced merely to give a semblance of continuity to a number of excellent musical selections, is concerned with a shepherd who has dreamed and longed for years to be able to live among real musical artists. He finds his wish granted, becomes a prince and takes his place among the musicians. All in the company were attired in Victorian costumes.

The Prelude sung by Miss Fiertag was specially composed for this feature. Schubert's "Seranade" followed, then the Intermezzo, always a favorite, and "Mighty Like a Rose." A harp solo, "Waltz Caprice," was played by Miss Murphy, and as an encore, 'The Dance of the Gnomes.' Handel's Largo was played by the company. Miss Fiertag sang "Mother Machree." Miss Kemp rendered three 'cello solos, "A Spanish Dance," Beethoven's "Minuet," and "Silver Threads Among the Gold." The company then played "Gloworm," in which feature the lights were deftly manipulated in a manner subtly suggestive of the theme of the piece.

Looking Forward.

A lengthy intermission—over half an hour—was employed in the canvassing of promises of support and assistance in selling tickets for next year's Chautauqua, resulting in the pledging of all but seven of the necessary tickets.

George A. Gillespie, who has been a tower of strength in the Chautauqua committee, addressed the gathering, stressing the needs of finance and support that must be met if the Chautauqua is to be here in 1926. The Chautauqua circuit manager made a few remarks while a broken string was being replaced on one of the harps.

The slight impatience manifested by some of the audience at the delay, seemed to melt away before the beautiful strains of Gounod's 'Ave Maria.' Then came "Holy Night," sung by Miss Fiertag, and a violin solo by Miss Levin, "Gipsy Airs," which was well received, and an encore, "Waltz Bluett," was given. Misses Murphy and Van Bramer played a harp duet, "Memories." Miss Fiertag, still in the character of prince, sang "To Hear the Gentle Lark" and "Philosophy." Specially attractive was a harp, violin and 'cello trio, "By the Brook" which was cheered to the echo, and an encore, "Serenade," was given. The Postlude, in which the shepherd awakens from his dream, also an original composition, was sung by Miss Fiertag, with a dissertation from the awakened shepherd on the elevating influences of music.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

A light wood—11 or 12 ounces would be light—is very likely to have the effect of causing the player to check his swing at the ball. This happens because the club, being so light, accelerates so rapidly in the forward swing that it attains a runaway speed, so to speak, and the power developed in the swing is partly lost at the moment when it should accomplish the most. The very light club is more difficult to control, too, because it is more difficult to feel its weight against the fingers. Definite control of the club, throughout the whole swing, is one of the fundamentals of the swing. Choose a heavier club and make it a rule to swing it more slowly. The head should be just heavy enough so that the club will swing and pull the body through after it. Avoid such weight in the head that it makes your swing drag and become an effort.

ENTRANTS WANTED FOR BICYCLE GRIND

Lakefield-Peterborough Hike on Civic Holiday Programme.

While a number of race enthusiasts have signed up as contenders in the Lakefield-Peterboro grind, to take place on Civic Holiday, there remains a number of openings, and as the entry list will soon be closed, the opportunity of winning a handsome cup may be lost if speedy action is not taken.

The route laid out for the sprint is from Lakefield by the west road, straight down the George Street stretch and into the Exhibition Grounds by the Park Street gate. The finish will be in front of the grand stand, where hundreds will acclaim the winner of the endurance event.

This is a city where bicycles are used to a marked degree for pleasure and for work. It but remains to discover which machine can travel the fastest.

Bicycle speed events have become one of the principal attractions of the Toronto Exhibition, and there is no reason why speeders could not be developed here.

The cup which G. N. Gordon, K.C., assures the winner will be a memento well worth capturing.

Entry blanks may be obtained from Frank White at his sporting goods store on Charlotte Street. A big entry assures a keen contest and commensurate approval by the spectators.

When for the third time he found himself confronted by bandits demanding his money, a Scottville man yelled and took to his heels. There is nothing like will power and resolute action of this kind, when you find yourself falling into a dangerous habit.

WITNESSES HAD BEEN IN JAILS

Quebec Liquor Commission's Witnesses Scored By Judge.

CASE DISMISSED.

HULL, Aug. 6 — (Canadian Press).—The trial of an alleged illicit liquor selling case in Hull Police Court yesterday afternoon had a somewhat dramatic denouement, when one of the witnesses for the prosecution, placed in the witness box by the Quebec Liquor Commission, admitted under cross-examination that he had served three terms in the penitentiary for housebreaking, white slavery and receiving stolen goods, while another admitted having served a term in the reformatory for beating his mother.

Judge Millar, presiding, dismissed the case, and had some forcible comment to make upon the character of some of the men who were employed by the Quebec Liquor Commission in making their cases.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

A DYNAMIC DRAMA OF THE FROZEN NORTH

"Chechahcos" Here To-day at Regular Prices.

"The Chechahcos" (pronounced Cheechaw-koz) is a motion picture best described by the brilliant critic of the New York Daily News in the words "that something new for which frenzied directors and producers are ever seeking." Although it is being restricted to the so-called two dollar houses in most sections of the country, Manager Crowe, of the Capitol Theatre, made such a tempting offer that it was agreed to for the local engagement. It will be shown without any increase in admission prices.

The production is a powerful epic of the frozen north, photographed on the death-lurking glaciers of Alaska, the first production ever actually filmed there. It was more than six months in the making and the cast was recruited almost entirely from the speaking stage. It is headed by Eva Gordon, the brilliant star of the Danish Players of Copenhagen which recently made a triumphal tour of the United States.

The spectator sits spell-bound as the sections of glacier, each weighing thousands of tons, crash away into the sea, carrying death and disaster. It was on these same treacherous glaciers that a great deal of the action was photographed. While the awesome splendor of Alaska is shown throughout the film, it is in no sense an educational or scenic production alone, for the story is tense with dramatic moments and clutches at the heart strings. It is a story of the hardy pioneers of 1897, of the days when gold was everything, and a woman's honor was merely a pawn in the game of life.

During the filming of the picture the company was visited by the late President Warren G. Harding, who was so interested that he asked that the first showing be in Washington. Although he died a few weeks later, the wish was respected and the premiere presentation was made under government auspices and was attended by a distinguished gathering of American and foreign officials. The local engagement is limited to three days.

AT THE ROYAL.

VETERANS' NIGHT TO-NIGHT.

A military flavor will be given to the programme at the Royal to-night. In addition to the amateurs, the community singing will feature the old songs made popular by the boys in France.

Among the songs heard to-night will be:

"Long, Long Trail."
"Over There."
"Keep the Home Fires Burning."
"K-K-K-Katy."
"Tipperary."
'I Hate to Get Up in the Morning'
"Pack Up Your Troubles."

The usual list of amateurs will also appear. Mr. Harris will lead the community singing, as well as presenting a monologue written by himself, and a parody.

The entertainment has been endorsed by the 21st Battalion Club, and most of the members will be in attendance.

BEBE DANIELS, DIX, MARY ASTOR, FEATURED IN 'UNGUARDED WOMEN.'

Alan Crosland makes his debut as a Paramount producer with the release of "Unguarded Women," which begins a three-day run at the Royal Theatre to-day. Advance reports have it that the director of "Enemies of Women," "Under the Red Robe," and "Three Weeks" has surpassed all of his previous efforts. We may therefore look for the ultimate in screenplays when this production is flashed on the local silver sheet.

China, with its age-old civilization, is the interesting background of this gripping photoplay which James Creelman adapted from the 'Saturday Evening Post' story "Face," by Lucy Stone Terrill. The unusual theme of the photo-drama is bound to create a spirited discussion. Those who know something of the story will recall that it concerns a man who sacrifices himself to save the widow of his friend whose death he inadvertently caused on the battlefield during the war. There have been many post-war stories but none as dramatic and soul-stirring as this.

We can think of no one who is better fitted for the part of the gay and reckless widow than vivacious Bebe Daniels, handsome, virile Richard Dix is the ideal type of 'the man of honor'; and Mary Astor, with her winsome beauty is perfectly cast in the appealing role of the "true-blue" fiancee. All three have featured roles. The others in the strong supporting cast include Walter McGrail, Frank Losee, Harry Mestayer and Joe King.

AT THE REGENT

"THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS."

Dorothy Mackaill has the featured role in "The Bridge of Sighs," the Warner Bros. "Classic of the Screen," which will be the feature attraction to-day at the Regent Theatre, beginning to-day.

This popular favorite is supported by a cast that includes Creighton Hale, Alec B. Francis, Richard Tucker and Ralph Lewis.

Two other factors make this announcement an outstanding one. First, the fact that the story is from the pen of the famous song composer, Charles K. Harris, author of "Just Break the News to Mother" and "After the Ball Was Over"; second, the fact that the director is no less a personality than Phil Rosen, who ranks among the stellar directors of the country.

"The Bridge of Sighs" is the story of Billy Craig, the reckless, spend-thrift son of the President of the Craig Steamship Company. To make good an I. O. U. for $1,500, young Craig steals a large sum of money at his father's office. A trusted employee is sent to jail for the offence. Stung by remorse, Billy is prepared to confess the crime, but his father, fearing that the confession would kill Billy's mother, has his son shanghaied to spend a year aboard one of his own ships, while innocent Harper, the employee, crosses the Bridge of Sighs for a year's imprisonment.

How Billy, returned to the city, finds his moral salvation through the love of Harper's daughter, is unfolded dramatically in the succeeding scenes.

Critics say that the heart throbs that Mr. Charles K. Harris so successfully put into his songs are found in the photoplay which local patrons will see.

The lad's clothing caught fire and before the flames could be extinguished he was severely burned. He was taken to the general hospital in an ambulance where his condition is serious.

FORCE GERMANY INTO NEW WAR

She Needs Mines of Upper Silesia, Now Held by Poland.

FIGHT FRANCE, TOO

By J. W. T. MASON.

(Written for the United Press)

Evacuation of the Ruhr by France, after two and one-half years' experiment in inflicting damage upon Germany by seizure of the trans-Rhine mining area, marks the end of the French industrialists efforts to dictate the foreign policies of the Paris Government.

The Ruhr adventure was undertaken at the behest of France's magnates who believed they could crush German rivalry by transferring the Ruhr property to French hands. The French invaders, however, have done no more than spend on a useless programme money that could far better have been diverted to reparations and reconstruction.

France has made Germany pay the bill for the Ruhr invasion; but this means only that Germany has so much the less money to send to the allies as war indemnity. The Ruhr now has passed back to German possession, and the Germans will be in a fresh position to rival the French mining capitalists. France has gained nothing by crossing the Rhine, except the knowledge that industrialists are bad guides in foreign affairs.

Germany Crippled.

Henceforth, the Ruhr will gradually resume its importance in supplying German industry with coal; but it can never meet the entire German demand. Germany must remain crippled industrially as long as the Silesian mines which were wrested from German possession and given to Poland, remain in Polish hands. Having regained control of the Ruhr, German diplomacy will now devote its energies to recovering the lost area in Silesia.

French statesmanship, which gravely damaged Germany by insisting upon the grant of the Silesian mines to Poland, must face the fact that Poland alone is not sufficiently powerful to hold the territory. The new defense pact negotiated between France and Great Britain excepts the Polish question from automatically calling Great Britain to France's help. If Germany can hold France at bay in the west, and at the same time wrest Silesia from Poland, Great Britain will remain out of the conflict. But, if the Germans develop a counter-offensive against France and cross the Rhine, then by the terms of the Chamberlain pact, the British army and navy will at once be placed on the side of France.

The German Government will not be in a position for a decade at least, to make effective a program of force against Poland. Perhaps two decades will have to pass, or more, before the Germans are ready. The failure of the French to subdue the Riffs shows that invention of new explosives and new ways of warfare since the ending of the World War have not made sufficient strides to warrant the assumption that the Germans have any secret magic of chemical warfare at their disposal.

But, the normal evolution of events in Europe cannot be held back. It is inevitable that in the end Germany will find a way of recovering her Silesian mines. The Poles, who are lacking in qualities of first-class statesmanship and who have an exaggerated impression of their own military strength, are not at all likely to surrender the mines to Germany voluntarily. France is financing Poland's military clique and France could bring sufficient pressure on the leaders of the Polish Government to prevent any such recognition by Warsaw of the inevitability of fate.

War on Poland.

Germany, therefore, will probably have to declare war on Poland to win back the Silesian territory whose possession is absolutely necessary if the Germans are to regain their rank as a first class power. The German army leaders, however, in proceeding with this program, will be forced to base their strategy on the fact that France is bound to go to Poland's relief with armed assistance.

The problem, therefore, for Germany becomes one of holding France at bay, along the Rhine, while fighting Poland at the other end of Europe. No invasion of France can afford to be risked by Germany for fear of automatically bringing Great Britain into the conflict. But, in actual fact, this simplifies the problem. Germany can conduct a trench defensive in the west against France and throw her entire offensive power into Poland.

If this plan proves successful, and if Germany wins, the Franco-Polish alliance will be broken. Then, Germany undoubtedly will prepare for a fresh war, this time against France, hoping to be able to get back Alsace-Lorraine, and to keep Great Britain out of the fray by giving assurances that Belgium and the Channel territory will not be invaded.

B. E. STEEL ACCEPTS COAL SETTLEMENT

Roy Wolvin Says Step is to Avoid Further Disaster.

HALIFAX, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press)—The British Empire Steel Corporation today advised Premier Rhodes that they had accepted the Nova Scotia government's proposals for the settlement of the Cape Breton coal strike.

The notice came in a telegram from Roy Wolvin, president of the corporation and said this step was taken "solely to avoid further disaster to the province and on your representation that it is for the general benefit of the people of Nova Scotia."

6 YEAR SENTENCE FOR BANK BANDIT

Wife Falls Into Comma When Hathaway is Sentenced.

LONDON, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press)—G. Leslie Hatheway, 27 years old, former bank clerk and automobile salesman, was today sentenced by Deputy Magistrate F. W. Gladman in city court to six years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary for hold-up and robbery of the Bank of Montreal branch at Thorndale on Friday, July 3.

Hatheway took his sentence stoically and listened intently to the brief oration Magistrate Gladman delivered to him prior to pronouncing sentence. Mrs. Hatheway who sat facing court in a chair next to J. M. McEvey, K.C., her husband's counsel, fainted when the sentence was pronounced and was carried to an ante-room.

The revenue was $667,227, and the surplus was increased over that of last year by more than $100,000.

ARCADIANS HERE TO PLAY MONDAY

Petes' C.O.B.L. Team Will Meet Torontonians in Battle For Trophy.

Word received late this afternoon assures Peterborough baseball fans of an outstanding game for the holiday. Sid Whatley of the G.W.V.A. was informed that Arcadians of Toronto will be here, with Rassan pitching, to battle the Petes Central Ontario League team. The game will be for a trophy to be awarded annually.

This encounter will be staged at Riverside park in the morning as part of the big sports day, the remainder of which will be at the Exhibition grounds.

Rassan and the Arcadians need no introduction, and fans will be out in force to see the C.O.B.L. Petes in action against a much talked-of aggregation in which the pitching star shines only a little brighter than his team mates.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS PROPOSED IN CITY

Demonstration Given in Police Court—Depends on Money Available.

Two representatives of the Chouse Hinds Company of Canada gave a demonstration of their signalling system in the Court-Room yesterday afternoon before the Police Commissioners, the City Engineer and Alderman Fife, chairman of the Board of Works.

The signals, which are intended to be placed about 14 feet from the ground, are equipped with red lights with "Stop" stamped on the lens, a green light similarly marked "Go," and a light indicating "Caution." A wide variety of systems was placed before the Commissioners. Photos were exhibited showing the system approved by towns and cities all over the United States. Some of those signals are operated manually, others automatically.

It was explained that a number of signals at street intersections can be circuited, enabling one officer to control the traffic at as many as 8 intersections. In the event of special circumstances arising at any one of those intersections, such as a parade passing that particular point, the signal there could be detached from the others and operated manually until the traffic returns to normal dimensions. It was further explained that a signalling apparatus installed at present would dovetail easily and inexpensively into any larger system that might have to be adopted in the future if the city should swell much beyond its present proportions.

Some consideration was given to the question of placing one suspended signal at the junction of George and Charlotte Streets, and another erected on a pedestal with a concrete base at the meeting of George and Hunter Streets. Excellent photos of examples of each were available and the methods of working were fully explained.

Some of the Commissioners thought it might be advisable to have a signal pedestal at the intersection of Charlotte and George Street, which might possibly be an aid in preventing automobile drivers from cutting corners. The base of the pedestal is slightly tapered, in such a way as to lessen the impact of any carelessly driven car that might grate the signal post in coming round the corner.

The Mayor expressed the opinion that the Commissioners were convinced of the desirability of having the signals installed, but added that the question of procuring them this year would be governed entirely by the amount of money that would be available for the purpose from the year's appropriation.

Two Big Bruins Race On Roaring Rails

MONTREAL, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Two large black bears got up before breakfast this morning to stage a race with a Canadian National fast freight train which runs daily between Joliett and Ottawa. They met the train about three miles east of Rinfret Junction, which is the point where the new line to the Laurentian Mountains crosses the Joliett-Ottawa line, and the train slowed down to about twenty miles an hour to give the bears a sporting chance. Both animals, however, remained on the track, but one persisted in following a zig-zag course, and in spite of all the engineer could do, was hit and run over. Following the tragedy, its mate made off into the countryside.

Rinfret Junction is only about thirty-five miles from Montreal. The country around is devoted to agriculture and it is very unusual for bears to be seen in the neighborhood.

Retrenching Move Shown Maple Leaf Mills Jump

TORONTO, Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press). — Trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning broadened out over a wider list, but there was no great activity in any particular issue.

The market showed a tendency to recede from the high levels reached during the advance of last week. A feature of the session, however, was the sudden jump of Maple Leaf Milling five points to 93, it closing at noon at 92 with a gain of four points.

Smelters and Canners each dropped a point. Winnipeg Rails eased a half, while C.P.R. strengthened a half, both being prominent in trading.

Crown Reserve Recovers Business Subsides Slightly

TORONTO, Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Business on the Standard Mining Exchange subsided to slightly over one hundred thousand shares this morning, with no decided trend of prices, apparent declines and advances being about equal. Crown Reserve, which has been under pressure for some weeks, recovered slightly under heavy buying this morning, the noon close being 15 3-4. Keeley, which has shown a better tone since the publication of last earnings statement, sold up to 1.84. Among the weaker gold issues were Tough Oakes at 33½, Teck Hughes at 1.69, Argonaut at 24½ and Premier at 2.15. Among penny stocks, Ophir moved up to 4½.

High Priced Stocks Soar In Climb For Peak Prices

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press). — Prices swept forward throughout the morning in Wall Street, despite the rather heavy profit-taking in some of the recent strong spots and a renewal of selling pressure against the minor motors.

High-priced industrials continued under accumulation, General Railway Signal soaring 7 points to a record top, Westinghouse Airbrake 3 3-8 and American Can. and Mack Trucks extending their early gains to 3 points each. Large buying orders also poured into Continental Can., and White Rock and Mallinson crossed thirty to a new high and the movement in buying was attributed to Dupont interests. Reports that special developments were pending in Midland Steel Products Preferred sent that stock to a new high above 130. Montana Power reacted four points from its early high before it encountered sufficient support to stem the tide of realizing sales, and Chandler, Jordan and Hudson Motors re-acted 1 to 3 points.

Call money was renewed at 4½ per cent.

ALIENIST SAYS SCOTT IS SANE

If Proved Insane He Will Be Incarcerated By State.

3 HOUR DEBATE.

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press).—The State to-day concluded its effort to prove Russell Scott sane.

Dr. William O. Krohn, the last prosecution alienist, told of his examination of Scott and his conclusion that the prisoner was sane. He repeated stories of the four previous State alienists that Scott declined to submit to an examination in jail.

Three hours were allotted each side for closing arguments. If the full time is used the case will not go to the jury before to-morrow noon. W. W. O'Brien began the closing argument for the defence.

There will be no appeal for Scott from the verdict of the jury. If the jury decides he is sane enough to realize his position, Judge David will fix a new date for execution. Incarceration at once in a State institution would follow a verdict of insanity.

HOW SHOULD I WEAN MY BABY.
This is a serious problem to many mothers. Weaning should always be done gradually, beginning about the seventh month, giving one or two bottle feedings during the day, increasing the number of bottle feedings gradually, until weaning is accomplished. Borden's Eagle Brand Milk is so like mother's milk in taste and ease of digestion that it can be given alternately with breast milk without causing abrupt weaning.
In this paper from time to time you will find an advertisement of Borden's Eagle Brand Milk, a food that has raised more healthy babies than all the prepared infant foods combined. Cut out the advertisement and mail it to The Borden Company Limited, Montreal, and they will send you free of charge, instructions for feeding your baby, and a Baby Welfare and a Baby Record Book. Or just write the company mentioning this paper, and they will be sent.

LONG HOLIDAY FOR PIT HORSES OF NOVA SCOTIA MINES ENDS ON MONDAY WHEN MEN RESUME WORK

Recovery of Normal Operations May Be Slow After Five Months' Strike.

DRAFT CONTRACT

Troops Will Be Withdrawn Soon and Enquiry Commission Appointed.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Signing of a six months' interim contract, withdrawal from the mining areas and of the military, re-commencement of work on Monday, and appointment of a commission to investigate the entire coal industry, are developments which are expected to happen in rapid succession as the result of the agreement of both the Empire British Steel Corporation and their miner employees to accept the government's proposals for a return to work. The appointment of the commission will probably take longer than the other developments but Premier Rhodes said Thursday it would be done as speedily as possible.

Work on the contract starts when the district board of the miners meet corporation officials in Glace Bay. It is not anticipated that this will present any appreciable difficulty inasmuch as the government's settlement terms provided that the contract should have 1922 wage rates and the 1924 working agreement. With the contract out of the way this week, Vice-President J. E. McLurg anticipates that work could be commenced in the mines on Monday. Withdrawal of some one thousand troops which were sent from Ontario, Quebec, and Halifax the middle of June following the New Waterford riot, is looked for very soon and is understood to have been already discussed by the government yesterday.

Idle Five Months.

The tie-up of the province's coal industry lasted just five months having started on March 6. Previous to that negotiations had been going on to agree on a contract both prior to and after the 1924 contract expired on January 15.

Informed reviewers of the condition of the collieries following the long strike are of the opinion that work can be started on Monday in collieries numbers 1A, 1B, 2, 4, 9, 10, 12, 14, 16, 22 and 24. Numbers 6 and 15 are closed indefinitely from flooding; No. 11 cannot operate until the burned bankhead and equipment is replaced; No. 21 was announced to have been abandoned at the beginning of the strike; and No. 24, previously dependent on eleven for power, will be curtailed in operation until other arrangements are made. These collieries are all on the south side of Sydney Harbor. On the north side maintenance work was carried on throughout the strike and no delay is expected in starting operation. The same situation prevails in Pictou County and maintenance work has been going on in Cumberland County for some time.

Horses' Holiday Ends.

Today the pit horses, probably sole benefiters from the strike, were taken from their pasture at Sydney to the mines.

It is recognized that though work will be re-started on Monday if there is no unexpected development, it will be a little while before normal conditions will prevail.

There is no corporation announcement as to the capacity at which the mines will be worked.

DOOR TO PEACE IN ANTHRACITE DISPUTE OPEN

Chairman of Operators' Conference Issues Hopeful Reply to Lewis Letter.

AGREEMENT URGENT

Both Sides Declare Reluctance to Causing Cessation of Mine Work.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug 7 (Canadian Press).—Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, in a reply made public last night to the last communication of President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, said that "in spite of the terms of his letter and the breaking off of negotiations, he was hopeful that means will be found to compose the difference between them and avoid a suspension of production."

"Every consideration demands that this be done," Mr. Warriner added.

Union leaders went ahead yesterday with plans for a general strike of anthracite miners on September 1.

A sub-committee was empowered to call the strike and close down all hard coal mines when the existing wage agreement expires.

Arrangements will be made with the operators for employment of maintenance men should the owners desire such services in event of suspension.

The miners' leaders admit these plans are decidedly tentative.

While they will not ask for resumption of wage negotiations, they expect further conversations with the owners, through:

1. Federal intervention.
2. State intervention.
3. A satisfactory reply from Samuel . Warriner to John L. Lewis' recent letter, which would be tantamount to a request by the operators for a resumption of the conference here.

Emphasizing how complete an impasse had been reached in the subcommittee meetings, the operators' representatives left Atlantic City for Philadelphia, where they conferred with Warriner and other leaders among the mine owners.

When they left, the miners' scale committee, 40 strong, went into executive session. This committee approved the action of the sub-committee representative who virtually bolted the conference.

A sub-committee of miners then was empowered to call for a suspension of work, if no agreement is reached before September 1, in 46 collieries throughout the anthracite district.

It was emphasized that the miners, as much as any one, are hopeful of early developments that will prevent the necessity of a strike.

Could This Canary Read Or Was It Just Homesick?

When R. T. Hounsell, 232 Edinburgh street, lost his canary he thought the best possible thing to do was advertise. Not that he had any idea the canary would read the ad, but being a newspaper man Mr. Hounsell knew that was the proper procedure.

The canary was put out to air, and the door of the cage was accidentally left open. Naturally enough, the bird sought the great open places, and was not seen again that day.

Next day the cage was put out, with another cage and another bird and when the time came to take them in—there was canary.

NOT PLANNED TO JOIN TWO ROADS

Amalgamation of Canada's Railways Is Not Being Considered.

CO-OPERATION ONLY.

OTTAWA, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, today emphatically denied that proposals for the amalgamation of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific were under consideration. "What is being done," said Mr. Graham, "is in line with my statement to Parliament, when the railway estimates were brought down. I then said that I was going to ask the two railways to get together as much as possible and try to come to some arrangement of co-operation that would include not only passenger traffic, but an exchange of freight on an equality basis that would prevent duplication, to that end and with a view to reducing expenditure we are endeavoring to secure co-operation of the two lines.

"What will be the outcome of these proposals, no one knows yet, but no scheme of amalgamating the systems has been considered."

Mr. Graham left for Brockville this morning.

K. K. K. OF B. E. IS ORGANIZED

Says Local Executive, Refuting Claims of K.K.K. of Canada.

HAWKINS HERE.

A local man, who is said to be the city organizer of the new K. K. K. faction, and is acquainted with Dr. J. H. Hawkins, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire, tells the Examiner that Dr. Hawkins was in Peterborough on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning. The meeting scheduled for Wednesday evening was held, at the place and time scheduled, and many people were there. The meeting was not held in Peterborough, and was never intended to be held here.

The Wizard's friend further states that Dr. Hawkins was not expelled from the K.K.K. of Canada, but resigned because he did not approve of the type of men who were leading the movement. In many cities the K.K.K. of the Empire has a firm stronghold and is supplanting the K.K.K. of Canada, said the local man, and Dr. Hawkins expects his organization to be as successful in Peterborough as it has been in these other cities.

MINERS MEET WITH OWNERS

To Draw Up an Interim Contract as Provided in Settlement.

WORK ON MONDAY.

GLACE BAY, August 7. — Canadian Press. — The District Board of the United Mine Workers met with the officials of the British Empire Steel Corporation at the Dominion Coal Company's general offices in Glace Bay this morning for the purpose of drawing up a six months contract as provided in the strike settlement proposals of the government. Should this contract be signed this week, it is expected that work will be resumed in the five-months-idle coal mines of the province on Monday.

The contract in which was embodied the Rhodes wage proposals, the 1922 scale of rates and conditions as under the 1924 agreement, is for six months.

The conference adjourned shortly after noon to meet again this afternoon. The discussion after luncheon will involve the manner in which the miners are to return to the pits. It is expected that whistles will blow at several of the collieries for work on Monday morning.

LAW ACTIVE.

May Invoke Act Forbidding Sale or Barter of Children in This Case.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—Sylvia Mullen, 12 years old, nosed out by Mary Louise Spas, 16, for the post of playmate to Dorothy Sunshine Browning, may yet join the circle of adopted daughters which Edward W. Browning, millionaire realtor, has gathered about him.

Sylvia, a blue-eyed girl with flaxen bobbed hair, who disappeared from her home yesterday morning, returned in the small hours of today. She explained her long absence by saying that she had been the guest of Mr. Browning and Mary Louise at a party, and then with flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes announced that "Daddy" Browning had promised to adopt her within two weeks. While Sylvia was on her party the authorities were threatening prosecution of Mr. Browning and Mary Louise's parents under the law which prohibits the barter and sale of children.

Mr. Browning frankly admitted giving each of Mary's parents $500 after the formal adoption "to express his good will toward them."

Bird S. Coler, commission of public welfare, branded the adoption as "highly immoral" and "a merchandising transaction." He said he would investigate all the details.

BALDWIN GIVEN HUGE MAJORITY ON MINE ACTION

Vote of 351 to 16 Approved $50,000,000 Subsidy to Coal Industry.

REVIEWED COURSE

Premier Told House of Commons' Reasons for the Government's Aid.

LONDON, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—By a vote of 351 to 16, the House of Commons approved the Government's supplementary estimate of £10,000,000 as a subvention to the coal mining industry.

Premier Baldwin faced a crowded House when he arose to move the supplementary estimates.

The Premier traced in the greatest detail the course of the negotiations leading up to the government's intervention in the dispute between the miners and the mine owners. He declared that while the government was reluctant to interfere the affair came to a point where it was forced either to countenance a stoppage in the coal industry that would further depress Great Britain's trade or "find a way out."

Baldwin said the first consideration which finally influenced the government to reach its decision in the coal crisis was the fact that all Britain was suffering from unprecedentedly bad trade. The government could not honorably allow the country to be plunged into a struggle which must not only paralyze all trade for a time but must throw back for months and possibly for years any solid chance of a trade revival.

Besides this, the government recognized that the people who would suffer most would not be the miners' leaders but the rank and file of the industry, whose personal sufferings would be incalculably greater than any sufferings which might be caused to the country by the amount of money which would be involved in the subvention plan. Finally, he said, the cabinet thought it due the people of the country before allowing them to be plunged into the consequences of a stoppage in the coal industry to give them time to think what such a thing meant, and to understand it.

MAKE A PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY FROM CITY TO CHEMONG PARK

Is Suggestion Made By Many Citizens After Travelling Road.

NEEDS PAVING.

All Agree That Immediate Attention is Required to Avert Tragedy.

That the Chemong Road needs attention is the consensus of opinion of many persons who travelled it yesterday. They were interviewed at Chemong Park by an Examiner reporter, and having just travelled over the road they knew whereof they spoke.

Many made the suggestion that the road should be named a Provincial highway; others think it should be paved throughout its length; and all agree that something must be done to preserve the lives of persons who habitually travel that way.

Here are the opinions of representative citizens of Peterboro and summer residents of Chemong Park:

J. P. Pulkinghorn: "So far as I am concerned it certainly seems much in need of repair. It is quite good towards Peterborough, but out from the city it gets very bad indeed. I think we ought to have a highway right from Peterborough to Chemong Park. If there is one road that should be a provincial highway, it is Chemong Road."

J. Fligg: "According to the amount of traffic passing over it Chemong Road should be paved. It might be a more expensive undertaking at first, but it would prove cheaper in the long run."

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., said: "That is what we want—a provincial highway on Chemong Road. The Dominion Government makes a grant for highways, and that grant is supplemented by the Ontario Government.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. considered the condition of the road was very bad. He thought the road should be fixed up and oiled to prevent the blowing of dust into the fields. He thought there might be a possibility of the road becoming a provincial highway next year.

E. V. Warne said Chemong Road was the worst between here and Toronto. Not only was it in a bad

English Lady Teacher Calls Styles In Canada Backward

TORONTO, August 7. — Canadian Press. — Forty six British Educationists arrived in Toronto to-day, in two parties, one of twelve, from the National Union of Teachers, and the other of 34 women from the N. U. women teachers.

Miss Anne Williams from Nottinghamshire, leader of the women's party, expressed the opinion that fashions in Canada were backward to say the least.

Miss Williams, however, was delighted with the spontaneous manner of the Canadian girls, compared with the more reserved English girl.

ENOUGH PINE FOR 50 YEARS

IMPORTING TIMBER.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Ontario has undertaken an elaborate system of reforestation and forest fire protection, declared Hon. Jas. Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, in addressing a banquet of lumber dealers of Ontario and Quebec in connection with their joint outing being held here. He further assured the lumber dealers that there was sufficient white pine in Ontario for the next 50 years.

Hon. Honore Mercer, Minister of Lands and Forests for Quebec, was unable to be present. W. F. Oliver, president of the Ontario wholesale lumber dealers, pointed out the fact that Canada was importing millions of feet of lumber from the United States for finish and furniture, when the finest birch grown was obtainable in Northern Ontario.

The oldest yacht club in the British Isles is the Royal Cork Yacht Club, founded in 1720.

Chemong Road Needs Attention

The highways of the country are its arteries. If the highways are clogged and inefficient, the country ceases to function.

This used to be true only of the railways, but more and more the roads of Canada are bearing traffic, freight and passenger, that formerly used the railroads and water lines. With their growing use they become more important.

Peterborough, it is generally conceded, has been in the past, and is now, ill-used in the matter of good roads. Probably her comparatively isolated position has something to do with the fact that here are no paved highways leading to the city from the main line of travel along the lake front; here are no well-made roads connecting the metropolis of a thickly-populated district with neighboring towns; here are only the merest trails leading to renowned holiday districts that in other places would be the centre of converging ribbons of concrete.

Those who travelled the Chemong road yesterday to attend the regatta there know the condition of the road, and know that the man with respect for his car and his life is well advised to keep off it. In every rod there are rocks protruding; everywhere are holes that test the best automobile, ruts that wear the driver as much as they menace his tires; and loose sand that grips the wheels and threatens to drag the car into the ditch.

This is the place that is advertised all over United States, where folders distributed by the railway companies and tourist organizations promise "good roadways."

And when the tourists come—as they are coming this year in thousands—can they be blamed if they think Peterborough has broken faith with them?

It is a well-known fact that motorists are attracted by good roadways and will not venture upon a road that does not provide comfortable riding. The natural beauty and attraction of the Peterborough district costs nothing. Nature thus endowed the country, leaving it to those who live here to make the beauty of Chemong, the gateway of Kawartha, accessible to the thousands who seek them.

A census of the traffic on the Chemong road has again been taken —as it was last year. The time seems to be past when temporizing of this kind should be indulged. How many tourists, attracted here by descriptions of the district, have already been repelled by this anything but perfect stretch of road? How many dollars, to descend to the material facts, has Peterborough lost through failure to keep faith with the people she invited to be her guests?

And then how about citizens of Peterborough, scores of whom own cottages at Chemong, and scores more who rent cottages there during the summer? They speak for themselves in the news columns today. They know that something must be done to keep Peterborough's vacation suburb in easy and comfortable touch with the city.

Prompt action is needed to serve Peterborough's citizens and to preserve the good name of the city in the minds of visitors, and to ensure the return of the flood of tourists that last year left $350,000,000 in its wake when passing through Canada.

$1,000 FIRE DAMAGE.

Bake Oven in C.G.G.E. Plant Suffered in Morning Fire.

One thousand dollars is the estimate of the damage wrought by a fire which broke out this morning at 2.10 in the works of the Canadian General Electric Co. The fire originated in a bake oven where the shellac is baked, and burned furiously for an hour. The Fire Department was immediately on the spot and by putting the contents of a 35 gallon tank of chemicals over the flames succeeded in confining the destruction to the bake oven.

RUSSELL SCOTT SAVED BY JURY FROM THE ROPE

Verdict of Insanity Was Returned After Nearly Four Hours' Deliberation.

SENT TO ASYLUM

First Ballot 7 to 5 for Insanity—Opposition Gradually Won Over.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7. —(Canadian Press).—Russell Scott yesterday won his last fight to escape the gallows.

A jury in the court of Superior Judge Joseph B. David found him insane.

He will be committed at once to a state hospital.

The jury reached its verdict after deliberating three hours and forty minutes. Its first ballot was reported to have been 7 to 5 for insanity and thereafter the vote gradually swung to the insanity verdict.

Scott immediately was committed to the Chester Asylum for the Insane.

The jury was reported to have become involved in a heated dicussion of the case and did not take its first ballot until an hour after deliberations were started. This ballot was reported to have been 7 to 5 for an insanity verdict, after which loud and angry voices were heard from the jury room. An early verdict was not anticipated and plans were made to care for the jurors overnight.

Two hours after the jury started deliberations, it was reported that four ballots had been taken, the fourth ballot standing 9 to 3 for an insanity verdict.

STOP IMPORT OF 'SWEATED' GOODS

British Labor Party Wishes to Keep Sweat Shop Product Out of Country.

LIKE PRISON GOODS.

LONDON, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—The report of the British Labor Party's committee on fiscal policy to be issued soon, recommend the adoption as a plank of the Laborite platform the prohibition of importation into Great Britain of all foreign goods produced under "sweated conditions." Such goods would be treated like foreign prison-made goods of British copyright material printed abroad. It is understood that "sweated" condition will in the first instance be interpreted as referring to production where longer hours are worked than those provided for in the Washington Labor Convention, and that other factors, such as wages and conditions of labor, are to be considered afterwards.

MAKE A PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY

condition, he said, but it was also dangerous, with the dust that was raised by the cars blinding the vision of drivers.

H. J. Boyle thought Chemong Road ought to be made a permanent highway. After rain it was always dangerous, he said, especially at the swamp, where an accident occurred practically every Saturday. He thought there was sufficient traffic to Ennismore and Lindsay to warrant its conversions into a provincial highway.

T. S. Anderson said emphatically "Anybody can see the road is not what it should be." He approved of the suggestion as a "wonderful idea" that the road should become a provincial highway.

Dr. J. A. Morgan said the road should be oiled, as there was no hope otherwise of keeping the surface right without the use of oil. He thought there was sufficient traffic to justify the making of Chemong Road a provincial highway. He also expressed the opinion that there were a few odd spots that should be widened, particularly at the culverts and at the swamp, where the ditches are very abrupt. "When the wheels go into the grass," he said, "the car is apt to go over."

V. Eastwood said the road was pretty fair considering the amount of traffic that went over it and he believed that it was as well maintained as possible under the circumstances. He thought something ought to be had from the province to put the road in right shape. No more could be expected from the county. He thought the member in the legislature at Toronto was doing everything possible to get the department to take up the road, but he presumed that the department officials had so much to cover that they were hesitating to take additional burdens.

P. P. Westbye said, "It isn't very good. It is rather rough. I think it ought to be made a provincial highway, and it ought to be oiled. The dust is terrible."

G. H. Roper said he had found the road in very bad condition. He thought oil ought to be used in the meantime and the road made into a highway afterwards.

C. J. Rutherford thinks if the projected highway to Lindsay is brought to the fourth line, Chemong Road should be paved right to the park. He did not think there was much use in oiling the road until it was first put into proper condition. He thought a good gravel road could be made easily enough. The middle of the road required raising, he said. After rain the state of that part was always very bad.

J. K. Hughes describes Chemong Road as "a darned dangerous road." He said he drives an average of 25,000 miles a year and is afraid to go on Chemong Road after dark. He would detour miles in order to avoid Chemong Road. No matter how careful a driver is, he said, he cant feel safe on that road. He thought he had as much nerve as any man, but he always had the feeling: "Oh, its terrible on Chemong Road."

G. McClelland said the condition of the road was very bad indeed. He thought the best solution of the difficulty was that of the road being taken up as a highway.

STRIKING DECREASE IN CRIME IN BRITAIN

Extraordinary Changes in Behaviour in England in Last 50 Years.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Following upon numerous items in the English press recently chronicling America's increasing crime wave, the London papers give the place of honor Tuesday evening to a speech by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, stating that during the last fifty years there has been a striking decrease in crime in Britain. He made his statements at the opening of the ninth international prison congress here today which was attended by five hundred delegates from all parts of the world, including the United States. It is the first prison congress held in fifteen years, the last scheduled one having been stopped by the world war.

Describing the extraordinary changes in England's record of crime, Sir William said:

"Fifty years ago there were twenty thousand persons in the local prisons. Today there are only eight thousand. Fifty years ago ten thousand persons were in penal servitude; today there are sixteen hundred. Fifty years ago there were 116 local prisons and thirteen penal servitude prisons in this country, and today there are 31 local and 4 penal servitude prisons."

He summed up the change in the public viewpoint regarding criminals as follows:

"The time has passed when the government considered it had done its duty to society when it had arrested an offender. A man does not lose his rights as a human being because he has broken the law. A [illegible] me out of prison in such a condition of mind and body that he is no longer fit to take his place in society."

Sir William called attention to notable reforms in the English treatment of criminals, including special prisons for first offenders in order not to subject them to prison atmosphere while serving their first sentences. Practical abolition of solitary confinement and the establishment of education in prison, cell windows in English prisons can now be opened he pointed out, and prisoners are not required to remain behind bars when receiving visitors.

"The atmosphere today of our prisons is one of hope rather than despair," said Sir William. He stated emphatically his disbelief in the efficacy of short sentences. A few weeks' imprisonment was not enough to make offenders dread the idea of imprisonment, he said.

Among other noted Englishmen who will address the prison congress are the Earl of Oxford and Viscount Haldane.

HAIL DESTROYS WESTERN CROPS

Swept on Fierce Gale From West, Many Fields Were Levelled.

ROOFS DAMAGED.

SASKATOON, Sask., August 7.—Canadian Press. — Sweeping down upon Saskatoon and the immediately adjacent farming districts with relentless fury, hail, hurled from the west on the crest of a fierce gale, caused considerable damage in Grandora, Dumfermline and Vanscoy districts yesterday.

Parts were torn off roofs of barns, a tannery in the city, a number of telegraph and telephone poles levelled, and windows smashed, in various parts of the city. The storm lasted only for 15 minutes.

The storm struck a Canadian National Railway freight train running between Vanscoy and Hawker, tearing the roofs from three cattle cars. Farming districts to the north and west weer the hardest hit. So far as could be learned the hail cut down the crops in a large area.

FARMER THINKS HE HAS RIGHT TO STRAP HIS BOY EMPLOYEE

Everett Zealand Will Appear in Port Hope Police Court.

BARNARDO YOUTH

Farm Located Between Campbellcroft and Bewdley —Hear Case Monday.

COBOURG, Ont., Aug. 7.—Everett Zealand, a farmer residing about fifteen miles northwest of here, between Campbellcroft and Bewdley, has been summoned to appear in Police Court, on a charge of common assault on 14-year-old Nicholas Thompson, a Barnardo Home boy. The summonses were issued by the Crown Attorney following investigations made into the alleged act of cruelty by Provincial Constable C. T. W. Cousans, who saw the boy at the Zealand farm, prior to his return to the home headquarters in Toronto, where he is now being cared for. Zealand will appear in Police Court in Port Hope next Monday.

The treatment of 14-year-old Nicholas Thompson is arousing considerable adverse comment from those in the district who have watched the system by which English Home boys brought out here without parent or friend are sent to work on farms.

Within His Rights.

Everett Zealand, the farmer, admitted giving the small boy two "hidings" with a piece of a harness trace, but from his own version of the affair he evidently considered that he was quite within his rights in handling the boy in such a manner and quite at liberty to administer the whipping.

The genesis of trouble at Zealand farm, according to Mr. Zealand's own story, goes back to the first of last month. "About that time," he related, "we noticed a fire burning near some barns. It took some time to get out, and Nick admitted having lighted it with some twitches and pieces of cornstalks. Why he did it I don't know. That is only one of the many things he did. He was lazy, never wanted to do anything he was told. I took him in and gave him a hiding with the piece of trace."

In all, according to Mr. Zealand, there were two "hidings." The second came last Wednesday. "We were hoeing potatoes," he said. "I told him to hoe what should have been done that day, but he only did about fifteen rows. Before I left him in the patch, I told him that if he did not finish them he had better come expecting a hiding. When I got into the house for dinner, he was waiting in the kitchen. He said: 'Well, I'm here for the hiding.' He was given another hiding. I did not know he had gone, but he disappeared sometime after dinner on Wednesday. We searched all over the fields for him, but without discovering him."

Suspected a Plot.

Zealand finally learned through some of the neighbors that the boy was at the home of Ed. Guyatt, a farmer, about a mile from the Zealand farm. Guyatt and Zealand, both in politics and religion are said to be not friendly. Consequently, Zealand believed there had been something suspicious about the boy's disappearance. He later learned that the boy had crossed the field on Wednesday afternoon, going southeast, but apparently became lost, turning again north and ending his walking for the night at his school house in Silent Valley. Here, during the winter months under the system of the Barnardo Home, the boy had gone to school. With school over in June, he had returned to work on the farm.

Wandering through the fields, as it became dusk, the lad had determined the best place to spend the night was near the school. There he lay down at the side of the little timber building, slept part of the night, and, with sun-up, he searched for berries. When he was located by Joe Guyatt, brother of Ed. Guyatt, another farmer neighbor, he was walking down the road toward Campbellcroft, munching apples. Guyatt heard the boy's story of being strapped, and took him home. He spent Wednesday night at Joe Guyatt's, and the following day went to Ed. Guyatt's farm, where he remained working during Friday and Saturday, until the arrival of Zealand, with his wife, Monday.

Boy Terrified.

As evidence of the boy's terror for Zealand, he fled when he saw Zealand approach. "He acted like a wild boy," Zealand related. "He said he was not coming home with me, but I told him I was his guardian, that he had been placed on my farm and he was going to hoe. He came home all right."

The boy was not given another "hiding" on his return to the Zealand farm. He worked part of the day. Zealand, after the boy's disappearance on Wednesday, said he notified the officials of the Home in Toronto, who told him to locate the boy and take him back. Police were notified in Port Hope, and they set out in an effort to locate him, and were kept on the watch until Zealand had located him.

News of the alleged ill-treatment and the boy's night in the district, which is one of the roughest sections of Hope Township, soon spread throughout the district. Some one telephoned Provincial Constable Cousans, who visited the Zealand farm and heard the boy's story.

Found Blue Marks.

Constable Cousans made an examination of the lad.

"I found blue marks, such as would be made with a strap, across his back," said Constable Cousans.

[illegible] and not very strong, but they are manly, apparently. There are not been struck with a strap. He also said he had been whipped on two occasions.

Zealand is a powerful man standing well over six feet, and weighing at least 200 pounds. During his talk it was evident that he had but one thought in his mind that he was entitled to give the boy a "hiding" if he did not do as he was told. Zealand bears a good reputation through Durham County. He holds the rank of captain in the 46th Regiment, and served with that unit through the war. He is about 45 years of age, with a family of three children. He also occupies several important positions with the Orange Lodge.

Mrs. Zealand when asked as to the boy's behavior, declared they had trouble with him not doing as he was told. "He has always caused trouble," said Mrs. Zealand.

Zealand said he had two other Home boys on the farm prior to having Thompson.

TORONTO, Aug. 7.—Mr. Zealand's description of little Nick as being lazy and a trouble-maker was not borne out by the lad's appearance when he entered the office of Manager Hobday at the Barnardo Home on Jarvis street.

With head erect, walking briskly, he entered the room, and, without the slightest hesitation, walked up to the desk before which Mr. Hobday was seated. With a pleasant "Good morning" to that official, his wife and others present, he appeared quite at his ease.

Up at 5 A.M.

The superintendent put the boy at his ease and by simply questioning events leading up to his hurried departure from the Zealand farm came out. To be called at 5 a.m., light the fire, go and get the cows and horses, have breakfast and at 7 a.m. to start in and hoe turnips from 7 o'clock until noon and be whipped for not doing enough to suit his employer was his experience, the 14-year-old boy said.

"Tell about the turnip-hoeing," was suggested.

"I started to hoe the turnips in the morning and got two long rows done, but at half-past eleven Mr. Zealand told me that I would have to have another row done by noon. I got them nearly all done, but he told me to "go to the barn." When I went there he took an inch pulley belt and made me bend over a hay trap. He only hit me twice, as I was black and blue. I couldn't stand it, for the strap was doubled up."

"But, Nick, when Mr. Stanner called on you you seemed happy," said the Manager. "If things were not going well why didn't you write us?"

"They would have read my letters," was the fear expressed by the boy.

"But, surely you could have mailed a letter some place?"

"I was afraid that they would look in the box and get it and read it."

"What other whippings did you get?"

"I burned some twitch grass near the bush and put it out. I shouldn't have done it. Mr. Zealand said I might have set the bush on fire. He whipped me with a pole strap for that."

"When he whipped you and you ran away where did you go to?"

"I slept out by the school house, and the next day Mr. Guyatt looked after me. He gave me something to eat and I stayed there."

"Would you like to go back to England?" queried the Manager.

"Oh! no, sir. I want to stay here, but not at Mr. Zealand's."

"Well, you don't have to worry about that," he was told.

Young Nick is a sort of special pet of the institution. He is a bright, mannerly boy and quick to admit a fault, if wrong. After he came to Canada he had an operation on his eyes. He has given no trouble, officials said. The only complaint had been a school teacher's report that on one occasion he had been "impertinent."

Chained to Stove.

Queried regarding treatment when he was taken back to the Zealand farm, young Nick stated that he had been chained to the kitchen stove so that he would not get away again.

ADOPTION CASE WILL BE PROBED

that she had a good home here with us and that we loved her, she replied—

"Yes, I have a good home, but you haven't the millions Mr. Browning has."

Then it was called to Mrs. Spas' attention that if the girl were only sixteen and had threatened to leave home, measures could have been taken by her parents to prevent her.

To this Mrs. Spas asked:

"How old a girl have to be before she can leave home and do as she likes?"

"Twenty-one."

"Oh, no, I know it is eighteen. I looked into that."

"Is Mary over eighteen?"

Mrs. Spas hesitated, started to reply and—— Winked. It was a knowing wink.

Mrs. Spas then declared that she had promised Mr. Browning that she would not tell Mary's age.

"What were the terms of the adoption?"

Doesn't Know Terms

"I don't know. Mary told me what Mr. Browning was going to do for her. She said that she would have everything that she wanted and told me that she would be half ours and half Brownings.

"No, I did not read the papers drawn up for the adoption. But there was a clause somewhere, Mary said, that if Browning ever violated the agreement made by which he was to furnish her with clothing, chaperones, finishing school and all the rest of those things, that the transaction was void.

"Mr. Browning assured me not to pay any attention to any outcry made over his adopting our Mary. He said that most of the talk was coming from enemies of his and that it would soon die down.

"He did, however, say that he did not want to have to ever call on us and left his telephone number where I could call him at any time of the day or night."

Whn asked if any financial settlement was made for the transaction, Mrs. Spas replied:

"Not one penny. It would look like we were selling our Mary."

"Our other daughter, Mildred, is in Colorado suffering from pleurisy. Mr. Browning said that if we ever needed any money for her or ourselves just to call on him and he would give it to us.

"I am sure that everything will be all right. If it isn't, Mary promised to come home, and steps would then be taken for her protection."

Earlier in the day Mary Louise was put through something of a cross-examination by the host of reporters that overflowed the Browning real estate offices. In that interview Mary denied being more than "a little over sixteen." A vigorous shake of her golden curls accompanied the denial.

Engaged to Dentist?

There was another point of disagreement in the interviews given by mother and daughter. Neighbors about the Spas home at Astoria yesterday said that Mary was engaged to marry a Dr. Froelich, a dentist. They also said that Mary had a lot of beaus.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 7, 1925.

PETERBOROUGH TODAY.

Peterborough must grow.

It is no accident that the metropolis of a region so prosperous and so lavish in natural gifts as is Peterborough County will grow. It is inevitable.

Today the real property of Peterborough is worth more than twenty-five million dollars. The total estimated earnings of her people in the eighty principal factories is five million dollars every year. The estimated manufactures of Peterborough are worth annually more than twenty-seven million dollars. Fifty thousand people live within easy trading reach of the city, and many more thousands are attracted by the summer resorts in the vicinity. It is the geographical centre of Ontario from east to west. It has easy access to the markets of the north, and south, and east, and west. Its products are already known around the earth, and its manufacturers are respected wherever their goods are sold. Its growth is inevitable.

In the last half century Peterborough has grown from a babe in arms to be a lusty youth, strong in knowledge of power and alight with hope of achievements beckoning forward. Fifty years ago the assessed value of the city was $1,257,690; today it is $25,292,480. Thirty years ago its bonded gross liabilities amounted to $185,550 and its available cash assets totalled $114,168; today its bonded liabilities total $4,210,634 and its available cash assets are $8,612,224. Some of today's liabilities are provided for by sinking fund, leaving a net debt of only $1,542,549 against assets five times greater.

The city is in the position of a thrifty merchant, with a beautiful, substantial and well-equipped store, with a splendid stock on his shelves, his liabilities all provided for, and with assets that enable him to encounter stress of circumstances and unforeseen demands with serenity. Peterborough's bonds always sell on the open market at away above par—because her financial situation is so trustworthy.

Ninety years ago the only passable roads were George and Hunter streets and Sherbrooke street west. There were two saw-mills, two distilleries, one tannery, a grammar school housed in a log-cabin—and a few straggling shacks.

Thirty years ago there were thirty-one factories, employing 1,303 hands.

Today there are seventy-nine larger factories, employing steadily 4,709 hands, with a score of smaller establishments giving work to many more.

Peterborough must grow. In the nature of things it is inevitable.

But to direct this growth is a task requiring the greatest ability of the citizens who today have the task in hand. Peterborough is not satisfied with her greatness. No citizen is satisfied with his attainments.

This is our day of opportunity. Peterborough has prospered in the past; Peterborough will prosper in the future. But for this generation of citizens the time is short and he who would have his share in building must use his energy now.

THE GOLDEN PROVINCE.

More and more does Ontario deserve the name of the Golden Province as news concerning its mineral wealth appears. For instance, there were two proofs contained on one page yesterday of the truth of this. One was to the effect that impressed by the insistent stories of important gold discoveries in Beardmore Township, near Port Arthur, Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines, has despatched the Provincial Geologist, A. G. Burroughs, to visit the scene of the gold rush and make a survey for the Government.

The other one was that it is believed a most valuable zinc deposit has been discovered in the Sudbury nickel district. Steps are being taken to determine the extent of the deposits, which have been indicated. The report also states that the "American syndicate" is taking these steps, and if they turn out satisfactorily it will mean the foundation of a new industry in Ontario.

Thus there is proof of what undiscovered riches lie in the Golden Province, but also that Americans are being wise enough to search for them—we need not point the obvious moral.—Kingston Standard.

MORE THRILLS.

The pursuit of the thrill is making such a stir in the news these days that it is worth some consecutive attention. Up in Harrison, N. Y., two college youths went over to the Westchester [illegible] and set fire to five buildings. In the catechism class afterward in the county jail they said, "We wanted the thrill." A 19-year-old boy went into a village store, held up the clerk with a blow on the head with a stick that brought blood, lost his nerve when he saw the ruddy drops gushing from the wound and reeled into the arms of his intended victim. "I have been reading that this stick-up stunt was such a thrilling adventure," he whimpered as he came out of the faint.

Girls are running away and getting into all sorts of trouble because of this elusive and alluring thrill. Manifestly something has got to be done to stop the business. If too many thrills get to jostling around together they are going to interfere with the traffic. Parents having become too pacific, tolerant, broad-gauge or something to apply the old specifics for mutinous thrills, it is time the psychiatrists came on with their more elaborate, up-to-date treatments.

One thing noticeable is that the thrill rampant is almost wholly adolescent. Older folk become in a measure immune. It is the age from 15 to 20 that seems to be particularly susceptible, [illegible] it—the very age [illegible] once upon a time was more or less amenable to what in the old-time terminology was called home discipline. Perhaps the place to begin to bring this thrill business to terms is, as the quaint Professor at the Breakfast Table once remarked, with grandfather and grandmother. But it requires a considerable detour to go back to those old parties nowadays. So it may be necessary to begin with father and mother and see what can be done with them. At all events, the thrill is becoming a nuisance and is cutting too wide a swath to be allowed to go much further.—Philadelphia Ledger.

POLICE NEED HELP.

A great deal of trouble has been caused the Peterborough police force through the failure this year of the local motor license issuer to keep a record of the addresses of applicants for licenses. It is said in explanation that the matter is purely Provincial, and if the police desire records they may obtain them at Toronto.

In previous years the finding of the owner of a car has been simple. The police, having the number of the license of the automobile, called the Motor League headquarters here, gave the number, and in a few seconds had the name and address of the person in whose name the car was registered. Tracing of criminals and finding of relatives of accident victims was easy under this system.

This year, only the name is available, and the police are compelled to search the entire city for the person wanted.

There is an accident at Lindsay, in which a Peterborough man is seriously injured. Word is phoned to the police here that the car was numbered 123. The Motor League headquarters only know that the owner is John Doe. A search must be made of all the John Does in the city, many of whom have not telephones and must be called on personally. And in the meantime the victim may have died without his family being aware of his plight.

Or a burglary is perpetrated and the police know the number of the car used, a Peterborough issue. If the address was available quick action might catch the burglars there, but without the address the police must search the directory, the telephone book, and the streets.

Ten years ago the police knew everyone in the city, and guidance of this kind was not necessary. But times have changed, and no police officer, however astute, could carry in his mind the address of every person living in Peterborough.

It seems to the police only a small thing to record the address of the applicant at the time of issuing the license, in view of the benefits to motorists, citizens and society.

A GOOD MOVE.

Safety measures have a way of being passed over until some great calamity, usually accompanied by the loss of life, focuses attention on the danger spot. It is then too late to save that life, more valuable than all the money that might have been expended upon preventative measures.

The Examiner hopes that the present campaign for safer streets will not subside until something definite has been done to protect motorists and pedestrians. Laws have been made, neglected, discarded, until now city traffic is much a "go as you please," the safety of all depending upon the good judgment of all others.

Usually the good judgment of the average person will suffice to prevent any untoward happening. But in traffic contingencies the emergency arises so quickly that judgment has not time to operate; nerve centres are paralysed; muscles refuse to respond to the frantically contradictory orders from a confused brain appalled by the imagination of what is about to occur. It is to prevent the onus of protection being placed entirely upon persons in such situations that safety measures are proposed.

It is generally conceded that Peterborough streets are now in an unsafe condition. Automobiles turn at every intersection; pedestrians race across streets at every point; strangers do not know the regulations or whether there are any; there are no signs to help the man who wishes to do the right thing but doesn't know how.

The Examiner believes that the City Council and the Police Commission are on the right track in discussing what is a vital question in the city's life. Whether stopping cars at intersecting streets, or revised parking laws, or a signal system, or all of these, can relieve the danger now existing must be determined by a responsible body. Well-informed officials who have studied the matter thoroughly are certain that no measure looking toward safety will be complete without the installation of traffic regulating appliances at certain streets. If these are necessary for the public safety then the matter of expense should not prevent their being obtained. The cost, estimated at eleven hundred dollars, is a small thing compared with the loss of one life.

Even taking the soul-less computation of the value of a citizen as capitalized by the Dominion—four thousand, one hundred and forty dollars—the expenditure on safety appliances would pay a profit.

And who can estimate the potential value of the life that may be snuffed out at George and Charlotte streets any day or night?

IN THE LAND OF THE TURK.

Having effectually broken the rebellion of the Kurds, the Turks are said to be meditating punitive measures against these coreligionists of theirs. If they should actually adopt a policy of extermination toward the Kurds, similar to that employed in the case of the Armenians, they would shatter the last considerable people of the various races that have inhabited that quarter of the world from Bible times down through the centuries of Roman and Byzantine rule.

Xenophon, in that fascinating narrative of ad[illegible], the Oasis, t[illegible] of [illegible] and people whose name appears in the English translation as Carduchi. Even "the great king," the Persian monarch, had never been able to subdue them. When King Artaxerxes himself led an expedition into their country a Carduchian archer, discharging an arrow after the manner of his nation—lying on his back, holding the bow with a foot and drawing the string with both hands—shot off the great king's ear.

Aryan people, these Kurds, of the same Indo-European stock as the peoples of Western Europe and America. If they go, all the peoples that of old held the land of the Turks will have departed, and only those newcomers from central Asia will remain. A Mongol people originally, by intermarriage with conquered races, the Turks of today are racially very different from the invaders who wrought the overthrow of Byzantium.

All that array of nations mentioned in ancient geographies—Lydians, Lycians, Paphlagonians, Parthians, Bythinians, Cappadocians Galatians—who were descendants of the army led out of distant Gaul by Brennus and who spoke a language like that of the [illegible] Greeks, [illegible] banishment from Turkish soil has scarcely been completed, are gone.

A remnant of the mighty Assyrians still exists. Numbering 100,000 just before the World War, they were reduced to 40,000 in that struggle, and were saved from destruction by the British. A somewhat smaller number of Chaldeans survive of the millions of great Babylonia. Both peoples are members of the Nestorian Christian church. Of the four ancient peoples—Armenians, Assyrians, Chaldeans and Kurds—the last named are now the most considerable in number, yet in spite of their Moslem faith they may find themselves doomed to extinction.—Chicago News.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press).—With no large export business in evidence and with rather heavy selling pressure from the east and from Winnipeg, a factor, the Chicago wheat market today underwent a sag. The majority of wheat traders here showed a disposition to regard something of a reaction as due after the sharp advance of late. Closing prices for wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent lower, September $1.59 7-8 to $1.60, and December, $1.60 to $1.60 1-8 with corn 5-8 to 1 1-2 cents downward, oats 1-8 to 3-8c off, and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to an equal gain.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Light receipts and fairly firm markets continue in the egg trade throughout Canada. Eastern points report some falling off in business as the result of the heat. New Brunswick and British Columbia egg markets remain well supplied. A slight drop is noted in quotation of fresh extra firsts on the New York market today.

Toronto market remains steady and unchanged. Jobbing specials 42, extras 40, firsts 37, seconds 33.

Montreal reports that the persistent heat wave is still affecting the market. A change in the weather would have considerable effect in making conditions firmer. Dealers are paying extras 35 1-2, firsts 33, seconds 28 1-2, F.O.B., Ontario points.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand $4.85 3-8.

Sterling cables, $4.85 7-8.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Aug. 6.— Today's light receipts on the cattle market were cleaned up at steady prices. A few baby beeves brought $10 to $11 a hundred, with fair to good butcher steers at $6.25 to $7.50. Cows and bulls were steady. Common steers sold downward to $4.50 a hundred. The exports for this week total 2,000 cattle, there were none bought for export today. There has been a fairly good demand for choice forward springers this week at $70 to $90; good $50 to $65; choice milkers $50 to $65; good $30 to $40.

Calf trade was steady with tops at $11 a hundred.

Lambs steady at $14.75 a hundred for choice. Good light sheep strong at $7 to $8 a hundred.

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

CHAPTER 11.
Dynamite.

Taggart broke in upon the group of cowboys clustered around Doc Willets back of the barn facing the corrals.

"There's no time to lose," he cried. "You boys rustle that bunch of steers across the river while Doc and I frame up a little joke on the girl."

The cowboys rose, grinning, and made for their horses.

"Leave me your lariat, Andy," Taggart shouted to one of them.

The man tossed him his rope. Then all mounted their horses and rode off.

Taggart tore open his shirt collar, ripped one of his sleeves, and humpled up his clothes.

"Now, then Doc," he said to the laughing Willets, handing him the lari[illegible] "Take this and come in here [illegible]"

They both entered the barn. A few minutes later Willets came out alone.

Willets mounted his horse, and rode over to the range where the cowboys were rounding up the steers, to supervise them. He found them bunching the prime steers, the pick of the Marshall herd, and shoving them across the stream at the western edge of the ranch. One of the ranch. One group started a few of the cattle up the bank of the stream into a small canyon, at Willets' orders.

"Just to lead 'em off the track," he explained to Buck. "They'll pick up that trail and think they all went that way. They won't dream the animals are across the river."

Slowly they began to force the main herd of steers to swim across the stream, the cowboys hastening them by swimming their horses alongside and whooping wildly.

* * *

Mary was the first to recover her sense of time and reality, and break the spell of their afternoon love idyll. She suddenly tore herself from the arms of Terence, who had forgotten that there was anyone but Mary and [illegible] and [illegible]

"Terence, how long we've been here—I wonder what's keeping Mr. Taggart.'

Thus recalled abruptly from dreamland, Terence jumped up, and seein' the uneasiness in Mary's face, said:

"Let's go see."

They stepped out the door, and to their amazement, the entire ranch, which had been bustling with activity when they arrived, seemed deserted.

"Why, there's not a soul in sight," cried Mary.

They started running and searching—for someone—anyone—to reassure them that nothing was wrong. Reaching the barn, they rushed in the door and found Taggart, lying on the flo[illegible] bound hand and foot, his clothes torn and dirty, struggling to release himself.

"A gang of rustlers laid for me and rustled our steers," Taggart gasped as Terence bent to cut the ropes and help him to his feet.

"They gave me a fierce beating," said Taggart, staggering and limping. "And they got the payroll money off me."

Mary looked crushed by the news. Without hesitation Terence shouted.

"Come, let's get after them at once."

He made for the door, followed by Mary, and by Taggart, who feigned a limp. The three of them mounted horses.

"It'll be better if we split up," said Taggart, with a pretended show of anxiety to be of aid. "You take that trail that turns up into the canyon," he said, pointing a way that led to the canyon up which Willets and his men had run a few head of cattle to make a blind trail. "I'll go off here and scout across the creek."

They parted, Terence and Mary taking the way they had been directed. They soon reached the canyon and found the little bunch of sequestered cattle.

"We're on the wrong trail, Mary," said Terence, and they turned back.

Meanwhile Taggart had hurried to the creek, met Willets and the boys, and hustled the last of the steers across the stream.

"We've got to act quick," he yelled to Willets as they plunged their horses into the creek and started to ford it. "That bird O'Rourke's a riding fool, and he and the girl will be on our trail before we know it."

Arrived on the other bank, where the cattle were milling about, Taggart shouted to the cowboys:

"Run 'em into the pot hole. We'll dry gulch 'em till we get a chance to get 'em away."

The cowboys whooped it up and started the herds toward the single narrow entrance to the pot hole—a curious freak of the wilderness—a closed basin-like plateau surrounded by high rocky cliffs. The cattle were almost in a stampede as the whooping cowboys by herculean efforts raced them madly through the one narrow pass entering this place.

Standing off on their horses and watching, Taggart and Willets congratulated themselves as they saw the last bunch of steers running in through the pass. Looking back toward the stream, Taggart saw two forms on horses splash in from the other bank.

"I knew it—there comes O'Rourke and the girl," he cried. "We're just in time—now to plant the sticks and close it up."

They dismounted, ran to the gap, laid a heavy charge of dynamite, lighted a fuse, remounted, and rode out of sight.

As they concealed themselves at a safe distance with the other men, Taggart said:

"When that goes up and closes the gap no one will stir them steers until we're ready to."

Willets pointed toward the bank of the stream.

"Look, there they are," he cried.

They saw Terence and Mary coming out of the water and riding, furiously, up toward the pothole entrance.

Taggart's face blanched.

"Quick—warn them of the blast," he cried.

His men remained stock still.

"Do you hear?" yelled Taggart angrily, with an oath.

Still the men remained motionless, and Buck McLeod answered:

"It's too late—we'd be blown to pieces ourselves if we go up there now."

Watching, they saw Terence on his horse mounting to the top of the ledge while Mary waited just below. They saw him reach the summit and look down into the pothole, then wave his arms excitedly to Mary, and pointed down into the pothole where he had discovered the cattle. They saw Mary wave back and—

BOO-O-O-O-OOM!!!

The blast was off. The air was filled with broken boulders, rocks, chips, stone dust and smoke. Tons of debris were sliding into the gap which had served as entrance to the pothole.

CHAPTER 12.
The Flight to Treasure Trove.

At the sound of the blast, Komi who was riding not far off, spurred his horse and dashed to the scene. He arrived at about the same moment as Taggart and his aides, and kept himself under cover of the brush where he could watch. While Taggart, Willets, and the others bent over the unconscious form of Mary, Buck McLeod went off toward the spot where Terence had last been seen.

He returned excitedly to Taggart with a piece of parchment upon which was part of a crudely drawn map.

"I found this in his coat," he said.

At that moment they heard a loud buzzing sound in the sky, and looking up saw an airplane approaching, descending toward them.

"Buck take that map and beat it to the Diablo Trail as fast as you can go," Taggart ordered. "I'll meet you there in an hour—come on men, let's get out of the way. We' cant let anyone know we had anything to do with this blast."

As they started riding for cover, Taggart asked Willets hoarsely.

"Think they'll live, Doc?"—and added after a second, "Hope the girl does."

The plane maneuvered, found a landing place, and dropped to earth close by where Mary lay. Bud Hughes and Miquel jumped out. They found Komi, who had come out of his cover bending over her.

"She lucky, she live, not bad hurt," cried the old Indian.

Up above them Terence was recovering consciousness. Fortune had been kind to him also, and the slide of shale and rock had only stunned him. His first thought as he recovered his senses was of Mary. He ran down from the ridge and found her, coming to under the ministrations of Komi, Miquel and Bud.

"Mary, are you all right?" Terence asked with trembling voice.

A smile quivered on her lips as her eyes opened into his, bending over her. She reached for his hand, and pressed it. In a few moments she sat up, quite recovered.

Komi touched Terence on the elbow.

"Bad man Buck—he go your pocket—take something—fast go away—there," he said pointing.

Terence's hands agitatedly went through his pockets.

"The map," he cried. "It's gone. I must get it back. It's most important—and it may mean much to you, too, Mary."

"Come on, then," said Bud, pointing to the plane. "Quick, we'll find him."

They thanked Komi, who sped off on his horse, and jumped into the plane.

"You see I did fix her up and she's as good as new," said Bud, as the machine tok to the air. "And lucky it was, too, for they found us out down in Paradise Canyon this morning. A big gang of them got in, attacked us, and would have had us beaten. But we managed to get to the plane—Mr. Marshall, Miquel, Ramon and myself—and escaped."

They were getting high enough now to survey the country below them.

"That's why I flew down here, Miss Marshall," Bud continued, turning to Mary. "Your father wanted you to know of the new hideout—we found a new smaller canyon, nearer to the ranch. He wanted Miquel and me to stop in and see how things were going at the ranch too."

Terence was peering down intently at the earth.

"There," he cried suddenly, pointing. "That must be our man."

All looked down and saw a black speck moving rapidly along the road. Bud dropped the plane down quite low over the moving form.

"Is it him, Terence?"

There was a revolver shot from below. The man on horseback was firing at them.

"Guess it's him, all right," said Terence. "But we can't land here to catch him."

"You take the controls," said Bud, "and when I say so, fly very low, right over him. I'm going to show you a stunt I used to do in the flying circus.i

Terence took the pilot's seat, and Bud got a rope ladder out of the cockpitt He swung himself deftly out upon the wing attached the ladder to the bottom of the plane, and climbed down to the end of the ladder, clutching it with his hands, his feet hanging.

"All right, drop me on his neck," he cried.

Terence circled the plane back toward the horseman, then carefully dropped toward him. Hanging by the ladder, the plane riding along within a few feet of the ground, Bud's swinging legs caught Buck McLeod around the neck, unhorsing him. Bud let go of the ladder and the two men rolled into the dust. Before McLeod had recovered his senses, Bud had gotten the map out of his pocket, and started signalling to Terence in the plane.

Bud mounted McLeod's horse, and as the plane came hovering close over him, the ladder swinging within reach he clutched it and was lifted into the air. In a couple of minutes he climbed back into the cockpit and handed the piece of map to Terence.

"Great work, Bud," said Terence. He showed the map to Mary. "This shows where the Yaqui treasure is hidden," he explained. "If we can only find it, your father's troubles will be over. It's on the Sierra Diablo trail. Let's start looking this afternoon."

They found a landing place near the trail, in the general vicinity of the supposed hiding place of the Indian treasure.

Mary and Terence jumped out.

"Miquel and I'll beat it back to the ranch to get a report for Mr. Marshall on whether they've caught the rustlers yet," said Bud. "Be here at 6 o'clock, and I'll return and pick up up."

They waved adieu and the plane ascended to the sky again.

ADOPTION CASE WILL BE PROBED BY AUTHORITIES

Strong Criticism of "Cinderella Affair"—Merchandizing of Children, Says Official.

IN WEALTHY HOME

Child of Poor Parents Taken Into Home of Wealthy Man.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—Commissioner Bird S. Coler, head of the department of public welfare yesterday launched an official investigation into the Cinderella affair, by which Mary Spas, of Astoria, became heiress to the millions of Edward W. Browning, 50-year-old realty man.

The commissioner began his inquiry by arranging with District Attorney Richard Newton, of Queen's county, for a conference during which, he said, they would consider all available facts of the case.

In a telehone conversation with Commissioner Coler, District Attorney Newton agreed that murmurs of public criticism concerning the "Cinderella adoption" warranted such an inquiry.

The formal adoption papers were passed in the surrogate court of Queen's county, where Newton is district attorney.

District Attorney Newton asked the commissioner if he thought all the criticism was merely gossip and Coler emphatically replied that he was convinced there was plenty of room for such criticism.

"Somewhere in the laws of this country," the commissioner told Newton, "there must be some law which will prevent the merchandising of children. I intend to find that law, and when I strike I'll strike hard."

"Something certainly must be done about it," he added. "Already I have received a vast amount of valuable evidence, pointing to the immediate need of a far-reaching investigation."

"Have you received many complaints in connection with the case" he was asked.

"From all sides," he replied.

Parents "Bull-dozed"

Mrs. Spas declared that both she and her husband were "bull-dozed" into the idea of Mary going to live with Browning as his adopted daughter.

"What do you mean by that?"

"Well, Mary threatened to leave home, if she was not allowed to carry out her idea about the adoption. We did not want any scandal. Papa and I have worked hard all our lives to bring up our children and, at this late in life, we don't want anything said against either them or ourselves.

"Mary is a good girl. She loved those things that we could not give her. When we pointed out to her

BYNG VISITED ESKIMO CAMPS

Governor-General Returning From Rough Journey to Arctic Fringe.

MET THE NATIVES

WINNIPEG, Man., August 7. — anadian Press. — After journeying thousands of miles which carried him into the farthermost regions of Canadas northern hinterland, His Excellency Baron Byng, Governor General of Canada, is on his way back to civilization.

It was the first time that such a trip has been undertaken by a Governor-General of the Dominion. During the long trip the party encountered much of the hardships experienced by the scattered population of the north country, obtained a keener appreciation of the vastness and the possibilities of the Dominion, and came into personal contact with native Eskimos, Indians and members of missionary and trading outposts.

At Aklavik, according to wireless despatches from S.S. Distributor, on which the party has done most of its sailing, Baron Byng inspected the principal buildings and chatted with members of the tiny settlement. He visited the outlying regions and stopped at an Eskimo fishing camp near Kittigaruit. The Governor-General's appearance was a complete surprise to the natives but they were equal to the occasion and after greeting him in their peculiar fashion the, entertained the visitors at a breakfast of fish and tea.

Speeches of welcome were delivered and His Excellency was presented with a number of native souvenirs.

On the homeward journey stops will be made at a number of points.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR ORLAND BOY

Harold Reddon Jumped Into Water Over His Depth.

SESSION MEETING

NORHAM, Aug. 7.—Harold Reddom had a narrow escape from drowning in the mill-pond at Orland Tuesday evening. Several boys were bathing and Harold, who was unable to swim, jumped off the swimming board into water beyond his depth. Samuel Hazelwood, who was working in his blacksmith shop near by heard the cries of boys and ran out and rushing in without waiting to undress was able to effect a rescue just as the boy was going down for the last time. Harold was unconscious when brought to shore.

The first annual meeting of the session of the United Churches of Norham circuit was held in Meyersburg Church on Monday evening, August 4. There were representatives from all the appointments excepting Bethany. On motion, the resignation of J. W. Jones as steward was accepted and Jacob W. Clark, on motion, was appointed to fill the vacancy. The weekly offering envelope system introduced last May, at all the appointments except Meyersburg, was found to be giving good satisfaction, eliminating considerable work as well as simplifying the problem of financing. Mr. Fred Laver was elected delegate and Mr. Norman Gummer was elected alternate delegate to represent the circuit at the meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery, to be held about the middle of September.

Unemployed Suspected Of Causing Bush Fires

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 6 Investigations are being conducted by police and forestry officers to determine the truth of well-founded suspicions that bush fires have been set by men for the pay they would receive from fighting the outbreaks.

When valuable stands of merchantable timber are threatened with destruction all able-bodied men, who are available, are mustered by the Forestry service to combat the menace. In this way, it is believed men who started the fires for the purpose have obtained employment.

A number of men were working on the hill widening it out, and Mr. Martindale drove along from Lindsay to inspect the job. He left his car standing at the top of the hill, without the brakes on. The car started off on its own accord and came down the hill at a speedy rate. There was no one in the car. It came about half way down the north side of the hill and ran into Mr. E. Switzer's wagon, and there was nothing broken. The fender was bent and the bumper knocke off.

SEA SERPENT STORY COMPLETES SUMMER

British Columbia Children's Visions Verified By Settlers.

VICTORIA, B. C., August 7. — Canadian Press. — Children of the Queen Charlotte Islands, off the Northern British Columbia coast, who for two months told their parents of a sea serpent they had noticed disporting itself off shore, had their stories verified last month when a strange marine monster was seen by settlers off Graham Island, according to a report received here yesterday by John P. Babcock, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries, from John J. Van Valkenburg.

"When I saw the animal going down the inlet he was travelling with the tide with the slow wriggling motion that a large snake employs when swimming at leisure," Mr. Valkenburg wrote. "The head and about six feet of the body was above the surface. When it submerged its body came up in a long spiral like a rope being dragged over a submerged object. Its tail did not come out so that I was unable to see its size precisely.

"The body was round or a short oval, dark green, almost black on the back and growing lighter underneath with spots of black. The head was rather long and I could see knots that I took for eyes and nostrils."

FUNGUS ATTACKS ROOTS OF WHEAT

Plant Pathologists Study Disease—Some Damage Reported.

SASKATOON, Sask., August 7.—Canadian Press. — Reports of damage by root rot, a fungus disease that first became evident in Saskatchewan two years ago, are being investigated by the Dominion Plant Pathologist here, M. P. Fraser.

While sufficient data are lacking as yet to form conclusions it is believed to be confined to the park country in northeast Saskatchewan. One farmer north of Humboldt is reported to have sustained 75 per cent damage to a crop which had promised 35 to 40 bushels to the acre.

The disease causes the straw to yellow and ripen before the heads fill. It is believed that it is at its worst two or three years after the ground is first broken, gradually dying out with continued cultivation. Two field men are covering a large area at present in the investigation.

Burnbrae People Will Hold Services in School for the Present.

BREEDER GOES WEST

BURNBRAE, Aug. 7—The Unionist group, which has withdrawn from St. Andrew's non-concurring congregation, met at the hall, Menie, on Monday evening. The Rev. Ramsay of Belleville, Moderator of Kingston Presbytery, was present, also Rev. Mr. McIntosh of Campbellford. Mr. Hume acted as chairman, and after prayer by Mr. McIntosh, called on Mr. Ramsay for some remarks. Mr. Ramsay stated that at the time of the last Presbytery meeting, it was thought that Burnbrae would remain independent and so the pastor was allowed to continue with Rylstone, a United Church. However, since this agreement was broken, the situation would be changed at the next meeting of Presbytery early in September. The Presbytery recognized the Unionist group as the Burnbrae congregation, and the elders who had withdrawn with the group were still in power. At the September meeting of Presbytery this recognition would be made official, and he recommended the appointing of a delegation to this meeting. The members of session were appointed as representatives to the meeting.

After Mr. Ramsay's address the meeting was open for discussion, and several plans and suggestions were brought forward, some of which were put in form of resolutions for further use. It was decided to continue meetings in the schoolhouse with the Sunday School, supply to be furnished temporarily from St. John's, Campbellford.

Acting as Judge.

Mr. Alex. Hume, veteran Ayrshire breeder of the Burnbrae district, left Wednesday morning for Vancouver, B.C., where he will judge Ayrshires at the annual exhibition held in that city from August 8-15. Mr. Hume's services are always in demand as a judge at shows of dairy cattle, as his reputation as a breeder of Scotch cattle is continent-wide. He acted as a judge at the New Westminster, B.C., show in 1921, and has had a cordial invitation from them again. He has also acted at Ottawa and other leading exhibitions as well as at several of the Provincial fall fairs. His friends are pleased that these honors should be shown him as some small recompense for the work he has done in the interests of the Ayrshire breed and the dairy industry as a whole.

St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Robt. Matthews on Thursday July 30, with an attendance of over forty. The meeting was held one week earlier than usual, owing to the lawn social on the 6th of August.

Some of the young ladies held a softball practice at Menie on Monday evening, and are quite enthusiastic over the game.

HUNDREDS AT FAMILY PICNIC

800 PRESENT

COBOURG, Aug. 7.— Descendants of the late Thomas Staples, a pioneer who settled in Cavan township in 1823, to the seventh and eighth generations assembled Wednesday at Horse Show Park for a grand family re-union. It is estimated that from 800 to 1000 people were here, some coming from the far east and others from Vancouver, Nebraska and other states of the American union, from Port Nelson and from Saskatchewan, and from Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, Brampton. St. Catharines, Lindsay, Enniskillen, Valencia, Orona, Welcome, Cavan, Baltimore, Hamilton and Haldiman townships and other parts of Ontario. All are descendants of Thomas Staples and Janes Bell his wife, to whom were born five sons and five daughters. The family left for Canada in 1823, with the exception of one son, Richard, who preceded his parents in coming to make his home in this new country, and one daughter who stayed in Ireland. The mother died at sea, but Thomas Staples established his new home in Cavan township on a farm where he passed away in 1825 and was buried in the cemetery of what is now St. John's church, at Ida. It is doubtful if a similar gathering has assembled in Ontario before and the crowd of Staples at Horse Show Park resembled that on a Horse Show afternoon. Lunch, of course, was served at midday for there was never a picnic without a lunch. Then the taking of a big group photo was a notable event. Letters of regret were received [illegible] for not nearly [illegible] be present.

There were also impromptu speeches and sports. The duty of registering started early and occupied most of the day.

Mr. Wellington Staples, Baltimore is president of the committee and Mr. Edgar Staples, Enniskillen, is secretary.

ROAD IMPROVED

Work Has Been Finished on Bad Stretch Near Fox's Corners.

DOWNEYVILLE, Aug. 7.—The road north of Fox's Corner is now [illegible]d and will be [illegible] fit to the public in winter as well as in summer. It was always a bad road, but now it is in splendid condition. There has also been built a cement bridge over Lucas' Creek, which was badly needed. All that road is now in perfect condition.

Forgetting that this was to be Golfers' week, I slipped off the track yesterday telling about that Canada Jay at the Y.W.C.A. camp, but you can hardly blame me, for he was so very comical, tugging at the meat in the girl camper's hands, getting fed up and annoyed strutting about the table, resting his beak and neck for another tug until the girls would let go, that I forgot golf.

Well, I will make up for it

Two weeks ago, a lady golfer was playing a match for a solid silver cup on one of the smaller town courses, where there was a stony field for a fairway. It was good going, but just a bit stony in places.

Now, you know how excited some women golfers can get over just an old pewter trophy? Well, this trophy, as I said, was solid silver. The competition was exceedingly hot.

Our lady golfer, (I almost said fighter), was doing very nicely. Everything was her's. She drove down the fairway of the few stony places, then followed her ball. Imagine her dismay, when she came up to her ball and found it easy to hit, if she were determined to do so, but there it was, resting on one of those bare stony spots, in a Killdeer nest. Not much of a nest, but it had held four eggs before, now there were five and one was the golf ball in competition. Good night!

The other ladies were called. The judges were called. The Killdeer were ruled off but refused to go. The judges decided to remove the eggs, let the player drive and replace the eggs. Nobody was satisfied. They finally settled it by picking another stony spot nearby for the golf ball. The woman won her game and everyone was glad.

The Killdeer is named after its call. It has a double breast band. It is the Ringnecked Plover of the open fields.

YOUR HEALTH

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

SOME HAY FEVER DUE TO WRONG EATING

About now some unfortunates in every community will be in the middle of the annual hay fever attack. It is a terrible ordeal.

Not so long ago I was vaccinated. It proved to be a vigorous "take." For several says my arm itched and burned and smarted and ached. I had two or three degrees of fever for a couple of days and felt mean for a week.

I never had hay fever, but I have an idea that it is not unlike a vaccination might be if the inoculation were made in the inside of the nose. The victim has all the symptoms of vaccination in an unusual place. In addition, the nose runs quarts of hot water, the eyes burn and water, and the violent sneezing makes the headache terribly.

Dust, vapors, odors, the pollen of plants—anything capable of irritating the terrifically sensitive nasal tissues, will excite itching, crawling, burning and sneezing. Dry air is an irritant. Moisture which lays the dust, washes the air and impregnates the atmosphere is helpful.

You must not think the case is hopeless and that there is nothing to be done to lessen the agonizing discomfort. Your doctor will tell you about soothies, vapors and sprays. There are salvng ,too, which help in some cases.

When I speak of these applications I wish to warn against narcotics and other habit forming drugs. It is better to endure a hundred attacks of hay fever than to take a chance on acquiring a vicious drug habit.

Bear in mind that some attacks of hay fever, asthma and certain skin ailments may be due to food poisoning. Watch your diet and make sure whether or not some favorite food is a factor in exciting the attacks.

Contacts with horses, cats and other animals may make you much worse. Heed your acts to see if the repetition of anything you do brings with it each time a new spell of sneezing.

Pillow fillings may contain substances which are poisonous to you. The dust of sweeping or cleaning, the odors of certain perfumes, the smell of certain foods—in one there may be found an irritant to which you are peculiarly sensitive.

These hints may help to make your attack more endurable. I shall be happy if it proves so.

He Rules The Roost

This is how A. H. Barret, Omaha Tailor, solved the radio problem. When his wife objected to radio in the house he moved to a backyard chicken coop radio and all. Above he is shown listening in while he eats supper. Below are a camera study of Barret and a snapshot of the front of his coop.

OMAHA, Aug. 7.—Back in the palmy days when Rome was a nine o'clock town and they blew out the street lights in Athens promptly at midnight, it was the unwritten law that the husband was boss under his own roof.

He might be an awful bust among his fellow citizens, but when he got home his word was The Works.

Now all of this has changed, and Mr. A. H. Barret, local tailor, has just discovered it.

Mr. Barret, however, has discovered the way out.

As a result, the family chickens have been cast adrift and the foot of the family has taken over their coop.

But this is getting ahead of the story.

It all started when Mr. Barret became addicted to radios

The Habit Proves Too Much, And the House Is Divided.

Radio is a fine thing if a man knows when he's had enough.

But it's an insidious habit if it gets a hold on you.

Mr. Barret took to making his own sets. First he built a crystal set. Then he made a one-tube set. Then he acquired another tube.

Then sinful pride set in and he built all kinds of sets.

Now up to this point Mrs. Barret had looked on radio as slightly lowering, but on the whole harmless. The first half dozen sets were all right with her.

But pretty soon it got so that she couldn't take a step without tripping over a trailing wire. There was radio for breakfast, for dinner, for supper, radio in the watches of the night and radio in the broad daylight.

Exiled From Home, He Finds Chicken Coop Is Habitable.

So Mrs. Barret drew the line there. Then she told her husband to toe it. The radio must go.

It did. So did Mr. Barret.

He exiled the chickens from their coop in the back yard and moved in himself.

A few hours work with broom and brush and the coop became a comfortable little cabin. There all the radio sets were installed in all their glory, and there also did Mr. Barret set up a bed and a small cook stove.

Now the coop is his home. In it he eats, sleeps and radios.

Mrs. Barret is not allowed in. Mr. Barret makes his own bed and cooks his own meals. He even sweeps occasionally.

And nobody has a word to say about his radio.

MORE CASH FOR WEST TO SPEND

Value of New Crop Estimated at $400,000,000—Richest in History.

AID TO BUSINESS.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 7. — More money for business out of the crop this year than from any previous harvest the west has known. That is a prediction that can still be made, although during the past ten days heat and drought have taken their toll, but it is a prediction that needs some elucidation. A close student of the Winnipeg grain market, who is also thoroughly in touch with the farming situation, reads the present developments in the price of wheat as indicating a crop of about 325,000,000 bushels. He is inclined to look for more, but admits that it is difficult to judge what damage is being done by the heat. Even so, he makes the forecast given above. He believes that the return to the farmer should run to more than $400,000,000, or a little more than was received from the high priced crop of 1917, but in that year there was a condition of agricultural inflation which made an entirely different business situation. Business should benefit to a much greater extent from the crop this year than from those of 1924 and 1923, because they were very largely debt paying. To what extent there are remaining obligations to be paid off is a question which can hardly be answered, but there can be no doubt that during the past two years substantial progress has been made in getting back to a sound basis. A great many farmers, particularly in Manitoba, have as the result of careful management and adopting mixed farming, been able to get on an even keel where they are in a position to farm successfully under ordinary conditions. Seeding costs have been reduced and threshing costs should also be more favorable, and these things help the farmers' margin of profit. Of course, even though cutting is now started, a good deal can happen to the late crop in the next month. However, the market shows a tendency to strengthen, as prospects for yield are reduced, and this promises to maintain cash returns on the basis indicated, unless the crop meets with serious disaster.

West's Tempered Optimism.

General business has been slowly improving in the west for some time. During the past two years pessimism has been replaced by a tempered optimism. Prices indicate keen competition for trade. There are just as many cents in the western dollar to-day as in the dollar spent in the east. There is a healthier situation all round.

The railroads, for instance, report an appreciable increase in their merchandise car loadings. This is not very evident in the total figures, because of the smaller movement of grain, but it is very real and it is important as an indicator. There should be considerable money this year available for the purchases of implements and for the building improvements which have been deferred now for some years. Already there is some evidence of new spending in anticipation, but there is not the tendency on the part of the financial or commercial institutions or on the part of the individual farmers either to discount the future as was done some years ago. The revenue from the crop will be carefully handled, but business should benefit substantially.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

A HAPPY LITTLE JUNE BUG

First there was a jar of some kind. Then the little case that held the funny little brown bug burst open, and Mr. June Bug opened his funny little eyes on a dark, damp world.

"Gracious me," he grumbled to himself. "I thought the world was going to be bright. It's as dark as pitch in here, and, oh, dear, but I'm almost smothered. Stop pushing me, will you?" he yelled. "Who do you think you are, anyway?"

"Nothing but the roots of a dandelion," laughed a merry voice. "Excuse me if I seem rude, but when you squirmed out of your shell then, you loosened the dirt around my roots, and it felt so good I just couldn't help pushing with my roots."

"Roots, roots," grumbled Mr. June Bug. "Roots, what are they? Have I what you call roots?" he asked, shaking himself.

"Goodness, no," laughed the Dandelion. "You have a lovely mouth to eat with. You don't need roots."

"Gracious, do you eat with your roots?" laughed Mr. June Bug. "I guess I must be stupid not to know what roots are, but I don't know."

"Certainly I eat with my roots," chuckled Miss Dandelion. "If I didn't eat all the minerals from the juices in the ground I'd never be able to push my head up above the earth at all. You see, when I'm full grown I'll be covered with loveliest little golden heads you ever saw. Now all you can see is an old mass of brown roots."

"Will I Have a Golden Head?"

She gave a quick push and up went a green stem out into the sunshine. "Oh, come up little June Bug and see what a beautiful world of sunshine there is up here," Miss Dandelion called.

Mr. June Bug pushed and pushed. The soft dirt loosened, and out he tumbled into the golden sunlight. The sun was so bright and the change so sudden, Mr. June Bug had to sit still with his eyes closed awhile. Then he shook himself, crawled up the stem of a plant and stretched out a pair of lovely brown wings.

"My, what a glorious world this is," he cried, and he laughed happily. "When you pushed me with your roots down in the ground, at first it made me angry," he chuckled. "I didn't know I was going to come out into such a lovely place. I rhought you said you would have golden heads? What are golden heads? I don't think I've ever seen them."

"Of course you haven't," laughed Miss Dandelion, "for you have never seen a dandelion in bloom. Before many days, if you happen by this way, you'll see my golden heads. You see, all Winter I had to use my roots to eat things to make green leaves. Now that I have them, I shall sip the juices from the earth that will make my golden heads grow."

"Will I have a golden head?' the June Bug.

"No, my dear. But in its place you will have lovely brown wings that will carry you all over the meadows. I will never be able to fly, so they have given me golden heads. I shouldn't say I won't be able to fly," laughed Miss Dandelion, "for when my golden heads turn to white, they will sail away in the winds. Now, little June Bug, spread out your pretty wings and don't forget your little friend of the underground."

Mr. June Bug promised not to forget and spread his wings and sailed a happy little June Bug. And when he came back the next time to visit Miss Dandelion he hardly knew her, she was so covered with golden heads.

MAY CHANGE GEOLOGIC THEORY.

If this find proves to be a mastadon, it will disrupt the entire sequence of geology as worked out by scientists on the Pacific coast according to D. B. Rogers, Smithsonian, excavator. If it is a toothed whale, its discovery will be an equally valuable contribution to science and history.

"If it is a whale," Rogers said, "it died about the time the bottom of the sea rose, as it has been exposod to the air during the process of petrification, and is therefore imperfect and brittle. If it had petriied beneath the water, I believe it would have been as solid and hard as other specimens we have in the museum."

Capt. Bob Ord, veteran Santa Barbara navigator, made the discovery, and reported his find to scientific investigators. Except for the tusk of a sabre-toothed tiger found there 10 years ago, no mammal had every been found on the quake-heaved island before.

WHERE BOATS REALLY HAVE SEA LEGS

The little fishing village of Polperro, on the Cornish coast has seen many nations come and go in its lifetime. It has watched, placidly, the visits of the Phoenicians who came searching for tin, thousa nds of years ago. It has harbored fishermen, smugglers, traders and explorers with unchanging equanimity.

Each of these races left its respective heritage to the present inhabitants. The natives boast of Saxon, Egyptian, Greek, Jewish, Moorish, Spanish, French Welsh, Celtic and English blood in their veins. They regard anybody who has not a similar mixture of blood as a foreigner, even though he come from an English village a few miles away. And they are inwardly slightly supercilious about strangers, even though they are outwardly cordial and hospitable.

The town is built on cliffs rising straight upward from the sea. A charming silver stream, trickling down from the moors, winds its way through the town and out to sea. The fishermen's cottages have stood there for many hundreds of years and they have acquired the immense dignity of age. They are serene, undisturbed, watchful, tolerant.

And the boats, like the houses, seem to have taken on a definite character. They are part of the village. They are distinctive. They are probably the only boats that have legs, real sea legs.

When the tide comes back, there is a quiver that runs through each little vessel. Suddenly they leave the ground, fold their legs up under them and turn to meet the incoming sea, and welcome it back.

There are the only known sea legs that are made of material stuff. We have heard of the "sea legs" that travelers are supposed to acquire after a few days at sea. But they are intangible things. The legs that the sloops of Polperro boast are real and substantial

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST

Murray Street Church is a daughter of Gilmour Memorial Church which is in turn a monument to the Rev. John Gilmour whose name is a household word among the Baptists of Canada.

Gilmour did not confine his work to the red men but labored in his spare time among the white settlers [illegible] year following his arrival [illegible] Central Park [illegible] communicants, the church which now bears his name. Desirious of founding a Baptist cause within the town Gilmour gave $250 out of his scanty earnings for the purchase of a lot in Aylmer street on which a small brick church was erected in 1845, costing $1400. This was, in course of time, enlarged and improved but even then it failed to supply the requirements of the congregation and on the union of various sections of the Methodists into one body the Bible Christian Church, Murray street, was purchased by the Baptists who made many improvements and additions.

The process of time brought further increase and prosperity and a new building was found necessary. The present church was built at a cost of $65,000. The corner stone was laid by Rev. John Clifford, the famous London minister, on June 29, 1911. At the formal opening of the church in 1912, one of the preachers, Professor J. L. SATURDAY, AUGUST 8.

A day of conflicting interests is presaged from the contradictory planetary auguries. While those in the employment of others are under excellent auspices for recognition, favors or advancement if qualified, and others may seek honors or preferment, yet the financial outlook is not an encouraging one. New projects are under an adverse figure. Speculation and all risky ventures are warned against, and complications may arise through rash or hasty conduct. Happier conditions prevail in home and heart affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are warned against loss by speculation or other hasty or ill-considered investments. New enterprises should be carefully considered. There is a more propitous rule in heart and home affairs. A child born on this day may be disposed to be prodigal and extravagant in its money matters and may lose through speculation. It may be a friend of pleasure and society and should do best in the employment of others.

CITY REQUIRES NEW STATIONS AND APPARATUS

Says Report Which Finds Present Fire Protection to be Inadequate.

STAFF TOO SMALL

Night Patrolman Not Checked by Watchman's Clock.

In a communication received from the Canadian Fire Underwriters Association, grave changes are advocated in the fire protective appliances for the city.

John A. Robertson in an appended letter makes special comments drawing attention to the Inspectors report which said that more fire stations are necessary to cover the city territory.

He also notes that the number of men maintained is not sufficient to man the equipment in the fire hall. Finally he draws attention to the fact that while a night watchman is maintained for patrol duty he is not supplied with a clock and therefore no check is available on his work.

The report which was the subject of these conclusions gives a summary of general conditions the changes noted since 1921, a practical test of equipment and an enumeration of the supplies.

The inspector's findings are as follows:

General Conditions

The Waterworks system has an abundant water supply in the Otonobee and the consumption is not excessive. The distribution system is fairly well arranged and will be greatly improved on the completion of new mains at present under construction.

Fire Department

The existing staff is fully paid and is operated on the two platoon system, but is decidedly under strength, although adequate arrangements are made for calling out those off duty.

Additional hose companies are necessary as well as a second ladder company. Response to alarms is now made by one hose company and one ladder company only.

The city is protected from one fire hall; another is required in the southern factory area and others are also advisable in Ashburnham and the northern section.

The Alarm System

A fire alarm telegraph system is in use energized by storage batteries in duplicate. Practically all boxes are of the non interfering succession type. Distribution is good in the business section, but more needed in outlying parts. The alarm devices are adequate and telephone alarms are re-transmitted over the fire alarm telegraph system.

By-Laws

Existing measures enforced require buildings erected within the fire limits to be of solid stone or other incombustible material with roofs of similar non-inflammable construction, but some types of frame structures are permitted as grain elevators. Coal pockets and ice houses.

The storage of crude oil, gasoline etc. is not regulated by by-law.

Conflagration Hazard

The business sections is free from frame structures in front and interiors. The undivided areas are not large, streets are of a good width and access to interiors is easy. There are hazards resulting from the presence of lumber yards on both sides of the Otonabee in the south-central area. The residential area presents no unusual features and dangers are modified by a dependable water works system and by a fire department which, though under strength and particularly deficient in hose companies, is well trained.

Changes Since November 1921.

The population of the city has increased from 21,950 to 23,150 while the total assessed value of all buildings has increased from $12,301,565 to $14,861,620 inclusive of exemptions.

Test.

For the purpose of testing the efficiency of the city fire department an alarm was sent in from Box 35 at the corner of Hunter and Park [illegible] of about 4,000 feet from the Fire Hall. The call was made at 9.21 and at 9.23 the Fire Chief in his car arrived, at 9.23½ a combination hose and chemical wagon was on the scene and water was thrown through one line of hose at 9.25. A horse drawn aldder truck arrived at 9.25. At 9.26½ the normal pressure of the line was 80 pounds. This was increased to 95 pounds at 9.28. Eleven men including the chief responded to the alarm.

Recommendations.

Because of the city's extent a second ladder company is required. There are only two horses for use on the ladder waggon. More should be provided for the hose waggons.

Fire stations are insufficient. Then should be one in the south, another in Ashburnham and one in the northern limit.

The brigade includes at present 21 men with 10 on duty; those off duty are supplied with tap bells and respond to calls. In order to properly man the appliances at present in the hall should require 16 men by day and 24 by night.

The salvage equipment is inadequate. It now consists of 8 covers and brooms. A special salvage waggon should form a part of the equipment containing 50 covers, which would not be too many for a city of this size.

The fire alarm telegraph system is efficient but more boxes are essential in the remote sections.

The night patrol is not checked by a watchman's clock and accordingly no responsibility can be placed on patrol report. The patrolman should be supplied with a clock.

These excerpts were taken from the report submitted to the Canadian Fire Underwriters Association by Inspector L. D. Walker.

A UNIQUE WEDDING

Two Girls on Holiday, Impressed by Church, Brought Fiances to Cobourg.

COBOURG, Aug. 7.—To come to Cobourg for a holiday and stay to marry was the happy experience of two young ladies from Belleville, whose double wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's church on Tuesday evening at seven o'clock. Rev. Temple Stannage Boyle, D.D., ably officiating at the happy function. A few interested spectators assembled to witness the unique event. The brides, Miss Mabel Leona Snell and Miss Arline Louise Andrews, have been camping at the park with Mr. and Mrs. Doherty, all being from Belleville. They are members of St. Thomas Anglican church, Belleville, and have been attending St. Peter's church during their holiday here. They became much attached to St. Peters' and its beautiful environment, and as a result it was decided to hold the marriage here. Thus it was that Miss Mabel Leona Snell was happily married to Mr. Wm. James Dunnett, and Miss Arline Louise Andrews to Mr. James Russell Ashbury. The happy bridegrooms are also from Belleville. The couples performed the duties of bridesmaid and best man for each other, reversing their positions during progress of the ceremony. DENUNCIATION OF LIBERAL POLICY

DESTROY FINANCE.

SHOAL LAKE, Man., Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—In Marquette, the constituency of Hon. Thomas Crerar, and the hot bed of Progressive activities, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, in the presence of 2,000 farmers, yesterday challenged what he termed Liberal-Farmer alliance and denounced them for what he proclaimed a conspiracy to destroy the fiscal structure of the Dominion.

Incidentally the Opposition leader scored the Government for its extravagance in railway administration, and said he now hears umors that the Liberals were proposing to present what is reported to be some sort of a railway merger, and declared that, in his opinion Premier King was raising this new issue to evade making the tariff policy the feature of the approaching contest.

Question: My husband cannot get any sleep nights. Can you suggest anything?—Worried.

Answer: Get him a job as nightwatchman.

Question: I bought a one night corn cure which did not do any good. Can I take steps against the manufacturer?—D. A. N.

Answer: Would suggest that the fewer steps you take until you get rid of the corn the better. You have no action against the one night corn cure. It means the Arctic night.

PICK MAN OFF COW CATCHER

Fell Through Bottom of Car as Train Crushed it at Crossing.

IN HOSPITAL NOW.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press). — From the pilot of a T. H. & B. train which had smashed his car so badly that it was not worth bringing into garage, Harry Miller was taken to Brantford General Hospital, where he is reported in good condition. Miller dropped through the bottom of his car when a train crossing the Jerseyville Road yesterday crumpled it up after striking it in the centre and the train crew picked him off the cow catcher 400 yards from the crossing.

MINERS' CHARGES DECLARED UNTRUE

"Negotiations Have No Orders Against Concessions," Says Leader.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Samuel D. Warriner, chief of the anthracite operators, yesterday opened the door to the resumption of wage negotiations in a letter to John L. Lewis, in which he branded as untrue the miners' charge that the operators' negotiators are instructed to refuse any concessions, and expressed the hope that "means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension."

CLERKS POUND OUT 21 RUNS

Win From Mill A in Game Last Night—Campbellford Softball.

LEAGUE STANDING.

The clerks played errorless ball behind steady pitching by Dr. Bussey and Mill "A" were only able to score one run in the scheduled soft ball game last night, while the clerks hammered Dummitt and Montgomery who relieved him to all corners of the lot, and coupled with many juicy errors ran up a total of 21 runs.

The line up:

HORSES KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Severe Electric Storm Sweeps Welcome District—Barn Struck.

MOSTLY LOCAL.

WELCOME, Aug. 7.—One of the worst electric storms that has visited this locality in years passed over the village Thursday morning about 5 o'clock. The rain fell in torrents, causing large channels in the roads along the pavements. Cellars were flooded also.

The electricity caused considerable damage.

Mr. Walter Dunbar of Perrytown had three horses killed.

James Graham of Canton had his barn struck. A fire was started, but was extinguished before much damage was done.

Mr. Fred. Olds on the Peterboro Gravel Road had a horse killed.

Trees were struck both in Mr. Staples' and Mrs. Robinson's orchards, and a number of fence posts along Mr. Ed. Martin's lane.

A peculiar feature was that though the storm was so severe in this locality, at Newtonville, a short distance west, there was no storm at all.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my 'teens. I attended several dances and movies with a young man last winter and spring that I like quite well. He has not phoned me nor asked me to go out for several weeks. He seemed to enjoy himself every time we were out and he has been at my home different times. What's wrong?

ARE-WE-DOWN-HEARTED.

ARE-WE-DOWN-HEARTED: He may be in love with some other girl, by this time. Or else you have done something that he doesn't like. There is also the ever-present menace of mutual friends and family interference. Perhaps his mother doesn't approve of the color of your hair and has spoken seriously to him about it, or his chum may have told him that you were just "stringing him along." It's a great old game, but why worry, when you're just in your 'teens? Think of all the pleasant people there are in the world, many millions of them, and don't allow yourself to feel badly over one tiny atom of humanity. Give him a little rope. If he likes you, he will come back when he has tried out a couple of other girls, and if he doesn't you wouldn't want him anyway, would you? Why not set your cap for another beau?

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE.

I am a girl of fifteen and go out with a crowd about the same age. I was very intimate with four girls and two boys. Lately we began to go with another girl. Before we went with her, the boys had a great deal of respect for us This girl allows the boys to kiss her. The boys have taken advantage of it and do the same to me. Should I allow it?

I have mentioned the fact to one of the boys and he smiled.

Before going with this girl I thought if a girl allowed boys to kiss her she was not respectable. Is this so?

This girl told me I was not broad-minded enough. That is the reason I allow the boys to kiss me now.

PERPLEXED.

P. S.—I have read the advice you gave to other girls. I hope you can help me. Thank you.

Perplexed: I am sure nothing I can say will convince you of the "error of your ways" so much as the lesson you have learned by yourself, Miss Perplexed. Now you know that no man, regardless of what he says, will respect a girl who makes of affection a commonplace thing. I suggest that you discard the friendships which have caused you so much pain and make new ones. Cultivate people who have a high regard for the wholesome virtues, who have interests and tastes in common with yours, and you will not regret this.

Let's Talk It Over

THE FEET OF CLAY ON MOST OF MANKIND

This is a story of a man who put Woman on a pedestal and worshipped at her feet. He was happy worshipping her and believing in her deity, until one day he looked down and saw she had feet of clay. Then his faith and his love were gone, and he no longer wanted to look upon her. She was only human after all. What was he?

When I was a little boy my father used to take me on his knee and say: "Son, when you grow to be a man always remember that the best thing on earth is a woman, the nearest thing to Almighty goodness that we have, and never let it be said that a son of mine failed to be a gentleman in every respect."

Well, for a time I tried to live that life, but in the past few years I have found it impossible. The Women Don't Deserve It. The more I see of the modern girl the less I am inclined to do the chevalier stuff.

A woman is only worth as much as she demands. If she demands little she will get little. It is impossible for a man to approach a woman or a girl who does not care to be approached If girls would avoid places that give the beastly man the opportunity to do his work, he would be powerless. Let them keep off the lonely roads, out of private booths, and they'll be pretty safe for a new generation of mothers, wives and sweethearts.

I will never forget the girl I love. She belongs to some one else now. She doesn't love him. She married him because I turned her down. I turned her down for being untrue to me when I was in France. I can never forget. She was beautiful. While I was gone one of the home guards told her I was loving a little girl in France, and she yielded and all the time I was thinking of only one thing—to get home to the girl that I loved. I did come home—but to what—to find her changed, different—and much, much wiser than the girl I had left. Since that time I have married, and am very much more experienced in life than I was—all to my sorrow

In conclusion I say that this old game of life is a hard one—it takes plenty of playing to end it properly. If you are not getting the kind of deal you think you ought to get, take inventory of yourself and see how many times you have failed to play the game as a good sport.

A REAL FRIEND To A REAL GIRL.

There's big truth there. Your advice to girls is all to the good. Now let's apply some of that philosophy to your life.

Let's begin with father's and mother's teaching—"A woman is the best thing on earth, the nearest thing to Almighty goodness that we have—" You tried to believe it, and by and by you were forced to admit that "the women didn't deserve" that homage.

Of course they don't. There's nothing divine about women. There is nothing essentially better, or purer or more saintly than men about them. They are just humans, same as men. You haven't any right to put them on a pedestal and then cry because they fall off. It's your fault for placing them there, not theirs for failing to live up to your expectations.

You "turned down" the only woman you loved because she was weak. She listened to lies—she believed you were untrue to her—and she became untrue to you. Such a commonplace, sordid, pitiful little sin—to wreck two persons' lives. I wonder if you could have forgiven her if you hadn't believed her to be a goddess. Goddesses aren't tempted—but humans are. It's so easy to believe lies, so hard to keep faith when the days grow into months and there's no word from the loved one—no word to brand them as lies. All men and and women do not have equally strong characters.

So you married some one else—to spite her—and she married some one else—to show she didn't care—and now there are four of you all disillusioned, all embittered, because your one-time idol had feet of clay.

Come on, Pal wake up. Can the "chevalier stuff" before you smash any more hearts. Remember That Women Are People—Same As Men.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

POPULAR CHICKEN DISHES

In selecting the chickens for boiling, get the short, thick-set bird that has a deep breast, so that there is plenty of white meat for slicing. Have the sinews drawn from the legs before the feet are cut off, clean carefully, then scrub the bird in lukewarm water with a brush and a little white soap, rinse well, and then wipe it with a clean cloth. Truss closely and it is ready for boiling. If the broth is to be made into bouillon, add a sliced onion, some stalks and leaves of celery, a few sprays of parsley and a carrot.

When the chicken is removed, throw the bones and the trimmings into the broth, season it and boil genty until reduced to about three pints, then strain. Strain a second time through a damp cheesecloth stretched over a fine strainer. Set aside, and when it is cold remove every particle of grease. Serve hot or cold. If the bouillon is to be jellied, it is a good idea to boil with it a small knuckle of veal or a dressed calf's foot.

Oven-broiled chickens are frequently nicer than those broiled over the coals or under the gas. Split the chicken down the back and take out the thin blade breast bone, butter the bird over, inside and out, with soft butter, dust with pepper and salt, lay it skin side up on the rack, pour into the pan a half cupful of water, juice of an onion, juice of half a lemon and a saltspoonful of sugar. Put in the oven and lay a cover over the bird. Cook ten minutes, remove the cover, baste well, then cook rapidly until a good brown. Serve on a hot dish, garnished with parsley. If desired, the pan may be slipped under the broiler for three or four minutes before lifting, but the broiler should be hot before slipping the chicken under it.

If a chicken is to be roasted it should have a very savory stuffing and not be stuffed too full, as a chicken skin is tenderer than turkey and apt to split. Also, the ingredients of the stuffing should be cooked—like nuts, onions, oysters, sausage, or whatever is used—before being made into the dressing, as the chicken does not cook long enough to cook the stuffing inside thoroughly.

BOLERO JACKETS SHOWN FOR FALL WEAR.

FRENCH FASHION SHOWS ARE FEATURING THESE EFFECTS FOR FALL

By Annette Bradshaw.

The earliest French openings have featured frocks and suits styled in bolero treatments. These have already been taken up by ultra-smart women who are always a step or so ahead of the prevalent fashions, and every indication points to the popularity of this smart treatment for Fall.

The two frocks shown above are advance season models which show the bolero effect. It happens that both of them stimulate the bolero instead of really having a separate short bolero jacket.

The model at the left is of navy blue satin trimmed with narrow pleated ruffles of the navy blue. A double row of these ruffles makes a becoming dip at the front of the skirt and extends around the bottom at the hem. A matching double row simulates the bolero effect on the blouse of the frock. The long-close-fitting sleeves are finishedt with ruffles, and the small neck has a collar made of a fold of organdie.

The second dress is of fine lightweight woolen material in a soft brown color. There are insets of beige silk serge in the blouse, and the collar and cuffs are also of beige silk serge. The skirt is built on straight lines, with sections of fine pleats at front, back and sides.

Other Fall fashions include two-piece suits, consisting of straight skirt and short bolero jacket worn over a white batiste blouse. A smart navy serge suit is made in this manner, the short jacket worn over a tailored lingerie blouse trimmed with touches of old blue.

BUDGING FOR BODY TONE.

It is a very encouraging thought that practically all of us can build our health up, slowly, perhaps, but surely. It is equally encouraging to women that they can build up their beauty as they build up their health.

The woman who has lusterless eyes, dull hair and a muddy complexion is the woman whose health is not as good as it should be.

But that same woman can build up her health by tireless and unceasing diligence, and the transformation will be nothing short of miraculous.

The eyes that were lusterless will have a bright, shiny look which the ill woman can never possess. Hair which grows from a healthy scalp automatically becomes a better color. The glints of light bespeak a healthy scalp and vigorous, growing hair. And if our internal organs are all functioning properly our complexions will take care of themselves, or practically that. Of course, we must continue to give them aid from the outside, such aid as cleansing cream and a good, clean, fine face powder can give.

Internal aids, such as plenty of fresh water and green vegetables, too, are necessary to keep the machine we have built up in good working order.

Now the way to build up your body is by right living and exerise. Simple food, generous hours for sleep, the avoiding of strain, all contribute their share toward the sum total of right living.

Willing to have health and working for it are the two necessary ingredients. If you acquire pretty hair and a nice complexion through diligence spent in gaining health, you will be just that much more inspired to make the efforts necessary to keep your beauty intact.

Having prescribed the simplest rules for right living, I am going to give you a good exercise to add to the ones I have already given from time to time. Of course, the special rules to guid your own life along the best health lines will have to be worked out by you, perhaps with the help of your physician if you are in doubt about anything.

This Exercise, Soon Mastered, Will Give You Beauty and Vigor.

The muscle-toning exercise which I recommend is this:

Lie flat on your face on the floor. Wear a bathing suit or very light clothing for this exercise.

Now raise your body, supporting your weight on your toes and elbows without touching your abdomen to the floor.

Hold this position for a few seconds, then lower to first position.

Repeat several times, but never long enough to feel that the exercise is a strain.

This is an excellent exercise to know and you will find it interesting to notice how much easier it becomes after a few repetitions.

The Travers Stake, one of the important fixtures of the Saratoga race meeting, is a classic of the Americagn turf and it has been won by some of the greatest horses in the period between its inaugural running in 1864 and the present day. It was named in honor of William R. Travers, noted wit, financier and lover of the turf, who owned Kentucky, the winner of the first Travers Stake.

Waves

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (United Press)—There is only one time when women suffer in silence and that is when they are getting a permanent wave! Having a permanent is as painful as having teeth extracted, only permanent waving lasts longer. One forgets the pain, however, as soon as the chandelier effect is released from one's head.

The permanent wave is a leading topic among women. The majority of women in large cities have the permanent wave these days and the fear of it's effect upon the hair has been quite dispelled. Time has proven that hair that has not been bleached or dyed can be waved without disaster providing the waving is done by an expert. Very seldom do we hear of any bad effects upon the hair. There is, to be sure, a certain dryness that comes with the waving process but this disappears in time, especially if one applies a brilliantine each day or so.

There is always a slight risk in waving bleached or dyed hair. Sometmes such hair refuses to curl and one finds that one has suffered in vain. Bleached or dyed hair often breaks off after waving. The roots, however, are not effected so one is not permanently disabled in any case. Most professional wavers will not attempt to wave hair than has been over-bleached or dyed. Gray hair sometimes takes on a yellowish cast after waving but this disappears within a week or so. By drenching gray hair in blueing the yellowish cast disappears more readily.

One is usually advised to moisten the hair with warm water each day after the permanent. Hair that is bobbed can be kept in ringlet effect by rolling the ends about a lead pencil and pinning the roll to the head with an invisible hairpin. Water-waving with combs gives the marcelled effect.

Most permanents are supposed to last about six months several New York specialists in waving will give additional curls within three months time without extra charge. By so doing, they wave the rear hair about the neck and the front locks which renews the life of one's wave.

About Ourselves And Other People

WHY GIRLS ARE "INSULTED" ON THE STREET

Three cheers and a tiger for Judge Allegretti, of Chicago.

He's the man who sat on the bench in Chicago the other day and fined two young women because they filed complaints against two young men for "insulting them" when they had by their own dress and by their own actions and by their own looks, openly invited the insults.

I hope these young women went home and washed their faces and pulled their skirts down an inch or so and did something to the necks of their dresses so that they didn't look half naked. And I hope the next time they go out into the street they will act as if they were going on an errand and not as if they were out looking for "insults."

What does a girl who dresses and looks and acts like a woman of the underworld expect men to think of her anyhow?

What does she think they think?

I saw a pretty little thing stepping along State street in Chicago the other day. She had just clothes enough on to escape arrest and she gave every man she passed "a come hither look," but when one of the men answered her perfectly plain invitation and followed her, she walked straight up to a policeman and acted as if she were going to have the man arrested.

I haven't a doubt that girl has entertained a dozen dinner parties with her description of the way men "insult" girls on the streets in open daylight and the way the police protect the men.

Every woman who has ever been out alone much, either at night or in the daytime, knows that there are men whose minds are so evil and so empty that they would follow a sister of charity and leer at her if they got a chance.

Such men as this think that women are all fools and all eager and ready victims to the fascinations of even the homeliest little bow-legged, bald-headed insignificant man who ever lived.

But such creatures are easy to dispose of after all.

The average man does not "insult" a woman unless the woman dresses or looks or talks ar acts as if she were trying to invite that "insult."

A few more Judge Allegrettis and we will have a few less hideous stories in the newspapers.

And the girl who gets a thrill out of being followed by a strange man will go way back in a corner and sit down.

CURTAIN DROPS ON THE DRAMA OF THE RUHR AS FRENCH MOVE OUT AFTER A LONG OCCUPATION

Germany Has Re-organized Her Finances and Accepted Dawes Plan.

BETTER CONDITIONS.

Country is in Better Shape Politically Than When the Ruhr Was Occupied.

(By H. I. Brock.

With the withdrawal of practically the last troops from the region at the end of July, French occupation of the Ruhr Valley passed from the realm of speculation into that of history. It is possible at last to look at it as an accomplished fact and record its practical working without regard to national prejudice or legal or economic arguments for other policies.

Other policies have been adopted with equal or greater advantage to the world in the international deadlock which paralyzed Europe at the end of the year 1922. By the decisive action of the French Premier, Raymond Poincare, this plan was adopted and put into effective action. It was pursued with firmness and tenacity in the face of the strong opposition of England and the generally diffused impression in this country and the rest of the world that it was such strong medicine that it might kill the patient and poison the body of Western civilization.

A month after the French marched in Mr. Lloyd George—who had many sharers of his opinion —said that "a gross blunder" had been committed, that what had happened "had gone beyond what the French Government had conceived" and that the world was up against "the national spirit of Germany, aroused for the first time since the armistice."

The head of the precarious German Republic was then the Socialist ex-saddler, Friedrich Ebert, of whose excellent republican intentions there was no suspicion despite all the teeming suspicions of Germany and the Germans.

Signs of Better Feeling.

The aroused national spirit of which Mr. Lloyd George spoke has since put in the place of Ebert, removed by the hand of death, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, East Prussian aristocrat, sometime ahead of the Kaiser's armies against the armies of the Czar, and the military idol of the German people. Yet the medicine had worked so well—or some medicine has worked so well—that there seems less menace to the nations surrounding Germany, more signs of an era of reasonable good feeling and decent international understanding which does not utterly exclude the Germans, than has arrived since the great war began.

Financially, at least, Germany is a respectable member of international society, operating on the gold basis, not wildcatting it with paper. Politically, she has stood the test of three general elections, and though President Hindenburg's Finance Minister has already begun to speak gloomily about the impossibility of balancing the budget any paying reparations, the reparations are nevertheless being paid with decent punctuality into the hands of Seymour Gilbert, Agent General of the Allies. The very fact of the withdrawal of the French from the Ruhr a fortnight before the time agreed upon is proof that there exists even in Paris no serious doubt that Germany will keep on paying.

In contrast was the situation in January, 1923, at the moment when the strong French medicine was applied. Germany then, in pursuit of what has been called her policy of dilapidation and evasion, appeared to herself and the rest of the nations of the earth to be on the brink of ruin. Her sea of paper money had not reached its high tide, but it was rising rapidly, and drowning in it seemed the country's natural fate. With four years elapsed since the war in which to recover she was so far in arrears with her reparation payments that, interest included, she actually owed more than at the beginning. After repeated defaults, penalties and revisions downward of the theoretical total, she had just proclaimed her inability to meet her current obligations to the Allies and asked for a moratorium from all payments in cash or in kind for four years.

British and French Differed.

Owing chiefly to the instability of her rapidly depreciating paper money and the consequent disorganization of the channels of supply and demand between the towns and the cities, her townsfolk were without sufficient food, and this condition was rapidly being aggravated as the mark declined. At the same time her great industrial interests, organized into huge combinations, were apparently making vast fortunes for the manipulators who controlled them, and these manipulators were reputed the masters of Germany and the dictators of German policies.

In the face of this situation confidence in Germany's ability to pay her debts to the Allies or even to save her own skin was virtually destroyed everywhere. Germany herself rather paraded her helplessness. Outside opinion divided on the point whether this helplessness was a physical condition of Germany or a lack of the will to do what was required of her. The British inclined to hold that she couldn't, the French stoutly maintained that she wouldn't. Upon this point London and Paris split on their policies with regard to all their dealings with their late enemy.

Upon their own diagnosis of the condition and their conviction that the way to save Germany—if only so that she could discharge her obligations to France — was to make Germany realize that she must save herself, the French proceeded. On Jan. 11, 1923, they marched their troops into the Ruhr as the "military protection of an industrial mission," the purpose of which was to hold a pledge of future payment and supervise for purposes of current payments on reparations account the coal mines, industrial plants, forests and customs of this richest region of the recalcitrant Reich. As justification France produced the fact that the Reparation Commission had formally declared Germany in default. Since England refused to join in, "the French Government and the Belgian Government acted with the cooperation of the Italian governmen t under warrant as they assumed and England denied, of the T reaty of Versailles. This is no place to rehash the legal argument. Let the facts suffice.

The Occupation Method

French forces first occupied the Rhine district including Essen where Krupp works are; then in a few days Bochum, Dortmund and other Westphalian towns. The whole region includes some 30,000 square kilometers and roughly 4,000,000 people, with the richest coal mines in E urope and 4,000-odd furnaces. Original r eport put the French forces at 100,000 men. The official figure was 50,000, with fewer than 10,000 Belgians. The Germans did not resist the troops, which were under command of General Degoutte, with headquarters at Dusseldorf — where the poet Heine boasts of having been born. . The forces were disposed according to plans made by Marshal Foch. As the yarrived the German coal operators and State distributing agencies left the Ruhr district, with all their records dealing with distribution.

The German government having notified the coal owners that it would no longer pay for the mining of reparations coal and the operators refusing to comply with. Degoutte's order to continue deliveries of reparations coal. six of the most important, including Fritz Thyssen, were arrested, tried by court martial at Mayence and fined among them a matter of 300,000 francs. The mine workers went on strike in pr st and demanded the removal of the French soldiers from the mines; the steel workers also struck, there were riots and the French replied with a show of tanks and machine guns.

Industry came to a stop.

Then the Rhineland High Commission (with the British High Commission not voting) decreed the sequestration of all proceeds of mines and custo. s in the occupied area, and the German government ordered all officials to refuse obedience to the occupying authorities and forbade the railways and the Rhine t ansport companies to transport reparations coal.

It was reported that of the normal supply of 50,000 coal cars in the Ruhr only 25,000 remained, the Germans having got away with the rest. Trains were blocked, signal lights and switches were put out of commission and locomotives disappeared. The French preserved their usual sang froid and their well oiled military machine ran smoothly, as an observer on the spot reported. Jan. 31 they cut off a coal supply from Germany.

By Feb. 2 no coal was being mined and the whole trackage of the Ruhr was a tangled mass of stalled coal trains. Not only were the Ruhr miners idle but the mine were striking ing in the Sarre basin (held by the French) and elsewhere. The question of food for the population was growing serious since the miners had no reserves. When the French government offered to transport food for the people the German government refused the offer. By this time the policy of so called passive resistance dictated by the Germans was well under way and the Ruhr was out of business. Neither France nor Germany was getting coal. Dr. Cuno (the Germ: Chancellor) came to look the situation over and departed with a very black view of things.

So far the facts of the occupation. Now as to the purpose behind the occupation.

Poincare States His Purpose.

Premier Poincare, speaking to the American newspaper correspondents in Paris Jan. 29, explained the French position. "France," he said, "has no intention of holding the Ruhr permanently. She means to stay there till she is paid, or has assurances that she will be paid. It is evident that France will not be satisfied with German promises * * * We intend to hold the mining and industrial basin until Germany fulfills its agreement. It may be a matter of five years before Germany gives sufficient proofs of its sincerity of paying reparations, or it may be considerably less if the German Government reorganizes its financial system on a sound basis and obtains a foreign loan which would be applied on the reconsruction of the devastated regions of France."

He added significantly:

"French metallurgy is ready to suspend all operations if necessary to prove to the Germans that we are in earnest and intend to pursue our policy even if we suffer also."

As a matter of fact, the cessation of the flow of the Ruhr coal and coke, which was having so serious an effect in Germany and caused the rapid rise of unemployment throughout the Reich till it was said to have reached a point around the five million mark, had also very serious effects upon the French iron and steel industry. This industry was forced during the first six months of occupation to get coke from England and America and pay greatly increased prices. Of 114 French furnaces going full blast at the beginning of occupation 74 were kept going with difficulty.

Cur$on-Poincare Debate.

Poincare had been closely related as a lawyer before the war with the Lorraine iron interests. He had reason to know beforehand what the effect would be and appears to have counted the cost at home as he delivered his blow at Germany. Further bearing upon this point is Poincare's note in reply to the famous Curzon note of August 11, 1923—the note which expressed such disappointment with the persistence of the French in a policy which the British Government regarded as not only unwise but as "doomed to failure." Poincare says. "We did not go into the Ruhr to find immediately money for reparations, but above all to create in the German Government a wish to pay and to seize guarantees. It depends upon Germany whether we shall soon evacuate the Ruhr by placing herself in the position of changing her financial system to contract international debts and liberate herself by anticipation. The desire for our evacuation will be a stimulant to her."

The Marquis of Curzon, who harbored the darkest suspicions of French intentions, had intimated that the pursuance of the policy of occupation, assuming to create the will to pay, was more likely to diminish the power to pay, without which the will would be nothing—or even to "extinguish it altogether by the continuance of the stranglehold on the most important centre, the most productive and highly organized of German industries." He thought thirty-six years was a minimum figure for an occupation to produce the results prescribed and saw no reason which it might not extend in perpetuity.

Dawe's View of the Effect.

It is now possible to measure these estimates of contending statesmen by the accomplished facts. Occupation of the Ruhr actually ceases after two years and less than seven months with very nearly those things arrived at which the Frenchman professed to have in view. The Dawes plan, with its rehabilitation of German credit and creation of financial guarantees, has been substituted for the territorial and material pledges supplied by holding the Ruhr with armed forces.

The relation of the Dawes plan to occupation is variously viewed. The two things constitute, in fact, steps in historic sequence in the rehabilitation of Europe. There are those who hold, like the late Lord Curzon and Mr. Lloyd George, that the Ruhr occupation was a useless step —a step aside or backward. Upon that point not unimportant is the opinion of the chairman of the Committee of Experts which formulated the plan in the actual presence of Ruhr occupation.

General Dawes, addressing the committee on his arrival in Paris in January, 1924, spoke of the Ruhr occupation as "that prospective act of common-sense." Later in February, 1924, when he had just got back from Berlin, and the experts' task was nearly done, he categorically associated himself with the opinion that the results arrived at by the committee could not have been reached if the French had not been in the Ruhr. "The Germans," he said, "had been made to realize that they must pay up to their capacity, which it appeared they had not intended to do until French troops entered the Ruhr; while a year's stay in the Ruhr had brought the French to understand that occupation was not producing reparation payments, caused them to recede from the position of demanding enormous immediate sums and preparing them to consider easier terms than previously."

"Had the French not taken the Ruhr," General Dawes added, "the state of mind of both the Germans and the French would have been unchanged and there would have been no occasion for the experts to meet."

It is to be observed that Poincare did not share the French expectation of "enormous immediate sums, and in that matter was furnishing in the Ruhr an object-lesson for his own people as well as for the Germans.

Dawes was also quoted as saying that it was not the German people but the industrialists who refused to pay, and that the occupation of the Ruhr convinced these latter of the necessity. By seizing the Ruhr, Poincare got precisely these industrialists in his power. By dealing with them instead of with the German Government, he dealt with what was in fact the greater power in Germany—the only power that had any real prestige in Germany or out. By breaking this power he did more than he could have done by breaking directly the power of the German Governmtnt. His consistent refusal to deal with the German Government in Ruhr matters after passive resistance started was a considered and deliberate policy which was justified by its results.

These explanations, from what followed, assist the understanding of much that preceded. As we have seen, the beginning of February, 1923, we found the Ruhr paralysed as a result of occupation, passive resistance and the blockade of German trade with the Ruhr. Except where the French created services for their own use and got a little coal mined for their own use, this condition continued and grew progressively worse. The food situation particularly grew worse. And the effect was more and more felt in the rest of Germany. There was a frenzy of selling marks and buying foreign exchange. Retail prices were soaring and shops were quoting prices in dollars or in sterling. July 30 the mark passed the million-to-a-dollar level, the Reichsbank was issuing paper at the rate of two trillions daily and still unable to supply the people, who came with baskets, push-carts and taxicabs to fetch away bales of it. Steel production, which had not ceased with coal production, was off 75 per cent.

Renewal of Coal Shipments.

Things having reached this pass, on Aug. 4 orders were issued to General Degoutte to seize factories and mines if the industrialists ignored the French request (so called) to resume work and pay taxes. Two days later an agreement was reached between the operators and railway authorities for the renewal of coal shipments — showing that the threat had taken effect.

Meantime Berlin, to finance passive resistance, added 2 per cent. to the income tax, automobile license tax and export levy, and the Reichstag showed that it felt the pressure of events by resolving to "apply itself energetically to meeting reparation claims." Chancellor Cuno told that body that "France was ruler and destroyer of Europe," but "passive resistance, free from senseless acts of violence, and criminanl acts, must be continued," he added, "with all our strength."

Four days after that deliverance, Aug. 12, Cuno was out of office and Stresemann was Chancellor in his stead, with the Reichsbank presently issuing 157 trillion paper marks a week and the dollar value of the mark rapidly receding toward the hundred million level. A Berlin semi-official statement Sept. 14 said that passive resistance in the Ruhr had cost 120 deaths, not counting 10 death sentences of courts-martial that 173 newspapers had been suspended, 145,000 persons ousted from their homes of whom 131,000 had been expelled from the occupied territory, and that 632 trillion paper marks had been seized.

Through the Belgian Minister in Berlin Sept. 18, an offer was made looking toward the abandonment of passive resistance on condition of the release of prisoners and the return of exiles, to which were added more considerable money payments and more substantial guarantees than the Cuno Government had offered. The French refused to treat. Three days later Streseman told a conference of Prime Ministers of the German States that passive resistance was costing the country 8,000,000,000 marks a week and it was agreed that it must be given up in a "manner consonant with the dignity and honor of the German nation."

Did Not Destroy Wealth

With this situation in Germany accelerated, if not created, by his Ruhr policy, Poincare held firmly on in spite of the growing distrust of his cause in other countries, based on alarm over the fact that Germany's ruin seemed about accomplished.

Poincare's confidence seems to have been grounded on the knowledge that no more in Germany at large than in the Ruhr had anything tangible been destroyed. Industry was hobbled, credit non-existent, confidence gone, but the assets were untouched. He held to France's claim on the assets. His confidence has been justified by events.

President Ebert issued Sept. 26, 1923, his proclamation announcing the surrender of passive resistance. Poincare, calm in the fact of this appearance of victory, warned the French against premature rejoicing. The real test, he said, was the resumption of work in the Ruhr.

The Magnates' Plan.

While Stresemann was struggling with a Cabinet crisis early in October General Degoutte was in conference with Hugo Stinnes and others of the great industrial manipulators. These magnates submitted a plan of co-operation and reparations payments based on allied control of German industries. By October 8 the Otto Wolf group, producing 10 per cent. of Ruhr coal, were signed up. The Stinnes group were exnected to follow, but complications arose because of the insistence of the industrialists that they must have a nine or ten-hour working day. The fight for long hours of work was one which Stinnes always kept up; this was a strategic moment for forcing the German Government and the workmen to accept long hours. The unions, without funds on account of the depreciation of the mark, by this time nearly worthless, were as helpless as the Berlin Government.

By October 27, one month after the proclamation of the end of passive resistance, agreements to resume work had been signed by eighteen operators, representing twenty-five mine groups and eight factories, and the re-employment of large numbers of men at the Krupp factories had followed orders for locomotives from the railway administration of the occupation. The operators still insisted that unless they got the long hours they would shut down all work in the Ruhr, thus adding three-quarters of a million to the list of Germany's unemployed —still figured around 3,000,000.

Chancellor Stresemann, to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Reichstag on November 16, put it this way: The German Government can no longer assist the beleagured populations of the Ruhr who are henceforth at the mercy of the French. Starvation has been staved off by a partial resumption of work under an agreement between the Ruhr and Rhineland industrialists and the French, arrived at after months of negotiation. France is to receive one-fourth million francs, followed by 4 per cent. of the mines' output, to be credited to reparations, while for the cost of Ruhr occupation a special tax of 10 francs a ton is levied on coal. The workers are forced to accept the pre-war ten-hour day.

Within a week after this announcement, which raised a storm of legislative rage proceeding from the ultra Nationalists, the Left, and even the People's Party — that of the Chancellor and Stinnes himself—Stresemann had been forced to resign as Chancellor, though he remained as Foreign Minister under Chancellor Marx, whose administration could do nothing more than carry on where Stresemann had left off.

The mere approach of the wind that brought the end of passive resistance toppled over one Ministry. The shock of the realization of defeat recast another and gave it a new head. So much had been accomplished within the first year by the policy which Curzon was convinced could not succeed.

One year and three days after the entry of the French and Belgian troops into the Ruhr it was reported that the total output of the district had reached 70 per cent. of the 1922 total, and that of this production coke—the most important Ruhr product for the French—was 35 per cent. There were still strikes and lootings and food riots, and the Germans had not delivered 800 locomotives, due in return for the reinstatement by the French of German railway employees. But the number of French troops in the occupied region, earlier reduced to 40,000, had been cut to 24,000 and the Belgian contingent had been reduced from 7,000 to 4,000.

This was at the moment — the middle of January, 1924—when the Dawes committee arrived in Europe. As far back as October 24, 1923, Germany, ordered by the Reparation Commission to resume deliveries on account of reparations, had replied that she was unable on account of the occupation of the Ruhr to finance such deliveries and requested the commission to investigate her capacity to pay as provided by the Treaty of Versailles.

The British Government had already in a note to Washington viewed the suggestion of Mr. Hughes that America might join in such an inquiry. The German request started the somewhat prolonged negotiations which produced an actual committee of experts.

With the Dawes committee at work and troubles in the Ruhr complicated with the Rhineland Republic Separatist movement, which the French and Belgians were accused of aiding and abetting, the Germans apparently arrived at the conclusion that drastic measures of internal reform were imperative. They had already in November, 1923, taken a step toward the stabilization of the currency by the formation of the Rentenbank to issue notes based on a mortgage on Germany's private property in land, agriculture, industry and commerce, these notes to replace at a fixed rate the practically worthless paper then in circulation. On that date they had stopped the issue of the old paper money. Now at the end of January Germany repudiated her entire public debt "at least till all reparations were paid" and at the same time came to the rescue of private investors ruined by depreciation by providing that holders of mortgages in old marks should be entitled to be paid at the rate of 10 per cent. of the face value of that paper money which had become in fact valueless.

On April 9 the Dawes report came out with the verdict that Germany was able to pay reparations "without onerous obligations" and recommending a method of using the tangible national assets—the persistence of which M. Poincare has so firmly believed in as a means of insuring these payments and distributing them over a series of years. It was virtually a mortgage in the Allies' favor on German taxes, German railways and German industry which was suggested and subsequently agreed to by both Germany and the Allies at the London conference which met July 16, 1924, and concluded its labors and delivered the documents signed and sealed just one month later.

Substitute For Invasion.

It was then that the French agreed to accept as a substitute for physical possession of Germany's richest industrial centre, held as a pledge of reparations payments according to schedule, the mortgages on Germany's wealth at large which the Dawes plan provided and the payment of which to all the debtor nations among the Allies was to be made through the American Agent General of the Transfer Committee as Receiver-General of them all. Cautious as always, France held out for the continuance of the physical pledge until it could be seen that the Dawes plan was actually producing reparations according to schedule. She stiplated one wear from date of signing. That year is up Aug. 16 next.

There was no substantial change in the Ruhr policy of M. Poincare under his successor. Already since the accommodations with the industrialists— which were renewed from time to time—the occupation had been made progressively more "invisible." Herriot was able in time to permit the return of some 200,000 expelled Germans, but very close watch was still kept upon German organizations of military complexion, which were reported rife. Immediately after the signing of the Dawes plan the French withdrew their forces from certain towns as a gesture of good faith, during September, and the customs barrier against Germany was abolished. At the end of October the Franco-Belgian industrial control body — the Mission Interalliee de Control des Usines et des Mines— was abolished, thus putting civilian and economic affairs entirely into the German's hands, and by the middle of November the railways were returned to German management.

The process of military evacuation was more gradual and held to the policy of keeping pace with German discharge of obligations. The figures for the first eighteen months of occupation showed that the French had realized from all sources in the Ruhr 3,519,000,000 francs, that the cost of cellection was 549,000,000 francs, and that more than twice as much was realized during the first six months of 1924 as during the whole of 1923—which was natural.

Net Effect in Germany.

Already, April 16, seven days after the Dawes report came out, the new gold discount bank had been opened in Berlin, fortified with British and American guarantees and backed by substantial sterling and dollars. By the end of the year that bank had contrived to put Germany on a gold basis, and, as everybody knows, the actual mark of daily currency was then passing from hand to hand, as now, at four to the dollar or thereabouts. It was an extraordinary transformation in a twelve-month period.

As for Raymond Poincare, he has not returned to power. But his successor, Herriot, had somewhat short shrift—taxes and budget reform plans killed him off, too. And M. Painleve, even with the assistance of the expert Joseph Caillaux, redeemed from exile and rescued from ignominy, is, in turn, having his troubles with the most dangerous subject which can occupy a French Cabinet—the question of getting money out of the French people to run their own government. That perennial question, and not the Ruhr in retrospect or security in prospect, is the present sore spot of Europe.

Among the many things that Japan borrowed from China was football, said to have been introduced as early as the middle of the seventh century. Emperor Toba II. was an expert player and got up a club at his palace. The beginning of professionalism may be traced to an emperor and his court, of whom it is told that in a time of poverty they earned a little extra money by teaching the art of football.

AGITATION FOR BIRTH CONTROL RESULTS IN VARIETY OF VIEWS

Britain Divided in Opinion—Quakers Defend While Catholics Oppose.

WELFARE MENACED

Bishop of Birmingham Calls It a National Necessity.

By DIANA BOURBON.
London.

The subject of birth control has been agitated considerably in England of late. There are both advocates and opponents. Among the former appears the Right Rev. E. W. Bone, Bishop of Birmingham, who recently assured the Congress of the Royal Insitute of Public Health, at Brighton, that England, in his opinion, had reached the point where birth control—particularly birth control among the masses of the people—became a national neces-

"Throug[illegible] we might do much more than is being done at present to prevent reckless child bearing," he declared. "I have of late, in my work, come across terrible cases of large families born, for instance, of tubercular parents. The community has the right to prevent the increase of tainted stock. It would be wiser to teach its more improvident members that large families are a hindrance to social progress."

And again later: "Speaking in the name of Christ, the lover of children, we ought to condemn such action"—that is, the continued bringing into the world of children condemned, from the start, to a life of misery.

Conditions in the Slums.

Dr. Bone asserted that human welfare is being menaced. "The change of the middle classes from large families to small ones is not—in spite of the general attitude of the sanctimonious—to be condemned," he said. "It is, on the contrary, a sane and common sense movement toward general well-being Medicine and hygiene have done their utmost to combat the destructive forces of disease and of modern industrial life. But their very victory will prove disastrous to the welfare the race unless the menace of too many children of the wrong stock, bred in the wrong surroundings, is checked."

Many medical men, social workers, reformers and police court officials have in effect been voicing these opinions, both in the press and out of it, for some time. They have urged that increase of population beyond the desirable limit should be diverted through channels of emigration to the Colonies.

Advocates of birth control over here are laying emphasis on conditions which they have found existing in city slums. Under-nourishment, they claim, has made serious inroads upon the health of tenement dwellers—which, added to the bad housing conditions, makes the rearing of large families a dangerous menace. Statistics are brought forward, which show that the bread consumed in the slums is impure; that the milk would not be passed as fit for human consumption in America; that vegetables are next to unattainable, and that practically no cooking is done in these shockingly overcrowded dwelling houses.

Opponents of Birth Control.

There is another side to the argument. While Dr. Bone was delivering the address above referred to, the Catholic Young Men's Societies of Great Britain, at their conference in Newcastle, were denouncing birth control.

"There could be no two opinions," said one of the principal speakers, "but that the moral laxity of the present day is due to a large extent to birth control." He added that if the Labor Party intends to make advocacy of the principle of birth control one of the planks in its political platform, then as far as the Roman Catholic votes of Great Britain were concerned, it need never hope for a return to power.

Further opposition was launched on the evening of the day that Dr. Bone spoke in favor of birth control in the Brighton Parish House, when the Vicar of Brighton repached a sermon repudiating the former's teaching as being contrary to that of the Church.

A few days later came a still more surprising development—an opinion favoring the birth control movement by a committee of the Society of Friends. In a pamphlet called "Marriage and Parenthood—the Problem of Birth Control," just issued, they state that as the result of special consideration, they "are not aware of any convincing grounds that would justify the absolute condemnation of the practice as in itself sinful. There are, however, moral dangers involved * * * and possible evil consequences to society at large."

Setting forth the case both for and against, they enumerate the dangers as:

1. That it leads us to over-rate the importance of the act of union.

2. That it leads us to under-rate the necessity of self-control within the marriage bond.

Attitude of [illegible]

"The general conclusion to which we have come is that we have not found ourselves able to endorse the absolute condemnation of the practice as in itself immoral," says the committee. "It seems to us that under certain circumstances it may be legitimate, though * * * the present advocacy of birth control by artificial means is largely an attempt to find a short way out of moral and social difficulties which require more exacting and costly solutions.

"There can be no doubt that Friends, like others, have accepted the idea of the small family. There must be many young couples who long to have children and yet have no margin to meet the incidental cost of child-birth.

"If, for sufficient reasons, the risks of further child-bearing ought not to be undertaken, it is not necessarily wrong to use artificial means (if harmless) to minimize or eliminate those risks."

Members of the committee responsible for issuing the pamphlet are at pains to mak[illegible] that their decisions were arrived [illegible] viduals, and are in no way bindi[illegible] Society of Friends, by whom th[illegible] specially elected to consider the que[illegible] At the same time they emphatically sta[illegible] that "the Society of Friends will no[illegible] take up the position of the Roman Catholic Church and rule out entirely the spreading of knowledge" on the subject.

"We certainly think," is the present summing up of their attitude, "that those people who ask for information should receive it; but it should not be broadcast. If we were to rush blindly into an advocacy of these methods it might be taken as an indication that we consider them as solving the whole question. This we do not. We cannot yet decide how far birth control may be medically wrong. A good deal more information of a thoroughly qualified kind is required before such methods should be broadcast to the generalpublic"

CHEMONG PARK

Chemong Park is having its first real taste of summer weather now, and the residents are enjoying the fine days in their several ways. Yesterday, regatta day, the Park was full of picnickers from town, who brought substantial lunches and ate them under the trees. The Pavilion grounds also were filled with people and children on the swings. The Comet 'bus gave excellent service yesterday, with an auxiliary car taking the overflow from the yellow tally-ho.

One of the best crowds of the season attended the regatta dance at the Pavilion last evening.

A party of young men from Camp Kagamong spent three days at the Park last week, Messrs. G. Lucas of Hamilton, B. Hunter, J. Allen, K. Lumpers, N. Vale, J. Eaton, all of Toronto, H. Hoops, H. White and H. Kinnear, the latter in charge of the group.

Splendid fishing is reported from the Park during the past few weeks. Messrs. H. Luffman and Chambers, of Toronto, caught eight bass and one 'lunge in one trip, Ed. Hyland landed an eleven pounder, Henry Garvell brought in three 'lunge from one trip, sixteen, nine and seven pounds in weight, and G. Nicholls caught three 'lunge and two bass.

On Friday last, twenty of the Park's younger residents took a trip down the lake to the Indian Village, in two motor boats. Dinner was partaken of at the village, followed by a ball game. Mrs. Gerald McClelland acted as chaperone. Mr. P. Gettas accompanied the men.

Miss Audrey Willard has returned to Toronto after a fortnight's visit with Miss Anne Golding.

Mrs. Wm. Marshall, of Toronto and sons, Bob and Wilfrid, were week end guests of Commandant and Mrs. McElhiney at the Park.

Messrs. Lou and Howard Armstrong of Toronto, spent the week end at the cottage of Mrs. MacFarlane.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillam and Mrs. Bryan, of Toronto, were guests recently of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hyland.

Miss Long, Water street, has taken Mrs. Myles Henry's cottage until the 15th of the month.

Major Bostwick, who has been occupying Adjt. Buntin's cottage, has returned to Toronto.

Mrs. McDermid and two children, of Oakville, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Sullivan.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

YOUTH PAYING TOLL OF QUAKE

Children in Slums of Tokio Ridden by Disease and Poverty.

TOKIO, Aug. 7.— The suffering and want in the wake of the Japanese earthquake of 1923 is being felt most keenly by the children in the slum districts of Tokio, it was revealed during an investigation by the Child Welfare Section of the Tokio municipality. More than 60 per cent. of the children under seven years old are unhealthy either because of undernourishment or disease, says the report, which indicated that the situation will become worse instead of better unless immediate steps are taken to care for those housed in the temporary structures in the poorer sections of the Japanese capital.

"The most immediate cause of the unhealthy condition of the children," said Eimatsu Okazaki, head of the Child Welfare Section, "is the fact that they have not been fed so well as they were following the great earthquake. This was specially the case during the period when the city was beginning to be rebuilt. Just before that, the children in the slum districts had been fairly well fed with supplies sent to them by relief organizations all over the world. Later, however, many poor families were thrown on their own resources. In addition, the present unemployed situation which has led to an almost total lack of work for wives of laborers has still further depleted the incomes of the poorer families.

Ruins As Playground.

"Another cause is that the children have been forced to play in the ruins of Honjo and Fukagawa, and much of what seems sand and solid ground is in reality nothing but the ashes o f the buildings in those suburbs. All green growing things in these districts had been destroyed by fire and the wind raises the dust for the children to breathe."

To relieve the situation, the Child Welfare Section is planning to send 300 children under seven years old, selecting those that are in the worst health, to a public nursery at Gotemba. The children will be given about three weeks medical attention, rest and good food.

The Tokio municipality maintains eight nurseries in the slum districts, and 300 children will be selected by the attendants at these institutions. The bureau will place trained nurses in charge of the children, one being assigned to each group of five during their stay at Gotemba. This town was selected because the temperature is about 12 degrees lower than in Tokio during the hot months. An appropriation of 10,000 yen for the undertaking is to be made by the municipality.

Example For Parents.

"The forest nurseries," said Mr. Okazaki, "is the first plan ever undertaken by the Child Welfare Section of such a comprehensive scope. What we plan to do will only afford a relief for only a small percentage of those afflicted in the poor districts. Of that the bureau is fully aware, but it wishes to set an example to the parents of the children to show what little things are needed to care for the health of the parents is fundamental to the well-being of the children."

The Child Welfare Section is constantly distributing pamphlets among people in the slum district. The pamphlets are usually about 20 pages and give in digested form the most important points in bringing up children.

TO IMPROVE CANAL.

G. N. Gordon Makes Strong Representation to Department of Railways and Canals.

G. N. Gordon, who yesterday accompanied Col. Debuck and Mr. Kitlaly of the Department of Railways and Canals of the Dominion Government, laid very strong representations before these officials as to the necessity of placing chains across Lakefield dock as a precaution to lessen the danger of passers-by falling into the water. He also advocated the building of a retaining wall to improve the navigation of the canal. Mr. Gordon sees great possibilities for development in this district in the formation of a direct route from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario enabling grain to be shipped from Port Arthur right to the mills in Peterborough.

GIRL BURNED IN CREMATORIUM RESTORED BY GREAT MAGICIAN

Laurant Performs Mystical Feats at Chautauqua Tent Exhibition.

WONDER SHOW

Musical Entertainment by Faubel Company Attracted Big Attendance.

The great Laurant and Company was the attraction on Saturday evening at the Chautauqua tent, which was well filled for the occasion with a crowd that seemed to be greatly entertained by the spectacular production afforded by Monsieur Laurant and his assistants. Prestidigator extraordinary, sleight of hand performer and expert in tricks and illusions of many types, the great Laurant provided an excellent evening's programme.

Although Monsieur Laurant has not, possibly, quite as many marvellous tricks in his bag as the great Blackstone, he has a variety of excellent numbers and combines a flood of unceasing conversation with a constant accompaniment of soft music in a manner that distracts the attention of his audience to a great extent from his skilful finger work. He enlisted the co-operation of a number of small children from the audience in carrying out of several illusions and succeeded in mystifying the little ones on the platform just as completely as their elders in the audience.

A pretty setting for the entertainment was made by the Oriental hangings and lamps arranged on the stage.

Sleight of Hand Work.

From a magic paper tube and from the inner portion of an astonished small boy's coat, the magician took yards of gaily colored silks and a lively white rabbit. Rings, borrowed from tiny girls in the audience, were discovered later in the innermost of a series of little brown boxes, and "James" and "Betty," small helpers, were each entrusted with the care of a magic package. In Betty's roll was discovered an orange enclosing a lemon and an egg, the latter holding a little red ribbon which had in some inexplicable fashion become involved with it, and James manfully held aloft a round package which proved to be empty of anything, on close investigation.

Chinese Magic.

Examples of Chinese magic included the piercing by an arrow of the body of a young assistant, and tricks with interlocking steel rings.

A spectacular number was the burning of a young lady in an old Egyptian crematorium, the damsel later appearing unharmed, and an intelligent clock dial stunt, combined with cards which were strung on a wire and automatically answered the call of the conjuror, aroused a great deal of interest. Playing cards coming at the word of command from a glass goblet was another item in an entertaining programme.

Toe Dancing.

Assisting Monsieur Laurant was Miss Kathleen Denny, a graceful little toe dancer who also acted as his assistant in various tricks. Miss Denny, with accompaniment of the silver piano accordeon, played by Miss Marie Williamson, danced beautifully and received repeated encores.

Afternoon Programme.

In the afternoon, the Faubel Entertainers, gave a popular entertainment of music and dramatic readings and impersonations, which was very much enjoyed.

The programme opened with a trio of music, in two violins played by Mr. and Mrs. Faubel and a silver piano accordeon, played by Miss Marie Williamson, the latter accompanying later the Italian dance and song by Mrs. Faubel, a graceful, airy number.

Mr. Faubel gave a reading, in costume, with splendid effect, "An Old Soldier's Reminiscences," and Miss Williamson followed with accordeon numbers, which were the hit of the afternoon, and included the "Oh Che le Morte," from "Il Trovatore," and a Spanish dance.

The second portion of the programme was a series of impersonations, in which all three took part, delineating the trials of an amateur preacher, deacon of the church, in taking a service, and preaching from the text of Old Mother Hubbard, and also the efforts of a group of entertainers at a church "sociable." Mr. Faubel's musical contributions included an effort with the steel saw and with a country fiddle at a barn dance, accompanied by Mrs. Faubel in old-time costume.

One of the most entertaining musical bits was Miss Williamson's rendition of the "merry-go-round" tune which haunted the lad who heard it and crept in later into his playing of the church organ.

Last evening, Mr. Ward Harris, the superintendent, made several announcements, commending especially to his audience the play, "Give and Take," which will be presented this evening, also the concert by the Hay Ensemble Company.

16 MURDERS IN LONDON IN YEAR

Only 3 of Murderers Got Away From Metropolitan Police.

EIGHT SUICIDED.

LONDON, Aug. 7 (United News) —Murder threatens to become a lost art in London.

While American cities such as Chicago and New York ponder crime statistics that indicate a life a day to be the average toll of murders, London is examining with considerable complacency the annual report of the Commission of Police, which discloses that only 16 murders were committed in the Metropolitan area during the twelve months of 1924.

London's population is nearly 8,000,000 souls, so your chance of losing your life at the hands of a murderer in this city are about 1 in 500,000. The chances of your murderer getting away to brood over his crime in freedom are not so glittering as to attract any American thugs to London as a safe theatre of crime. Eight of the 1924 murderers committed suicide. Five were apprehended by the police and three escaped.

CHAMBERLEN STREET.

Edmund Chamberlen, who lived 54 years in Peterborough during its early development may safely be classed as one of the pioneers. He was born in England in 1810, and coming to Canada at an early age with an uncle settled in Peterboro, where he remained throughout a long and eminently useful life. Establishing himself in business as a builder he undertook and carried out the contracts for erecting the Court House, the Jail and the first building that was used as the headquarters of the Protestant Home. His knowledge and integrity were recognized by the Government in his appointment as Superintendent of the construction of the canal lock at Peterboro, and of the slides at Ranney Falls. He was a member of the first council board at Peterboro and was appointed to a seat on the town trust. He was an ardent communicant of the Church of England, and was keenly interested in its progress in the town. He died in April, 1886.

We Know Birds Are Our Champion Forest Rangers But How Do They Perform Miracles of Prophecy?

Up In Muskoka Is a Man Who, Without Any Scientific Training, Has Delved Deep Into These Problems—Mr. Alfred Kay Knows 129 Varieties of Birds By Their Songs—His Knowledge Aids Governments

By DUNCAN MACINNES

A SMALL boy leaned upon his hoe to watch a house wren as she flew back and forth from the hollow fence post that housed her nest and young. Each time she returned with her bill brimming with insects to satisfy the insatiable appetites of her scraggy, long-necked family; and, although she worked hard from morning until night, as she flew out each time she shrilled her cheery song. As he watched, the boy began to understand the use of birds. He had seen them gathering insects of all kinds, even potato bugs; and with the knowledge that he had such willing helpers came the desire to know more about them.

The man preserved the interests of the boy. To-day, Alfred Kay of Port Sydney, Muskoka, is, in addition to being one of the best farmers in the district, one of the greatest authorities on Canadian birds, and is a zoologist and botanist of ability. From early morning until evening his time is given to his farm, but from then, on into the night, while his neighbors are in the village store gossiping, or have been long in bed, he studies, makes reports on his observations of the days, and mounts new specimens. He had no opportunity for higher education. He is one of the few remaining naturalists who rely upon nature, alone, for information. The late George Shaw, a teacher of languages, and an ardent botanist, once said:

"After all of my years in university, and all of my study, I do not know as much about nature as Mr. Kay."

His powers of observation are remarkable. He knows every one of the one hundred and twenty-nine varieties of birds in Muskoka by its song and call notes.

The Elusive Wren

NO explorer ever investigated a new land with more enthusiasm and interest than Mr. Kay has pursued his discoveries in the bird kingdom. One bird in particular eluded him for many months. While walking through the dense wood he had often heard it singing, but never had he been able to see it. Finally, one evening he heard its full, rich song quite near him, and very carefully he began to look for a very large bird in accordance with the volume of sound. But the song stopped, and all that he could see was a small winter wren flitting about a brush heap. As he watched, the tiny bird flew from limb to limb until it was on the highest twig of the pile, and then, throwing back its head, it burst forth into the glorious song that had intrigued him for so long.

Some people, knowing his activity as an ornithologist and taxidermist, imagine that his farm must be very neglected. But last year his oats won the government prize for field crop with an estimated yield of sixty bushels to the acre, while most farmers are contented with a yield of forty. There are dozens of deserted farms around him. But Mr. Kay has found time to have a very engrossing hobby as well as to farm successfully enough to bring up a fine family.

He is thoroughly convinced that any farmer can increase the efficiency of his farm by allying himself with the birds.

"Without these birds," he said, "it would only be a matter of three or four years before the country would be laid waste—there would not be a leaf of green vegetation.

It is his claim that every farmer can attract birds to his property, or can at least encourage them to stay there. There are birds for every purpose He has found that certain varieties frequent the fields, woods, marshes, shrubbery, and garden; and that they fulfil their purpose in each section of the country.

"The bird family is like a well regulated household that is full of servants," he said. "Every servant has his own work to do, and does it well without question, and faithfully under the guidance of one head."

How to Attract Birds

AS he knows their value, he goes to great trouble to encourage them to remain on his farm, and to bring up their families there. The whole secret in doing this is to make artificial nesting places as natural as possible. For instance if a farmer were to cut away the face of a sandbank on his land it would not be very long before he had some families of sand martens and swallows making their nests in it. These birds destroy enormous quantities of flying insects. Blue birds, wrens and other varieties that build in hollow posts and stubs can be encouraged to stay by having a number of hollow fence posts, or, if the posts be sound, to stand up against the fence some hollow logs. Every year Mr. Kay has many families of birds nesting in the posts about his house, and for his slight attention they repay him a thousand fold by destroying innumerable insects in his kitchen garden.

Another method that he has found profitable is to plant trees. A few years ago he planted some spruce trees near the house, and they are splendid harbors for purple finches and chipping sparrows. Many of the finches remain with him all winter.

In the fields it is possible to keep the birds, although it is more difficult to attract them. If, when harrowing a field, Mr. Kay comes across a vesper sparrow's nest, he does not ruthlessly harrow over it, but steers around, for he says that it is better to waste the field than to destroy the sparrows.

In winter large numbers of small birds remain about his house and farm buildings. On the trees he fastens pieces of suet that the hungry things may get something to eat when other things fail them. Instead of destroying the weed seeds from the threshing in the fall he saves them to feed to the birds during the winter when the weeds are covered with snow.

One winter these seeds, which he throws on the paths, or scatters on the barn floor, saved a large flock of American goldfinches and linnets from starving. From being fed these birds soon became so tame that they would alight on his arms and shoulders when they saw him. The chickadees, also, become quite tame, and in the quest of food they will fly even into the house.

Weather Forecasts

FOR years he has kept a record of the arrival and departure of birds in his section. For a time he was the most northerly observer for the United States government, and many of his records of this nature have been used by the Canadian government. He claims that from these observations he can foretell weather conditions, as the birds seem to be guided by some power which enables them to anticipate a change of weather. In 1924 the birds did not arrive until very late, and there was a late spring. One fall, a few years ago, he saw a flock of tree sparrows in November, which heralded to him a mild winter. One of the greatest prophets, however, is the Hudsonian chickadee. This bird lives in the far north, and Mr. Kay has noticed that it comes as far south as his farm only when there is a spell of extremely cold weather on the way. The birds may precede the cold snap by several weeks, but he always prepares for it when he sees them. Years may elapse without any being seen, but they invariably foretell the very severe weather.

Of the one hundred and twenty-nine varieties found in Muskoka very few are injurious to the farmer. It is true that all thrushes, the chief of which is the American robin, eat fruit, and because of this many are apt to condemn them as being injurious, and despite the protection that they are given by law, destroy them.

"They could not sell their fruit in a better market," said Mr. Kay. "The robin in one season pays many times over for the fruit that he eats. Let the farmer exterminate the robin, and see what trouble he will get into with the insects and grubs that the robins eat in enormous quantities."

Seed-eating birds are very valuable. In spring, when they first arrive from the south, there are a great many seeds remaining on the weed stems, or are lying on the ground and have not germinated yet. The birds eat large quantities of these. In the summer when the birds are mating, and young are being hatched, they change to a diet of insects and consume them by the millions to feed the young. By the time that the young birds are old enough to look around for themselves the insects have started to die off and the weeds are coming to seed again, so that the birds change back to the vegetable diet. Thus their whole life is taken up with useful work.

There are people who believe that all hawks are harmful, and when they see one flying about their farm they immediately try to destroy it. The chances are that they are killing one of their best friends, as only one or two species are injurious.

Has Rare Specimens

DESPITE the fact that he has had to rely on nature for most of his instruction, Mr. Kay has found occasion to kill very few birds for the purpose of studying them. His collection comprises only about five hundred skins, and they were taken only when the information could not be obtained in any other way. He has made many interesting investigations into the change in the plumage of the birds with the seasons. There are some changes which are quite remarkable, and birds which we recognize in the summer are entirely different in the fall or winter. The rusty grackles or blackbirds change coats with the change in season. The American goldfinch, or wild canary, which is a bright yellow in the summer time, becomes buff colored in the winter, loses the black on its crown, and even its feet and legs change color. The male scarlet tanager in summer is a brilliant scarlet with black wings and tail, and the female is olive green above and canary yellow below. In the winter time they both retain the black wings and tail, but the breasts turn to olive green. In addition to specimens showing these changes of plumage he also has the skins of albino swamp sparrows and juncos.

Aside from the assistance to his farm that he has derived from the study of birds, Mr. Kay says that no man can become interested in them without becoming a better man, for in their actions he can see most of the best qualities of human beings. One of the most timid of birds, the partridge, will fly at the feet of a man if he threatens her young, and there is hardly another bird that will not do the same thing.

In bird life he has found it is a survival of the fittest. Nature seems to have no place for birds that are weak and ill-conditioned. In the nest the strong birds get all the food, and the weak are gradually starved, or else, as they grow much more rapidly, the strong will push the weak to destruction over the side of the nest. The female mates with the strongest, so that there is no danger of race suicide among birds.

LONG TALKS TABOO ON RADIO PROGRAM

AN analyst of radio program reception says the average fan will not listen to a single feature for more than twelve minutes. Many of them will not let their dials alone longer than a minute or two, he says, except when they are staging a party and dancing to radio music.

This is offered as a suggestion to both program managers and broadcast lecturers who want to retain the attention of their audiences during their talks. The answer seems to be: "hold talks, speeches and lectures to about ten minutes."

SIR ROGER DESERVED TO DIE IS THE FAMOUS JURIST'S OPINION

Lord Birkenhead Reviews the Case of Casement, Found Guilty of Treason and Executed As a Traitor — Courageous Stand of Irish Prisoners of War in Germany

By LORD BIRKENHEAD

ON August 1, 1913, Sir Roger Casement, C.M.G., His Majesty's consul-general at Rio de Janeiro, retired after twenty-one years' public service in Africa and South America. It is not often that a consul comes so prominently before the public, for on two occasions he had been engaged on prolonged and difficult investigations in unhealthy tropical districts on matters which had gravely troubled the public conscience—the Congo and Putumayo rubber atrocities—and his name had thereby become a household word.

After his treason there was manifested a disposition to minimize the importance and accuracy of his reports, but there is no reason to doubt the reality and value of his public work. He was, therefore, a man who had richly earned his honors and the right to retire.

After his retirement, he appears to have taken an interest in politics. He was of Irish birth and parentage, his father having been an officer in the Antrim militia.

It will be remembered that on the outbreak of the war there was a very serious crisis in Ireland, which was at once suspended by a kind of mutual truce. Casement was following a course of his own. From a public servant remote from domestic politics, he had been gradually becoming more extreme, and, by some process which it is impossible to trace, he had determined to throw in his lot with Germany.

Why Did He Do It?

THERE is nothing in his career to explain or justify this. He had recently retired, and there can have been no grudge or fancied slight which would have turned him against his duty to the King, at whose hands he had gratefully received the signal honors bestowed upon him, and he has left no statement which enables us even to guess.

At his trial he claimed that he was actuated by a burning and exclusive desire to serve Ireland, but his interest in his native country was of recent origin, and others who had spent their lives in furthering Irish aspirations took a saner and more statesmanlike course. It may be that he allowed himself to be seduced by one of the German agents who swarmed in the States at the period.

The late Sir Roger Casement

However that may be, by December, 1914, he was in Germany, moving about the country in a way which proved that he enjoyed the countenance and support of the German authorities.

The first manifestation of his enmity to this country was one of the meanest, and particularly so when it is remembered that he had been himself a public official. He was employed to seduce from their duty the Irish soldiers who had been taken prisoners by the Germans.

It will be remembered that in the earlier stages of the war many of our troops had been captured, and these were scattered through the prison camps in Germany. In December the Irish soldiers were collected together in a camp at Limburg, in the Ruhr area, and given better rations and lighter duties. At the same time Casement was engaged in addressing them in speeches breathing hatred toward this country and trying to persuade them to join an Irish brigade. He set up the contention that this brigade was only to be used in Ireland after the war, but it is doubtful whether he expected anyone to believe this. The German government had never been conspicuous for altruism, and still less would it be expected that, in the course of a struggle which called for the utmost effort, they would allow time and money to be spent with the object of forming a volunteer force for use after the war, when, if they won, they could have a decisive voice without needing the brigade, and, if they lost, could not influence the course of events. It is obvious that trouble in Ireland during the war was the only factor that would further Germany's aims, and the evidence was clear that the brigade was to be used at once—at least, as soon as the expected naval victory, which never came, enabled the Germans to get into effective touch with Ireland.

"Now is the time," said Casement, in one of his speeches, "for Irishmen to fight against England."

They Refused

TO the honor of the Irish prisoners, Casement failed. Only some fifty men joined, and several of them if not the majority, were actuated by the desire to escape from the monotony and hardships of prison life. The remainder, in spite of pressure brought to bear on them in every conceivable way, stood firm, and Casement was forced to come to the camp under the protection of German soldiers, so that he could escape the just resentment of the prisoners at his disgraceful and unmanly attempts to seduce them from their duty. His visits were frequent until February, 1915, when it became more than certain that this treasonable intrigue was a hopeless failure.

What happened to the brigade it impossible to tell, but one may sure that the fifty lived to repent bitterness the day when Casement led them astray.

Between February, 1915, and April 1916, it is impossible to say what Casement was doing. He may have visited neutral countries near Germany, but whatever form his machinations took he was continually during this period in close communication with the enemy.

In 1916 Good Friday fell on April 21. On the night before Good Friday, persons in Tralee saw a light at sea, and during the night a boat came to the shore containing three men. One was Casement, and another was Bailey, a member of the Irish brigade who had joined with a view to getting back home if he could. When they landed, the boat was abandoned on the shore, and Bailey buried there some weapons, some maps of Ireland of foreign origin, and three coats, one of which contained Casement's diary.

The names of persons and places in this diary were fictitious. We know that Casement came on a German submarine from Wilhelmshaven. The entry of this voyage reads: "Left Wicklow in Willie's yacht." There appears to have been a mistake as to the rendezvous, for a motor car had come to the coast a short distance away, but the driver had miscalculated his position and drove into the sea, whereby his passengers were drowned.

It was not long before the police were informed of the suspicious visitors, and, though they had gone inland and separated, both Casement and Bailey were arrested during Good Friday. On the way to the police barracks Casement dropped a paper. It was seized, and on examination proved to be a code relating to warlike supplies, with a note that it was in force only for a short time. Clearly, therefore, Casement was on an expedition, which was to become immediately effective.

A Mystery Ship

NOR was this all. On Good Friday, H.M.S. Bluebell sighted off southwest Ireland, not far from Tralee, a vessel disguised as a Norwegian tramp steamer, the Aud, on a voyage to Genoa. She was escorted to Queenstown, but just before reaching there she stopped and hoisted German colors. The crew, who proved to be all in the German navy took to their boats and surrendered, but before anything could be done an explosion was seen on the vessel, which sank at once.

It was proved that this ship belonged to the firm of Wilson's and had been taken by the Germans at the outbreak of war. A diver went down and had no difficulty in establishing that she was laden with rifles and ammunition, some of which he brought up. The coincidence is too remarkable to be accidental. Casement came by arrangement with the Germans, accompanied by a shipload of munitions of war. At Easter the Irish rebellion broke out in Dublin, and it is easy to picture what might have happened had Casement's scheme not gone awry.

He was brought to England for trial. There are many peculiarities about the law of treason, and one is that treason committed abroad is triable before the courts of England. Casement tried to make capital out of the fact that he was brought here for trial, but there was no other course open. Moreover, so far as one can tell, his usual abode was in England. The prosecution went through the usual stages. As attorney-general, I was in charge of the case throughout. First he was brought up at Bow street before Sir John Dickinson, and was committed for trial on May 17, 1916.

The trial was at bar. In such a trial, three judges at least sit, and in this case Lord Reading, the lord chief justice, was assisted by Avory and Horridge, justices. The counsel associated with me were the solicitor-general (now Viscount Cave), Mr. Bodkin (now Sir Archibald Bodkin, the public prosecutor), Mr. Travers Humphreys (now senior treasury counsel at the Old Bailey), and Mr. (now Mr. Justice) Branson.

The prisoner was most ably defended by three junior members of the English bar, Mr. Sullivan, who at that time was also one of the prominent leaders of the Irish bar, holding the rank of second sergeant, and is now also a K.C. in England, Mr. Artemus Jones (now also a K.C.), and Mr. Morgan, the professor of constitutional law at University College, London. His solicitor, Mr. Gavan Duffy, shortly afterward went to Ireland and was one of the signatories to the treaty. Mr. Doyle, of the American bar, was also present, assisting the defense.

An untoward incident occurred very early in the case. A juror fell ill, and the case had to commence again with a new jury. I need not go into the details of the evidence. The witnesses were hardly challenged, except on the point whether the brigade was to be used during or not until after the war, but they remained unshaken.

Legal Technicality

THE real interest to a lawyer was the point whether any offense had been committed. Mr. Sullivan took the point before the prisoner pleaded, but the court thought the best course was to hear the evidence first, because then the facts would be fully before the court. Consequently, when I closed the case for the prosecution, the legal argument began. It was necessarily long, technical, and intricate. It involved the true meaning of the statute of treason, passed in 1351, which was drawn up in Norman-French. It necessitated a minute examination of a number of musty statutes, long since repealed, and many cases, both old and new, in which various persons, some of the greatest eminence and others of very humble rank, had become involved in accusations of treason. To understand the precedents, it was essential to grasp the details of antiquated procedure and to have a clear idea of the constitutional position of England in regard to Wales, Scotland, Ireland, France, and the colonies, at the various dates when the precedents came into being, and to examine and discuss the opinions of many bygone judges and legal writers of the greatest eminence and reputation.

Casement was charged with that kind of treason which is described as "adhering to the King's enemies." Strange as it may seem, it was contended that this offense could be committed only by a person physically present in this country. If this were the true meaning of the words of the statute, then Casement had committed no offense, for he had done nothing in the realm of England. The defense were up against the fact that not only was there an unbroken current of legal opinion, from the sixteenth century onward, dead in their teeth, but such decisions as there were, necessarily few because such offenders take care to remain out of reach, were also against them.

I had little difficulty in disposing of the legal objection. Casement made a statement, but did not go into the box to give evidence, and, after counsels' speeches and a judicial summing up by Lord Reading in terms most scrupulously fair and impartial, the jury convicted and Casement was sentenced to death.

An appeal was at once lodged and heard, as criminal appeals always are, within a short period. Mr. Sullivan did his utmost to convince a strong court, presided over by Mr. Justice (now Lord) Darling, that the point he had taken was good law, but without success. His argument was, in the words of the judgment, "exceedingly well considered, well delivered, and in every way worthy of the greatest traditions of the King's courts," and the prisoner's counsel can justly claim that all that human skill and ability could do for him was done.

Then came an attempt to appeal to the House of Lords. This placed me in a singularly delicate position. By the criminal appeal act, no such appeal can be lodged without the consent of the attorney-general. I had throughout argued that there was no substance in the point raised by the defense. I had to consider the position from a different point of view. It would have been easy to consent, but that would have been a negation of my duty. After the most careful and anxious reconsideration, I came to the decided opinion that I ought not to shrink from the responsibility of refusing the application, and accordingly no further appeal took place.

Life was Forfeit

IT was no part of my duty to consider whether the King should show any leniency to the prisoner. There can be no question that the decision not to interfere with the execution of the sentence was right. Casement, blinded by hatred of this country, as malignant in quality as it was sudden in origin, had played a desperate hazard in our hour of need. He had lost, and his life was forfeit.

It was, however, still his destiny to raise doubts in legal circles. The act abolishing public executions did not apply to treason, and it was asserted that the execution must, therefore, be in public. It is doubtful in the extreme whether there ever was any rule that a death sentence must be carried out in public, but in any case an act of 1887 had authorized sheriffs to execute any death sentence in a prison within their jurisdiction. Casement was accordingly hanged in Pentonville prison on August 3, 1916. The day after his execution it was announced that the King had, before then, deprived the traitor of the honors that he had earned and of which he had proved to be unworthy.—London Magazine.

BOON TO BACHELORS

A DRESSING CHAIR has been patented in which there is a proper place for every article of a man's clothing.

It looks like an ordinary chair, but in its back it can hold a man's coat and shirt without wrinkling them. Trousers are placed on a swinging roller just below the top piece of the back; boots on a side shelf beneath the seat. There is a handy adjustable foot-rest which is pulled out in front, in which there are compartments for a shoe brush and a clothes brush. Collars, ties, and other small articles find a place in a drawer under the chair seat. The drawer is used for pyjamas in the daytime.

A man may undress and place every article of his clothing in its proper place without rising from the chair. It costs little more than a plain, straight-backed chair, in spite of its ingenious design.

CRIMINAL TAKEN AS AN OFFENDER

British Believe Prison Reform is Responsible For U. S. Crime Wave.

OVER INDULGENCE.

LONDON, Aug. 7. — (United Press).—The British view with some prejudice America's over-indulgence to prisoners in such matters as giving prison concerts, newspapers and meals a la carte, according to the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Cave, today before the International Prison Congress.

This was the first official expression indicating that the British regard the prison reform movement as partly responsible for the unprecedented crime wave in the States.

"The British," he said, "still regard the criminal as an offender against the public good, not as an unfortunate individual who should be subject to curative treatment. Punishment is not obsolete," he said.

EARTH'S STEAM TO RUN POWER PLANTS

European Engineer Suggests Amazing Method of Overcoming Coal Shortage.

With the rapid dwindling of the world's natural resources in stored fuel—coal, oil and gas—engineers and scientists in recent months have been turning to the problem of tapping and harnessing the vast reservoir of heat in the interior of the earth.

The latest plan and one of the most elaborate, developed by Rudolf Lammel, a German engineer, is described in the September issue of Popular Science Monthly. It proposes drilling two shafts, one straight the other with a number of rectangular bends, to a depth of three miles. This depth is about 2½ times that of the deepest shafts ever drilled. Both shafts lead to a large subterranean chamber cut out of solid rock.

If we estimate that with every 100 feet downward the temperature rises one degree Centigrade, the temperature of the walls of that chamber will be approximately 330 degrees Fahrenheit. At a depth of 3 miles the air pressure is estimated at nearly two atmospheres or about 30 pounds to the square inch. The boiling point of water under this pressure would be 248 degrees Fahrenheit—more than 80 degrees lower than the temperature of the chamber.

From a reservoir on the surface water is sent down through a pipe that follo the bends and turns of the stepped shaft to the chamber of the bottom. As the ater rushes downward it becomes gradually hotter and at a depth of nearly two miles it turns to steam w h is forced into the chamber by pressure of the the column of water above. In the high temperature of the chamber the steam is superheated and expanded. It seeks an outlet through the straight shaft.

Reaching the surfa the superheated steam is distributed first o the turbines of a light and power station, then to various industrial estab'ishments and to residences and public buildings where it is used for heating purposes.

The energy to be derived fr n a plant of this description of course depends on the volume of water obtainable. Assun ng that a con. nt flow of 13 cubic yards a second is obtainable, as it is in many existing hydraulic power plants, the potential energy made available by heating that volume of water to 330 degrees Fahrenheit would be equal to nearly 3,000,000 kilowatts a day, representing an economic value equal to 70,000 tons of good coal a day.

ATTACKED ON DOLE

The Duke of Northumberland who has opposed the dole, received a severe catigation from Ben Tillett, ex-M.P., secretary to the political and international department of the transport and general workers' union, at the convention of that organization. "The duke's dole is $4,000 weekly," Tillet declared, "in addition to royalties of 9 1-2 pence to the shilling for every ton of coal which is sold at from 14 shillings to 15 shillings a ton at the pithead and yet is retailed at from 45 to 85 shillings a ton."

ORCHESTRA VALUED IN SUNDAY SCHOOL

Musical Organization Is Important Adjunct to Worship.

Not so many years ago an orchestra in a Sunday School was an almost unheard of thing. That is not the case today. With the remarkable growth of music in all phases of life during the past few years has come a corresponding growth in orchestral playing—and the Sunday school has been one of the important places where the growth of orchestras has been most noticeable. And why not?

Here, indeed, is a place where the orchestra can be made a very important adjunct of worship. In fact there are, according to a well-known Canadian Sunday School Superintendent, several uses for the orchestra in this particular work. "In this connection," he says, "I would put first a responsibility for enriching the worship program of the school. I have used the word 'enriching' with care. It is not the place of the orchestra to usurp or even to dominate this program. The orchestra is not an end in itself, but is rather a means to an end. Much distress of mind will be saved if this is fully understood by all concerned.

"Again, the orchestra may be a valuable adjunct to the work of the school on public occasions in connections with church services and the life, and also in connection with social or entertainment features carried on by the school. I would make this secondary to the first purpose stated.

"Still again I look upon the orchestra as an extremely valuable aid in furnishing an outlet for expression in service. I would put this value at a very high point. It is an additional avenue of expression in a field in which we have discovered, so far, all too few. Every young person who gives his service in the orchestra as a result should be more loyal to the work of the church school than if that young person was simply receiving instead of giving.

"How may the orchestra enrich the worship program of the school? Out of an experience as church school superintendent, I offer the following suggestions:

"By having a proper balance of suitable instruments and by wise modulation. An over-noisy instrument or an orchestra, too loud as a whole, does not contribute to the worship values of a program. Wind instruments have this hurtful effect. A saxaphone played as in a jazz band has no place in such an orchestra; if, however, it is played quietly, reverently, its mellow tones give a rich volume to the harmony.

The effect of quiet harmony should be sought as over against mere volume of sound.

"To enrich the worship program, the orchestra will need to fit its own work into the spirit of the hour. If there is an opening overture it should contribute to the quieting process desirable in opening a school.

"In the matter of the singing, the orchestra should accompany rather than lead. It is more commonly used as an aid in leading the singing, with the result that quite often there is very little following. Frequently, unless the leadership of singing is well done, the school stops singing, in whole or in part, and lets the orchestra do the work. When this happens the orchestra may become a hindrance rather than an aid."

POLES ORDERED OUT OF GERMANY

Retaliatory Action by Berlin Following Eviction of Germans From Poland.

GIVEN 48 HOURS

BERLIN, Aug. 7—Foreign Minister Stresemann announced yesterday that the Polish resident in Germany who chose to retain their Polish citizenship following the plebiscites of 1920-21 in East and West Prussia and Upper Silesia have been ordered to leave Germany within 48 hours under pain of compulsory deportation.

For reasons unexplained, the Warsaw Government had every German it was intended to deport listed, whereas thousands of Poles known to be in German soil are not on any list. Moreover, the Polish authorities thus far have not had to use force in putting the Germans across the frontier, having adroitly avoided this by the simple process of evicting them from their homes. Consequently the German Government is loath to incur criticism from abroad by taking police action against Poles in this country, and unless the most drastic measures are employed against them it is averred the Poles simply will refuse to leave.

Nevertheless 3,000 or 4,000 have been deported from Germany within the past five or six days and many thousands more have moved over into France. The Berlin press, however, deliberately overlooks this detail in its clamor for a large-scale retaliation against the Polish Republic.

Conditions at Schneidemuehl have improved greatly. The number of refugees packed into tiny enclosures or straw-strewn airplane sheds there has been reduced by 2,000 and another thousand was yesterday transported to other centres. Better food and sufficient beddings are now provided. The human stream across the frontier has virtually ceased so that improvement should continue steadily.

The political battle precipitated by the first day's shabby treatment of arrivals from Poland is approaching a crescendo. Critical inferences drawn against the Foreign Office by M. Severing, the Prussian Minister of the Interior, yesterday, brought forth a broadside rebuttal from Foreign Minister Streseman tonight. It was in the form of a Cabinet communique stating that he was fully informed four months ago about the number of refugees to be expected and he communicated full data to the "internal administration" which means the Prussian Ministry of the Interior.

Severing himself is embroiled with his own subordinate Von Buelow, President of the Schneidemuehl administrative district, who is being made the scapegoat for the inefficient handling of expelled folk. In Socialist circles to which the Prussian Minister belongs it is charged that Buelow, who is a Nationalist deliberately tried to knife his chief politically.

Warsaw weighed in today with fresh and more severe restrictions on German imports. The new measures are supposed to affect foreign trade generallyy, but it is declared exceptions would be made in the case of a state which imports Polish goods of equivalent value to its exports to Poland. Thereby, as the Berlin Boerse Courier remarks it toward step "leading to an intensification of the German-Polish tariff war."

SURPRISE WEDDING.

Montreal learned with surprise last week that Viscount Dunsford, son and heir of the Earl of Middleton, had been married there at the American Presbyterian Church to Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, second wife and widow of the late George J. The couple are shown above as they lef ttheir Montreal hotel after the ceremony to enter a waiting taxi. The new Lady Dunsford is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sinclair, of Dublin, Ireland. She came to America in 1913 with the English musical comedy, "The Girl of the Film," and it was while playing a minor part in that production that she met George J. Gould, the son of Jay Gould.

Mining Trading Quiet—Only C.W.D. Was Active

TORONTO, Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange was quiet this morning. Considerable trading was done in Cons. W. D. Lake at 14, and Hattie Preferred (buyers thirty days) sold at 5. The pronounced stock was fractionally lower at 4 7-8. McIntyre advanced 25 cents to 19.50 and Teck Hughes was up one point at 169.

Vipond also was up two points to 123, while Keeley dropped one point to 185. Loraine was fractionally higher at 11¼, while McKinley Darrah dropped a half to 28½.

Bullish Activity In Wall Street Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press).—The appearance of investment demand for standard rails and industrials stimulated bullish operations in other quarters, and the entire Wall Street market swept forward throughout the morning. U.S. Steel Common moved up swiftly to 121 3-8, New York Central to 113, and Mack Truck to 196. The buoyancy of high-priced issues indicated continued scarcity in the floating supply, General Electric and Lacled E Gas selling more than 7 points above last night's final quotations.

Pools were again active in low-priced specialties, while Rock, National Dairy Products and U. S. Rubber Common changed hands in large volume. Nickel Plate Common moved up 3¼ points in anticipation of an early and favorable decision of Van Swerigan Merger and Nashville, Chattanooga and Tennessee climbed 3 points. International Shoe collapsed over 15 points on selling inspired by a court decision ordering that company to dispose of their stock of a rival concern.

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent.

Wheat Market Rises Under New Strength

CHICAGO, Aug. 7. — Canadian Press. — Owing largely to the strength shown by August and September deliveries of wheat here the wheat market went decidedly higher to-day during the early d lings. Active buying (said to be for eastern account) was in evidence.

Reports of rain in Canada had a bearish influence at times but were more or less overbalanced by the firmness of quotation at Liverpool, due somewhat to indications of a falling off in world shipments. Chicago opening prices, 1-8c to 1 1-8c higher, September 1.60 3-4 to 1.61 and Dec. 1.60 3-8 to 1.60 3-4, were followed by moderate declines, but then by upturns to 1.63 3-4 for September and 1.62 3-4 for December.

Favorable weather for corn tended to ease down the corn market, and oats as well, after opening at 1-4c to 7-8c off, September 1.04 1-4, corn continued to range below yesterday's finish.

Oats started unchanged to 3-8c lower. September 42 3-8 to 42½c and later declined a little all around.

In line with hog values ,the provision market was easy.

ARRANGE TO PAY THE DEPOSITORS

Lists of Depositors of $500 or Less Have Been Completed.

TORONTO, Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Lists of depositors in the Home Bank of $500 or less have been completed by the liquidators, but payment of the Government reimbursement is not likely before the end of next month. G. T. Clarkson and J. E. Weldon, joint liquidators of the bank, met here to-day.

When the lists have been checked over, the Government will be informed of the amount of money required for the more than 40,000 small depositors. This money will probably be forwarded without delay and with the lists will be distributed to banks throughout Canada.

Twenty commissioners are to be appointed throughout the Dominion to supervise the payment of the 35 per cent. reimbursement.

It is stated that depositors of more than $500 can hardly be considered before the smaller depositors have been disposed of.

CALL CONGRESS IF U. S. MINERS SHOULD STRIKE

Threatened Strike in Britain Complicated Matters in Anthracite Field.

MANY POSSIBILITIES.

Would Have Special Session to Give President Larger Powers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—An extra session of Congress is probable if a serious coal strike develops. The feeling here at this time is that there will be no formal strike, although possibly a brief suspension of work amounting to a strike, in the hard coal fields. It is considered improbable there will be a strike ob the Union soft coal miners.

But while this is true, there are enough complications in the situation to make a strike in both the hard and soft coal fields possible. The fact there is all manner of politics within the circles of the Union mine workers is furnishing one of the elements of uncertainty. Also, the temptation to force the public to higher prices through a strike is present in the case of the operators.

It is deemed unfortunate here that there is a threatened strike in the United Kingdom. Already, it appears, imports of Welsh anthracite to Canada are slacking up. The fact the British miners may strike has a bearing on prospective imports of coal from British mines in case of a strike here. Undoubtedly, if there were assurance of free flow of coal to this country from British mines, there would be less danger of a strike in the United States. Should it soon appear settled that British mines are going on operating, with no strike, that fact will help to influence miners and operators here to compose their troubles.

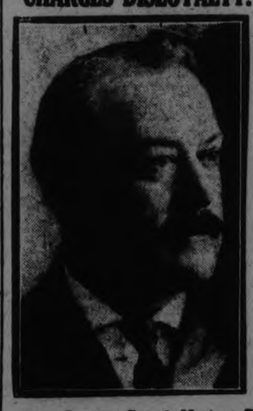
But there are many far-reaching possibilities in the situation here should a serious and lengthy strike develop, either in hard coal or soft coal fields or both.

The president could exert moral suasion to stop a strike, but nobody expects him to go beyond that. He had little direct authority to handle a coal strike, save through conciliation. Should a strike develop which menaced the country with a coal shortage, it would not be easy for the president to avoid calling an extra session of Congress for the purpose of getting emergency legislation. Such legislation might go to the point of authorizing the President to take over coal properties and operate them.

The administration, in event of a great strike, and danger of a great coal shortage, could not well wait until Congress meets in regular session next December to get it to give him authority.

It is probable that if there were a strike, and the health and comfort of the public were endangered, the President could get himself clothed with as large powers as the constitution permits, should public sentiment be aroused. The trouble would be that the government would move slowly in getting into action and it would be many weeks before it could be putting coal on the market or having it put there.

CHARGES DISLOYALTY.



The Orange Grand Master, Dr. Edwards, has charged people who desire more and more self-government in the Canada which he himself calls a nation, with being disloyal.

ORLAND NEWS

ORLAND, Aug. 7.—The ice cream social held on Walter Carr's lawn to raise funds to provide a new fence for McPhail's Cemetery, was a great success. Mr. Long of Campbellford operated a grocery and also furnished the ice cream for the tables free of charge. M. E. Maybee, M.P., gave a short address, in which he said it was a fine thing to see a community take an interest in the resting place of the departed. He regretted that Major Belford, who was to have spoken, had been called away at the last moment to Toronto, and could not be present.

The old fencing was auctioned off by D. C. Stuart and brought about $16.00, and Mr. D. R. Hennessy, one of the trustees, announced that the receipts at the gate exceeded $50.00.

Wm. Reddom is having a new cement cellar put under his dwelling here before moving in this fall.

W. J. Latimer and C. A. Lawson have been pointing the 2nd Concession School-house. The trustees intend making other minor improvements a little later.

Jas. Wright and wife are making a short visit at their parents. They motored over from Rochester.

In last night's deciding games T. C. Elliott and Cullen counted 11 to 7, winning the primary, and Chenhall and Seymour won the consolation by 16 to 8. The first prizes in the primary, were Jaeger comforter blankets and second prizes Jaeger sweater coats. In the consolation the winners received electric toasters and the runners-up received bowl irons.

One of the most interesting features about the play-offs was the counting by Chenhall and Seymour of all eight bowls in one end. This is an event—it happens only once in a decade, and the winners of the consolation prizes were ahead by just that margin.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Ken. Colling and his Belleville juniors will be on hand on Wednesday next, when they play the Lakeviews in the O.B.A.A. junior series. The Belleville boys have gone through their league without any trouble. They have been getting good pitching from Chummy Gerow, a slow ball artist who serves them up from the right side, and a left-hander, St. Denis, who is reputed to have a good mixture of curves and speed. The batsmen have been punishing all kinds of pitching, piling up big scores in nearly every game.

Bill Prindible will take his K.C. juveniles to Oshawa on Saturday, where they will battle the hope of the Motor Town. No mention has been made of the date for the return game. When orders came from Jack Nott, as O.B.A.A. representative, Manager Prindible was somewhat surprised, as he had been looking to Art Kimmel of Peterborough for his instructions. The K.C. boys will give a good account of themselves in the game, and the return game, if there should be one, will be well worth watching.

The first game of the midget series finals has been set for Monday, when the Royals and Rotary will meet. Royals finished first, one game ahead of the Rotary boys. There will be a battle when these teams meet.

* * * * * * * * * *

Down at Exhibition Park the excitement these nights is provided by Raybestos and Royals of the city section of the East Peterborough League. These teams are playing off for the right to meet the rural winners, and at present the brakemakers have the edge. Another game will be played tonight, and the Royals have a chance to tie up the series.

Victory for the Petes in tomorrow's game with Oshawa will finish the league schedule, for all practical purposes. The remaining games will decide whether the Ponies or the Petes will finish first, but as it is the play-off that counts, they will be unnecessary. A win for Peterborough tomorrow will make them sure of being in the play-off, and Oshawa will be unable to climb out of third place. —C. J. B.

LARGE CROWD AT CHEMONG WATCHES AQUATIC CONTESTS STAGED AT THE LAKE REGATTA

Lack of Strong Winds Prevents Any Thrills in Sailing Events.

MANY ENTRIES

G. N. Gordon and W. H. Bradburn Present Cups to Winning Yachtsmen.

Beautiful Lake Chemong was alive with all kinds of pleasure craft yesterday afternoon when the Chemong Park Regatta Committee staged their annual event in splendid weather and under excellent conditions for boat racing and swimming.

A large concourse of interested and enthusiastic spectators lined the banks of the lake in the vicinity of the Chemong club-house, where the judges and starters were located. The sun sulked at intervals behind slaty grey clouds, and at other times came out in undiminished splendour, the light of its beams sparkling on the rippling, shimmering waters and falling on the stooked grain, the bending corn and the dark green clumps of fir and spruce on the lonely further Ennismore shore. The water was calm and untroubled, save where the appearance of periodic wrinkles on the surface betrayed the presence of occasional gusty squalls in midwater, which gave unexpected spurts to the contestants in the dingy and sloop sailing races.

A noticeable feature of this year's Regatta was the large number of entries, as many as 12 and 13 taking part in some of the events.

The absence of a steady breeze militated against any really exciting race in the 6-mile course of the dingys and sloops. In the latter race three of the rivals, almost at the commencement of the second lap, lay becalmed close to each other for several minutes, manifesting a most praiseworthy liking for each other's company. The canoe races were closely contested, being invariably won just on the post. The tilting contests were as usual provocative of much merriment; roars of laughter greeted each defeated one as his head emerged above the surface after a ducking.

Gerry McClelland was chairman of the Regatta Committee; J. K. Hughes, judge; Alderman W. J. Hancock and G. H. Roper making themselves generally useful.

In the evening the prizes were presented, the cups for the sailing events being presented by the donors G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., and W. H. Bradburn, who both made brief speeches of appreciation of the work of the committee and extending congratulations on a successful carrying out of the day's programme.

The winners of the sailing events received stickers in addition to the cups won. It will be noticed that in several cases first and second prizes were won by individuals with the same surname (presumably they were brothers).

PICTON AT DELORO

Win Will Give Home Team Second Place.

MARMORA, Aug. 6—Point Anne having defeated Picton on the 5th by the score of 1-0, causes the game at Deloro on the 7th with Picton to be of unusual interest. Deloro, by winning, secure second place on the league ladder but by losing, tie with Picton for second place. Picton will make a great endeavour to secure a victory but it will take some doing.

BEETHOVEN LIKED A PRACTICAL JOKE

Strange Pranks at Variance With Wonderful Music Sense.

The discrepancy between Beethoven and his music was extraordinary. About the time when he was composing the Ninth Symphony and his great Mass (Missa Solemnis), two of his most scholarly, dignified and impressive works, he was arrested one day as a tramp in the outskirts of Vienna. He had left his house without his hat and wearing a very shabby coat. He was observed peering into windows and behaving very strangely in other ways. A crowd gathered and a policeman was summoned. The supposed tramp kept on shouting, "I am Beethoven! I am Beethoven," but nobody believed him. Finally, someone came along who knew him and he was sent home with apologies.

Was it the touch of insanity which is supposed to be associated with genius ("great wit to madness nearly is allied") or a crude sense of fun that made the great composer do such stunts?" Who can tell? He certainly was wont to deal in pranks. Summing up the details given by contemporaries, Grove says: "To tell the truth, he was fond of horseplay, and that not always in good taste. The stories—some of them told by himself—of his throwing books, plates, eggs, at the servants; of his pouring the dish of stew over the head of the waiter who had served him wrongly; of the wisp of goat's beard sent to the lady who asked him for a lock of his hair—all are instances of it. No one had a sharper eye or ear for a joke when it was told on another . . . But it must be confessed that his ear and his enjoyment were less keen when the joke was against himself."

KEENE, Aug. 7.—The C.G.E. girls soft ball team of Peterboro defeated Keene 12 to 9 in a league game here on Wednesday evening. The game was wild and exciting from start to finish.

MATTY IMPROVING AT SARANAC LAKE

Regaining Strength But Can't Work Yet.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Far from being in a critical condition, as some reports have had it, Christy Mathewson—the beloved "Big Six" of other baseball days, now President of the Boston Braves—is in good health and keen spirits, taking as lively an interest as ever in the game which is closest to his heart.

This authoritative information came to The Associated Press yesterday from Saranac Lake, the Adirondack Mountain resort where Mathewson makes his home and spends a good share of his time.

In Matty's own words, he is "feeling fine." He is rapidly regaining the strength which was a little undermined last Spring when he assumed too heavy a burden in trying to mould the fortunes of the Boston club for the 1925 campaign. But his physicians, while gratified by the progress he is making in rebuilding his health once more, do not feel he will be able to leave Saranac for some time, probably several months.

For this period Matty must forego the worries of a baseball club owner, much as his desires may be to get back to his desk. As he has been doing for some time, he must continue to take things easy, though maintaining the customary interests and associations which mark his life with his family at Saranac. He also is kept on a careful diet.

In appearance, Matty is described as ruddy and healthy as ever, though as yet he cannot put too great a tax upon his strength.

His interest in baseball never lags. It is part of his life. He follows both major league races very closely, studying with particular attention the progress of his own club, the Braves, and the fortunes of the team with which he earned his greatest fame, the Giants.

Offhand, "Big Six" is familiar with the batting and pitching averages of most of the current stars. In his analysis of the twirling it is said he does not share the view that the so-called lively ball is a handicap to good mound work. He feels that the pitchers of today by proper application have just as good a chance to 'put something' on the ball and make good as they did a generation ago.

Among the famous horses that have won the classic Saratoga Special for two-year-olds, first run in 1901, have been Irish Lad, Sysonby and Morvich.

New York Girl Swam Half Mile in Less Than 13 Minutes.

MILE IN 26.33.

DETROIT, Aug. 7.— (Canadian Press).—A new world's mark for the half-mile swim for women was set here yesterday by Ethel McGarry, of New York, competing in the National outdoor swimming championships for women, when she swam the distance in 12 minutes and 57 seconds. The previous record of 13 minutes 19 seconds was made by Gertrude Ederle, New York, in 1923. Continuing on the course, Miss McGarry lowered the United States mile record, held by Helen Wainwright, swimming the distance in 26 minutes 33 2-5 seconds.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Now, what length to the shaft of ie wood? Golfers are forever wonring if they should have shafts cut of. A good rule is this: Never tamper with a club. Get it right at the outset, then leave it alone. If you think the club has a fault, make up your mind that you have the fault — not the club. The maker of the club has spent thousands of dollars finding the right way to balance up the club, and to tamper with it by removweight from the lead, etc., is bad actice unless you know exactly what u are doing. The longer the shaft, eviously, the heavier the head bemes, practically. For this reason, e shorter the shaft, the heavier the ad should be. Many players have e habit of gripping at the extreme d of the shaft. This increases the ll of the head, since an inch on e shaft means a pound on the head, en swinging it. Grip the club about dway in the leather. This is where manufacturer usually means the ance to be found. You get results n a club by working with its balance not against it.

WIN FOR PETES MEANS PLAY-OFF

Victory Over Oshawa Here To-morrow Puts Visitors Out of Running.

LAST VISIT HERE.

To-morrow, Oshawa, fighting with their backs to the wall, will be the visitors at Riverside Park, on their last appearance in Peterboro this year. The motor town entry is in third place in the League standing, and must win to-morrow. Although Duke Dainty is out with a broken wrist, two good pitchers, Lennox and Breckenridge, are left to hold up the heaving end for the visitors. Their bad showing in Kingston was due to the absence of Tyson, who had a bad shoulder, and he should be back to-morrow. In Kingston, Toots Ward, the Peterboro boy who is playing utility for Oshawa, tried his hand at catching, and didn't make a bad job of it. A win for the Petes will put them safely in the playoff.

NEED MILLION SIGN DEMPSEY

Boxer Will Fight Wills For Promoter Who Makes Biggest Offer.

NOT SIGNED YET.

By Lincoln Quarberg
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright 1925 by the United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 7.—It will take at least $1,000,000 to get Jack Dempsey into a title bout with Harry Wills, and the first promoter who can guarantee the heavyweight champion that amount, and sign Paddy Mullins, the negro challenger's manager, will get the match.

In an exclusive interview to-day Dempsey denied that he had signed articles of agreement with Floyd Fitzsimmons to meet Wills at Michigan City, and declared the match was still wide open to the promoter who could make the highest bid for his services. The champion said, however, that Fitzsimmons was the heaviest bidder to date, and that the Michigan City promoter, if he could sign Wills, could be the ringmaster for the Dempsey match when it was staged next summer.

LOTS OF DOLLARS SOCCER PLAYERS

U. S. Manager Signs Up Good Talent From Auld Scotia.

Sam Mark, owner and manager of Fall River Football Club, U.S.A., is some hustler.

A few weeks ago he was in Kirkaldy, interviewing a Scotsman who has been in America, and who is a cousin of an ex-Raith Rovers half-back.

His business finished, he darted to Glasgow. There he met his agent, a lad who had fixed up Hugh Coyle (Motherwell), Tec White (Motherwell), Charlie McGill (Third Lanark), and Martin (Motherwell) for the Fall River club.

To the agent Sam Mark said, "When do they sail?"

"Fourth July," was the reply.

"No use," snapped Sam. "They sail on Thursday with me on the Letitia."

"Thursday! Why, that gives us only two days to get hold of them, to get passports, and book passages. It can't be done!"

"Can't! There isn't such a word in my vocabulary. Hustle, kid!"

So Sam and the agent got a move on. They met the players and gave them instructions. On Thursday afternoon at three o'clock I saw the American complete the final arrangements, and at five saw the players off to the liner.

From the Fall River man I learned something about the business. Sam Mark said, "This deal is all fair and above board. The players are perfectly satisfied. In some cases I have seen the parents, and have convinced them the lads are going out to have a good time and to improve their circumstances.

Glowing Terms.

The terms, I was told, are very good—the best than any player in the U.A. can command. Each got $250 as a signing-on fee. Transportation—second cabin—is paid by Sam Mark. $35 a week close season wages is guaranteed. On and after 1st September when the season opens, $65 is the guaranteed figure.

At the end of a year the players will be at liberty to return on holiday. Fare home and back to U.S.A. will be paid, and close season wages will again be given.

More than that, Sam Mark has said to the four who accompanied him, "If you get tired of it, next month or six months after, or at any time at all, you've only to say so, and I'll give you cash on the spot to pay your way home to Scotland.

"Mind you," said the American to me, "I can take more players, and my agent here has a number of names jotted down. In particular I want a first class insider forward. He'll be fixed in August I expect.

"My club is the best-drawing club in America. At our League games we get 10,000 spectators at half a dollar a head. That means $5,000 every game. I control the finance, and I am therefore in a position to guarantee big money and a good time to the men I take away."

PUBLICITY FOR DEMPSEY FIGHT

Telegrams Exchanged in Verbal Battle Preliminary to Wills Encounter.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—The trans-continental battle of words over the proposed heavyweight championship clash between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills in 1926 waged furiously yesterday.

Verbal broadsides were turned loose in three sectors, embodying a barrage of contradictory statements, but after being sifted, they all appeared to agree on one point—that Dempsey and Wills will climb into the ring to fight it out some time next year.

The high spots of the day follow:

Jack Dempsey, Los Angeles, telegraphs Tex Rickard: "Definitely eliminating New York State" as a site for the Wills match, but holding open prospect of engagement with Rickard or any responsible promoter anywhere else in the country, including Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City. Asserts agreement with Rickard only verbal and tentative and not binding in view of New York State Athletic Commission's attitude. Willing to fight for Floyd Fitizsimmons near Chicago if Wills agrees.

Jack Kearns, Chicago, announces, on way to New York to "iron out all difficulties with the New York Boxing Commission on both the Dempsey-Wills and Shade-Walker matters," that Dempsey will fight Wills only under his (Kearns') management. Dificulties with Dempsey not concerned with ring affairs and will receive bids for Wills' fight from any promoter in world willing to post forfeit of half million dollars up. Figures big match will draw two million "gate."

Tex Rickard, New York, insists Dempsey will fight only under his direction and confident battle with Wills will take place in New York around July 4, 1926. Has "understanding" with Dempsey and is ready to stage battle here or in Jersey City. Brands talk of fight going elsewhere as "hot air."

AT THE ROYAL.

VETERANS' NIGHT HUGE SUCCESS AT ROYAL.

The overseas songs were brought back to life with a bang last night at the Royal. The large audience went at them with a vim that could be heard from Brock Street to Sherbrooke Street. Manager McGeachie is being complimented to-day that it is one of the best stunts he has yet "pulled." He modestly stated that the success of the evening was due entirely to the 21st Battalion Club, who were enthusiastic about having the old familiar songs revived, and who turned out in large numbers and brought their good voices with them.

Irene Foster, popular soldier songs.
Mr. Cole—English comics.
Roland Gilbert—autoharp.
George Lilly—skipping.
Earl Waterman — timely topical songs.
Little Annie Fletcher in "Lullaby Land" and other songs.
Mr. Harris officiated in his usual acceptable manner.

"UNGUARDED WOMEN," COLORFUL ROMANTIC DRAMA AT ROYAL.

If we were asked to sum up in one sentence our impression of "Unguarded Women," the Alan Crosland Paramount production that opened at the Royal Theatre last night for a three days' run, we would says that "It glows with the divine spark of life!" It has that intangible something that grips the heart and stirs the imagination because its appeal is to the fundamental emotions of mankind.

All the highlights of the dramatic story which Lucy Stone Terrill wrote and which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post under the title "Face" are emphasized in the screenplay.

Our sympathy is enlisted right from the start when we realize the mental agony of the hero whose conscience will not let him forget that it was cowardice at the critical moment during the Great War that caused the death of his best friend. We appreciate his feelings when he meets his comrade's widow and sees her wasting her womanhood and ruining her reputation because she lacks the steadying influence of an honorable man. We want to cheer and applaud his efforts to save her even at the cost of his own happiness. And then comes the smashing climax—the final thrill that sends us home smiling and contented.

Richard Dix, as the hero, imparts a naturalness and sincerity to his role that is bound to add thousands to the countless other thousands of his admirers; Bebe Daniels gives a vivid portrayal of the reckless widow; and Mary Astor plays her part of the loyal fiancee with all the winsomeness of her appealing personality. Honorable mention must also be made of Walter McGrail, Frank Losee, Harry Mestayer and Joe King, each of whom gives a sterling performance.

BETTY COMPSON STARRED "NEW LIVES FOR OLD."

To take Manager McGeachie's word for it, it's a brand new Betty Compson who comes to the Royal Theatre next Monday in the Paramount picture, 'New Lives for Old.'

Betty is said to have thrown every ounce of her sparkling personality into this story. It deals with the great love of a famous Parisian dancer, masquerading as a Norman peasant girl, for an American army captain. The period is the closing year of the World War, and it is said one never forgets that behind the intense drama being worked out in the foreground, the war booms a thunderous obligato not far away. Betty becomes involved in the meshes of the Frenrch secret service and sacrifices everything for her country and her love.

Wallace MacDonald, Theodore Kosloff and Sheldon Lewis are featured at the head of the strong supporting cast. "New Lives for Old" is MacDonald's first Paramount picture. He had leading roles in "Thy Name Is Woman," "The Spoilers," "The Sea Hawk," etc. MacDonald is the American officer in the picture with whom Betty falls in love. Kosloff, seen recently in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Golden Bed," is cast as a German spy who poses as a Frenchman in the picture. Lewis is Pugin his accomplice.

Other big names in the cast include Jack Joyce, the one-legged vaudeville headliner; Margaret Seddon, Joe Dowling, Helen Dunbar, Gale Henry, Marvel Quivey and Ed. Faust.

"New Lives for Old," directed by Clarence Badger, was adapted for the screen by Adelaide Heilbron.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE CHECHAHCOS."

This is an odd picture, really quite out of the ordinary in movie productions. It gives one an impression, possibly on account of the old-fashion costuming of those taking part in a tale that centres about the old-time gold rush in Alaskan fields, of being pictured in some long-dead epoch, and yet there is the ever new and always interesting theme of love and romance and achievement. The photography seems particularly graphic in this picture also, and there are some marvellous scenes of natural beauty from a little-known region, even in the movies, that of the Alaska ice floes and snow-bound wastes. The pictured terrors of a moving glacier are splendid, and the whole production gives an outstanding impression of far-away lands and places. The action is somewhat melodramatic, and moves with sudden, unexpected vigor from scene to scene, leaving much to the imagination of the beholder. The inclusion of a real, tinhorn gambler of the forceful, magnetic type and a singer of the dance halls who poses in regal beauty and wonderful gowns in the midst of a northern gin palace, give an impression of unrealness to the story that is wiped out absolutely by the very real acting and characterizations of the girl and the two chums who guard her. An odd picture, it holds the attention from first to last. An extremely unreal bit is the delineation of dance hall females of the first Alaskan days as very respectable-looking ladies with careful pompadours and high necks and long skirts, who look out of place as sirens of the unwary miner.

The story moves swiftly, telling the tale of the separation of a woman, who later casts her lot with a gambler and sings in his saloon, from her little daughter, and the care of the child by two chums of the Northern wastes. A realistic portion is toward the end of the picture, when the girl gets lost on the icy glacier, and Dexter and Steele, her lover and the aforesaid gambler, in a made race for revenge, collide on the same perilous slopes.

The introductory music, oddly enough, is the "Goin' Home" selection from Dvorak's "New World Symphony."

See "The Chechahcos," and you see something different. It shows the rush of the men who were lured by "the whisper of gold," in those bygone times, and it shows it in the language and the form of the days when they froze and died on the Alaskan trail. There is something quite artistic about a production that takes a melodramatic story of this type and casts it in a melodramatic way in melodramatic surroundings, using everything, as it were, to match. And there is a great deal of awe-inspiring majesty about the wonderful scenes, that include the first filming on any screen of Mount McKinley, the highest peak in North America.

The short reels are as good as usual with this programme and there is a farcical comedy, "Look Out," with an unlucky delivery girl and a couple of plug-uglies, "Spike" Dugan and "Cabbagehead" Murphy in stellar roles.—Jeannette.

ATTORNEYS FOR STATE CRITICIZE INSANE VERDICT

"Shameful and Disgraceful," Said Assistant State Attorney Pritzker.

JURORS IGNORANT.

Father of Hold-up Victim is Also Disappointed by Jury's Finding.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press). — The finding of the jury that Russell Scott, convicted murdered, was insane, thus placing him beyond the reach of the noose, was severely criticized by State attorneys last night.

"It's a shameful and disgraceful verdict," said Assistant State's Attorney Harry F. Pritzker. "Scott is no more insane than any man in this room. The verdict is a victory for the criminal element. They can take life and get away with it. The jurors in this case did not know the first principle of law involved. They are too ignorant."

Jacob Maurer, father of the youth who was shot down in the drug store hold-up, was disappointed in the verdict. "It's the law," he said, "but I didn't expect justice. My boy is gone. I find no consolation in the verdict."

Scott will be taken to Chester Asylum to-day.

MOTOR RACING IN PETERBORO

Arrangements Being Made to Hold Meet at Exhibition Grounds.

SIX EVENTS.

W. H. Pickens, a sports promoter of Chicago, is in Peterboro making preliminary arrangements for the holding on August 20 of a series of automobile races, the first in the history of Peterborough. The Exhibition race track has been secured for the purpose. There will be six events in which many of the drivers who took part in the races at Toronto and Ottawa Exhibitions and at Montreal have entered. Provided a sufficient number of entries can be secured, a race will be staged confined to local drivers. Mr. Pickens was over the ground this morning and describes it as one of the best half mile tracks in the country. While the best types of racing cars in the world will be on view driven by daring drivers, the public will be safeguarded by a 40 feet zone around the track. All the drivers are experienced men, and tires, and wheels are regularly inspected. It is hoped that if the venture is successful the Exhibition committee will put on a special day of racing during Exhibition Week.

CAN'T FORETELL SEASONS BY SUN

Prediction of Summerless Year is Unwarranted, Says Sir F. Stupart.

NOT SOLVED YET.

TORONTO, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—Commenting on the predictions of Ralph E. Delury of the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, that there might be no summer next year, Sir Frederick Stupart, director of the meteorological office here today characterized them as unfounded. "Predictions of the character of coming seasons—based on sun spot numbers—are in my opinion totally unwarrantable," Sir Frederick said.

"We are not as yet able to co-relate the various factors entering into this intricate problem. It is seldom that the character of a season is the same all over the Dominion. The problem of whether the character of seasons in corresponding years—cycles or otherwise—is attributable in solar radiation, has not yet been satisfactorily solved."

This extra payment depends on a great deal of litigation.

INFERNO OF FOREST FIRE RAGES BEYOND CONTROL IN B. C. TIMBER

Conditions So Dangerous That Little Progress Is Made By Corps of Fire Fighters— Lightning Started Some Last Sunday.

MENACE GROWS STEADLY WORSE.

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—While Alberta forests are still clear of fire, the railway belt in British Columbia is an inferno of forest fires. Reports received at the forestry branch headquarters in Calgary yesterday indicated that the situation in the Revelstoke, Salmon Arm and Kamloops areas is as bad as it has been for some years. On the coast section of the belt there are not so many fires, but the hazard is reported higher than it has ever been.

From the coast supervisor comes word that he has seven large fires, three of which are serious. Salmon Arm reports 20 small fires, and all large ones which are dangerous and most of them out of control. Some of the worst blazes are at Armstrong, Mara Mountain, Enderby, White Lake, Kingfisher, Crow Foot, Three Valley, Trinity Valley, Noisy River and Map Creek. More than 170 are employed fighting these fires but conditions are so hazardous that little progress is being made. The fire at Squaw Bay, Onidams Lake, where valuable timber is burning, is out of control.

At Kamloops the conditions are slightly improved, but serious fires are still being fought.

Revelstoke reports a dozen large fires and half a dozen smaller ones. A lightning storm last Sunday was responsible for starting many of them. In the Golden district a little rain has fallen.

These Under Control.

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—All forest fires burning on Vancouver Island between here and Nanaimo were under control by noon yesterday, according to reports received by forestry headquarters.

Only fragmentary reports were received here from the mainland yesterday, but the indication is that the situation in the interior is growing steadily worse.

The latest fire is an outbreak of large proportions on Seymour River, a tributary of Shuswap Lake.

Bootleggers Buy Some Of Government's Liquor

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 8—Liquor officials cannot prevent a certain amount of government liquor being sold to bootleggers Liquor Commissioner Hugh Davidson declared yesterday in replying to the Victoria Police Commission's assertion that local bootleggers get their supplies from government vendors.

Mr. Davidson pointed out that the liquor act provides that vendors shall refuse to sell liquor to anyone whom they suspect of bootlegging. It is difficult, however, he said to prevent the sale of liquor to anyone who uses the permit of another person, despite the fact that this practice is illegal.

BOTH LEADERS EXPECT TO WIN

Statements Issued By Premier and Opposition Leader Are Hopeful.

VOTE ON MONDAY.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 8. (Canadian Press).—In public statements given out last night, both Premier H. J. Veniot and Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, the rival leaders in Monday's balloting to decide the complexion of New Brunswick's new Legislative Assembly, predicted victory. Premier Veniot said: "After a tour of this province, in which I have spoken in every county except one, I can assure my friends that the Government will be sustained. I count on 29 seats out of 48," and Dr. Baxter declared: "It looks to me from all indications that the popular sentiment is in our favor and that we shall win by a large majority."

JAP PLAN TO CURB RED PROPAGANDA

Bill to be Introduced Next Session—Police Busy Now.

TOKIO, Aug. 8.—(Associated Press).—Fear of Bolshevist propaganda in Japan is ever present among the heads of the Government and it was recently reported that the Home Department is planning to introduce a bill at the next Diet session for the organization of a special police service to deal with the situation. It is said a yearly outlay of 1,000,000 yen will be asked for this purpose.

The Government has not been amiss in adopting measures calculated to be effective in coping with untoward developments that may follow the reopening of the country for intercourse with Soviet Russia. Of these measures the most important is, of course, the new peace preservation law, which the Diet voted at its last session.

Along with this precautionary piece of legislation may be mentioned the steps taken to unify orders issued to the police at home and in Korea, so that there may be co-operation as well as co-ordination of activity on the trail of propagandists. There is also the creation of special police organs to be on Korean frontiers and South Manchurian borderlands.

All these innovations are now in full working order. But it has been found that channels for the introduction of "Red" propaganda are rapidly increasing owing to the growing frequency with which the peoples of the two countries are exchanging visits for commercial, touring and other purposes and also because of the freedom with which new publications are being imported.

The home office regards it as imperative in consequence that a police service of special nature be perfected to deal with the problem of propagation of radical thoughts.

CHILDREN STARVING.

Great Misery Exists in Clonmel, in Tipperary County.

DUBLIN, Aug. 8 (Canadian Press)—Grave conditions are reported to exist in Clinmel, the largest town in Tipperary, where, according to the Mayor's report to the corporation "It is terrible to listen to the tales of woe."

"Children have died of starvation" the report says, "and others are dying owing to the lack of nourishing food."

FIFTEEN FAILURES.

OTTAWA, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press).—Public notice of fifteen bankruptcies appear in this week's issue of the Canada Gazette.

MONOCLED MAN GETS SENTENCE OF THREE YEARS

Ten Years More of Preventive Detention Added to Prison Term.

KNOWN SINCE 1896.

Clever Confidence Man Has Served Several Terms in Jails.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—(Special). — The remarkable career of Droain Harold Trevor, now known throughout England as 'the monocled man,' has been terminated in a sentence of three years' imprisonment and ten years of preventive detention imposed at the London Sessions.

Since 1896 Trevor has been known to the British police, and more than a hundred crimes have been attributed to him.

Most of his misdeeds have been the working of confidence tricks, passing bogus cheques and defrauding hotels.

His weakness was the habit of always wearing a monocle and his passion for high-sounding titles, under some of which he had considerable success in gaining the confidence of wealthy widows, prior to robbing them. He was released from prison a year ago. Very soon the police again began to receive reports concerning "the monocled man" activities. He was arrested in a restaurant last week.

Trevor made an impassionated appeal from the dock, asking the jury not to regard him as a habitual criminal.

"What is a man to do when he leaves prison after seven years with seven shillings in his pocket?" he cried.

Trevor's eloquence, however, failed to impress the jury, who found him guilty without leaving the box.

FOUR THOUSAND MINERS RESUME DUTIES MONDAY

Advance Parties of Maintenance Men Returned to Collieries Last Night.

OTHERS TO-DAY.

Government Continues Red Cross Aid to the Sick and Young.

GLACE BAY, N.S., Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press).—The trek back to the coal mines of the Province began last night with the taking on of some maintenance men following the signing at noon of a six months' contract between the British Empire Steel Corporation and the miners of Nova Scotia. As set down in the Government's proposal, accepted by both parties, the contract provides for 1922 wages rates and 1924 working terms. However, due to the involved nature of the wage rates, the district executive of the United Mine Works' and Corporation officers spent Friday afternoon in reviewing and arriving at an understanding concerning the rates. Good progress was made and both sides anticipate that all details will be cleared up to-day.

More maintenance men will be taken on to-day and Sunday, so that all will be in readiness to take on some four thousand men on Monday. Work will commence in practically all the mines, fifteen, eleven, twenty-one and six excepted, but it will take longer to restore some of the collieries to normal than others.

Continue Relief.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—At a meeting of the Government here Friday it was decided to continue the aid which the Provincial Red Cross has been given in the Cape Breton colliery districts to sick people and to young children in need of nourishment.

No decision has been reached yet as to when the Government will hold its referendum among the miners to decide whether or not the check-off system of collection of union dues by the company shall be continued or abolished. The British Empire Steel Corporation is opposed to the check-off. It was one of the difficulties of the wage negotiations, the miners' representatives holding out for its continuance.

New Zealand Protests To Bombay Municipal Council

BOMBAY, Aug. 8. (Canadian Press' Cable, via Reuter's)—The Bombay Municipal Corporation has received a letter from the Government of New Zealand, urging that New Zealand should be exempted from the operation of the resolution passed in March, 1923, by the Bombay Corporation, boycotting Dominion banks and insurance companies as a protest against the treatment of Indians overseas. The letter points out that Indians in New Zealand labor under no difficulties.

DROWNED WIFE THEN HIMSELF

Little Girls Tell of Tragedy Off Alaska Coast— Drifted Ashore.

DRAG FOR BODIES.

PETERBURG, Alaska Aug. 8—Federal authorities declared here yesterday that two girls, five and three years old, had told them that Tom Rise beat his wife on board his boat, threw her overboard and jumped into the water himself leaving the children on the moving craft alone Monday. Rise recently married Mrs. Hogue widow of a wealthy Petersburg merchant.

The vessel beached itself and the two girls crawled off the ship when the tide went out and walked to a cannery three miles up the beach. The authorities have been dragging Wrangel Narrows, south of here for the bodies.

FORMER FIRE JUMPS BREAK

MORE CREWS.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 8 (Canadian Press)—Fanned by high winds a forest fire sweeping through the northern section of Veldez Island jumped the firebreak at Hyacinthe valley and now threatens with destruction the whole southern section of the island. Fire crews recently re-enforced have had to retreat but will make a stand farther back in an effort to check the rapidly advancing flames. The fire according to reports, has burned over 100 square miles of timber and bush lands in the northern section of the island.

VIOLATE TREATY

Persia Accuses Russia of Breaking Agreements— Bitter Arraignment.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—(Associated Press).—An official report received by the Persian Legation from Teheran on the recent Turcoman conflicts conveys a bitter arraignment of the Soviet authorities.

The Russians are accused of wilfully violating many of the agreements of the Russo-Persian treaty. Numerous instances of non-recognition of existing boundaries in northern Persia are mentioned. Attacks on the Persian border police at Alepoup, Kouschab and Chat and the establishing of Russian border posts on Persian territory are recorded.

The worst infringement of Persian inviolability is considered to be the deflection of the only river supplying three villages on the Chorassan border with water. This has been a cause of much suffering among the inhabitants of the district, besides creating serious economic and hygienic disturbances. To all complaints from Teheran, the authorities at Moscow are said to have given evasive and dilatory replies.

ANOTHER RECORD GONE.

Sybil Bauer Broke U. S. Record For Swimming 220 Yards Back Stroke.

DETROIT, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press). — Another United States swimming record for women went careening into oblivion yesterday at the National A.A.U. outdoor swimming championships for women, when Sybil Bauer, of the Illinois Athletic Club, paddled her way to victory in the 220-yard back stroke. Her time, 3 minutes 11 seconds, was five seconds better than the record made by Aileen Riggin this year.

FERGUSON SAILING FOR CANADA HAS TARIFF HOPES FOR BRITISH

Will Adopt Reasonable Protective Policy When They Understand Its Flexibility, Says Premier of Ontario— United Scotland.

SCOTTISH MONEY FOR CANADA.

LONDON, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press Cable).—"The people of the Old Country are losing their insular feeling," said Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, yesterday, on the eve of his departure from London to return home, "and the next few years, I am sure, will see a singular development in a closer consolidation for the general Imperial interests."

Premier Ferguson sails on the Empress of France to-day. He said that his personal views were that as soon as the average British citizen was enabled to understand that the policy of protection does not mean an inflexible policy, he will be ready to adopt a reasonable protective tariff. "The standard of living in the British Empire being higher than in the continental countries means that wages must be higher," Premier Ferguson continued. "This can be assured only by a policy of protection."

Mr. Ferguson within the last few days has done a 700-mile journey through Scotland and has also visited Ireland.

"I found Scotland's rural sections showing every evidence of prosperity," Premier Ferguson said, "although the depression continues to exist in the big centres of population. The Clyde shipbuilding, however, is picking up. In talking with Scottish financiers I noted a healthy interest in Canadian matters, and I am certain that if things continue on the same lines by this time next year we are likely to have an incursion of Scottish money into Canada.

"When I went to Ireland I found the conditions in the north fairly good, although, like everybody else, they are suffering in those places which depend upon such trades as shipbuilding or the iron and steel industry. Money seems fairly easy and everybody has an optimistic feeling."

Premier Ferguson mentioned that he had had luncheon with the Lord Mayor of Belfast, Sir William Turner.

FIRE DESTROYED BIG STOREHOUSE

Loss in Fire at Copper Cliff is Estimated at $150,000.

SPECTACULAR BLAZE.

SUDBURY, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press).—The large machinery storehouse of the International Nickel Company at the smelter plant at Copper Cliff was totally destroyed by a fire which broke out yesterday afternoon. The damage is said to be more than $150,000. The fire is thought to have originated in an explosion of oils or gasoline stored in the building, and was one of the most spectacular to have occurred in the nickel town for some years.

PEACE INSURANCE WOULD STOP WAR

Viennese Author Has Novel Plan to Keep World at Peace.

VIENNA, Aug. 8 (United Press). —A world peace insurance company with millions of shareholders at $1 a share would be an ideal means of banning war, in the opinion of G. A. Silvara, noted Viennese author and dramatist. To the United Press today, he suggested that people everywhere in the world would contribute to such a concern which would have subsidiaries such as a world film company, a world broadcasting station, a world central board for private education, a world press [illegible] Schools, the film and the press would aid in selling the universe the idea of peace.

"Pity thy neigbor as thyself," Silvara said should replace the motto, "Love they neighbor as thyself." "Compassion is the most effective principal to prepare humanity for a state of peace."

WEATHER BETTER.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 8 (Canadian Press).—The weather over Western Canada has been much improved by showers and is cooler. The new crop begins to come in and the temperatures will greatly benefit the late grains and put a check on premature ripening. Some damage from hail is reported in north central Saskatchewan.

Lock Broken Off Door and Padlock and Chain Used.

VOTED UNION.

Minister Refuses to Deliver Key to Anti-Union Party.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 8—(Canadian Press).—Developments in the controversy over the right of possession of St. John's Church, Pittsburgh, came faster than expected last night when the lock on the door of the church was cut out and replaced by two big logging chains secured by padlocks.

To-day, Rev. D. T. Lancaster, minister of the church, stated he intended to conduct services tomorrow as usual. In the meantime voting on the question of Union was concluded. Out of the voting strength of 72 there were 44 members in favor of Union.

Both sides in the controversy have requested police protection, and Provincial Official Mackachlan will be on hand to-morrow at the time scheduled for the commencement of the service.

Three trustees representing the continuing Presbyterian Church yesterday demanded the key of the church from Rev. Mr. Lancaster, but were refused.

Man On Lone Trip Across the Seas Is In Distress,

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press). — The Half Moon, the 30-foot ketch in which Commander Eustace Maude, 70 years of age, retired Royal Naval officer, of Mayne Island, left here early in May on a lone voyage to England, was sighted yesterday flying distress signals off Destruction Island, 40 miles south of Cape Flattery.

Mystery surrounds the appearance of the craft so far north, only 100 miles from Victoria, as a month ago she was reported arrived at Santa Barbara, Calif.

The radio operator at Destruction Island went out in a boat and asked Maude what he wanted, but Maude ignored all questions, and after sailing around the island, headed north again with his distress signals still flying.

FARM BOYS STOLE CHOICE NEW CORN

Used New Variety From Fields of State Farm For Corn Roast.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Aug. 8 (pecial by United Press).—Farmer boys in the neighborhood who held a corn roast, using the choice ears raised at the State Experimental farm, which they surreptitiously gathered, have the farm officials up in arms today over their prank, for it had taken four years of experimenting to produce the corn. The markers in the rows telling the species of the corn, were used by the boys for fuel.

Tells of Drastic Cut in Rates Between Europe and Canada.

REPEATS CHARGES.

MONTREAL Aug. 8 (Canadian Press)—Drastic cuts in rates from Europe to Canada will be made by British interests with whom W. T. R. Emigrants will be brought from Great Britain at forty dollars a head. Cattle will be transported to British ports at $15 a head, insead of $20, and merchandise rates will be reduced, Mr. Preston says. He renewed his charge that a combine to maintain high ocean rates existed and added "the fight against the shipping combine is now on."

Lives of Workmen and Customers Were Endangered —Nobody Hurt.

WINDSOR, Aug 8 (Canadian Press).—The lives of 20 workmen of the Samuel E. Dinsmore Company, general contractors, and five persons in the restaurant of Phillip Sorantos, 407 Oulette Avenue, were imperilled yesterday when the restaurant building, a one-story brick structure, collapsed and fell into a 20-foot excavation the workmen were digging. Two men working on the steam shovel in the excavation narrowly escaped being buried by an avalanche of bricks, plaster and furnishings from the restaurant when the side wall split and tumbled upon them. All escaped unhurt.

CANADA WILL BE EMPIRE CENTRE

Canadian Professor in English University Predicts Great Future for Dominion.

PACIFIC IMPORTANT

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—The growing importance of Canada as one of the leading units of the British Empire was stressed by C. M. MacInnis, professor of colonial and economic history, at the University of Bristol, Eng., upon his arrival here on his way to Calgary, Alta., the place of his birth.

"To my mind nothing can stop the North American continent from becoming eventually the chief influence of the future, and I feel that in the years to come there is every likelihood of Canada becoming the centre of the British Commonwealth of nations, with the necessary political power transferred to her," he said.

Professor MacInnis graduated at Dalhousie and Oxford Universities. He lost the sight of both eyes as the result of wounds received during the war. This handicap did not prevent him from taking up his present position. He is the author of "The British Commonwealth and Its Unsolved Problems."

"There may be some who would advocate that Canada should go forward as an independent nation, outside the British Commonwealth. I fail to see the line of reasoning, for the fact that Canada is within the Empire appears to me one of the chief reasons of her strength, declared Prof. MacInnis.

"I wish," continued the visitor, "that Canada would consider more than she does at present, the advisability of taking a share of the responsibilities in the distant parts of the Empire. For that reason I would welcome more of the colonial services being thrown open to Canadians. The Secretary for the Colonies and Overseas Dominions is alive to this fact and I hope it will materialize." He also emphasized the importance of the Pacific in the future affairs of the world.

The New England Amateur Rowing Association, which is now in its 40th year, will hold a Labor Day regatta at Boston.

HOLD-UP FAILED ROBBERS FLEE

Kept Up Revolver Fire to Discourage Pursuit By Intended Victims.

POLICE ATTRACTED.

WINDSOR, Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Blazing away with revolvers to discourage a close pursuit by their intended victims, a quartet of gunmen, fashionably attired, fled across the river in a motor boat yesterday, after an attempt to hold up several American motorists on the outskirts of Riverside had failed. Attracted by the shots, the Detroit Harbormaster's crew came across the river to investigate, while the Riverside police also hurried to the scene. The armed visitors managed to escape before their arrival.

A man who identified himself as Thomas Medbury, told the police that the gang, after firing several shots to intimidate him, struck him over the head with the butt of a pistol. They failed to jerk a valuable ring from his finger, however. Miss Annette McDenech, of Detroit, reported that when the thugs tried to hold her up she threw her purse containing $15 into the roadway.

MARKERS REDUCED.

Henry to the McDonald Manufacturing Company, Limited, of Toronto, the contract price being fixed at 8 3-4 cents per plate. Last year's price was 10 cents per plate. Some 300,000 plates are being ordered.

NORTHUMBERLAND PROGRESSIVES HOLD MEETING AT CASTLETON TO PREPARE FOR FEDERAL ELECTION

Will Hold a Convention in September to Name a Candidate.

HALL DOOR LOCKED.

Charge Party Plot Was Cause of Demand For Hall Rent at Warkworth.

(By a Staff Reporter)

CASTLETON, Aug. 8—The Progressives of Northumebrland County, at a general meeting held here Friday afternoon, agreed unanimously to hold a convention in September, the date to be decided by President McCracken, for the purpose of nominating a candidate to contest the riding at the next Federal election. In the meantime every corner of the county will be thoroughly organized and each polling subdivision will be entitled to send five delegates to the convention.

Locked Out of Hall

The meeting yesterday was advertised to be held at Warkworth but late yesterday afternoon the location was changed and hereby hangs a tale.

On Saturday of last week Secretary Quinn of the Progressive County Association, spoke in the town hall at Warkworth to Township Clerk P. S. Ewing and the bills were put out.

At the meeting of the Percy Council on Monday Reeve McCribbin stated that the Progressives owed the township a bill for $20 for hall rent since the last election. He instructed Mr. Ewing not to let them into the hall on Friday unless this account was paid, and then to collect $15, the rent for Friday in advance, as the law provides.

Mr. Ewing was in Toronto yesterday and every door in the town hall was locked when the Progressives, over 50 in number, gathered. Thomas Summers, the caretaker, was on the spot with the key in his pocket and he refused to open a door unless he was paid $30 in current coin of the realm.

The Progressives repudiated the alleged debt, declaring that they had never contracted it and that no bill had ever been rendered.

Some of the party did not hesitate to assert that the whole affair was a plot to prevent their holding a meeting and added that their bills had been torn down as soon as put up by representatives of the old parties with the same purpose in view.

Moved to Castleton

Anyway, there was no convention at Warkworth. Shaking the dust of that village from their feet, the Progressives piled into their autos and headed for Castleton where the had no difficulty in securing the town hall. It was evidently not a financial consideration which induced them to make the change. When they passed the hat at Castleton they secured a sum considerably in excess of what was demanded of them at Warkworth. That village they declare will never have another opportunity to entertain a gathering of the Progressives.

Among those Present.

Some of the notables in the gathering were: Wesley Montgomery of Brighton, who represented the Progressives in the Ontario Legislature, during the regime of the Drury government, and who was defeated in 1923 by Major Belford; Peter Haig, the veteran reeve of Haldimand township, the home of E. J. Slade the Liberarl nominee, and who has always been rated as a Conservative, Alex. Rutherford, ex-Reeve of Haldimand, a former Liberal, and J. A. Sykes, a member of the Percy Township Council. Seymour Township was represented by Charles Macoun and Robert McCullough, but these two left for home when the gathering proposed for Warkworth fell through

There was more than one Progressive in the hall who had sat in the regular party convention and and broken political bread with old line delegates, even sharing the partisan salt as a token that all past offences had been forgiven. Evidently things are not shaping to suit them since the regular candidates were nominated, hence the change in their attitude.

Full of Vigor.

The rebuff, for it was so regarded, which they had received at Warkworth, seemed to inspire the Progresives with fighting vigor. John McCracken of Cramahe, the County President, occupied the chair in his shirt sleeves, and with these rolled up to his elbows, as if he were ready for, and would welcome a conflict. Every statement he made was emphatic, straight out from the shoulder were the blows he dealt the old parties, and if he is the nominee of the party, mention of his name having already been made in that connection, then the Progressives will have a candidate who will make himself heard in the riding. Chas. Quinn of Colborne is the County Secretary.

Every Delegate Polled.

One by one President McCracken called upon those in the audience for an expression of opinion as to whether a convention should be called, this convention to finally decide whether or not to put a candidate in the field. Every man, with the exception of Reeve Haig, who asked to be excused, responded when his name was called and while all were in favor of a convention, the majority were for running a candidate. Among those heard were:

Ex-Reeve Alex. Rutherford, of Haldimand; Dave McDonald of Trenton; J. A. Sykes, of Percy; W. McCrudden of Trenton; Geo. Huff, of Brighton; Thomas Hoskin, of Cobourg; Georrge Riley of Trenton; George Rice of Colborne; Clarence Thorne of Brighton; S. J. Cox, of Colborne; Robert Campbell of Roseneath, and D. Kewin of Castleton.

Ex-Member Speaks.

The last to be heard was Wesley Montgomery, ex-M.L.A., who spoke at considerable length, reviewing and defending the administration of the Drury Government.

The Conservative party, he said, is responsible for three-fourths of the debt of the country. Sir Thomas White and Sir Robert Borden during the war, piled up vast liabilities, but instead of staying to help meet these obligations both left office when pay day arrived. Mr. Montgomery believed that capable men should be engaged to organize the riding and explain the issues to the people.

Convention To Be Called.

It was unanimously decided to have President McCracken call a convention in September, care to be taken that the date chosen does not conflict with any of the Fall Fairs. The convention is deferred until next month, so that harvesting operations may be completed in the meantime. It will be held at Castlebrae.

President McCracken said it would be useless to post bills, as these would be torn down as soon as put up. The convention should be advertised in the newspapers. It was the lack of publicity, he said, which explained the small attendance yesterday.

Vice-Presidents Appointed.

Vice-presidents for the various townships represented at the meeting yesterday were appointed as follows:

Murray—D. McDonald.
Brighton Village—C. Thorne.
Brighton Township—George Huff.
Cramahe—D. Kerwin.
Colborne—L. Murphy.
Haldimand—C. Waite, B. Stewart, James Devinney.
Hamilton—Reeve George Holdsworth, Fred Benedict and James McLeod.
Alnwick—Harry Mouncey, A. J. Campbell.
Seymour—Charles McCoun, Robert McCullough.
Percy—J. A. Sykes, J. O. Reilley.

The vice-presidents will appoint a chairman in each polling subdivision and the chairman will name the delegates to the convention, half of these to be ladies.

J. J. Thurston, M.P.

The speaker of the day was J. J. Thurston, Progressive member for North Victoria in the Federal Parliament, who started his address by saying that he could not doubt the earnestness of men who after their experience in Warkworth, instead of quitting motored 10 miles further in order to hold a meeting. In easy conversational style, Mr. Thurston brought out the following points:

In private life Canadians are shrewd business men, but in public business they have made a failure. Canada is the second nation in the world most heavily taxed with debt per capita. For the past 50 years we have been going continually into debt, and have shown no substantial increase in population.

Why is This?

The reason for this is we have been instructing our representatives in Parliament to carry on public business not for the good of the country, but for the party. A success has been made of two parties, while the country as a whole has suffered.

Politics have become almost a degrading occupation. In the heat of a campaign we have seen men and women do things that they would scorn to do in private life.

If we change our policy and put country before party, Canada in 40 or 50 years will be one of the leading nations in the world. If we go on as we have been doing nothing can save us from bankruptcy.

If you build up a Progressive party no better than the Conservatives or Liberals, then you had much better stay at home.

The Progressives will be criticized for the record made by the U.F.O. Government in Ontario, but Mr. Thurston is not ashamed of that chapter in the party's history. When it was found that Peter Smith had done wrong, the Progressives aided in the investigation. Peter Smith misplaced $15,000; some man before him had made away with $25,000. Peter is in prison, but the man who went before him is at liberty, and the Department of Justice has made no attempt to bring him to account. Had the Progressives been in power this latter affair would have been sifted to the bottom.

Manning Doherty's Achievement.

To Manning Doherty belong the credit of getting the British embargo on Canadian cattle removed, one of the most important measures in the interests of Canadian farmers. When Mr. Doherty went to England on that mission, he went as a private citizen, and he was criticized by Howard Ferguson, who held that a Provincial official had no right to interfere in a Federal matter. Now Premier Ferguson is in England discussing tariff issues in that country.

Redistribution and Beer.

There has been no progress in Ontario since 1923. The only important measures Premier Ferguson has to his credit are the Redistribution Bill, one of the most iniquitous acts of its kind ever put on the statute books, and 4.4 beer. He spent half a million dollars to get the will of the people on the temperance question, promising to abide by their verdict, then went directly contrary to it. The people should not stand for such a breach of faith.

Not an Adjunct.

Mr. Thurston denied the charge made by the Conservatives, that the Progressives in Parliament are a mere adjunct of the Liberal party. In 49 recorded votes in three sessions, the Conservatives voted 15 times with the Government, the Progressives the same number of times, and the remaining votes were mixed.

Both old parties always unite to preserve the power of the money interests from whom they get their campaign funds.

In a Progressive campaign the expenses should be paid by the members of the party. If a candidate finances his own campaign, he will be out of pocket.

Believes in Recall.

Mr. Thurston believes in the recall. It is not law but any honorable man would resign as a member of the House if requested to do [illegible]

Tariff for Revenue.

Mr. Thurston believes in a tariff for revenue. The duty on boots and shoes imported into Canada last year was $17,000,000, and of this the Dominion treasury got $315,000 and the Canadian manufacturers the balance. This was nearly $2,000,000 more than the total wages paid the employees in the boot and shot factories.

The Liberals jockey the tariff, but never lower it. The Conservatives if returned to power are pledged to raise it.

The $5,000,000 voted to improve the Quebec harbor was not needed but was given as an inducement to that city to remain in the Liberal column. The Conservatives were afraid to oppose the grant lest they lose prestige with the French-Canadians. The same was true of the grant for Victoria Harbor in British Columbia.

Poltiical Advice.

Mr. Thurston gave his audience some practical advice as to how to organize for and conduct a political campaign. A canvass should be made for funds, and in the selection of delegates the ladies were not to be overlooked. The young people should be encouraged to form societies to study and debate public questions.

The address was generously applauded and the speaker was tendered a unanimous vote of thanks.

BIG MARMORA SPORTS EVENT COMBINES CIVIL AND MILITIA FORCES IN TRACK AND FIELD

Many Soldiers Under Canvas at the Exhibition Grounds.

REAL BOOSTERS.

P. E. and Hastings Counties Beat Northumberland in Tug-of-War.

Yesterday will find a niche in the annals of Marmora village for on that occasion a fieldday of sports was held which for diversity of amusement and its high standard of quality would be difficult to rival. This was made possible by the co-ordination of effort between the Booster Club and the North Hastings and Prince Edward County Rifles. The former is an institution which has for its aim the advancement of Marmora and the latter is a militia unit quartered on the Exhibition grounds.

The morning, or preparatory, stage passed quickly, the military and civil heads having previously laid the plans so there but remained the final drill movements the erection of booths and assembly of stores.

The more important events were run off in the afternoon and consisted of horse races, foot races, novelty events, a baseball game and a tug of war between members of the Northumberland and Hastings and Prince Edward County regiments.

The crowd was split at night, a number going to witness the wizarding of Green the magician, while others took the longer trip to the Marble Cliff Pavilion at Crowe Lake.

Due to a number of counter attractions and the fact that weather ideal for a sport day, was also ideal for harvesting the crops accordingly preventing the farmers' attendance, nevertheless there was a considerabl number present which followed the various events with absorbed attention, showing that the interest in communiy pastiming is yet existant. Both organizing factors have reason to be proud of the variety which they managed to obtain as well as for the efficient manner in handling the various contingencies arising.

The success of the day was marred by one casualty, Sergeant Beasley was affected by sun stroke to a serious extent.

The Booster Club is a real live organization in Marmora having been founded now for one year and six months and it aims to do everything which the name indicates. The field day proceeds were to found a free camp site at Crowe Lake for tourists as well as help build up a Park. The club also lends its assistance to charitable organizations. There are 98 members enrolled at present the officers being: President, Dr. H. Crawford; Vice President, W. F. Bowen; Secretary-Treasurer, J. P. Marvin.

The Militia unit has been under canvas since Tuesday, and shows remarkable results of the limited drill period. An efficient staff of officers is on duty, and splendid discipline is evidenced. On parade the men present a soldierly bearing, and while off duty appear to enjoy the camp life immensely, with the possible exception of the potato peelers and dishwashers, whose tasks did not appear to make them gleeful.

The officers of the headquarters staff follow:

Lieut.-Col. D. Greene, commanding officer, of Stirling.

F. Walt. Two cameras, one of the movie type, took pictures of the formation and the Headquarters staff.

The Horse Races.

There was a good entry of fast stepping horses and the races were close and exciting. In the free-for-all Polly Stout, from R. Elmhist's stable, Keene, took first money, Vola Bell, owned by Ross Turley, Frankford, a close second, and South Dakota Maid, Carr's entry, from Frankford. Time 2.25 1-2, 2.25 3-4, 2.26.

14—Tug of War, Northumberland Regt. and Hastings and P.E. Regt. won by the latter.

Baseball game, Marmora vs. H. and P. E. Regt., won by the latter.

The baseball game was won handily by the Militia squad with the score 6-3; as it just went 4 innings, it could not be declared a game, as it was unofficially called to allow the players to watch the tug-of-war.

The tug-of-war was won by the P.E.I. and Hastings men, who took the first two pulls from the Northumberland County boys. The Pierce Cup was the trophy which rewarded success.

A special mess was held to entertain Lieut. J. Evens, who brought the tug-of-war team. Other guests of honor were Reeve Airhart and a number of ladies.

The evening entertainment consisted of a concert in the Town Hall and a dance at Crowe Lake. Both places were well attended.

The cordiality with which guests were treated was particularly noteworthy; particularly at Crowe Lake was this noted, where, in a beautiful lakeshore pavilion, a merry dance was held.

Captain T. H. H. Hall received the following communication from Archdeacon (Canon) Scott, dated from Quebec:

"I have been away in Labrador for two months, so will not be able to be present. I am sorry that I will not be able to come on Sunday. Thank the comrades for asking me."

Decoration Day services will be held on Sunday, and flowers will be placed on the graves of comrades who have gone to rest. The entire [illegible]

PROSPERITY SPREADS.

The influence on one section of the country of prosperity in another may be well illustrated by the advent of the aluminum industry on a large scale in Quebec.

The new works there will require the development of 700,000 horse-power in electrical energy, and this development will necessitate the purchase of a large amount of apparatus. Quebec has gained the aluminum business, but having no large electrical apparatus manufacturies cannot handle the preliminary work.

Without being too optimistic, it seems only natural that the making of the hundreds of pieces of apparatus needed will be done in Canada, probably in Ontario. And Peterborough, with its well-equipped and expertly-manned works of the General Electric Company, may have a share in the orders.

THINGS WORTH WHILE.

The worth while things of life are always under a disadvantage.

Because they are worth while they last.

For people get tired of everything.

Even the things they admit are good they tire of and crave something new.

The old has to keep presenting itself in a new way to hold interest.

The spectacular, specious fallacy gets immediate attention.

But immediate attention is not the test of greatness. It is demonstrating the possession of that spark of truth and worth whileness which enables it to keep holding interest after the crowd has tired of the first attraction of novelty.

People get tired of going to church, even though they admit that churches are a good thing.

But churches have held on after counter-attractions have waned and disappeared.

They have demonstrated that they contain something of lasting worth.—New York American.

CANCER AND WALKING.

Sir W. Arbuthnot-Lane seems to be a bold man, for he says: "I know I will not die of cancer." Few people would venture to make such an assertion, yet he is perfectly confident about it. He is confident because he says he lives in the way to avoid developing cancerous growth. He abstains from meat, he eats plenty of uncooked fruit, he will not eat white bread—a food which he and any doctor who has studied food values declare to be deadly to human health. These are some of his maxims, and if they avert cancer, surely they are worth carrying out.

But there is another rule, and so far as this continent is concerned, cancer will go unchecked. Speaking of the great mass of sedentary workers, Sir William says it is necessary to walk two or three hours every day, or take equivalent exercise. In two or three hours a man should walk seven to ten miles. The present-day sedentary workers takes his exercise by auto, takes his car to visit his friend in the next block, takes his car to church half a mile off. How many car owners in St. Thomas would think of walking to Pinafore Park and back? Yet a daily walk there and back is less than the minimum exercise every citizen ought to have. We pay a terrible toll late in life for indulging our laziness in young and middle age.—St. Thomas Journal.

GOING BACKWARDS.

Thoughtful people must be struck—and saddened—by the current news dealing with crime. For a time the compelling fact was more increase in the number of criminal acts. Later events in the United States are tending to show that the character of the deeds of violence is changing in a manner that cannot but startle the balanced mind. In recent crime news there is evidence of a degeneration which must astound, and is having its effect in Canada. Crime is something more than a simple violation of the legal code when it descends into such depths. We who have long prided ourselves upon the fancied difference between the people of our country and those of other nations have been given something to think about that is worth while.

The criminal brutality demonstrated by proofs of degeneracy hitherto foreign to our records cannot be blinked at. Whether we have touched the right causes may be matter for doubt. But there is not the least question that we are swinging far from our old mental landmarks. But in making a brief survey of the differences between the new and the old-fashioned psychology, the discriminating observer sees much more than mere difference in the degrading character of the acts of the criminal-minded. He sees a startling change in mentality everywhere. If among the changes he notes a cold-blooded indifference to old standards of the value of human life, he may set that down as merely incidental. For he has only to plot out his observations to see that mental operations are different among all men and women—and even children.

The whole North American mind is no longer what it was when the generation just passing off the stage held as its breath of civic life. If we are startled now by the difference we may look for other changes that may develop into permanencies, the reverse of what was once a rule of conduct.—Montreal Herald.

ANOTHER NAVAL CONFERENCE.

"The menace is that the fleet is wearing out," was the answer of Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the debate on naval appropriations in the House of Commons to Lloyd George's taunting question, "Where is the threat to British security?" The Government had proposed to build seven cruisers in the next two years, and at the end of that period three cruisers every year—in addition, nine destroyers and six submarines annually, beginning in 1926. Some of the cruisers will be of less than 10,000 tons displacement, the maximum allowed by the Washington Naval Treaty. When Mr. Churchill said that the fleet was wearing out he had in mind auxiliaries, and what he meant was that many of the cruisers on the navy list are obsolescent; also that Great Britain was falling behind in destroyers and submarines. When other nations put cruisers in commission that are improvements as to speed and fighting qualities over British ships, the Admiralty declares that most of its cruisers are well enough for service in the Channel and the North Sea, but for ocean operations they are behind the times. Great Britain does not like to see Japan and the United States outbuilding her in any type. Mr. Churchill expressed the professional view, although his present job is that of reducing taxation. The Engineer, a technical authority, said in a recent issue:

> "Our present-day fleet, though sufficiently imposing on paper, contains a large proportion of second-rate vessels, deficient in speed, armament and other essential qualities. Particularly is this the case with our cruisers, of which no more than a dozen compare at all favorably with representative ships under foreign flags."

Great Britain possesses 195 destroyers, counting every ship of that type that can stand up. Half of them were built during the war and saw such hard service that they are included in the obsolescent class. "Actually, therefore," says The Engineer, "we have only about 100 destroyers that are thoroughly efficient." Today the British Navy has nothing so modern as the new French flotilla leaders of 2,360 tons, armed with five 5.1-inch guns and having a speed of 35.5 knots. Twenty-one are under construction or projected. New Japanese designs call for destroyers of 3,000 tons, which will be very fast and carry 5.5-inch guns. "Finally," says this authority, "we have fewer submarines than either the United States or Japan." Great Britain, with an immense overseas trade to guard and colonies all over the world, will not submit to being outspeeded and outgunned by any other sea Power. The Japanese Furutaka class of cruisers has worried the Admiralty. Although their displacement is only 7,100 tons, they mount six 8-inch guns, "so disposed as to permit of a full discharge on either beam and a bow fire of four guns." The Furutakas have a speed of thirty-three knots. As fighting ships they are rated as superior to the American Omahas, which carry 6-inch guns. The same thing can be said of the British E class, a late design.

Mr. Churchill has found himself in the awkward position of approving, as a former Sea Lord, of the Admiralty's determination to replace its obsolescent ships, and as Chancellor of the Exchequer of having to urge economy in the interests of the overburdened taxpayer. Naturally the Opposition has taken advantage of the embarrassment of the Government. It has been a great opportunity, too, for the friends of limitation of armaments. They have made the most of it. "Unless something is done," said Commander Kenworthy in the running debate, "we are in for a race in cruiser competition." That is a judgment that can hardly be challenged. Nothing can check the rivalry in building but the calling of a second naval conference. But could one be held without the laying down of conditions by this Power or that in a way to make the success of such a conference doubtful?—New York Times.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONO, Aug. 7.—Choice butcher cattle this week were generally up 25 cents from last week, and the choice exporters were also a real good trade for anything of the right type for overseas. Choice handyweight butcher steers and heifers were in good demand at 25 cents higher. The medium kinds were not so popular and moved slowly with no advance in price. Export steers sold from $7.75 to $8.50, with export heifers from $7.75 to $7.00.

In the butcher section the choice steers were going at $7.50 to $8. Medium kinds held good and steady with last week, but the common cattle were quite draggy. Choice butchers' heifers made from $7.25 to $7.75. Choice cows from $4.75 to $5.50, and choice bulls from $4.75 to $5.50. These prices are 50 cents to a dollar above the average."

There was a strong demand for choice baby beeves, and a number were disposed of at $11.50, with those of less finish selling downwards to $8.

Springers and milkers were in good demand for choice forward at $70 to $90.

Choice feeding steers of 800 to 900 lbs. were $5.50 to $6.

Sheep and lambs were draggy, choice lambs at 14 cents to 14½ cents.

The hog market was unsettled, with packers bidding a quarter lower; prices were $14 off cars; $13.60 fed and $13 f.o.b.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here this morning as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 3-8.
Sterling cables $4.85 7-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—Wheat soared today to an extreme of 17 3-8 cents a bushel above the closing figures of a week ago and 6 5-8 cents up from yesterday's finish. Big buying in which houses with eastern connections took the lead accelerated the rise, and so did indications that wheat is rapidly moving out of Chicago, with other cities competing for supplies in territory which usually sends its wheat here.

Closing prices for wheat today were buoyant, 3 1-2 to 6 1-4 cents net higher, September $1.65 7-8 to $1.66 1-8, and December $1.64 1-4 to $1.66 1-8. Corn finished unchanged to 3-8c up; oats at 1-8c decline to an equal gain, and provision unchanged to an advance of 15 cents.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of a little business done with English importers, the butter market was quiet and firm. Receipts today were 10,016 packages as compared with 7,726 packages on the previous day and 4,317 packages on the same day a year ago.

An easier feeling developed in the cheese market and prices were reduced 1-2 cent per pound. The trade in this direction was inactive. The receipts were 10,990 as compared with 11,983 on Thursday and 8,013 on the corresponding day last year.

The egg trade continued very quiet on account of the hot weather prevailing, but prices remained firm. Receipts were 1,218 cases as compared with 1,029 on Thursday and 2,061 on the same day a year ago.

MONTREAL CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—The United Dairymen Cooperative auction sale of cheese at the Board of Trade today, 3,172 boxes were offered. All were sold, 1,634 of No. 1 white selling at 21 13-16 cents per lb., and 1,538 No. 1 colored at the same price.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

CHAPTER 13.
Smoke and Flames.

"The trail to Treasure Trove," said Mary, smiling, as they walked arm in arm along the trail.

"But I've already found my best treasure," answered Terence looking at her lovingly. "It's you, dear."

"Now, Terence, no time for that today," said Mary. "We have business to attend to."

"Yes, you're right, Mary," he replied "We must locate this gold. Once we do, the rest will be smooth sailing Your father's ranch will be saved, and you and I—you and I—"

She squeezed his arm tenderly, and they pressed forward into the forest

* * *

Taggart and a few of his henchmen waited on horseback on the Sierra Diablo Trail. At last Buck McLeod, battered and dusty, rode up.

"What makes you so late?" asked Taggart, glaring.

Buck told what had happened. Taggart looked disgusted.

"Then I may as well go back," he said angrily. "You fellows stick around, and if they come here see what you can do. Report back to me tonight." He rode off.

Buck McLeod and his gang started travelling through the forest. There was a strong smell of smoke, apparently from some distance, in the air. They stopped at the sound of voices, and peering through the shrubbery saw Mary and Terence.

"It's them," said McLeod. "Now we'll fix 'em."

They dismounted, and broke through the brush. One of the men seized Mary, and Buck and two others went directly for Terence. He met their attack bravely, knocking two of them to the ground at the first onslaught, and sloughing Buck, the remaining one, mightily. But the other two men rose and came to their leader's aid. He was attacked from behind and in front. Arms went to his neck, and grappled his waist. He could not keep up the unequal struggle against such odds much longer.

All the time the smell of smoke was getting stronger. It made them cough, and brought tears to their eyes. Then there was a crackling sound behind them, and clouds of heavy smoke broke forth.

"The forest's on fire," someone yelled.

The attackers, dropped their battle, stricken with fear, and fled for their horses. As they broke their way ahead of the oncoming flames through the forest, Terence darted to Mary's side

The choking smoke was becoming thicker and unbearable. Exhausted, the suffocating fumes overcame her after all the excitements of the day, Mary had succumbed, and lay on the ground in a dead swoon.

"Mary, Mary."

Terence picked the girl up in his arms. Behind him the flames were beginning to break through, and the smoke became thicker and thicker. Blinded by the smoke, staggering and choking, Terence pushed his way forward with his dear burden in his arms.

When Taggart returned to the ranch house he found the plane landed, and Bud and Miquel waiting for him. While he was in the midst of giving them details of the stealing of the cattle and payroll money by rustlers, Buck McLeod and his men rode into the ranch. Buck, seeing the plane, and recognizing Bud as the man who had dropped on him to recover Terence's map, hung back out of sight, and another of the men reported to Taggart.

"O'Rourke and the girl have been caught in a forest fire."

Bud jumped to his feet, alert.

"Perhaps I can do something," he cried. "Least I'll do my damnedest."

He rushed toward the plane and swung the propellor preparatory to flight.

Miquel followed.

"Wait a minute," Taggart cried. "One of you ought to notify Marshall. Tell him about this, and about the rustlers, and that he'd better come up here at once. He's needed. Take one of these horses."

"Yes, you run back to the boss, Miquel," shouted Bud. "I'll go after Mary and O'Rourke."

He climbed to the seat, the plane taxied off, and a moment later ascended. A horse was brought to Miquel and he sped off for Marshall.

Buck came up to Taggart grinning.

"They won't get out of that fire alive," he said. "They had no horses."

"Send Willets to me," said Taggart, and entered the house.

Willets came in.

"Doc," said Taggart, "we're going to settle this thing once and for all now. The girl and O'Rourke are probably dead. At least they're not around, and now is the time to put the thing over. Marshall, the fool, will be riding up here in about an hour. Now, that would be very interesting news to the sheriff." Taggart winked, "He's been waiting fifteen years for just such an opportunity, and you can bet he would have a posse out on the road as a reception committee to Marshall. Now, it wouldn't do for it to appear that I framed him. But—there's no reason why you should not tip off the forces of law and order." Taggart winked again, and Willets leered comprehendingly.

"I get you, Topaz," he replied.

"With Marshall out of the way for keeps I can buy in the ranch at the sheriff's sale for taxes, and we'll be sittin' pretty, Doc," Taggart went on. "Well, then, get on the phone, Doc,—at your own ranch; I don't want the tip to come from here—and tell the sheriff he'd better watch the road."

Grinning, Willets went off on his errand.

CHAPTER 14.
The Capture.

It was a broken man, this John Marshall, who rode alongside Miquel on the way to the Bar M. Ranch. It was not the real, strong, fighting John Marshall. The news that Mary—his little Mary—was probably dead had completely unstrung him, and taken all the fight and hope and heart out of him.

Vainly Miquel tried to console him.

"There is still a chance that he lives. Senor Marshall," he kept saying. "Bud he look for them, he find them, he bring them back safe."

But Marshall was inconsolable and hopeless.

They had almost completed the said journey to the Bar M, when coming around a bend in the road, they were confronted by the waiting sheriff and posse of men, all pointing guns.

"Halt," commanded the sheriff.

"Senor, the sheriff," cried Miquel, in terror.

Marshall made no move. He replied simply:

"Miquel, it doesn't matter now. Nothing matters any more. Let them put me in jail. My Mary's gone."

"In the name of the State of Arizona, I arrest you, John Marshall, for the murder of 'Black' Benway," said the sheriff.

"I surrender, sir," Marshall replied.

Miquel was sobbing. They placed a guard at each side of Marshall, and behind, and the procession started on its way.

* * *

After what seemed like an eternity of struggle through the forest and smoke, Terence at last came to the rim of the woodland, on a steep bluff overhanging a creek. Mary was still unconscious in his arms. The flames were creeping up to this last line of trees. Descent down the bluff was the only hope of escape.

But the face of the bluff was almost vertical. Clinging to shrubs, roots, and breaking footholds into the dirt, he might have scrambled down it somehow alone. But that was impossible with Mary. Then a plan flashed into his mind.

He laid the girl on the ground, and unfastened his lariat. Making a loop around her body and another around his own, and passing the rope around a tree trunk to use it as a pulley, he again lifted her into his arms. Then clinging low to the rope, he cautiously swung over the side of the cliff. Getting footholds where he could, and gradually playing out the rope between his hands, he lowered their two bodies slowly toward the bank of the creek. As he let the loose end of the rope go up, the one tied to their bodies let them down.

They at last reached the bank of the creek. He carried Mary to the water, and bathed her face, watching anxiously. The sight he waited for finally appeared—she opened her eyes, and smiled.

* * *

Meanwhile Bud in the plane circled as low as possible above the smoking forest, looking down intently through field glasses for any sign of the lost ones. It seemed a hopeless and futile task. He could see nothing, and if he had seen them he could figure no way in which he could rescue them.

Good golf balls cost 75 cents to $1.00 or more. WRIGLEY'S

BERNIER TAKEN FOR AN INDIAN

Teignmouth Man Was Surprised to See Him Commanding a Ship.

A CURIOSITY.

Captain J. E. Bernier, the veteran Arctic explorer, tells with great glee of the time when fifty-six years ago he commanded his first ship. He was then seventeen and a half years of age, and his open air life had tanned his skin to a healthy brown. A lithe young man, with dark hair, Captain Bernier took over the Brigantine "St. Joseph" from Quebec to Tiegnmouth, a little seaport in South Devon, which is the transhipping point for the china clay industry of Kingsteignton, the clay being brought down the River Teign in barges with the outgoing tide, and loaded into the ocean-going craft.

When he anchored alongside the quay at Teignmouth, a ship's chandler named Jarvis came aboard, and tried to find out where the boat came from. Capt. Bernier, being French, could not, at that time, speak English—now he is a fluent speaker in both languages as well as Eskimo—and his effort to make Jarvis understand he came from Canada was thrown away—the ship's chandler of 1869 did not know about Canada. Finally Capt. Bernier made him understand that he came from North America, and Jarvis, seeing his swarthy complexion, immediately came to the conclusion and declared that Bernier was a "North American Indian."

It struck him as extraordinary that a North American Indian should be in command of a British ship, and when he went home he told his wife of it and they decided to invite the "Indian" up to dinner. Capt. Bernier, without knowing the misapprehension under which his host was laboring, accepted the invitation, and met a dozen people there who looked at his well-set figure and talked away in their own language. "I didn't know what they were saying, but we had a good meal and I went back to the ship. The next day," continued the captain, "practically the whole population of Teignmouth came down to the quay to see the 'North American Indian' who was its captain, and when I left with my cargo of china clay they were still under that impression."

BAIL JUMPER IS TAKEN BACK TO UNITED STATES

Arrested in Hamilton Where He Offered Liberty Bonds at Sacrifice.

HUNTED BY POLICE.

Romeo Forlini, Wanted in New York For Theft of Securities.

HAMILTON, Aug. 8 (Canadian Press).—Wanted in connection with a gigantic theft of United States Liberty bonds, involving millions of dollars, an Italian known as Romeo Forlini, of New York City, was arrested here a week ago Friday by Detective Digby Sharp and held until yesterday morning, when he was taken back to New York by James B. Shelhorse, of the United States secret service, to stand trial.

Forlini was a fugitive from justice from the southern judicial district of New York, having jumped his bail there just before he came to Hamilton last Friday. Forlini was arrested by operators from the office of Joseph A. Palmer, of the United States secret service, as the head of a gang dealing in altered Liberty bonds, and he was liberated on a $15,000 bond. Immediately upon regaining his freedom Forlinin fled from the United States to Canada.

"This is an exceptionally good catch," declared Inspector Shelhorse, "and it reflects great credit upon Inspector Goodman, Detective Sharp and several Hamilton citizens."

How He Was Caught.

Forlini apparently arrived in this city either late Thursday night or Friday morning, for in his possession were the afternoon editions of the New York papers.

Through a third party he entered negotiations with a local firm of brokers for the sale of $125,000 worth of Liberty bonds. His story was that the bonds belonged to an estate across the border and that he wished immediately to raise $50,000 cash on them. His reason for allowing them to go so cheaply was that he needed the cash at once and that he could evade paying a tax on them in the United States.

The parties he was negotiating with became suspicious and notified Detective Sharp, who trailed Forlini for several hours, finally placing him under arrest on a nominal charge of vagrancy.

The United States federal authorities were acquainted with the facts of the capture and wired instructions to hold the man on a charge of being a fugitive from justice.

Forlini, who is a well educated and expensively dressed Italian of a better class, kept a close guard on his tongue, and refused to give any satisfactory answers to the questions put to him by Inspector Goodman.

How Bonds Were Stolen.

In his possession, however, were found two checks for baggage, and Detective Sharp claimed the luggage, which was brought to the detective office and thoroughly searched. In a secret pocket was found a large envelope containing three United States Liberty bonds of $1,000 denomination. The numbers on them corresponded with the numbers on some of the stolen bonds.

At the time of his arrest in New York, Forlini was found with several keys to safety deposit boxes in his possession. After a search the secret service operatives located Liberty bonds valued at over $100,000 in various deposit boxes.

Showed No Concern.

For a man who was being sent back to face so serious a charge, Forlini was very unconcerned. At the T., H. & B. station yesterday, where he and the officers in charge entrained for Buffalo, the prisoner demanded something to eat. "Go ahead," he was told. He proceeded to the lunch counter by himself, while Shelhorse, the secret service man, arranged for the tickets. Forlini was not handcuffed, and carried a club bag. No one in the station suspected that he was a prisoner, in charge of an officer of the law.

He apparently had a good chance of making a break for liberty, but he didn't even glance at the open, and unguarded door. Had he escaped it would not have been for long, according to Detective Sharp. He could not hope to evade the pursuit for longer than an hour or two, unless he had confederates here, which was doubted by the officer.

Shelhorse and Forlini were carrying on a conversation when they boarded the train.

Arrested Feb. 10, 1924.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (Canadian Press).—Romeo Forlini and three alleged confederates were arrested here February 10, 1924, charged with the theft of $106,000 worth of negotible bonds from the brokerage firm of Herzfeld and Stern.

The securities were obtained when one of the members of the gang, obtaining a position with the brokerage house as a messenger, absconded with the bonds. Rounded up by the police, the men were all indicted for grand larceny, one pleading guilty. Forlini was released on bail and disappeared, forfeiting his bond.

STOP FUR TRAPPING IN FALL AND WINTER

Recommendation Made to Game Guardian—Pelts Better in Spring.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Discontinuance of the fall and winter trapping of muskrat in Saskatchewan is urged by eighty per cent. of the correspondents of the Provincial Game Guardian. Recommendations have also been made to stop trapping of beaver south of the Churchill River.

Muskrat pelts are more valuable in the spring when the quality of the fur is better, than in the fall or early winter, with a result that prices are almost doubled for the spring catches. The standard of the furs shipped from Saskatchewan, it is held, will be considerably enhanced by the enforcement of such a law.

Saskatchewan trappers realized approximately $1,927,912 during the last season. Muskrats were far in the lead with $1,006(863, on a purchase price of one dollar a pelt. Total royalties collected by the Province amounted to $84,118, of which $50,343 was collected on muskrat pelts, $6,083 on beaver skins, $5,384 for coyote skins and $5,190 on red fox pelts.

The coffin was made by a local carpenter from oak on his estate near Farnborough and many years ago was on view at the local inn. Darwin's body is said to have lain in the coffin for some hours after his death, but when it was decided that he should be buried in Westminster Abbey a more elaborate casket was made.

HOAXED OFFICERS ON BID TO DINNER

One of Stunts of Canadian Sentenced in Bristol.

LONDON, August 8. — Canadian Press Cable. — A remarkable story was related in the Bristol police court yesterday when Harold Robert Manson, aged 37, who gave his address as Saint John, New Brunswick, was sent to prison for 21 days on a charge of false pretences. He stated that he was a former soldier, born in Denmark, but that he had lived the greater part of his life in Canada. He claimed to be a naturalized Britisher. He was also charged under the aliens act. Hanson protested against his arrest saying that he had been twice wounded in the war and that it was an injustice that he should be now charged as an alien.

The police stated that Hanson since the war had served as a coast guard in America but that he was discharged for wearing medals to which he had no right. They also claimed that while at Cardiff, Wales, recently, he had hoaxed officers of an American ship by inviting them to dine at a hotel where they found on their arrival that no dinner had been ordered.

WANT OWN CURRENCY

French Colony Tired of Fluctuations in Value of the Franc.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Aug. 8. — (Associated Press).—The instability of the French franc has revived talk in Tahiti of establishing a local unit of value independent of the fluctuations of the franc. Opinion is expressed that as Tahiti is so remote from France, and is in the position of having a constant credit trade balance, the financial difficulties of the home country should not be allowed to unsettle values and disturb business in this colony.

As a matter of fact, the money used in the colony is a local paper currency issued by the Tahiti branch of the Banque d'Indo-Chine, but it fluctuates in sympathy with the franc.

A settled form of money is the only thing necessary to usher in a period of great prosperity to the island. Both the vanilla and copra yields are increasing and are commanding good prices.

Rowdy Sparrows Drive Out Robins And Take The Nest

Some robins came and built their nest in the bend of a drain pipe at the home of R. T. Hounsell, 232 Edinburgh Street, the other day.

Just after they had got nicely settled, and Mrs. Robin was ready for a house-warming, along came a tribe of ignorant sparrows and camped on the front step. They didn't fight, or become rowdy, but just hung around, giving the place a bad reputation that no respectable householder would bear. Sometimes, in a mischievous streak, the sparrows would pull a straw or a string out of the walls of the nest. Always they were there, invading the privacy that robins so much desire.

Well, what would you do if a bunch of rowdies came around your verandah pulling bricks out of your wall and shingles off your roof?

Sure! Mr. and Mrs. Robin moved out of the neighborhood. That was just what the lazy, "ignorant" sparrows desired, for they immediately took possession of the comfortable nest and made themselves at home.

Then providence (to the birds) took a hand. The robins were cheerful companions around the house, but the sparrows fought and squabbled all day, so Mr. Hounsell was compelled to evict them and destroy the nest.

And somewhere, safely ensconced in a new nest, Mr. and Mrs. Robin chirped "It serves you right."

Ideal Weather For Holiday at Green Landing.

OMEMEE Aug. 7—The weather man was very considerate when he sent ideal weather for the two picnics planned for Wednesday afternoon. The members of the Presbyterian Sunday School and congregation enjoyed a pleasant afternoon at Green Landing, which is a pretty little spot on the Pigeon River a short distance from Omemee. Messrs. S. J. Mackey and O. G. Williamson were on hand with their motor boats and very generously conveyed many of the party for a sail on the river.

Games of softball were heartily entered into by the junior members of the Sunday school and a large container of ice cream soon made a fast disappearance.

Supper was served and the happy gathering broke up about sundown.

The Omemee tennis club with their families motored to Thurstonia and although unfortunately many were unable to be present yet an ideal evening was enjoyed by a gathering of over thirty.

PROCEEDS $230 AT BURNBRAE SOCIAL

Campbellford Band Entertained Crowd at Lawn Party.

BURNBRAE, Aug. 7 — Ideal weather prevailed for the Burnbrae lawn social held on the school grounds Thursday evening, resulting in the usual successful event. The proceeds at the gate were $230 while all the booths did a rushing business.

Splendid music for the evening was provided by the Campbellford Band under the leadership of Mr. Pearson.

An exhibition game of baseball played early in the evening between Burnbrae and English Line resulted in a 4-4 tie. Several new pitchers worked out, Ibey, K. Godden and A. Little performing for the Line while Rannie and Johnson were on the mound for the homesters.

One item of entertainment not announced on the bills was the presence of hordes of small flies. These little pests have been making life unpleasant for the community for some days past and even the lawn social did not escape their ravages Visitors were present from all the neighboring communities as well as Campbellford, Stirling, Springbrook and Belleville.

Mrs. Mose Smith, 90 years old, has received the honorary degree of master of arts from Mount Holyoke College in recognition of her church and missionary work.

About the most hated thing on earth, is a thief in the camp. A thief is bad at any time, but in a camp in the woods, a thief is most despised, and yet, one awful thief is excepted, and he or she is the Canada Jay.

Whiskey is no fit companion for a Y. W. C. A. camp and yet, Whiskey Jack is a great favorite in the woods right now.

If you are sitting in the deep woods, where every bird note, every cracking twig attracts your notice, and you hear a strange garbled version of some sweet bird song you thought you knew well until you heard this latest singer half off the key at times, or if you hear a bird voice making sounds like some woodland spirit filing a saw with a slippery file, you may make up your mind that there is a thief in the camp, and his or her name may be whatever you happen to think fit, for the Canada Jay has as many names as he makes sounds or troubles.

Some girls were very much insulted when I informed them that their lovely Prince-in-Grey, who came on to their camp table and stole the beef fat, right under their noses, was none other than "Whiskey Jack" the "Camp Robber." They wanted to run me out of camp, until I exhibited more discretion and referred to him as "Moose-meat-bird."

This particular Canada Jay would almost eat out of their hands. This gave me an idea, which I suggested. It was to tie a string to some suet and hang on when the bird tried to take it away. The bird tugged at the string held suet and finally got it off the line. A daily shortening of the string finally made no string at all, and his Highness descended to tugging at meat held in the hand of one of the girls. Such is the "Jibber-Jabber" Canada Jay, at almost any camp in the woods in Canada. He is a big bird, with a soft grey colour and white face and dark cap.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THE CAUSE BEHIND ALL STOMACH TROUBLE

Of late I have told you a good deal about the stomach and the relationship between digestion and the mental state. It is a remarkable fact that the mind has a powerful effect upon the stomach, and, in its turn, a disturbed digestive system upsets the mental composure in an amazing way. An important feature in the digestion of food is purely a matter of chemistry. There can be no proper disposal of the things we take into the stomach unless the gastric juices produce just enough acid. There must be a nicely adjusted mixture or everything is wrong.

Perfect digestion, chemically considered, then, is based on a supply of exactly the proper quantity of properly flavored digestive fluids. Too much fluid with too little acid or too little fluid with too much acid will cause trouble. The flow must be uniform and unfailing.

Now we come to the part the nervous system plays. The glands and processes necessary to the production of the fluids and the acids are all under control of the delicate nerves. If they fail to operate normally, then the chemical laboratory of the digestive system breaks down in the quality and quantity of its production. Then what happens?

We may have an oversupply of acid. This is called hyperacidity. It is not an uncommon symptom in anemic girls. For that matter it is found in both sexes at all ages.

An hour or two or three after eating there is discomfort in the stomach and tenderness on pressure. There may be a feeling of weight or as if a great stone were lodged in the abdomen. Belching and eructations and even vomiting may occur and give relief.

Another symptom may be noted—gnawing pain in the stomach with headache. This may be due to a marked increase in the flow of the gastric juices.

When you have reason to surmise that the overwrought nervous system is responsible for the stomach disturbance, it is needless for me to tell you that more rest, change of scene and, perhaps, change of work will be helpful. You need a hygienic life more than you need medicine out of a bottle.

It is easy to preach the importance of early hours, fresh air, simple food, recreation, good music, agreeable companions. This is the kind of advice to give everybody, but the highly-strung neurotic individual must lead such a life or ta... consequences in continued bad health.

Try to find companionship and pleasure of the right sort. Don't sit around in the dumps. Make an effort to help yourself and the very making of the effort will help you.

Patience and perseverance will lead you to a program which will give you health and good digestion.

A simple and inexpensive shampoo, and one which leaves the hair soft, glossy and with a delicate aroma, is to take a basin of warm water and make a free lather using Baby's Own Soap. Rub well into the scalp, rinse with warm and then cool water. Dry in sun and wind if possible.

This simple shampoo is excellent for hair and scalp and costs very little as Baby's Own Soap is sold at 10c. a cake by most dealers.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID'S PEEK INTO GRASS CUTTING IN NORWAY.

When Gocomeback, the wee elfin, found David sitting on the back steps pouting, he had to laugh in spite of himself.

"You sure do look funny, David," cried the elfin, slapping David on the shoulder. "What's wrong with the world now?"

"Nothing's wrong with the world, Gocomeback," replied David, trying to smile. "It's just this old yard. The grass just won't stop growing and the leaves insist on falling from the trees and Mama says I have to cut the grass and rake up the leaves or I can't go and play ball with the fellows."

"Oh, is that all?" laughed Gocomeback. "You should like with a little friend of mine and see how he cuts grass and gathers leaves, then I'm sure you wouldn't sit frowning over so small a task," and before David could ask any questions, he found himself standing in front a little house built of leaves and moss, on the side of a steep mountain.

"Where in the world are we, anyway, Gocomeback?" David whispered. "It seems I should know this place."

"In Norway," replied the elfin, "and here is my little friend, Zon."

The little boy, seeing Gocomeback and David, came running out to meet them. His little short cloth coat looked very odd over his long pants that reached from his feet to his armpits.

"Hello there, Zon," cried Gocomeback. "This is David, our little American friend. We thought maybe we'd be in time to help you cut grass and gather leaves."

"Just what I was going to do," laughed Zon, winking at the elfin "The fellows are up on the hill-top now," and he ascended the hill, David and Gocomeback following him.

Several men and boys were on the hill-top, not only gathering the leaves from the ground, but cutting those left on the tree, and tying them into huge bundles. Then they fastened them to a wire than ran from the highest point the hill, down into the valley. The bundles would sail down where other members of the family would store them in a barn for cattle food.

David thought this performance very queer but when it came to cutting the grass and hay, Zon had to have a rope attached to his belt so there would be no danger of his tumbling from the steep hill. David tried to help, but the rope around his waist made him fidgety and when he sneezed, Norway, grass-cutters and all, vanished like magic, and David found himself on his own back porch.

"Shoot, I'm glad I don't live in such a hilly country," he mused, jumping up and getting the grass cutter. "I'd much rather gather leaves and cut grass right here in my nice back yard," and before he knew it, the grass was cut and the leaves gathered and burned. Then, kissing his Mama, David ran out to play ball with his friends.

HOW STIMULATING IS COFFEE

Coffee is more of a stimulant than alcohol. The latter makes a man stupid. It is depressing and paralyzes all proper fear and restraint. While those under its influence can do more work, they do not do it well. On the other hand, coffee is stimulating, enabling the used to work beyond normal strength although he must pay the penalty later in loss of sleep. These statements were made recently by Dean Henry H. Rushby, of the Columbia College of Pharmacy in New York City, says Popular Science Monthly for September.

YOUR GARDEN

GRADING OPERATIONS

Even where foundations are set high, a great deal of unnecessary grading is done, and very awkward terraces often result. A long, slightly concave curve for a short distance, of two or three feet drop, is best at a double convex and concave curve for a greater height. In greater distances this double curve can be lengthened out and finally made to merge with the level ground, also in an effort to bring everything to a dead level and smoothness a large amount of useless effort is expended. Except for the very small lawn or formal garden, the ground need only be reasonably level, and many of the lower natural contours may be left. On large areas it is only necessary to soften steep depressions or mounds by lengthening the slopes, making sure always that the surface water can be drained off. Large depressions, that would require extensive operations to remove the surface water, may be drained by a catch basin. This catch basin may then be drained into a well in preference to running it out on the surface. Such a well should be about 3 feet in diameter, and four feet deep, filled with stone to within a foot of the surface, and then covered with top soil.

Very often a few more inches of the foundation may be exposed to obtain the right level and a foundation planting put into hide it. Or, again, a narrow terrace, on which shrubs may be planted to more or less hide the change in level may be used.

If the house is located on ground ascending or descending from the highway, a broad plateau at the desired distance should be provided for the dwelling. In the former case a broad area must be cut away behind the building to prevent a shut-in appearance. In both instances the precautionary measure of waterproofing the house foundation should be taken.

The lower surface around the house, sloping away from it, should be graded to a minimum slope of one half inch to the foot and care should be taken to see that the subgrade inclines the same way. No matter how great the surface may be, if the old natural grade pitches toward the foundation walls, the water will percolate through the new fill and run down the foundation walls to the cellar. If stiff clay is available, such a condition may be overcome by tamping or puddling in a filling at a grade of two inches to the foot for a distance of at least four feet. If it is necessary to carry it still further, the grade may be reduced to one-half inch to the foot.

Where the point of grade at the house and at the pavement are on the same level, and the house is well back from the street property line, the appearance will be greatly improved by making a depression between the house and sidewalk, provided, of course, that the elevation of the ground on one side is below the lowestpoint of the depression. Such a grading will give a sense of greater extent and distance, while a convex line will tend to shorten the distance.

Just where to introduce terraces is a problem deserving of very careful consideration as they are usually difficult of upkeep and mar, rather than improve, except in very formal situations. Very often they are but a clumsy attempt to get rid of the subsoil from the cellar excavation, and have no definite reason for existing. A gentle roll of the lawn right up to the foundation would be much more pleasing and more easily kept up, especially when the surface slopes are rather gentle. In more rugged ground, however, where there is a great variation in levels between the various corners of the house, a level plateau surrounding the house is better. The width of the terrace will depend to a certain extent on the size of the building, and the lot, and ordinarily should not be less than about fourteen feet. The slope should always be uniform and the line next to the house should be parallel to the building, while the bottom line may vary according to the slope of the lawn with which it runs. When, however close to the house, when straight lines predominate, it is best to have two lines of the terrace well defined.

Monday's astrological forecast points to a certain degree of business activity, but warns against new ventures and betrayal through false friends. The health should be given proper attention lest it be disturbing.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly active year in business, but should be on guard against deception and fraud. New undertakings had best be deferred and the health should be given sufficient attention. A child born on this day may be talented and versatile, but, nevertheless, should be fitted to surmount many difficulties in life. It should be taught wise selection of friends and to give proper attention to it's physical condition.

BEST MEDICINE SHE EVER USED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Highly Praised by a Nova Scotia Lady.

Among the well known and esteemed residents of Hemford, N. S., is Mrs. Amanda Woodworth. Some four years ago Mrs. Woodworth had the misfortune to lose her husband, and as a result of caring for him during his illness, and attending to farm duties she became terribly run-down. Mrs. Woodworth says she felt as though her blood had turned to water. The least exertion would leave her tired and breathless. She was often attacked by spells of weakness that left her almost speechless and frequently suffered from severe headaches. The medicines she took did not help her, and she almost despaired of gaining her health. In this condition she one day read in a newspaper of a case very similar to her own, in which health was restored through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This made her decide to give these pills a trial. After using a few boxes she found the pills were helping her, and she continued their use until her oldtime health and vitality were restored. Now Mrs. Woodworth looks after a small farm of fifteen acres, besides doing all her housework, and says she never felt better or more energetic in her life. She gives credit for her present splendid health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which she says are the best medicine she ever used, and strongly recommends the pills to all run-down people.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHEW THEMSELVES TO DEATH.

Loud chewing is the undoing of certain insects and grubs travelling from the Orient to the United States in sacks of peanuts. A newly invented microphone intensifies the sound of their champing and enables customs officials to detect their presence. The apparatus, says Popular Science Monthly for September, is used also in finding insect pests in stored grain and fruits.

STREET NAMES

BROCK STREET.

The "Hero of Upper Canada" was born at Guernsey, one of the Channel Islands, on October 6, where brought up in an almost perfect environment he developed into a youth who united a muscular physique with an equable disposition and fine mental endowments.

When 15 years old he entered the army as an ensign in the 8th King's Regiment. By purchase and regular promotion he climbed up the army ladder leading to a Lieutenant Colonelcy in the 49th Regiment of Foot. In command of this regiment, he saw active service in Holland at Egmont op Zoon in 1799 and his regiment accompanied the fleet under Nelson at Copenhagen as an auxiliary to the naval forces.

The prospect of trouble with the United States, then a lusty infant nation, exulting in new found independence, caused the diversion of British troops across the Atlantic for the defence of the Canadian frontier and Brock was given his first opportunity of exercising independent command. He soon showed himself possessed of the true qualities of leadership when he was called upon to meet a difficult and dangerous situation—a conspiracy hatched by some deserters which threatened the safety of the army in Canada. Brock's vigilance and resolution in quelling the disorder opened the eyes of the authorities at home to the fact that in him they had a leader in Canada more than equal to the emergencies that were likely to arise. With an improvement in the relationships between the English speaking countries, Brock returned to Great Britain but on the renewal of the quarrel he was sent back to Canada and was appointed to a dual office joining the military duties of commander of the army to those of a civil administrater as Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada. In this position his energy and courage his genius for conciliation, and his transparent sincerity of purpose inspired the morals of the army endeared him to the settlers, and paved the way for amicable relationships with the Indians under the renowned Shawnee chief Tecumseh who entered into an alliance with the British and rendered yeoman service in the American War that soon followed. Before war was actually declared, a force of 2000 U. S. militia under General Hull, invaded Canada but withdrew on Brock's approach at the head of his little army of 1450 men which had to defend a frontier of 1000 miles.

Brock followed the Americans to Detroit where Hull finding himself outmanoeuvred, surrendered with all his force. Brock's exploit was rewarded by a knighthood and his promotion to the position of Major-General. Later in the same year he was killed in a battle for the possession of Queenstown Heights and was buried at Fort George along with Col. McDonnel who also fell in the action. Twelve years afterwards the bodies of Brock and McDonnel were removed to Queenstown and placed in a vault under the monument that was erected on the Heights. This monument was blown up on Good Friday, 1840, by a fanatical Irish American. At a mass meeting attended by over 8000 people including representatives of the Indian Six Nations it was resolved to build anew the monument that had been destroyed and the present memorial was erected at the public cost. The memorial is surmounted by a statue of the general who is further commemorated by a monument in St. Paul's Cathedral, by the name Brockville and numerous other place names in the province.

Sits On a City Roof Watching the Smoke

Sitting on a city roof all day watching the smoke from nearby chimneys sounds like a definition of nothing to do.

But there is a man who makes that his sole business in life. And he gets well paid for it. He is employed by the Edison Company in New York for the purpose of aiding efficiency in coal combustion.

From morning to night he studies the color and volume of smoke and gases from the company's chimneys. He sits at a desk in an observation tower with eight small electric switches in front of him—one for each stack.

When the color or volume of smoke coming from any chimney shifts from the ideal he clicks the correct switch, a red signal flashes in the boiler room and the firemen restore the smoke-oil mixture to its proper proportions.

NATIONS' LEAGUE IS IN DIFFICULTY

Mosul Commission's Didatic Report Satisfied None of Disputants.

GENEVA, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press).—Figuratively caught between the devil and the deep sea, the League of Nations, as a result of the Mosul Commission's didaotic report, is faced with the most difficult problem it has taken up since its birth.

With the consent of Britain and Turkey, findings are disclosed in length in a 200-page report, which gives an exose of all relevant facts of the situation, leaving it to the Council to make a decision after discussing the issue with the British and Turkish representatives on September 2. As predicted by a correspondent recently, the Commission's report is acceptable to neither disputant.

It affords three alternatives, one favorable to the Turks, one favorable to the British and a third unacceptable to either.

QUICK RELIEF FOR RHEUMATICS

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma on Money-Back Plan.

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intnesely because your system is full of uric acid, that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it to-day. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when McDermid & Jury and other good druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle of Rheuma to-day.

OUTSIDERS OUT.

Miners Will Not Permit Interferensce in Their Business, Says Lewis.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Outsiders will never be permitted by the miners to serve as arbitrators in the hard coal fields, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, said in a radio address broadcast last night.

Are we to arbitrate the earning capacity of the miner? he asked. Are we to arbitrate the amount he may spend for food, for clothing, for shelter, for educating his children, and his status as a citizen?

LOVE OF THE WOODS BRINGS THE M TOGETHER.

Ty Cobb and Jack Miner, in the north woods, making a scientific study of the subject of breakfast.

It is doubtful if in Canada there is a more widely known man than Jack Miner, the naturalist. In the United States the same is true of Ty Cobb, the baseball player. Jack Miner is in his sixtieth year, while Ty Cobb is in his fortieth.

For thirty nine consecutive years Jack Miner has taken a month's holidays each fall. As one writer said: "When he is home around his sanctuary at Kingsville, visitors hunt him like people hunt lice with a finetooth comb."

Jack Miner has never seen the first of November at home in the last 39 years. Always during that month he has gone to northern Ontario on a camping trip. During these 30 trips he has found 13 lost men, all of whom had been over a day and a night in the bush.

Ty Cobb, like Jack Miner, has to have a rest each year. He too strikes for the woods, and during the last five falls he has been camped with Jack Miner. Their tent is always pitched between two railway stations to ensure strict privacy. Then the Union Jack is hoisted close to the track so that trainmen can tell where to throw off mail and telegrams.

STUDENTS REPORT ON SUMMER SCHOOL

Interesting Description Given By Young Ladies Who Attended.

WELCOME, Aug. 8.—A very bright meeting of the Young People's League was held on Thursday evening.

Rev. D. R. Clare gave a devotional talk. The President, Mr. Ed. Martin, took the chair and conducted the business meeting afterward. The reports of the summer school at Bobcaygeon were given by the delegates.

Miss Elva Pearce first gave an account of the arrival, organization into groups, and first meetings. She also gave an account of the Mission Study classes on India by Rev. Anderson of Port Hope, and Mrs. Smith, a returned missionary from India.

She described the recreation periods in the afternoon, and the baseball games.

Next Miss Elsie Symons took as her share, the report of the early worship hour, led each morning by Rev. W. Woodgear, the course of Bible Study, and the Mission Study classes on "The Foreigner in Canada."

A bright description of the excursion to Buckhorn on Wednesday afternoon was given. On Sunday morning the school attended service as a body at the United Church, Bobcaygeon, and in the evening a camp fire farewell service was held.

The reports were given in such an interesting way that the large number present felt that they also had a vision of what the school meant to the young people and that they had caught a little, at least, of the spirit of the week.

Damage Suit Follows 'Deliberate Home Run'

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8. — First Baseman Jim Bottomley in a game June 2 between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds, "deliberately and with the intention to create a situation commonly known as a home run," batted a baseball into the bleachers at Sportsmen's Park, complains Irwin Hayes in a suit for $7,500 damages against the owners of the St. Louis Nationals. Hayes was in the bleachers and the ball hit him in the face, causing nervous shock and disfigurement, he asserts.

WHO IS YOUR SKINNY FRIEND, ETHEL?

Tell him to take McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets for a couple of months and get enough good healthy flesh on his bones to look like a real man.

HOLDS THE HAT ON

A clever manufacturer has devised a means whereby he claims a straw or felt hat sticks to the head, tight as mustard plaster, in a stiff gale. The device consists of a small molded button fastened to the hat through a buttonhole in the front of the sweatband. When the hat is placed on the head, the button sticks to the forehead on the cacuum principle.—September Popular Science Monthly.

BUYING LISTLESS ON LOCAL MARKET

Plenty of Produce—Potatoes Down to 25 Cents a Peck.

Buying was rather listless on the farmers' market this morning, although there was plenty of produce in both sections. The open market was gay with the flowers that added a bright note to nearly every cart. There were asters, ten to a bunch, for 30 cents, gladioli from European bulbs at a dime apiece, and sweet peas at ten cents a bunch, with large bouquets at a quarter, containing zinnias and gaillardia and phlox, interspersed with babies' breath.

New potatoes were down to a price of 25 cents a peck on most of the vehicles, with one man asking 30 cents for his supply. Huge cabbages were 15 cents a head, and large, good-looking cauliflowers 15 and 20 cents. Cucumbers were 50 cents for an eleven quart basket, and gherkins were 35 cents for 2 quarts. Vegetable marrows were 15 cents apiece and telegraph cucumbers 25 and 30 cents. Flat squash were ten cents each. Tomatoes in boxes holding about two pounds were 25 cents.

One man had a number of crated Barred Rocks and Black Minorcas at 75 and 80 cents apiece.

Apples were fairly plentiful, in small sizes as yet. Duchess apples were 25 cents a peck, Red Astrachans 30 cents for a small basket at one stall, and 75 cents for a large one, at another, and yellow Petoskeys were 60 cents a basket.

Green Gages were 15 cents a quart and small red plums were 10 cents.

Raspberries were selling generally at 15 cents a quart box, in the red and Columbian varieties, and huckleberries were in eight-quart pails at $1.25.

There was a good deal of honey on the market this morning. This is only an "average" year in the opinion of honey men. Last year was a "poor" one. Basswood honey will be a negligible quantity this season, as the late cold spell killed off the crop, which needs hot, dry, sultry weather to bring it to perfection.

Pure clover honey was 75 and 80 cents in five pound pails, and the darker variety was 75 cents. Combs were 30 cents apiece.

Selling from one of the carts is a bright-faced young Dane, new to this country only a year and a half back, but already quite familiar with the language, and bright as a dollar in trading transactions.

Upstairs, in the basket section, eggs were plentiful with butter rather scarce. The latter sold for 38 and 40 cents a pound, and eggs ranged in price from an opening quotation of 37 cents, down to 33 cents a dozen. In the open section, one dealer had eggs at 30 cents a dozen.

Chickens were 35 cents a pound, and older birds 25 cents. Ducks were 35 cents a pound.

One woman had woven wool rugs at $2 apiece, and woven mats at 98 cents.

PERSONAL INTEREST.

Reasons For Board of Trade President's Reticence Is Given.

LONDON, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press).—The reason why W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, figured as mediator on behalf of the Government in the recent dispute between coal mine owners and miners instead of Sir Philip Qualiffe-Lister, President of the Board of Trade, who might have been expected to be the Government mediator in such a matter, is now stated to have been due to the latter's reluctance to act as mediator because he had private interests in the coal industry.

Sir Philip suggested to Premier Baldwin at the time of the threatened big strike of miners, it is stated, that it might be better if he, Sir Philip resigned from the Cabinet, but he was persuaded by the Premier not to persist in this proposal.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Colored Table Linen

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (United Press). Not all women are adept in the art of sewing. Most of us, however, like to have a little needlework on hand for the idle hours of vacation days.

Nothing is simpler to make than colored table linen with fringed borders. And nothing looks more attractive on the Summer table. Fringed oblongs or squares with napkins to match are lovely in shades of green, orange lemon or blue. One simply cuts the material into oblongs 12 inches by 18 inches and fringes the edges to form a half-inch fringe. The napkins are 12 inches square and likewise fringed. If a center piece is added to the set it conforms with the size of one's table.

Nowadays many homes use the long narrow dining table. In this case the centerpiece is often omitted. A round table requires a centerpiece.

No sewing whatever is required on fringed linen but if one wishes to add a little needlework one can pull out a thread about one-half inch from the edge of the material and use a loose overcast stitch in contrasting colored embroidery thread which will make a firmer foundation for ... One should ... before attempting to pull out the material. Also ... pull out threads to ... squares or oblongs before ... into the material. Two yards ... a half of yard width material will make six oblong doilies and six 12-inch napkins.

There is a colored crepe which is cheaper than linen which is sold at art embroider counters. This is quite as attractive as linen for table use. This material launders well, holds its color and is especially attractive for the breakfast table.

Colored linen sets with appliques of cretonne flowers placed in one corner of each doily are very attractive. One selects a cretonne with vivid small flowers and appliques the flower with buttonhole ...

SITTING PRETTY — By Eleanor Hope

WHEN you're young and looking at the world through rose-colored spectacles, you're sitting pretty, for youth and beauty always command admiration. But never lose sight of the fact that youth doesn't last forever, and that if you want to have and hold the admiration which now seems so wonderful, you must cultivate poise and charm. Add these to your youth and your world will literally be at your dainty little feet. Then when Love comes to claim you you'll possess everything that will hold him to you—beauty and grace and charm and a touch of mystery, and you'll be sitting pretty ever after with the One whom Love will guide to you.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE CHATS ABOUT A SMART SERGE FROCK.

Madame has had a busier theatrical season this Summer than ever before for this time of year.

To-day she remarked:

"I'm delighted there have bee so many new musical shows opening in town (New York) for the warm-weather season. It does help my Summer business along."

"And it does furnish gaiety for hot Summer evenings," I remarked. I had spent the night before at a good musical show and had enjoyed it hugely.

"I'm doing a white serge for one of my young actress clients and I'd like to have you come in for a fitting on it." Madame informed me.

I entered the little fitting room, where one of the seamstresses had disappeared with something white and interesting looking over her arm.

"Oh, I'm glad you're so prompt," she greeted me as I entered. "I have much more to do to-day and we must finish this in a hurry."

"Do put it on me. I'm dying to see what it's like," I urged her.

The seamstress held the frock and I slipped into it, head first, for, like most of the season's dresses, there were no fastenings.

She pulled it down into place and I saw that the dress was straight, with a narrow flare made full by deep box ple... what I call an extremely ... ing dress," I informed her.

"... never seen prettier embroidery ...yself," the seamstress replied.

The embroidery she referred to was in three wide bands, placed horizontally through the dress at regular intervals. There were yellow and blue and soft red colors on a cream background, and the contrast with the white serge, which showed a very delicate cream cast, was quite stunning.

"I think she'll love it," I informed the seamstress.

"I wanted particularly to see that the shoulder seams sloped just right to make tiny abbreviated sleeves," the seamstress informed me as she patted the seams in place with an approving nod.

Just then Madame entered to have a look, and she brought along a cream felt hat, trimmed with cream grosgrain ribbon and a double-headed pearl pin. She put it on my head and pronounced the costume perfect.

Home-Making Helps

SELF-MADE CONVENIENCES.

Those who summer at the beach are quite likely to need many oil-cloth bags in which bathing suits are carried. The bags are in dark colors, usually ornamented with appliques of felt fruit, or flowers, in bold coloring. The bags are in many cases silk-lined which makes them practical for the purpose for which they are used.

The oil-cloth bags are also good for picnic supplies. For this purpose they are made like a boxed cushion so that a lot of room is created inside. Oil-cloth covered cushions are also among picnic conveniences. In looking about among the picnic paper supplies we find that paper napkins have not only developed hemstitched edges but also have monograms stamped on them.

Women are making fern pot covers out of the colored millinery straw braid which is easy to sew and quite oriental in appearance when made. Some paint it with bold decorative notifs, which are quite striking under the greenery of the ferns. Unfired bean pots are also used as containers for the ferns and here again the home artist paints them in fantistic fashion.

Old-fashioned linen shawl strap rolls are coming in fashion again and are wonderfully handy for the all-day outing. The rolls are cut twenty-four inches long, the roun-end pieces the size of a twelve-inch dinner plate. The roll is fulled in around the round edges, lapped well at the top, and fastened with three big buttons and loops. Two narrow handles are placed across the top, so that the roll may be carried over the arm. The rolls are made of crash in white or in the natural color and the stitchery on them is in black initials on the round ends, and the seams and flaps are catstitched. Many people use a leather shawl strap for the rolls, if heavier things are to be carried in them.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am nineteen years old and have been married almost ten months. My husband is good to me, and takes me with him almost everywhere he goes. But I am jealous of him.

Please tell me how I can overcome this. JEALOUS HEARTED.

JEALOUS HEARTED: The first step toward conquering jealousy, is to realize that it exists, my dear. If you know that this jealousy is unfounded you have admitted to yourself that it is absurd and unworthy of you. In the face of your husband's love for you I am sure you will confess that your jealousy is based on imagination and nothing more. Try not to think of this green-eyed monster and you will soon find that he has died naturally.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been out with a university student who is almost four years my senior. I want to write to him as he is so busy that I do not see him much. I spoke to my mother about it but she said I should not write first. She thought it was a man's place to writ first.

Through his sister, who is a friend of mine, I learned that he expects a girl to write first. I am in doubt. Can't you help me?

M. L. M. C.

M. L. M. C.: Your mother is most certainly right, my dear. It is the young man's place to write first and if he does not you should not write him at all. However, since you are friendly with his sister, you might write her a little note and send your regards to him. Then, if he wishes, he will write you and you can respond.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letter to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Keene, Ontario.

Dear Annie Laurie,—

I am a young girl in my early twenties. I have no girl friends at all, and very few boy friends. Some times one of the boys I know will call up on the 'phone and ask me to go for a drive; some times I go and sometimes I don't. There is a young fellow, I was out with one night and I like him very much. He goes past here every day, morning, noon and night, and I try to draw his attention but I cannot succeed. He has never spoken to me since that night I was out with him. Please dear Annie Laurie, will you tell me what I might do to gain his friendship. Trixie.

Couldn't you try and make some girl friends, Trixie? Are there no church societies of any sort in your village that you could join? I know it is hard to find real friends at all times, but try your best. Perhaps you stay too much by yourself and are too sensitive. And even if you can't find people that you like, there are always good books that will take you to other places and make you see other people's lives, and improve your mind wonderfully. And those who read can talk so much better than those who don't. As for this young man, he may have just been showing you a passing kindness by taking you for the drive. Stop trying to draw his attention to one's appearance and clothes is never a waste of time and helps wonderfully in adding to one's attraction.

CHEROKEE LACROSSE SERIES OF ACCIDENTS

Game Makes Football and Hockey Look Almost Ladylike.

Cherokee lacrosse, the Indian game from which the national sport of Canada is derived, makes football and boxing look ladylike by comparison. Before the game an elaborate religious ceremonial used to take place, writes F. W. Hodge in the August Frontier, but once the ball is tossed everything is permissible, and serious accidents and deliberate maiming were common.

Unlike modern lacrosse, the game is played with two sticks to each player, instead of one. The sticks are about three feet long, and resemble loosely strung tennis rackets.

SOFTBALL POPULAR.

Clerks Win and Lose in Games on Norwood Fair Grounds.

NORWOOD, Aug. 8.—Two more games of softball were played at the Exhibition Grounds during this week. On Wednesday the Clerks played the men from Finlay's factory, the score being 24-8 in favor of the Clerks.

On Thursday night the Clerks played the Laborers and lost out, the score being 10-8 in favor of the Laborers. A good crowd of spectators was on hand to see both games.

SUICIDE ON RAILS.

Montreal Man's Death Due to Insanity.

MONTREAL, Aug. 8.—A verdict of suicide while in a state of temporary insanity was returned by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of George Peters, 45, a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, who hurled himself in front of a C.P.R. train Thursday and was instantly killed.

LACROSSE PRACTICE.

All Players Urged To Turn Out Tuesday Evening.

The lacrosse team will practice at the Oval on Tuesday evening, and every member is requested to turn out in preparation for the game with Havelock at Riverside Park on the next Thursday. This is the only immediate date available and it is likely the game will be arranged for that afternoon.

The management of the team has been disappointed by the slim attendance at recent practices and feels that there should be better co-operationation by the players. The claim for this game was presented to the O.A.L.A. because of confidence that the team could give Havelock-Norwood a real argument if a full line-up could be mustered.

Recent work-outs have been disappointing but it is hoped that there will be no absentees Friday evenisg.

NEW USE FOUND FOR OLD DOBBIN

50,000 Horses to be Slaughtered for European Tables.

SYNDICATE FORMED

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Old dobbin whose market value was considerably undermined by the advent of the automobile and tractor, has again come into his own, but this time in a vastly different role.

A syndicate of exporters has entered the market in Western Canada for 50,000 horses of all types to be slaughtered and shipped to Belgium, France and other European countries to satisfy the sophisticated palates of those to whom horse flesh is a genuine treat.

Heading the syndicate is George Pottmans of this city. He intimated that he was prepared to buy all types and sizes of horses, crippled or even in poor condition, so long as they have no organic disease. Due to the heavy costs of transportation, Mr. Pottmans pointed out that it was essential to get the animals at a very low price. Wild horses from the range of the south country is also regarded as a potential source of supply.

Mr. Pottmans has already secured a fair percentage of the first batch he proposes to ship across the Atlantic. Until the industry has become fairly well established, the slaughtering and packing will be done in temporary quarters under the auspices of local packing firms. Choice of permanent headquarters will depend upon the development of the project.

Gaston Pottmans, former Vice-Consul for Belgium, in Regina, will handle the European market of the horse flesh. The industry is a recognized one in Belgium, and Mr. Pottmans believes it will be possible to market 2,500 pounds of horse meat daily, providing the supply is forthcoming.

The Government of Saskatchewan and Alberta are in favor of the project, according to Mr. Pottmans. In Alberta the chief source of supply will be the south ranges, where thousands of wild horses have actually become a menace to the ranchers. Mr. Pottmans figures that he will have to purchase the bulk of his 50,000 order at a rate of three dollars a head, in order that the undertaking will prove a paying one.

KINGSTON WON LISTESS GAME

Weakened Belleville Team Was Beaten 7-4—Peeney Mills Played Second.

SMALL CROWD.

KINGSTON, Aug. 8.—(Special).—Kingston defeated Belleville by 7-3 in a scheduled C.O.B.L. fixture yesterday before the smallest crowd of the season. It was a draggy game right from the first, and there was little or no interest shown by the crowd that did attend. Belleville came with a weakened team and did mighty well to hold the locals to a 7-3 score. Peeny Mills played the second sack for Belleville and got away with it to a nicety. He did not have an error, and took part in several snappy plays. A lone two-bagger was all that Mills could collect. Cairns did the pitching for Kingston, and turned in a fairly good sheet. He allowed only 6 hits, and had 8 strike-outs to his credit. Hughie Keon pitched nice ball for Belleville, and was away above his usual form. Keon allowed ten hits, some of which should not have gone for hits. He struck out four batters.

There was nothing remarkable about the game, and it was about as dead a game of ball as has been played in a long time. The only little excitement there was when Colling of Belleville called a poor decision in Kingston's half of the eighth. The decision passed off as a great joke on Colling. The teams were:

Kingston—Teepell rf, Halbert ss, Batstone 3b, Somerville 2b, Cherry cf, Purvis 1b, Scott lf, Arniel c, Cairns p.

Belleville—Weir 3b, Ross cf, W. Mills 2b, H. Mills 1b, Blakely ss, Hagerman lf, Simmons rf, Harris c, Keon p.

Score by innings:

NASCOPIE ARRIVED IN TIME

When the Bayeskimo, a Hudson's Bay Company supply ship, foundered in Ungava bay her crew and passengers to the number of 42 were fortunately rescued by the timely arrival of the Nascopie, which was also on its northern rounds of the H. B. posts. When the Nascopie is able to communicate at greater length with the ouside world it may be able to tell an unusual story of the rescue effected in the bleak Ungava district. In the meantime it is endeavoring to transfer the people whose lives it saved, to some southbound vessel, as it cannot conveniently carry them on its regular rounds in Hudson bay.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The lowly Belleville team lost another game last night in Kingston and dropped a little further into the cellar. Entire dependence on the same old gang has been the cause of their downfall, as no attempt has been made to bring along young blood until just recently. The old fellows, who have won championships, for Belleville still carry the mighty wallop that has made them feared throughout the league, but the speed and agility of yore has departed. Just try and imagine Peenie Mills falling over a bunted ball two or three years ago!

The return game will be played in Belleville a week from Wednesday.

ALONE IN FIELD.

BETHANY, Aug. 8. — James Houston, 11th Concession of Cavan, suffered a broken leg on Thursday when a horse kicked him. He was alone in the field at the time of the accident, and was compelled to remain there until help came.

Mr. Houston was hitching the horses to the binder when he was kicked, the blow splintering his leg at the top of the boot.

Just a year ago he lost his barn in a disastrous fire.

ROYALS TIE IT UP BY CLOUTING

Also Play Well Defensively to Defeat Raybestos by 9 to 5.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Royals evened up the Intermediate play-off series with Raybestos at Exhibition Park last evening by trouncing the Coursey clan by 9 to 5. The count now is two wins apiece. A trio of misplays and a pair of singles gave Royals three in the first, but they lost the lead when Raybestos put three counters across in their half after two were down. Four singles in a row did the trick, Shaughnessy's clout accounting for two of them.

Royals went out in order in the second. Raybestos helped themselves to a brace of runs after two had been retired. Singles by Batten and Ranger were turned into runs when Rogers' grounder went through Cameron. That finished the Rays, stellar fielding by Stuffy Mahood's athletes holding them in check. Whitlow stopped a rally in the fourth with a classy running catch of Rogers' long fly and Corbett's perfect peg to the plate following Shaughnessy's drive to left in the fifth prevented Moore from scoring, and put the skids under another Raybestos attempt to break things up. Bud Weese was also prominent with a couple of nice catches on foul flies.

Royals overtook the Brakeliners in the fourth by scoring four runs, an infield error, two walks, two singles and a double by Corbett putting the West-enders in front. They should have got more. Sleeping on the runways, and Rogers quick pegs killed two runs. With two gone in the fifth, a single by Maudsley, Barrie's double and McIntosh's drive counted two more.

QUAKES MENACE BIG CITIES OF U. S.

Dangers From Earth Weakness Exist in Many Parts of Country.

About the last thought, probably, that occurs to the average American is that he may be living in an area of earthquake danger. It is only following disasters such as the recent ones in Santa Barbara, Calif., and Montana, that people in this country realize that earthquakes are phenomena not confined exclusively to the more remote regions of the earth.

As a matter of fact, earthquakes occur in the United States every year—many of them. More than that, writes Arthur Selwyn Brown, Ph.D., LL.D., in Popular Science Monthly for September, they occur in places that point to the existence of definite lines of earth weakness passing through or near some of our greatest cities. New York, Washington, and Boston, for example, lie along one of these lines, and consequently are not removed entirely from the danger of earthquake.

Other similar lines are found stretching across the continent from southern California to the Atlantic Coast, sweeping up through the Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes, cleaving the centre of New England. Within these areas live millions of people.

In view of these facts, Doctor Brown calls attention to the pressing need of an intensive seismological survey of the United States and Canada, as well as for architects, engineers, and builders to develop proper foundations and earthquake-proof houses for the regions where earthquake danger exists.

"It is the ground, not houses, that moves," he says, "and resilient houses usually would not be injured by an earth tremor. A severe shock in any of the cities that lie along the faults or lines of earth weakness in this country would have most calamitous results with buildings of the existing type.

"A few far-sighted men have recognized this danger. Thus, almost immediately following the Santa Barbara earthquake, the owners of one of New York's most famous skyscrapers obtained a large insurance policy against possible damage to the building from earthquake."

A study of the annual reports of earthquakes in the United States shows that there is an important line of earth weakness starting in the southern parts of California, traversing Arizona, following the thirty-fifth degree of latitude, sending a spur up the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers, then running eastward to the sea, and thence following the Atlantic coastal ranges up to Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

PITCHERS' DUEL TO BE RESUMED IN HOLIDAY GAME

Rasson of McCormacks, and Whitehouse, of Lakeviews, Will Meet Again.

FOR VETERANS.

Acadians, of Toronto, and Peterboro' C.O.B.L. Team Play on Holiday.

The pitching duel of last year's junior O.B.A.A. finals will be resumed on Monday morning, when Irish Rasson, who pitched for the McCormacks, will oppose Whitehouse, who pitched last year for the Lakeviews. Both of these promising young pitchers have moved up to senior company this year and are stars in the higher class. Whitehouse has been one of the best pitchers in the C.B.L. this year while Rasson has pitched two no-hit, no-run games.

Last year the series between these two pitchers went four games, one going 17 innings to a tie. The resumption of the duel should bring out a large crowd on the holiday morning and will provide a good start for the Veterans' field day, of which it is a part. Rasson will have behind him the Acadians, one of the leading teams of the T.A.B.A., while the regular Peterborough line-up will help Whitehouse in turning back his rival of last year.

The game has been arranged by Secrefary Sid Whatley of the G.W.V.A., and is the curtain raiser of the big programme of sports which will be provided on Peterborough's civic holiday.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

In selecting a fine wood club the player should pick one in which the grain runs toward the face of the club.

The grain usually is defined by lines which run circularly through the head. If these lines run toward the shaft, the head will split more easily than when the grain runs toward the face of the club. If the club is only partly soled with brass, look for this grain on the bottom of the club, where it shows more plainly. As for shafts in iron clubs, they should always be stiff. A number 1 iron might have a suggestion of whip near the head; there must be no such resilence in the shafts of other irons. The shafts, however, should have a feel of steeliness—a springy feeling that is responsive to the touch. That is, irons should not be heavy and soggy. The wood club shaft gives a trifle when the ball is hit. The iron club shaft must not give because the head has to dig through the ground.

HIGH-HANDED ACTION BY O.B.A.A. OFFICIALS

Local Midget League Ordered Last Night to Play Oshawa Team Here To-day.

The Peterborough City League officials received orders last night that they must declare a winner in the Midget series immediately and play the Oshawa Midget winners here this afternoon after the Central League game. Although the local league championship has not been decided, the Royals were named as winners to represent the league in this playoff. Royals finished first in the scheduled games.

On Monday afternoon at 5 oclock, Rotary and Kiwanis teams will replay a game that ended in a dispute last week. The winners will finish in second place and will play the Royals later on for the league championship. The time of the game has been as set as late as possible so that it won't interfere with the War Veterans' field day.

The reason for such a sudden action on the part o thfe O.B.A.A., whose instructions were issued by Secretary Walsh, are unknown. No orders were given the local league to have a winner for August 8, and the schedule was drawn to produce a winner by August 15.

BUSSES SCRAP RAILWAY LINE

Interurban System Bought for $900,000 to be Sold at Auction.

WHITE PLAINS(N. Y., Aug. 7. —The Westchester Street Railroad Company, purchased by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company is 1909 at a cash price reported as more than $900,000, will be sold at public auction about Oct. 15, with little expectation by its officers that it will bring more than its "junk value" of $65,000, it was learned to-day.

While no official announcement could be obtained from officials of the line, it was reported that Leverett S. Miller, receiver of the line, would have notices advertising the sale sent out within the next three weeks. The law provides that the sale must be advertitsed for six weeks.

The sale of the road, which serves this city, Tarrytown, Scarsdale, Greenburgh, Silver Lake Park and part of Harrison, had been expected since Mr. Miller announced plans for a country-wide bus system, backed by the financial interests controlling the New York, Westchester & Boston, the Westchester Street Railroad Company and the New York and Stamford line.

Mr. Miller is expected to make his formal announcement of the sale of the road to municipal officials within the next few days. At present the road is operating under a 10-cent rate in all zones and Mr. Miller had promised that he would make every effort to keep the line in operation until next June.

Bids for twenty-six buses to begin operation of his country-wide system have been asked for by Mr. Miller. He is expected to apply for a bus franchise here next month. He will also make application to Yonkers, New Rochelle, Mount Vernon and all of the large villages.

Westchester County officials are preparing for a race between the financial interest backing Mr. Miller and the Third Avenue Railroad Company and the Westchester Bus Company, Inc., both of which have also projected county systems. All must get the consent of the various municipalities before they go before the Public Service Commission for their certificates of convenience and necessity.

Mr. Miller said that the new bus company has not yet been incorporated. Its plans, he explained, were to have lines along the Hudson River, and also along Long Island Sound, with "feeder" systems between, which would help serve the county, and which would make connections, at train time at various stations of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad.

The Third Avenue Railway Company has made applications in Mount Vernon and New Rochelle, for permission to run buses and is running them in Yonkers, while the Westchester Bus Company has requested permission to run buses from Portchester, New Rochelle, Mount Vernon, Rye and other towns along the shore of the Sound.

HUNTERS RETURN FROM FAR NORTH

Shooting and Poisoning Wolves—Many Thrilling Adventures.

SEE CARIBOO

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 8, (Canadian Press).—After an extended period in the Barren Lands, close to Artillery Lake, shooting and poisoning wolves for the dominion government, Bruno Loranger, former sniper with the Canadian forces in France recently reached Edmonton, ending a trip to the Outside that lasted 38 days of hazardous travel. Loranger was accompanied by three companions, J. Robert and Frank Wood, expert hunters and J. Dion. Many thrilling experiences befell the adventurous four.

Loranger made a circut of the Barren Lands, covering a distance of about 150 miles. Carlton Bay at the eastern extremity of Great Slave Lake was the first headquarters of the wolf hunters. The country through which they had to operate was scrubby bush, difficult to work through.

On August 1, of last year, the pary arrived at an old Indian encampment at Pikes Portage on Carton Bay. They found a number of Indian dogs which had been abandoned to starve to death. Four of these they kept, while the remainder were shot. On August 5, the schooner in which they had sailed toward the North and over Great Slave Lake was caught in a terrific hurricane which caused the vessel to drag her anchor and be blown into deep water. Loranger and two of his companions braved the storm in a 20-foot canoe and just managed to reach the schooner as the canoe sank beneath them. The trio were tossed about in the small craft, which was eventually beached a mile and a half away in a sheltered bay. Headquarters were ultimately established at Poor Fish Bay, deriving its name from the fact that the lake produced a very small fish catch.

Travelling the country poisoning and shooting wolves, the party on December 10 last saw a large flock of ravens in the sky, heralding the cariboo migration to the south. Then came the big herd many hours later, following both sides of Artiller Lake, bound for the forests of Christie Bay. In April the great herd moved northward again to the Arctic regions.

Mr. Loranger will submit a report upon his activities to the department of the Interior at Ottawa.

SOFTBALL GAME.

Fast Exhibition Game Will Be Staged By Local Ladies' Teams.

One of the features of the War Veterans' field day on Monday will be a softball game between the league leading C.G.E. ladies and an all-star team picked from the other teams of the league. This game will be played at 6.00 o'clock at the Exhibition grounds, and all softball fans would do well to be there. This will be the last game of the season.

DRAMA CENTRES ABOUT WOMEN

"Lillies of the Field" is Focused on the Modern World of Women.

The greatest epics of the stage and of literature have even centered about the figure of a woman. Men may be of heroic mould and adventurous of spirit, but woman exudes a spirit of romance, love and drama that has made her the favorite character of writers of all kinds.

Thus in "Lillies of the Field," a First National picture which is coming to the Capitol Theatre Monday, we find the theme focussed on the modern woman and the "deal" hauded her by the world. Patient, long-suffering and meek, she is the particular victim of fate and is buffeted about mercilessly. Loving, she is met with repulses and neglect. Forgiving, she is thrown aside.

With such a theme to work with, Director John Francis Dillon has etched a drama that is destined to prove one of the greatest successes in the history of Filmdom. The lives of seven women are depicted in this story, which was adapted from William Hurlburts stage play, and there are vivid contrasts between high and low degree.

The film is superbly enacted by one of the most remarkable casts ever assembled. Corine Griffith and Conway Tearle have the featured roles, supported by Sylvia Breamer, Myrtle Stedman, Alma Bennett, Craufurd Kent, Charles Murray, Phyllis Haver, Cissy Fitzgerald, Edith Ransom and Charles Gerrard. And there is little two-year-old Dorothy Brock, a real "find" and one who plays an important part in the story.

"NEW LIVES FOR OLD."

Betty Compson Has Role of Girl Who Leads Two Lives.

A famous Parisian dancer and a peasant girl on her aunt's farm in Normandy at one and the same time is the role — or roles, as you will, Betty Compson plays in her new Paramount picture, "New Lives for Old," coming to the Royal Theatre next Monday.

As the picture opens, we find Betty, as Olympe, in her cafe in Paris, the meeting place of soldiers on their way to the front, men on leave.

The scene shifts and we see the girl in the little French village, attired in quaint costume, wooden shoes, etc.—quite a contrast to the bizarre Olympe, toast of the French capital.

Under these conditions, Betty meets Hugh Warren (Wallace MacDonald). His company is billeted on her aunt's farm on their way up to the front. It's a case of love at first sight and the girl promises to wait until he comes back, little knowing just what part she is going to have in bringing him back safely.

Back in Paris, Betty becomes involved in the French secret service and it is through her clever work in revealing a spy that Warren's company is saved from sure destruction.

Theodore Kosloff is the spy in the picture, with Sheldon Lewis his accomplice. Both are featured with MacDonald in support.

The people of Michigan act as if they really wanted the small pox, declares Dean Cabot, of the U. of M. medical school. Maybe so, but when they get it they want it exceedingly small.

LAKEFIELD HAS KIWANIS GUESTS

Ladies Serve Banquet—Rev. Walter Cox Had Charge of Committee.

DANCE ENJOYED.

Last evening members of the Kiwanis Club and their wives, to the number of about one hundred, motored to Lakefield for their weekly meeting, which took the form of a very pleasant banquet served by the Lakefield ladies in the town hall, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion by a committee in charge of Rev. Walter Cox of Lakefield, a former member of the Downtown Kiwanis Club of Toronto. Several Kiwanians summering at the Lakes, came down for the banquet, which was presided over by the president, Charles Cook. The special speaker for the occasion was Rev. William Allan, pastor of St. Paul's church. George Henderson acted as sergeant at arms, and was kept busy collecting fines. Community singing was led by Alex. Dick and M. B. Chenhall. After the banquet a jolly dance was held, the music being provided by Lorne Bells orchestra.

CHANGED SYSTEM NOT ONLY LOCAL

New Plan of Keeping Only Partial Addresses of Licensees Instituted.

Commenting on the editorial in yesterday's Examiner that pointed out the difficulties met by the Peterborough police force through not having available locally the addresses of automobile licensees Leon Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, informed The Examiner that it is not due to an omission here, but is consequent upon a provincial order. The Department this year changed its system requiring the completion of a stub as well as the certificate proper, and in order to even things up without increasing the payment to license issuers reduced the work by doing away with the record of addresses kept last year by every issuer.

Another reason why the addresses are not available locally is that the transfers of cars from one owner to another are not registered here. This makes the record incomplete, and in many cases useless. The police are required, according to the Provincial rule, to telegraph or telephone to Toronto for information regarding any automobile. The complete address of every car owner is listed there.

Mr. Frazer assured The Examiner that representations have been made by many issuers, including himself, to the department regarding this handicap, and he anticipates a change next year.

KIWANIS WORK.

Erect Signs Pointing Way to Tourist Camp Site.

The Kiwanis Club has added another item to its list of community endeavors, in the erection at the first turn on the gravel road of a large direction sign, measuring fifteen feet by eight feet, and directing tourists to the Camping Grounds at the Exhibition lot. "Straight ahead to the town clock, then turn to the right," are the first directing words of the sign, which bears a big "K" in either corner.

A small sign has also been placed by the Kiwanis Club at the corner of Charlotte and George streets, pointing with a red arrow to the same camping grounds.

CINDERELLA MAY RETURN TO ASHES

Girl Adopted By Rich Man To Be Sent To Poor Home.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(Canadian Press). — Two bright-eyed girls, whom Edward W. Browning has made happy by showering upon them all the luxuries money could buy, were on the verge to-day of returning to the comparatively impoverished suburbs from whence they came.

Questioned for hours yesterday by authorities investigating the adoption, a few days ago, of Mary Louise Spas, the millionaire real estate operator appeared worn and pale. His secretary said that Mr. Browning was "trying his level best" to find a way out, and hoped to send Mary back to her humbled Bohemian parents to-day, but Mr. Browning later insisted the statement was unauthorized. Mary was convinced that her coach and four must certainly change back to the ignominous pumpkin. "I want to go home," she cried.

Commissioner of Public Welfare, Bird S. Coler, was also investigating the appeal of Mrs. Wm. St. John of Rye, N. Y., foster-mother of Dorothy Sunshine Browning, that the child be given back to her. Dorothy, 9, the second cinderella adopted by Mr. Browning, has been ill at a summer camp at Crystal Lake, Vermont. She was adopted six years ago.

"There is no place for a little girl like Dorothy in a home with a flapper cinderella," Mrs. St. John said, "and we don't want any money either."

MYSTERY CLEARED.

Clothing of Missing Man is Found on Beach With a Note.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 8 (Canadian Press) — The mystery surrounding the disappearance from his home here last Tuesday of Joseph Horne a young cement worker, was partly cleared up this morning by the discovery on the beach at Port Stanley of clothing said to be Horne's. The clothing consisted of a coat, a shirt, overalls and a cap, and pinned to the garment was a note addressed to "Clara" and stating that "Joe" was going in for a swim and instructing her to collect the insurance. A pass book found in the pocket was identified as Horne's by the bank.

His wife says he has been melancholy for some time.

PARIS, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press).—Hair-raising acrobatics by movie stars have been surpassed by a dancer. Drusilla Taggart, who, according to the Paris Soir, danced on the very edge of the top storey of the Eiffel Tower.

In the execution of a fox trot on the narrow ledge of iron from which she looked down sheer, nearly a thousand feet that separated the dizzy pinnacle from the ground, Miss Taggart swayed and smiled blithely as she watched a little party of spectators gasp with horror.

FINANCIAL NEWS

Strength Shown To-day In New York Markets

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (Canadian Press).—Another display of aggressive strength was shown by today's stock market, although a tendency to convert paper profits into cash and experimental short selling brought about occasional recessions of a point or two. The general list swept forward under the leadership of high priced industrials, many of which were again buoyant. Buying orders were spread over a broad list but centre largely in Steels, Equipments, Motors and Public Utilities, many of which broke through to new peak prices for year.

Sharp Advances In Wheat On Chicago Market To-day

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (Canadian Press).—Sharp fresh advances took place in prices of wheat, although for a while the market averaged lower. The fact that Liverpool quotations showed a relative weakness had a temporary depressing effect on values here and so, too, did opinions that the rapidity of the recent upturns would bring about at least some reaction. On the other hand, renewed foreign purchasing of future deliveries here was said to be in progress and further buying of cash wheat here for shipment to Montreal and to Europe was reported. Chicago opening prices 3-8 to 2 1-4c lower, September 164 to 165 1-2, and December 162 to 163 3-8 were followed by an irregular upturn that hoisted September to 167 1-2 and December to 165 1-4.

Consolidate Smelters Resumes Place In Lead

TORONTO, Aug 8 (Canadian Press).—Consolidated Smelters resumed its position of market leader, this security dominating the trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning.

The week's closing session maintained the activity of the past few days with some further gains recorded but recessions were also in evidence. Smelters advanced steadily and closed at 112 1-4, a gain of 2 1-4. F. N. Burt was more moderately dealt in, but held its advance of yesterday at 58 1-2. Winnipeg eased off a quarter at 52 and Dominion stores further receded two points at 50 1-2. Small trading in British Empire Steel Second Preferred strengthened that stock at 3-8 at 10 1-8.

NEW YORK'S CINDERELLA GIRL IS DESCRIBED AS FRAUD AND BLUFF HER BRIEF DAY OF WEALTH ENDED

Adopted By Millionaire Mary Spas is Revealed as 21, Not 16.

SOUGHT LUXURY.

Benefactor Says He Was Deceived—Newspaper Publicity Exposes Fraud.

ADOPTION ANNULLED.

NEW YORK, August 11. — Canadian Press. — The adoption of Mary Louise Spas by Edward W. Browning, millionaire estate operator, was annulled today by Surrogate Noble of Queen's County, on the ground that the girl has misrepresented her age.

Apparently abandoning her efforts to enter a contract made at Newark, N.J., last night, Mary returned to her home in Astoria w henshe left court today.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Mary Louise Spas today continued to capitalize her brief experience as the adopted daughter of Edward W. Browning, millionaire real estate operator, by writing her story for syndicate publication.

Meanwhile proceedings were scheduled in the Surrogate Court at Jamaica for annulment of her adoption on the ground of fraud. Mr. Browning charges that she fooled him into believing that she was only 16, whereas written records show her to be twenty-one.

Mary Louise was assailed by District Attorney Newcombe of Queen's County last night as "designing and unscrupulous."

"She sought to obtain ease and luxury, regardless of everything else," he said. "It's the same old story of money, of trying to get something for nothing."

Called a Fraud.

The Bohemian girl was also termed fraud by Dr. Joseph C. F. Luhan, a friend of Browning, who was with him when Mary Louise was reported to have attempted suicide last Friday night.

"It was deliberate bluff," Dr. Luhan said. "She merely smeared her lips with poison and then locked herself in the bathroom, crying, 'I want to die.' When I threatened to have her locked up as an attempted suicide, she screamed, 'No, no, I didn't want to commit suicide'."

"I spent $20,000 trying to make that girl my foster daughter," Mr. Browning said. "You have a hard time being honest in this world. If you are, somebody's sure to double-cross you.

Age Against Her.

"I had confidence in her to the very last. If she had been 16 years old, it would have been different. But 21 is too much. Her age defeats the sole purpose for which I adopted her — to be a companion for nine-year-old Dorothy Sunshine Browning.

"Will I adopt another? Absolutely never. I am through trying to do good for people. She is the smartest actress in New York."

A Crowded Hour.

Life had moved too rapidly for the pretty, blonde-haired miss. Her dreams had been torn apart. Her fairy godfather, Edward W. Browning, had declared he "was through." The doors of her home had been closed to her. And she had been dragged around for hours through the misty night in an almost vain endeavor to find a place to sleep.

Her eyes swollen from hours of crying, Mary Louise lay apathetically on a couch in the living room.

"I can't talk. I can't see anybody. Why won't they leave me alone?"

Her gray-haired chaperone, Mrs. Hesterburg, tried to placate her. Nothing could ease the hurt. Nothing could erase the horrors of the past few days which culminated in Saturday night's wanderings.

Poverty. Adoption. Glimpse of riches and gratification of every wish.

Then rumors that, spreading, created furore. Corroboration of the gossip. Attempted suicide, followed by hours of gruelling questioning in Queen's County Courthouse.

Shakes With Sobs.

Mary Louise's story for a week. All the emotions of a lifetime crowded into a few short hours. No wonder the little body grows more frail. No wonder she shakes with dry sobs. She has used all her tears.

Even more pathetic than Mary Louise's condition, is the state of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Spas. The Wilson Avenue home is forlorn. Mrs. Spas, holding her head and rocking from side to side, refuses to talk.

Mr. Spas can only say:

"I hope she will be happy. And Mr. Browning forgives us. He is one fine man to do so."

On Saturday Mary Louise insisted to District Attorney Newcombe that she was "sixteen because I want to be sixteen." No amount of adroit questioning could trip her. And there were certain questions to which she apparently did not remember the answers.

Ellis Island records show that the Spas family came over on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. March 10, 1910. They had two daughters, Mary, aged six, and Mildred, eight.

Mr. Browning said he believed that Mary was misinformed as to her correct age by her parents, who are more or less illiterate, according to the neighbors

FATHER'S CHUM DIED IN EFFORT TO SAVE MOTHER

"He Might Easily Have Saved Himself," Harry Gabbutt Avers of His Son.

"MORE THAN CHILD."

Prince of Wales School Boy a Hero—Double Funeral To-day.

"Women and children first" is the ancient law of the sea, and many of those who follow the sea in ships have given their lives to live up to the honored standard. Douglas Gabbutt, eleven years old, must have remembered the first part of this admonition when he turned back to try and help save his mother from the fierce waters of the Otonabee on Saturday afternoon. He forgot the second part, or perhaps he didn't consider himself a child. The son of a soldier daddy, who was in the war, "from start to finish," what else would he do but follow that father's admonitions, oft repeated, as to the proper course to pursue in dangerous moments?

If Douglas had thought first of his own safety and forgotten his mother,—if Mrs. Gabbutt had known how to swim — if the canoe under which her body rested had moved a few inches to the side during the agonizing moments when her husband, grasping it, searched the waters for a glimpse of her form,—another drowning tragedy might have been averted. Three tragic "ifs."

There were no premonitions of disaster in the minds of the Gabbutt family when they started out to join the Nashua Paper Company's excursion on Saturday afternoon, and nothing to warn them of the clutch of Fate when they set out to find water-lilies under a smiling sun. The river, usually thronged with boats on such a pleasant day, was swept clean of people when the dark shadow of Death settled over the waters and took in its icy clutch the mother and child.

My Little Chum.

"He was more than a child to me. He was my chum, my little friend. What his father thought was absolutely "it" to him. Give Douglas all the credit you can. He deserves it for what he did. He might easily have saved himself. He was a fairly good swimmer, for a boy of his age, but he came back to help me with his mother, and did what I had always told him to do, got behind her and tried to keep her clear. As for me, I should be blamed for not using force to make her stop struggling," said the father this morning, tears running down his face at the thought of the little lad who had been his constant chum, a "baby in arms" when the big father marched away to war — always looking up to his daddy as a glorified hero. Douglas was a "real boy, all for sports," and when he went to see "The Dumbells' " show with his father, refused to applaud the selection by "Archibald," because the latter was such a "sissy." It was not in the mind of such a little boy, even at eleven years of age, to strike out for the shore and save himself, if he could do anything to help his father and mother.

"Yes, he goes to the Prince of Wales' School and to All Saints' Sunday School," said his father, using the present tense that gave such a tragic note to the quiet re-

TRIBESMEN AID FRENCH FORCES

Were Influenced By Recent Success of French Against Riffs.

AIRMEN ACTIVE.

By John O'Brien
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

FEZ, Morocco, Aug. 11.— French forces operating in the Ouezzan region have started a great cleaning up in the district south-west of the Holy City, where large bodies of unfriendly tribesmen have appeared in the last few days.

Around Amergou Mountain, however, the tribesmen are showing a new spirit since the spectacular French capture of this almost impregnable stronghold. Hitherto wavering, these tribesmen are now participating in the resistance against Riffian incursions. Ouled Bedder tribesmen, who joined the French Sunday, are lending great aid. The disturbance in the district south of Fez El Bali has ended. The French troops operating there have reached Moulay Bouchta without encountering resistance.

Meantime aerial activity is more intense and threatens to force Abd El Krim men to seek hiding places in the hills.

SECURITY PACT PARLEY BEGINS

Aristide Briand Calls on King Before Meeting Chamberlain.

AIR OF OPTIMISM.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The Foreign Ministers of Great Britain and France, Austen Chamberlain and Aristide Briand, began their conversations regarding proposals for a security pact with Germany to-day in an atmosphere of optimism. Belief was expressed in official quarters here that their meeting would result in a reply to the latest German communication on this subject, delivered to the Allies July 20, that would appreciably shorten the period of written interchanges between the Governments concerned, and would lead shortly to a round table conference in which all interested nations might participate directly.

Before his first meeting with Mr. Chamberlain this morning, M. Briand, with French Ambassador M. De Fleuriau, was received by the King.

It is understood that the first subject taken up by the two Foreign Ministers was a general outline of the draft reply to the last German note.

CROP CONDITIONS MUCH IMPROVED BECAUSE OF RAIN

Cutting of Wheat Is Now Well Under Way in Three Prairie Provinces.

SOME DAMAGE.

Heat, Hail and Insects Spoiled Some Crops—More Rain Needed For Late Grain.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Crop conditions in Western Canada have shown great improvement as the result of beneficial rains and cooler weather during the last few days, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific agricultural department. Cutting of wheat is under way at several points in all three prairie provinces, and present prospects promise a better than average yield. Some damage has been reported from hail, cutworms and sawfly, while the recent heat wave caused additional deterioration.

Cutting of wheat, barley and rye now is general in Manitoba, with threshing started at a few points. While rust has infected fields in the southern part of the province, its effect has not been so pronounced as in previous years.

In Saskatchewan wheat cutting will be general this week. While the bright prospect of early June is not to be realized because of lack of moisture, a very fair crop is anticipated, the report states. Coarse grains will not prove a heavy crop this season. Having been sown later than wheat, these crops failed to attain growth before the July drought set in.

Crops in Alberta have held up exceptionally well under the continued heat wave and drought. Territory between Calgary and McLeod gives promise of a good yield. Between Medicine Hat and the United States border, the crop will be extremely light, due to drought. Areas east

Admiralty Asks Sailors To Bear Up Under Economy

LONDON, August 11. — Canadian Press Cable. — The Admiralty proposes introducing economies and in a letter promulgated at Portsmouth yesterday it expresses the hope that if the contemplated measures of economy militate against the comfort of the fleet's personnel the officers and men will do their utmost to minimize any adverse effect that may ensue as a result thereof.

WORK TOGETHER ON PEACE RIVER

Suggestions Made to C.P.R. and C.N.R. By Premier of Alberta.

MANAGE RAILWAY.

EDMONTON Alta. Aug. 11. — Canadian Press. — Joint operation of the Northern Railway lines, with the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific as interested parties instead of one or other of them alone, is the newest and latest scheme for solving the problem of the Peace River Railway tangle. An effort is to be made at once to work out a solution and as a first move to explore its possibilities.

Premier Herbert Greenfield has already wired to Sir Henry Thornton, who is now at the coast, to stop off at Edmonton for another conference on his way back. D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, will be asked to attend for his company, as it is not expected that either President Beatty or Grant Hall will be in the west at the time.

The purpose of the meeting will be to have a round table discussion between the two companies for the purpose of effecting a joint agreement with both of them participating in the operation of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia and Canada Central lines.

ARGENTINE SWIMMER ALMOST DROWNED IN ENGLISH CHANNEL

Lillian Harrison Was Saved By Ishak Helmy, Who Was Pacing Her.

NEVER AGAIN.

Girl Declares That She Will Not Make Another Attempt to Cross.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Lillian Harrison nearly lost her life yesterday by drowning in her fourth unsuccessful attempt to swim the English Channel. Only prompt work by Ishak Helmy, an Egyptian swimmer, who was in the water pacing her, prevented her from going to the bottom.

"Catch me, Helmy; I am going down," Miss Harrison suddenly exclaimed while apparently swimming strongly. She lurched forward, caught the Egyptian by the neck, and practically fainted. She was then hauled aboard the accompanying tug and brought back to Boulogne.

"This is my last attempt," said the little Argentine as she reached the deck of the tug in a semi-conscious state at 7.17 o'clock last evening, after having been in the water 7 hours and 5 minutes. "The Channel is too much for me."

When forced to acknowledge defeat, Miss Harrison was eight miles off Dover — just opposite Dover Castle. Her position when she abandoned her effort was the best ever reached by any Channel swimmer in the same elapsed time. The flood tide seemed to be rapidly pushing her toward the shore when she had to give up.

The swim, which was started at 12.12 p.m. from Cape Gris-Nez, was attempted under most difficult conditions. Channel experts and ancient mariners who were along the waterfront when the girl made her swim, said she was doomed to failure, and they expressed no undue surprise when the tug returned to Boulogne with her at 10.20 o'clock last night.

Miss Harrison revived physically shortly after she was taken aboard the tug, but her spirit seemed broken and she announced over and over that never again would she try to cross the rough and treacherous waterway.

The veteran trainer of aspirants for Channel honors, Jabez Wolff, said lack of proper nutrition caused the collapse of Miss Harrison. She is a vegetarian, and Wolff thought she was under-nourished.

Up to the time Miss Harrison succumbed to fatigue she seemingly was going strong. She was four miles out from Gris-Nez at 2.28 p.m. She met with extremely unfavorable weather for the first five hours, rain and hail and gusts of wind. At 4.30 o'clock she began taking nourishment and it seemed to give her new vigor.

At 4.35 o'clock the girl reached her highest speed. She previously had been doing 24 strokes to the minute, and she increased this to 26 strokes. The prospect for her crossing the Channel at this time appeared to be bright.

Jane Sion, the French girl who recently tried to make the trip across the Channel, went into the water and paced Miss Harrison for an hour and ten minutes. Then Helmy, the Egyptian, relieved the French girl and was swimming with the Argentine when she collapsed.

Chamberlain To Tackle West Ham Poor Guardians Who Pay Exhorbitant Out Of Taxpayers' Pockets

LONDON, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press) — At last, Neville Chamberlain, minister of health, has resolved to tackle seriously the West Ham poor law guardians who administer the poor law over a considerable area of East London and have made themselves notorious by their lavish scale of relief to the unemployed —£3 aweek to the head of a family or 10 shillings higher than the dole handed out by the guardians of Poplar borough who were formerly considered as holding the palm for generosity with the taxpayers' money.

The minister of health upon the reassembly of parliament after the vacation will introduce a bill authorizing the ministry to dissolve te recalcitrant guardians of West Ham and replace them by a nominated body. The only present remedy for the extravagant payment of unemployment relief in West Ham would be to surcharge the guardians personally with unlawful expenditure, but this would be a useless expedient in view of the fact that many of the guardians themselves have nothing.

CONSERVATIVES CAPTURE NEW BRUNSWICK HOUSE ELECT THIRTY-SIX MEMBERS; LIBERALS TWELVE; FARMERS' PARTY WAS OBLITERATED IN UPHEAVAL

Liberal Administration Will Relinquish Government to Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, Who Led the Conservatives to Overwhelming Victory.

PREMIER VENIOT HIMSELF ELECTED

Baxter Resigned Seat in Federal Parliament To Conduct Party Campaign For the Legislature— Cabinet Almost Wiped Out.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 11. — Canadian Press. — The defeat of the Veniot government was accomplished yesterday by the electors of New Brunswick. This morning finds 36 out of 48 seats in the Legislative Assembly in the hands of the Conservative Opposition party, led by Hon. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter. The present government holds the remaining 12.

Within two or three weeks the present administration will resign, and a government headed by Dr. Baxter (who resigned his seat in the Federal House of Commons to return to New Brunswick) will take office.

When the House was dissolved three weeks ago, the government had 29 seats, Opposition 12, and Farmers 7.

The farmers, as a result of yesterday's voting, passed out of the political picture, the only three candidates they had being defeated in Carleton County.

In every county but Northumberland the victories for each party were straight conquests. In Northumberland the Opposition captured three seats and the government one.

The opposition won in Restigouche two seats, Westmoreland four, Moncton City one; Albert two; Saint John County two; St. John City four; Charlotte three; St. Stephen, mill town, one; York three; Sunbury two, King's three; Queen's two; Carleton three; Fredericton, Marysville, Devon, one.

Premier Veniot Elected.

The government captured one seat in Northumberland, three in Kent, four in Gloucester, two in Victoria, and two in Madawaska.

Premier Veniot won by a large majority in his home constituency, but all the rest of his cabinet, with the exception of Hon. A. M. Dysart, recently appointed Minister of Lands and Mines, and Hon. J. E. Michaud, Minister without portfolio, were defeated.

Ninety-eight candidates contested 48 seats. Of the 98 more than 60 were men new to the political arena. Returns showed that 27 new opposition supporters and four new government supporters were elected, while seven government and ten opposition who sat in the last legislature have been elected again.

Farmers Wiped Out.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Yesterday's election throughout New Brunswick marked the passing of the Farmers' party as a political force in Provincial politics. The three candidates placed in nomination met with overwhelming defeat in Carleton, coming within an ace of losing their deposits. In the last Provincial elections the Government ticket opposing the same three Farmer candidates lost their deposits.

Silent In Defeat.

Speaking from Bathurst, over the long distance 'phone last night, Premier F. J. Veniot, whose government went down to defeat in the Provincial elections held throughout New Brunswick, stated he preferred not to comment on the result, pending the receipt of the complete returns. When asked if he could indicate how soon the Government would resign, the Premier stated it would take from two to three weeks at least for the administration to wind up its affairs.

Lost Their Deposits.

At least three candidates lost their deposits in the New Brunswick Provincial elections yesterday. They are: Hugh Wol. Balham, Government, St. Stephen-Milltown; J. E. McAuley, Independent, Kings and C. H. Labillois, Independent, Restigouche.

Yowling Of Cats Woke Folk In Burning House

FORT WILLIAM, August 11 —Canadian Press. — Two cats probably saved the lives of Mrs. James MacQuoil and Mrs. T. Gaudette and her son, yesterday, They were awakened by the yowls of their feline pets and Mrs. Gaudette rushed downstairs and opened the kitchen door to find the room a mass of flames. The alarm was given and the fire department extinguished the blaze before the remainder of the house was destroyed. The cats found their way into the basement, whence they were rescued.

According to the designer, the planes will have a wing spread of 185 feet. They will be equipped with nine 450 horsepower engines each, and will provide spacious accommodation for passengers.

The fare for a single trip will be about 55 pounds sterling per passenger.

REDS EXPELLED FROM REICHSTAG

TALKED IN RELAYS.

BERLIN, Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—It required the bodily intervention of twenty brawny security police officials yesterday to eject a few cantankerous Communists from the sitting of the Reichstag, where they had attempted to obstruct the debate on the Government's tariff programme. The Government is striving to push the tariff bill through the present session.

German Reds worked in relays, and just as soon as one of their obstructing members was removed, a successor stepped into the breach and tied up proceedings.

Vice-President Graef, deciding on short shift for offending members, summarily expelled five of the noisiest of the Communists from future sessions for periods ranging from eight days to three weeks. The disciplined members refused to leave the chamber voluntarily, and Herr Graef was compelled to summon a squad of security police, who literally dragged the resisting men from the floor, at the same time beating off other Communist, who fought to intervene.

The love which is often poetically described as a Spring "malady" has now been given a prosaic explanation. We are told that it is the addition moisture of the season that cause people to write poems, fall in love and shun work.

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE HURT IN CAR SMASH AT INGERSOLL

Car Driven By Mrs. H. W. Darcy Went Into Creek on Detour.

CAR SKIDDED.

Mrs. Darcy, Senior, Had Ribs Broken—Many Accidents at Place.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press). — A Peterboro sedan, driven by Mrs. T. H. Darcy, of that city, left the road on the detour at Centreville, two miles west of here, Sunday night, and rolled down a thirteenfoot embankment. In its descent the big car landed first on one side, then rolled completely over on to the other side before coming to a halt at the edge of the creek. In the car with Mrs. Darcy was her son Robert, aged ten, her mother-in-law, Mrs. H. W. Darcy, and Mrs. James Fanning, all of Fetherboro. Mrs. Darcy, Sr., aged 75, sustained a broken rib, hip and back injuries, and was sent home on the noon train. A car preceding the Darcy car skidded into the side of the road, but its own momentum brought it back up again. The Darcy's jammed on their brakes as their car also skidded toward the ditch. There was no momentum to bring it back. Accidents are happening on this detour every day. Sunday two cars collided head on, and both were badly damaged. No one was hurt.

Mrs. T. H. Darcy, who was injured in an automobile accident near Ingersoll, was resting at the home of her daughter-in-law this morning. She has been given sedatives to soothe her nerves. Several ribs are broken, but the exact nature of her internal injuries cannot be ascertained until the physicians make an X-ray examination.

POLICE RESCUE DRUNK IN CREEK

Millbrook Man Yelled For Help Behind Charlbond Apartments.

A REAL SOAKING.

Two drunks appeared in police court this morning, both of whom were apprehended last night, their plight presumably resulting from an over zealous endeavour to bring the holiday festivities to a fitting conclusion..

The first case was that of a local light who clutched a husky policeman to his breast with the avowed intention of incarcerating the minion of the law.

The other case was that of a Millbrook sport who, inflamed by the spirit of the day, etc., was progressing along Charlotte street. The even tenor of his way, he alleged, was interrupted by some thug who brought a blunt instrument to bear upon his nasal organ. Such was the force of the blow that he was dazed and presently found himself floundering in the creek behind the Charlbond apartments. Thinking in a desultotry fashion that he had fallen from the liftlock tower he howled for a succor, which arrived in the vesture of a police sergeant.

To replace his soaked garments, the raiment of Sergeant Deanard was commandeered, and as the wet one was of limited physique, he presented a shrunken appearance to the onlookers. Friends who came to inquire concerning him, did not recognize him at first in his ample raiment. Rubber boots hid the nether half from view, while the trousers attained the level of his chin. The coat was a luxury which did not appear necessary, however. Encased in this multitudinous array was the roysterer of the night before.

In court he told a colorful tale of having been chicaned and fleeced of his roll by a footpad. A suspect of the deed appeared also, but the evidence was insufficient to warrant his retention.

When the inebriate of last night was asked for a statemtent he presented the fact that his nasal appendage had suffered a contusion and the resultant wetting in the creek was not conducive to comfort and happiness.

NEW YORK'S CINDERELLA GIRL IS DESCRIBED AS FRAUD AND BLUFF HER BRIEF DAY OF WEALTH ENDED

Adopted By Millionaire Mary Spas is Revealed as 21, Not 16.

SOUGHT LUXURY.

Benefactor Says He Was Deceived—Newspaper Publicity Exposes Fraud.

ADOPTION ANNULLED.

NEW YORK, August 11. — Canadian Press. — The adoption of Mary Louise Spas by Edward W. Browning, millionaire estate operator, was annulled today by Surrogate Noble of Queen's County, on the ground that the girl has misrepresented her age.

Apparently abandoning her efforts to enter a contract made at Newark, N.J., last night, Mary returned to her home in Astoria w henshe left court today.

Meanwhile proceedings were scheduled in the Surrogate Court at Jamaica for annulment of her adoption on the ground of fraud. Mr. Browning charges that she fooled him into believing that she was only 16, whereas written records show her to be twenty-one.

Mary Louise was assailed by District Attorney Newcombe of Queen's County last night as "designing and unscrupulous."

"She sought to obtain ease and luxury, regardless of everything else," he said. "It's the same old story of money, of trying to get something for nothing."

Called a Fraud.

The Bohemian girl was also termed fraud by Dr. Joseph C. F. Luhan, a friend of Browning, who was with him when Mary Louise was reported to have attempted suicide last Friday night.

"It was deliberate bluff," Dr. Luhan said. "She merely smeared her lips with poison and then locked herself in the bathroom, crying, 'I want to die.' When I threatened to have her locked up as an attempted suicide, she screamed, 'No, no, I didn't want to commit suicide'."

"I spent $20,000 trying to make that girl my foster daughter," Mr. Browning said. "You have a hard time being honest in this world. If you are, somebody's sure to double-cross you.

Age Against Her.

"I had confidence in her to the very last. If she had been 16 years old, it would have been different. But 21 is too much. Her age defeats the sole purpose for which I adopted her — to be a companion for nine-year-old Dorothy Sunshine Browning.

"Will I adopt another? Absolutely never. I am through trying to do good for people. She is the smartest actress in New York."

A Crowded Hour.

Life had moved too rapidly for the pretty, blonde-haired miss. Her dreams had been torn apart. Her fairy godfather, Edward W. Browning, had declared he "was through." The doors of her home had been closed to her. And she had been dragged around for hours through the misty night in an almost vain endeavor to find a place to sleep.

Her eyes swollen from hours of crying, Mary Louise lay apathetically on a couch in the living room.

"I can't talk. I can't see anybody. Why won't they leave me alone?"

Her gray-haired chaperone, Mrs. Hesterburg, tried to placate her. Nothing could ease the hurt. Nothing could erase the horrors of the past few days which culminated in Saturday night's wanderings.

Poverty. Adoption. Glimpse of riches and gratification of every wish.

Then rumors that, spreading, created furore. Corroboration of the gossip. Attempted suicide, followed by hours of gruelling questioning in Queen's County Courthouse.

Shakes With Sobs.

Mary Louise's story for a week. All the emotions of a lifetime crowded into a few short hours. No wonder the little body grows more frail. No wonder she shakes with dry sobs. She has used all her tears.

Even more pathetic than Mary Louise's condition, is the state of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Spas. The Wilson Avenue home is forlorn. Mrs. Spas, holding her head and rocking from side to side, refuses to talk.

Mr. Spas can only say:

"I hope she will be happy. And Mr. Browning forgives us. He is one fine man to do so."

On Saturday Mary Louise insisted to District Attorney Newcombe that she was "sixteen because I want to be sixteen." No amount of adroit questioning could trip her. And there were certain questions to which she apparently did not remember the answers.

Ellis Island records show that the Spas family came over on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. March 10, 1910. They had two daughters, Mary, aged six, and Mildred, eight.

Mr. Browning said he believed that Mary was misinformed as to her correct age by her parents, who are more or less illiterate, according to the neighbors

FATHER'S CHUM DIED IN EFFORT TO SAVE MOTHER

"He Might Easily Have Saved Himself," Harry Gabbutt Avers of His Son.

"MORE THAN CHILD."

Prince of Wales School Boy a Hero—Double Funeral To-day.

"Women and children first" is the ancient law of the sea, and many of those who follow the sea in ships have given their lives to live up to the honored standard. Douglas Gabbutt, eleven years old, must have remembered the first part of this admonition when he turned back to try and help save his mother from the fierce waters of the Otonabee on Saturday afternoon. He forgot the second part, or perhaps he didn't consider himself a child. The son of a soldier daddy, who was in the war, "from start to finish," what else would he do but follow that father's admonitions, oft repeated, as to the proper course to pursue in dangerous moments?

If Douglas had thought first of his own safety and forgotten his mother,—if Mrs. Gabbutt had known how to swim — if the canoe under which her body rested had moved a few inches to the side during the agonizing moments when her husband, grasping it, searched the waters for a glimpse of her form,—another drowning tragedy might have been averted. Three tragic "ifs."

There were no premonitions of disaster in the minds of the Gabbutt family when they started out to join the Nashua Paper Company's excursion on Saturday afternoon, and nothing to warn them of the clutch of Fate when they set out to find water-lilies under a smiling sun. The river, usually thronged with boats on such a pleasant day, was swept clean of people when the dark shadow of Death settled over the waters and took in its icy clutch the mother and child.

My Little Chum.

"He was more than a child to me. He was my chum, my little friend. What his father thought was absolutely "it" to him. Give Douglas all the credit you can. He deserves it for what he did. He might easily have saved himself. He was a fairly good swimmer, for a boy of his age, but he came back to help me with his mother, and did what I had always told him to do, got behind her and tried to keep her clear. As for me, I should be blamed for not using force to make her stop struggling," said the father this morning, tears running down his face at the thought of the little lad who had been his constant chum, a "baby in arms" when the big father marched away to war — always looking up to his daddy as a glorified hero. Douglas was a "real boy, all for sports," and when he went to see "The Dumbells'" show with his father, refused to applaud the selection by "Archibald," because the latter was such a "sissy." It was not in the mind of such a little boy, even at eleven years of age, to strike out for the shore and save himself, if he could do anything to help his father and mother.

"Yes, he gues to the Prince of Wales' School and to All Saints' Sunday School," said his father, using the present tense that gave such a tragic note to the quiet re-

TRIBESMEN AID FRENCH FORCES

Were Influenced By Recent Success of French Against Riffs.

AIRMEN ACTIVE.

By John O'Brien
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

FEZ, Morocco, Aug. 11.— French forces operating in the Ouezzan region have started a great cleaning up in the district south-west of the Holy City, where large bodies of unfriendly tribesmen have appeared in the last few days.

Around Amergou Mountain, however, the tribesmen are showing a new spirit since the spectacular French capture of this almost impregnable stronghold. Hitherto wavering, these tribesmen are now participating in the resistance against Riffian incursions. Ouled Bedder tribesmen, who joined the French Sunday, are lending great aid. The disturbance in the district south of Fez El Bali has ended. The French troops operating there have reached Moulay Bouchta without encountering resistance.

Meantime aerial activity is more intense and threatens to force Abd El Krim men to seek hiding places in the hills.

SECURITY PACT PARLEY BEGINS

Aristide Briand Calls on King Before Meeting Chamberlain.

AIR OF OPTIMISM.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The Foreign Ministers of Great Britain and France, Austen Chamberlain and Aristide Briand, began their conversations regarding proposals for a security pact with Germany to-day in an atmosphere of optimism. Belief was expressed in official quarters here that their meeting would result in a reply to the latest German communication on this subject, delivered to the Allies July 20, that would appreciably shorten the period of written interchanges between the Governments concerned, and would lead shortly to a round table conference in which all interested nations might participate directly.

Before his first meeting with Mr. Chamberlain this morning, M. Briand, with French Ambassador M. De Fleuriau, was received by the King.

It is understood that the first subject taken up by the two Foreign Ministers was a general outline of the draft reply to the last German note.

CROP CONDITIONS MUCH IMPROVED BECAUSE OF RAIN

Cutting of Wheat Is Now Well Under Way in Three Prairie Provinces.

SOME DAMAGE.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Crop conditions in Western Canada have shown great improvement as the result of beneficial rains and cooler weather during the last few days, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific agricultural department. Cutting of wheat is under way at several points in all three prairie provinces, and present prospects promise a better than average yield. Some damage has been reported from hail, cutworms and sawfly, while the recent heat wave caused additional deterioration.

Cutting of wheat, barley and rye now is general in Manitoba, with threshing started at a few points. While rust has infected fields in the southern part of the province, its effect has not been so pronounced as in previous years.

In Saskatchewan wheat cutting will be general this week. While the bright prospect of early June is not to be realized because of lack of moisture, a very fair crop is anticipated, the report states. Coarse grains will not prove a heavy crop this season. Having been sown later than wheat, these crops failed to attain growth before the July drought set in.

Crops in Alberta have held up exceptionally well under the continued heat wave and drought. Territory between Calgary and McLeod gives promise of a good yield. Between Medicine Hat and the United States border, the crop will be extremely light, due to drought. Areas east

Admiralty Asks Sailors To Bear Up Under Economy

LONDON, August 11. — Canadian Press Cable. — The Admiralty proposes introducing economies and in a letter promulgated at Portsmouth yesterday it expresses the hope that if the contemplated measures of economy militate against the comfort of the fleet's personnel the officers and men will do their utmost to minimize any adverse effect that may ensue as a result thereof.

WORK TOGETHER ON PEACE RIVER

Suggestions Made to C.P.R. and C.N.R. By Premier of Alberta.

MANAGE RAILWAY.

EDMONTON Alta. Aug. 11. — Canadian Press. — Joint operation of the Northern Railway lines, with the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific as interested parties instead of one or other of them alone, is the newest and latest scheme for solving the problem of the Peace River Railway tangle. An effort is to be made at once to work out a solution and as a first move to explore its possibilities.

Premier Herbert Greenfield has already wired to Sir Henry Thornton, who is now at the coast, to stop off at Edmonton for another conference on his way back. D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, will be asked to attend for his company, as it is not expected that either President Beatty or Grant Hall will be in the west at the time.

The purpose of the meeting will be to have a round table discussion between the two companies for the purpose of effecting a joint agreement with both of them participating in the operation of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia and Canada Central lines.

ARGENTINE SWIMMER ALMOST DROWNED IN ENGLISH CHANNEL

Lillian Harrison Was Saved By Ishak Helmy, Who Was Pacing Her.

NEVER AGAIN.

Girl Declares That She Will Not Make Another Attempt to Cross.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Lillian Harrison nearly lost her life yesterday by drowning in her fourth unsuccessful attempt to swim the English Channel. Only prompt work by Ishak Helmy, an Egyptian swimmer, who was in the water pacing her, prevented her from going to the bottom.

"Catch me, Helmy; I am going down," Miss Harrison suddenly exclaimed while apparently swimming strongly. She lurched forward, caught the Egyptian by the neck, and practically fainted. She was then hauled aboard the accompanying tug and brought back to Boulogne.

"This is my last attempt," said the little Argentine as she reached the deck of the tug in a semi-conscious state at 7.17 o'clock last evening, after having been in the water 7 hours and 5 minutes. "The Channel is too much for me."

When forced to acknowledge defeat, Miss Harrison was eight miles off Dover — just opposite Dover Castle. Her position when she abandoned her effort was the best ever reached by any Channel swimmer in the same elapsed time. The flood tide seemed to be rapidly pushing her toward the shore when she had to give up.

The swim, which was started at 12.12 p.m. from Cape Gris-Nez, was attempted under most difficult conditions. Channel experts and ancient mariners who were along the waterfront when the girl made her swim, said she was doomed to failure, and they expressed no undue surprise when the tug returned to Boulogne with her at 10.20 o'clock last night.

Miss Harrison revived physically shortly after she was taken aboard the tug, but her spirit seemed broken and she announced over and over that never again would she try to cross the rough and treacherous waterway.

The veteran trainer of aspirants for Channel honors, Jabez Wolff, said lack of proper nutrition caused the collapse of Miss Harrison. She is a vegetarian, and Wolff thought she was under-nourished.

Up to the time Miss Harrison succumbed to fatigue she seemingly was going strong. She was four miles out from Gris-Nez at 2.28 p.m. She met with extremely unfavorable weather for the first five hours, rain and hail and gusts of wind. At 4.30 o'clock she began taking nourishment and it seemed to give her new vigor.

At 4.35 o'clock the girl reached her highest speed. She previously had been doing 24 strokes to the minute, and she increased this to 26 strokes. The prospect for her crossing the Channel at this time appeared to be bright.

Jane Sion, the French girl who recently tried to make the trip across the Channel, went into the water and paced Miss Harrison for an hour and ten minutes. Then Helmy, the Egyptian, relieved the French girl and was swimming with the Argentine when she collapsed.

Chamberlain To Tackle West Ham Poor Guardians Who Pay Exhorbitant Out Of Taxpayers' Pockets

LONDON, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press) — At last, Neville Chamberlain, minister of health, has resolved to tackle seriously the West Ham poor law guardians who administer the poor law over a considerable area of East London and have made themselves notorious by their lavish scale of relief to the unemployed —£3 aweek to the head of a family or 10 shillings higher than the dole handed out by the guardians of Poplar borough who were formerly considered as holding the palm for generosity with the taxpayers' money.

The minister of health upon the reassembly of parliament after the vacation will introduce a bill authorizing the ministry to dissolve te recalcitrant guardians of West Ham and replace them by a nominated body. The only present remedy for the extravagant payment of unemployment relief in West Ham would be to surcharge the guardians personally with unlawful expenditure, but this would be a useless expedient in view of the fact that many of the guardians themselves have nothing.

CONSERVATIVES CAPTURE NEW BRUNSWICK HOUSE ELECT THIRTY-SIX MEMBERS; LIBERALS TWELVE; FARMERS' PARTY WAS OBLITERATED IN UPHEAVAL

Liberal Administration Will Relinquish Government to Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, Who Led the Conservatives to Overwhelming Victory.

PREMIER VENIOT HIMSELF ELECTED

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 11. — Canadian Press. — The defeat of the Veniot government was accomplished yesterday by the electors of New Brunswick. This morning finds 36 out of 48 seats in the Legislative Assembly in the hands of the Conservative Opposition party, led by Hon. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter. The present government holds the remaining 12.

Within two or three weeks the present administration will resign, and a government headed by Dr. Baxter (who resigned his seat in the Federal House of Commons to return to New Brunswick) will take office.

When the House was dissolved three weeks ago, the government had 29 seats, Opposition 12, and Farmers 7.

The farmers, as a result of yesterday's voting, passed out of the political picture, the only three candidates they had being defeated in Carleton County.

In every county but Northumberland the victories for each party were straight conquests. In Northumberland the Opposition captured three seats and the government one.

The opposition won in Restigouche two seats, Westmoreland four, Moncton City one; Albert two; Saint John County two; St. John City four; Charlotte three; St. Stephen, mill town, one; York three; Sunbury two, King's three; Queen's two; Carleton three; Fredericton, Marysville, Devon, one.

Premier Veniot Elected.

The government captured one seat in Northumberland, three in Kent, four in Gloucester, two in Victoria, and two in Madawaska.

Premier Veniot won by a large majority in his home constituency, but all the rest of his cabinet, with the exception of Hon. A. M. Dysart, recently appointed Minister of Lands and Mines, and Hon. J. E. Michaud, Minister without portfolio, were defeated.

Ninety-eight candidates contested 48 seats. Of the 98 more than 60 were men new to the political arena. Returns showed that 27 new opposition supporters and four new government supporters were elected, while seven government and ten opposition who sat in the last legislature have been elected again.

Farmers Wiped Out.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Yesterday's election throughout New Brunswick marked the passing of the Farmers' party as a political force in Provincial politics. The three candidates placed in nomination met with overwhelming defeat in Carleton, coming within an ace of losing their deposits. In the last Provincial elections the Government ticket opposing the same three Farmer candidates lost their deposits.

Silent in Defeat.

Speaking from Bathurst, over the long distance 'phone last night, Premier F. J. Veniot, whose government went down to defeat in the Provincial elections held throughout New Brunswick, stated he preferred not to comment on the result, pending the receipt of the complete returns. When asked if he could indicate how soon the Government would resign, the Premier stated it would take from two to three weeks at least for the administration to wind up its affairs.

Lost Their Deposits.

At least three candidates lost their deposits in the New Brunswick Provincial elections yesterday. They are: Hugh Wol. Balham, Government, St. Stephen-Milltown; J. E. McAuley, Independent, Kings and C. H. Labillois, Independent, Restigouche.

Yowling Of Cats Woke Folk In Burning House

FORT WILLIAM, August 11 —Canadian Press. — Two cats probably saved the lives of Mrs. James MacQuoil and Mrs. T. Gaudette and her son, yesterday. They were awakened by the yowls of their feline pets and Mrs. Gaudette rushed downstairs and opened the kitchen door to find the room a mass of flames. The alarm was given and the fire department extinguished the blaze before the remainder of the house was destroyed. The cats found their way into the basement, whence they were rescued.

LONDON, Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Plans for a trans-Atlantic airplane service, using double decker planes with accommodation for 150 passengers, and capable of making the run between London and New York in 35 hours, have been announced by Joseph Navarro, veteran British aircraft designer. According to the designer, the planes will have a wing spread of 185 feet. They will be equipped with nine 450 horsepower engines each, and will provide spacious accommodation for passengers.

The fare for a single trip will be about 55 pounds sterling per passenger.

REDS EXPELLED FROM REICHSTAG

TALKED IN RELAYS.

BERLIN, Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—It required the bodily intervention of twenty brawny security police officials yesterday to eject a few cantankerous Communists from the sitting of the Reichstag, where they had attempted to obstruct the debate on the Government's tariff programme. The Government is striving to push the tariff bill through the present session.

German Reds worked in relays, and just as soon as one of their obstructing members was removed, a successor stepped into the breach and tied up proceedings.

Vice-President Graef, deciding on short shift for offending members, summarily expelled five of the noisiest of the Communists from future sessions for periods ranging from eight days to three weeks. The disciplined members refused to leave the chamber voluntarily, and Herr Graef was compelled to summon a squad of security police, who literally dragged the resisting men from the floor, at the same time beating off other Communist, who fought to intervene.

The love which is often poetically described as a Spring "malady" has now been given a prosaic explanation. We are told that it is the addition moisture of the season that cause people to write poems, fall in love and shun work.

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE HURT IN CAR SMASH AT INGERSOLL

Car Driven By Mrs. H. W. Darcy Went Into Creek on Detour.

CAR SKIDDED.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press). — A Peterboro sedan, driven by Mrs. T. H. Darcy, of that city, left the road on the detour at Centreville, two miles west of here, Sunday night, and rolled down a thirteenfoot embankment. In its descent the big car landed first on one side, then rolled completely over on to the other side before coming to a halt at the edge of the creek. In the car with Mrs. Darcy was her son Robert, aged ten, her mother-in-law, Mrs. H. W. Darcy, and Mrs. James Fanning, all of Peterboro. Mrs. Darcy, Sr., aged 75, sustained a broken rib, hip and back injuries, and was sent home on the noon train. A car preceding the Darcy car skidded into the side of the road, but its own momentum brought it back up again. The Darcy's jammed on their brakes as their car also skidded toward the ditch. There was no momentum to bring it back. Accidents are happening on this detour every day. Sunday two cars collided head on, and both were badly damaged. No one was hurt.

Mrs. T. H. Darcy, who was injured in an automobile accident near Ingersoll, was resting at the home of her daughter-in-law this morning. She has been given sedatives to soothe her nerves. Several ribs are broken, but the exact nature of her internal injuries cannot be ascertained until the physicians make an X-ray examination.

POLICE RESCUE DRUNK IN CREEK

Millbrook Man Yelled For Help Behind Charlbond Apartments.

A REAL SOAKING.

Two drunks appeared in police court this morning, both of whom were apprehended last night, their plight presumably resulting from an over zealous endeavour to bring the holiday festivities to a fitting conclusion..

The first case was that of a local light who clutched a husky policeman to his breast with the avowed intention of incarcerating the minion of the law.

The other case was that of a Millbrook sport who, inflamed by the spirit of the day, etc., was progressing along Charlotte street. The even tenor of his way, he alleged, was interrupted by some thug who brought a blunt instrument to bear upon his nasal organ. Such was the force of the blow that he was dazed and presently found himself floundering in the creek behind the Charlbond apartments. Thinking in a desultory fashion that he had fallen from the liftlock tower he howled for a succor, which arrived in the vesture of a police sergeant.

To replace his soaked garments, the raiment of Sergeant Deanard was commandeered, and as the wet one was of limited physique, he presented a shrunken appearance to the onlookers. Friends who came to inquire concerning him, did not recognize him at first in his ample raiment. Rubber boots hid the nether half from view, while the trousers attained the level of his chin. The coat was a luxury which did not appear necessary, however. Encased in this multitudinous array was the roysterer of the night before.

In court he told a colorful tale of having been chicaned and fleeced of his roll by a footpad. A suspect of the deed appeared also, but the evidence was insufficient to warrant his retention.

When the inebriate of last night was asked for a statemtent he presented the fact that his nasal appendage had suffered a contusion and the resultant wetting in the creek was not conducive to comfort and happiness.

G. W. V. A. SPORTS PROVIDE FUN FOR THE PETERBORO POPULACE ON A STAY AT HOME HOLIDAY

Diversity of Amusement Keeps Crowd Guessing What to Look at Next.

MANY EVENTS.

9-Hour Old Baby Does a Half Mile Circuit in Record Time.

Civic Holiday at the Exhibition Grounds yesterday was like a combination of a three-ringed circus and ten side shows. The onlookers were divided into three classes—those who watched one sport steadily until its possibilities for entertainment were dead; those whose liking for one sport predominated but who wished to see what else could possibly hold the attention of others, and there were those who wished to play no favorites, but who constantly dashed from one pastime allotment to another in a lofty endeavor to distribute the patronage and ecouragement impartially and incidentally to get their money's worth. This latter class had a busy time of it, for there was plenty to look at all the time and every minute was crammed with absorbing events which would surfeit the veriest gourmet.

Yesterday it was proven conclusively that Peterborough can hold a sports day worthy of the attendance of its workers. Citizens who had faith in this ability were provided with a feast of clean wholesome amusement and if a great deal was crammed into one short day it should last the longer on that account. Many of the people who saw today's programme expressed the fervent hope that they would not be forced to wait long for the next meal.

Everything Well Handled.

The War Veterans had everything well in hand before the day came and the result was a smoothly running mechanism which worked out on schedule. All events were run off long before darkness came and fans were accordingly not disappointed by the curtailment of games or races because of darkness. There was also a wealth of talent and the contests were real from the take-off to the tape.

Aside from the baseball game at Riverside in the morning, interest appeared to reach it height during the fug-of-war event when the Board of Works and the De Laval teams strained to the limit of endurance before a winner was finally decided. The whole crowd in the grand stand rose up and roared its approbation of the manner in which the modern Cyclops pulled on the hempen strand. The Board of Works doubtless never worked harder than they did in pulling the husky De Laval men from their tracks.

The bicycle road race did not get the thrilling finish which was intended for it. It was intended that the West gate be open to admit the cyclists, who would circle the track and finish before the stand; but when at the end of their grind they finally reached the gate, it was closed and barred, so a substitute finish was staged with the winners in the same order in which they arrived at the barrier.

The soft ball games, too, excited a deal of attention which could have been continued all afternoon by ardent fans, for the games lasted that long before a winner was dicided; and then when the male sports dropped their monopoly of the diamond, two girls' teams took possession and gave an exhibition of "How to Play Soft Ball," wherein an All Star team of nearly a clear Woolen texture turned the tables on tlhe C.G.E. team by defeating them 10-3.

The ponies also made their bid for attention and their manoeuvres as they juggled for a start caused the feelings of the audience to become mixed as they appreciated the finesse of the art or deplored the waste of time in false starts. Some were caught napping when Art Blade let them go, but in the main the starts were good and the finishes not devoid of thrills.

For those musically inclined, the Rangers' Band was in attendance to cater to the most exacting tastes and after supper it was right back again with more of the same article which it continued to mete out unstintingly.

The music for the discriminating taste and the ensemble of music and the hub-bub of vendors, hawkers, squawkers and talkers for the one who likes a good accompaniment of noise combines gave an entertainment which the most fastidious acclaimed with glee.

The "fute-ba'" five-a-side tournament was the prime attraction for those who hailed from the Motherland and they could gaze on the punts, bunts, kicks and checks with a real appreciation which could never be simulated by one brought up in an atmosphere of home runs and strike outs. The football games were accordingly rather sparsely attended, but the interest which they excited was none the less keen and the game itself is one which is growing each year in popularity.

The jumps were provocative of a deep interest, as many gazed unbelievingly at Elliott and Bearne who soared skyward like rockets and cleared the little bamboo stick. If events such as this were held oftener it is certain that considerable talent could be developed among the city athletes. Johnnie Marchen resembled a whiz-bang as he hurtled his way through the atmosphere to drop seventeen feet seven inches from the take-off mark.

Possibly the fastest time made on the track yesterday was recorded by Patrick Hobbins, who did the half mile in something flat. While young Hobbins didnt get anything for the half mile, he drew a prize for being the youngest contended on the grounds, but for his age he was recognized as a comer. The young athlete was born at 1.30 August 10, 1925, and was 13 hours old when he filled out his first entry form.

The prize for the largest family on the ground went to James Griffen, whose household present numbered eleven.

The oldest sportsman still on the wark was George Deanard of 478 Donegal Street, who was 88 years and 11 months old.

BURNBRAE'S FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON

Lost To Seymour West—Errors Were Costly.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 11. — In the replay of a postponed Seymour League game here Friday evening, Seymour West handed the Burnbrae League leaders their first defeat of the season. Errors spelled the defeat of the Burnbrae boys who had seven chalked up against them, although only two really figured in the scoring. Eagleson held the Westerners to three hits, one a double by Atkinson, who walked three. Christie, Seymour West's imported pitcher, was touched for nine safe singles, but was good in the singles, not only hit one batter, walking none. Eagleson fanned seven, while Christie whiffed eight.

DIED IN DENTIST'S CHAIR.

Anaesthetic Dropped Into Toronto Man's Throat.

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Death came tragically yesterday afternoon to S. J. Fisher, a well-known East End business man, as the resulting of taking an anaesthetic for the removal of some teeth in the office of Dr. P. A. Beattie. He was being prepared for the operation with a mild anaesthetic by the dentist. During this process he struggled. His struggles brought on a rupture in the jaw, with the result that pus and some of the anaesthetic dropped into the larynx and chocked him. A widow and family of five children, the youngest of whom is only ten weeks old, survive.

CROP CONDITIONS

of Brooks, Taber and Foremost are in the same category. Cutting of wheat, oats and barley is fairly general.

Rain would materially revive the oat crop in districts where seeding was late.

First wheat threshed along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway went 25 bushels to the acre, but the average yield will be lower. Conditions have improved during the past week, and harvesting operations will be general by the fifteenth of the month.

Hot and dry weather continues in British Columbia. Root crops and early apples are now moving in a steady volume. Field crops have been well up to the average yields of previous years.

DOUBLE DROWNING

The body of the boy was not recovered until Sunday afternoon.

The body of the mother was taken back to the Point landing, and assistance called immediately.

Due to the difficulty in getting a line to the city and to the fact that officials had to be located, some time elapsed before the pulmotor arrived on the scene.

Dr. G. B. Mann of Peterboro, and Dr. Russell of Bailieboro, rushed quickly to the place, and previous to this two nurses, Mrs. Reptke and Miss Feeley had applied first aid methods in a futile effort to restore respiration.

The pulmotor, which arrived later, was then applied, but no success resulted. The body was then taken to Peterborough in an ambulance.

Some of those on the picnic stated that Mr. Gabbutt came running down the road, calling out "Come down with me—the wife and boy—I've lost them!" and he immediately leaped into a canoe and paddled madly upstream. Many others followed in other small crafts.

R. A. Brown, manager of the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, who was camping at Chemong, came to the place of the mishap, and was doing everything in his power to recover the boy's body.

Mr. Gabbutt returned to Peterborough immediately afterwards to procure grappling irons to aid in the work of recovery.

A party of the employees of the Nashua Paper Company worked until dark and returned early on Sunday morning. At 3.30 Sunday afternoon the boy's body was found a short distance below the scene of the accident.

The boy's death was probably due to his attempt to help his father in rescuing the mother, as the lad was able to swim, and could have reached the shore.

The funeral took place this morning from Comstock's parlours to All Saints' church, and the Little Lake cemetery.

BUILDINGS HIT BY LIGHTNING

Men Work on Sunday Night to Save House and Barn.

COW KILLED.

KING'S WHARF, Aug. 11.—During the fierce electric storm on Sunday night a drive shed belonging to Michael O'Neill was struck by lightning and burned. The hen house and pig pen were also ignited and were burned to the ground. A great crowd of over 200 gathered to protect the barn and house and managed to save them from the flames by dint of carying water a distance of 50 rods. Those who helped control the flames were utterly unmindful of injuries to clothing, but sacrificed appearance and safety to the general need. The driving shed contained 10 tons of hay, a new corn binder, sleighs and many small articles, all of which were burned. One cow and three pigs were killed by the lightning. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

MARMORA MILITIA ON CHURCH PARADE

Splendid Address and Music For Special Services.

MARMORA, Aug. 11.—Owing to the presence of the military in town, the service at the United Church on Sunday evening was of a special character. The pastor, in lieu of a sermon, gave an address on "The Two Flags," touching on the significance of the Union Jack and the respect we should have for the Christian flag. At the conclusion of the service a very choice organ recital was given, during which the Rev. F. J. Horwood, Mus. Bac., played a military march from Schubert, the every pleasing "Humoreque," and a march from "Tannhauser." There was a large congregation present, including men from the camp. Rev. and Mrs. Horwood and daughter, Ruby, left on Monday for their holidays.

Rev. H. S. Osborne, B.A., B.D., of Central Methodist church, Toronto, will preach at the evening service next Sunday.

NORHAM, Aug. 11, — Mr. and Mrs. Winters, of Cobourg, who for the past eleven years have been annual visitors at Percy Boom, while on their way to the camp ground a few days ago, had a narrow escape from serious injury. When near Bradley's Corners, Mr. Winters, who was driving a sedan car, loaded with camping equipment, made an effort to swat a bee, and while doing so lost control of the wheel. The car bolted into a ditch, damaging one rear wheel and smashing the glass in one door. A basket of fruit was also badly broken. The car struck a fence post, breaking it off, and came to a standstill in the wire fence. The occupants of the car were badly shaken up.

CAMPBELLFORD IS OFFERED HIGH PRICE FOR SEWER DEBENTURES

Toronto Bond Dealer Bids $100.50 For Issue of $50,000—Not Marketed Yet.

MAY RENT ROLLER.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 11.—Campbellfords financial reputation, in spite of anything optimists and knockers may say to the contrary, is still rated A1, at least the bond dealers of Ontario continue to offer a premium for the debentures issued by this town. A few days ago it was announced in The Examiner, that the Council had decided to issue over $50,000 worth of sewer bonds to run 10 and 15 years and to bear interest at the rate of 5 1-2 per cent. It was also stated that at least a portion of these bonds would be offered for sale locally.

At the regular meeting of the Council last night a communication was received from a financial firm in Toronto offering to take all or part of the issue at $100.50. The letter stated that the town would realize more by accepting this offer than by selling the bonds over the counter as it was proposed to do.

"Better put the debetnures on the market, said Town Solicitor D. J. Lynch, when his opinion was asked.

As the sewers are not yet completed, the Council cannot yet advertise the debentures for sale, and for this reason further consideration of the matter was postponed.

New Councillor Present.

J. Nelson Stone, recently elected councillor, was present for the first time, occupying the seat formerly held by his predecessor, R. S. Southworth. Reeve Davidson presided in the absence of Mayor Meyers, and the other absentees were Councillors Moore and Wiggins. Councillor Stone took a prominent part in the discussions, showing that he was perfectly familiar with the local situation and was one of those who advocated that a halt be called in sewer construction, believing that the limit of expenditure had been reached.

Objects to Sewer Assessment.

John Hall wrote on behalf of other ratepayers and himself, objecting to the assessment of $2.85 a foot front for the Second Street sewer and asking for a reduction. Mr. Hall called attention of the fact that the assessment for the sewer on Market Street and Oliver Road, work on which has not yet been started, had been reduced from $2 to $1.40 a foot.

It was decided that as the Second Street sewer was well under way and the bylaw adopted, no change could be made in the assessment.

Wants Sewer Continued.

W. W. Rutherford asked if the Council intended to continue the Second Street sewer east Ranney to Centre Street. He lives on Second Street near Centre, and is anxious to have water and sewer connection.

All that prevents the extension of this sewer is the question of cost. On motion of Council Cole it was decided to leave the discussion of this question to a special meeting to be called by the Mayor, when all the councillors can be present.

Other matters were laid over to be disposed of at this special meeting. These included a tender—which was not opened—for the construction of the sewer on Market Street and Oliver Road, the passing of the bylow required for this work, and the request of J. O'Brien for work on the Johnston Hill after the committee on roads and bridges has investigated the matter.

George Wallace asked for two lights on First Street near the Sixth Concession Line and the Water and Light Commission will be asked to install them.

Sewer Work Halted.

At the July meeting a petition by ratepayers was received asking for a sewer on Queen north of Church Street. Following the usual course this petition was referred to Clerk McGregor for verification.

Mr. McGregor found that no outlet for this sewer into the Government sewer along the canal could be secured except through private property, and he took no further action. It was stated that the interested ratepayers were simply getting affairs in order and that they did not expect that work on the sewer would be started this year.

The matter was left over until the next regular meeting.

Renting the Roller.

Reeve Hess of Hastings wants to rent the town road roller for use on the bridge which is being built in that village. It was estimated that the roller would be required for three days, two of which would be required for the trip to Hastings and return and one for actual work on the bridge. The figures quoted by Mayor Meyers to Reeve Hess were $25 a day for three days or $20 if the roller was kept for a week. Hastings to pay in addition the wages of the engineer and fireman and the cost of the fuel.

Councillor Stone said it would be a risky proceeding to take the roller over the roads and bridges between here and Hastings, and was in favor of declining the offer. Councillor Abernethy said that the roller could be quickly and safely taken to Hastings and back on a flat car and all greed if this method was adopted by Hastings, the village should be allowed the use of the machine.

On motion of Councillors Kingston and Stone, the matter was left to the committee on roads and bridges.

Another Problem.

Another problem confronts the Council, and that is the matter of securing a suitable building in which to house for the winter the new road machinery purchased this year, together with the road grader.

Now that the farmers have begun to set bear traps to catch chicken thieves, will some conservationist start a movement to put these almost extinct animals on the protected list?

INSPECTOR DEAD.

HOW AN ACCIDENT BROUGHT AVIATION

When Wilbur Wright Twisted a Paper Box He Solved Problem.

Because Wilbur Wright could not keep his fingers quiet, we now have the airplane.

It was an outcropping of this nervous habit in an insignificant incident that led to the most amazing of the Wright's inventions—the marvellous warping wings that made aviation practical.

The bicycle shop that the young Wrights conducted, writes John R. McMahon in Popular Science Monthly for September, was kept open late evenings to cater to the trade of factory employees. Wilbur was on duty one night in July.

A customer came in. If he had asked for a tire tape, a wrench, or a pump, the course of history might have been changed. But this customer asked for an inner tube for his bicycle tire. That tube was packed in a rectangular pasteboard box. Wilbur held the empty box by its end while the customer examined the contents. Wilbur's hands were inclined to be nervously active. He looked down and suddenly realized what he was doing with an empty box—twisting it—warping it. What was this? Can't hinge wings? Never! But you can warp them! Eureka!

Wilbur closed the shop in a hurry and rushed home to tell Orville.

Usually each brother, in the interest of truth, savagely assailed the other's idea. This time Orville heard the box story, made no argument, and just accepted Wilbur's warping amendment to the hingle principle. Then and there one-half of the problem of lateral balance of the airplane was solved for all time. It was simply a great inspiration, like Newton's falling apple.

Within a month after the warping scheme came to him, the Wrights tried it out on a box kite that they flew from Seminary Hill, in Dayton. A large audience of small boys begged to assist. The kite, a five-foot biplane, acted badly from the small boys' viewpoint — it scooted here and darted there like mad, but satisfied its makers, since it responded to the control cords that twisted its frame.

By means of the kite the Wright brothers were able to demonstrate that their idea of warping the wings was correct basically.

GIANT PLANES TO CROSS SEA IN DAY

French Factory Builds Huge Flying Boats for Transatlantic Service.

Within the next five years we shall see giant transatlantic airplanes that will carry at least 75 passengers from New York to Paris in 26 hours, and at a cost less than present passage on large steamships!

This prophecy come, not from an idle dreamer, but from a hard headed, practical designer of airplanes, a pioneer in aviation. He is Louis Breguet, French airplane manufacturer, whose factory in Paris is said to turn out more machines on a commercial basis than any other plant in the world.

While the working plans for such an air monster have been completed according to reports published in the September issue of Popular Science Monthly, M. Breguet expects that the machine will not be built, tested, and ready for trial flight before five years.

The machine will be of all-metal construction, with twin bodies, capable of alighting on either land or water. With a load of 75 passengers, freight, and baggage it will weigh 55 tons. Power will be supplied by eight motors developing a total of 5000 horsepower.

Luxurious passenger quarters in the two hulls and in the wings will include eight first-class cabins, 52 second-class, and 15 third-class. The first-class cabins will be six feet high, six feet wide, and 10 feet long. In addition, there will be a restaurant with electrical cooking equipment throughout, and a reading-room and lounge where smoking will be permitted.

The crew of the giant aircraft will include, besides the commander a chief electrician and assistant, two pilots, eight mechanics, four cooks, and a wireless operator.

It has been estimated that the cost of building the plane—about $2,000,000—will be covered by receipts from 2000 hours' flying time. The passenger fare for each trip, it is predicted, will average about $200.

According to present plans, the transatlantitc flight in summer will be charted on a non-stop course between New York and Paris by way of Newfoundland, while in the winter a southern route will be taken by way of the Azores.

PRISONS NOT SO BAD SAYS EXPERIMENTER

Mrs. Huck Had Herself Jailed to Find Out What It Was Like.

Mrs. Winnifred Mason Huck, former representative in the United States congress, had a great yearning for experiment. Being a forceful lady with great tenacity of purpose, she decided that she might as well investigate things as not. She had plenty of time.

She arranged for a friend to charge her with stealing an overcoat. The case came to court and Mrs. Huck pleaded guilty. She was given a six months jail term.

Three days were spent in Cleveland surrounded by bums, dopes, and bad food, according to the ex-congresswoman's account. The voluntary convict was then transferred to Marysville prison in company with a negress bootlegger. There she resided with female murderers and thieves, found them a kindly lot and conditions generally satisfactory.

After a month, she was pardoned and, following a dinner at the executive mansion, set out again with a total capital of $5.00. Despite the fact that she made no secret of her prison record, she easily secured a job as maid in Columbus. After she had saved $15 she went to Wheeling, W. Va., worked in a factory at $9 a week and lived on her earnings.

Her next job was one as chambermaid in a Pittsburgh hotel. When the management learned about her past, they refused to allow her in the guests' rooms but, on the whole, they were nice about it and gave her a new job in the afternoon.

Eventually she reached Manhattan with 43 cents, where the Salvation Army gave her a night's lodging for 30 cents and the United Charities found her a position.

Then she returned to Chicago and her children with a huge collection of experiences.

Incidentally her ideas on the subject of prison reform were greatly changed.

"Every prisoner I met," she told reporters, "feared the law and hated it for the punishment it imposed. There is a dread, caused by fear of prison, which I am now convinced is beneficial. Formerly I thought prisons out of date. But they serve a useful purpose. Only there is not enough attention paid to the problem of fitting girls to lead a new life once they are released."

MR. FIELDING.

The Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding has definitely retired from public life and Mr. William Duff, M.P., has been nominated by the Liberals to represent the veteran Finance Minister's present constituents in Nova Scotia in the next House. Thus does another brilliant figure pass from Canada's political stage. Mr. Fielding gave long and faithful service to his country and his name will ever be held in grateful memory.—Border Cities Star.

STRIKE POOR WEAPON.

The coal miners in Nova Scotia have been idle four months. Two of these should have been almost the busiest in the year; in the other two work might not have been steady but it would have occupied at least half the time. The miners have lost in wages not less than four million dollars. If they were to go to work now, at the rates that were in effect when they struck, it would take them three years to make up this loss, if they were to put aside for this purpose ten per cent. of their earnings during the whole of that time. In other words, they would be as well off at the end of three years if they had not struck and had kept at work at the ten per cent. reduction proposed by the companies, as they could be if the strike were to end now and the 1924 scale were to be maintained throughout the period. Market conditions are now less favorable than they were six months ago when it was shown that the mines could not be operated on the 1924 scale of wages, and the mines are not in as good shape to meet unfavorable conditions as they were then. Out of the decreased price now obtainable for the output of the mines must come the cost of restoring them, and from some source or other the expense of four months' idleness and strife must be defrayed. —St. Catharines Standard.

THE CALL OF THE WILD.

These are days when the call of the wild is strongest, when most people desire to be out in the fresh air and the sunshine, not necessarily to fish or to do anything very much, but simply to be away from shut-in life. This feeling must be innate, and no doubt psychologists would trace it back to the days when men had no such houses as they have to live in nowadays, but lived in the open. But work must be done, and circumstances do not admit of this call being answered by hosts of people.

There are, however, fortunately, more means now for people to heed it to some extent. The automobile is especially one, as thousands, nay millions, of people have found. An hour's run, or perhaps less, enable them to get away into the "wild," or the country. Then the electric car services are extending their rails more and more out into districts of the country. But what strikes us most about the matter is that seeing the universality of this call, more men do not go in for farming. That is the life possibly beyond all others which would enable them to be out most in the sunshine and the fresh air. Of course, it may be objected that the winter on a farm is hard, but at all events even then the farmers get the fresh air and the sun, while there are many other compensations. But, anyway, so far as we are concerned, the call of the wild is very strong as we have got thus far with this editorial, and we are going to get out into the sunshine and fresh air straight away.

NO BATHING BEAUTIES FROM CAPE MAY.

Probably few people in Ontario have ever heard of Cape May, New Jersey. It has nevertheless acquired recent and deserved fame by declining to send a representative to the annual bathing-girl contest at Atlantic City. The city manager of Cape May, who corresponds to the mayor, replied to the invitation by saying: "We can not see the propriety of young women being sent with pomp and circumstance to Atlantic City, or any other city, once a year to be measured, weighed, appraised and gazed on by a curious multitude. Call us old-fashioned if you like, but count Cape May out. We will keep our beautiful girls at home."

Undoubtedly Cape May is old-fashioned, the kind of wholesome old-fashioned place that most Canadians like. The bathing-girl competitions in which our American neighbors have learned to delight during recent years are probably not as serious from a moral point of view as they have been painted, but they are an example of cheapness and often of vulgarity which can serve no good purpose to any community. In any case the bathing-girl competition is a futile affair, for it has never yet resulted in the selection of a winner who can be accepted as representing properly either the most attractive or the most intelligent of a community's girlhood. Being old-fashioned like Cape May is a pretty good thing sometimes. It saves money and prevents trouble.—London Advertiser.

KEEPING AND BREAKING AGREEMENTS.

Viscount Grey, who as Sir Edward Grey was British Minister for Foreign Affairs at the beginning of the World War, relates in his forthcoming book, chapters of which are appearing in The World's Work, many incidents of and draws sound conclusions from his experiences at the centre of interest and activity in one of the most stirring times in history.

Lord Grey's views of international agreements, based on the way some were treated in that period, lends force to what he has to say regarding the negotiation of such agreements in the future.

"One lesson from the experience of the war," he asserts, "is that we should not bind ourselves to observe any rules of war unless those who sign them with us undertake to uphold them by force, if need be, against an enemy who breaks them. We kept the rule against the use of poison gas till the Germans broke it, and when they did break it we had neither gas nor protection against gas ready."

That rule to preserve the semblance of humanity in the conduct of war became thus a distinct disadvantage to the British. "To bind ourselves by rules which we intend to keep and others intend to break is unreasonable as long as those who break them can do so with impunity," says Lord Grey.

That is the essence of the entire question of making international agreements. To be effective such agreements must be so drawn that any nation which violates them will become by that action the enemy of all the other signatory powers, so that those powers need require no other cause for joining in arms against the offender.—Chicago News.

THE SHOOTING OF BANDITS.

It is rather a significant feature of the times, and yet one that is totally inconsistent, that, while a considerable volume of public opinion is opposed to capital punishment, this same public opinion is approving the private execution of bandits and murders at sight when they are caught in the perpetration of their crimes. In the recent shooting of the bandit at St. David's the Attorney-General stated that there was no ground for prosecution against the bank manager's wife who came to the aid of her husband and shot the bandit dead who was attacking him. The coroner's jury confirmed this opinion when it exculpated the manager's wife, and commended her for her courage and presence of mind in saving the life of her husband.

These two deliverances show that a pronounced change has come over public opinion in this regard, for which the perpetrators of these desperate crimes are responsible. A few years ago any one who killed another, either in defense of life or property, had to face a formal judicial trial. This was true whether in the case of guardians of the law or private individuals. No matter how plain the justification was shown to be by the circumstances, the accused person had to face the formality of a trial. This course was regarded as necessary in order to safeguard human life. Now judicial and public encouragement is given to the summary execution of bandits at sight by private means.

This is one of the products of the lax administration of the law. All too frequently juries, even under the weight of overwhelming evidence, have refused to find the accused persons guilty. This always leads to resentment, private feuds, and the visitation of vengeance by private means. In the United States it has gone so far that large rewards have been offered for the private execution of bandits at sight. It is not an enviable condition when organized society, for its own protection, is compelled to resort to such drastic methods. And yet, under present conditions, unless better protection is afforded by law, and the carrying of firearms entirely prohibited, it appears to be necessary. As the Montreal Gazette says: "Death for murderous-minded marauders, either sudden when they can be caught in the act or by process of law when it has not been possible to prevent them from killing, is society's most potent defense against these evil gentry and its most effective answer to their defiance of right and law."—Brantford Expositor.

THE REAL CRISIS IN ENGLAND.

Behind the English coal crisis it has long been evident that there is a more far-reaching menace. In his speech of Thursday the Prime Minister said that a "great alliance of trade unions"—those of mines, railways and shipping—"had the power and the will," and apparently had adopted "the deliberate and avowed policy" of bringing on a stoppage of all industry as the means of enforcing their own will. "If that be so," said Mr. Baldwin, "I don't see how constitutional government can live."

It is not merely that the ancient bicameral system has broken down. The House of Commons itself has ebbed in prestige and in power. Half a century ago Walter Bagehot declared that Cabinet Government had proved possible only because England was "a deferential country." The electors "liked to have one of their 'betters' represent them; if he was rich they respected him much, and if he was a lord they liked him better." He foresaw the passing of that mood, and with it the whole spirit of the Constitution—unless the newly enfranchised masses learned to defer to "the higher qualities" of mind and character of which wealth and rank had been "the rough symbols and the common accompaniments." What Mr. Baldwin meant was that this has not come to pass. England has emerged from the war with her prestige unsullied and her dominion widely extended—but with her economic system racked to the breaking point.

If she is to abate unemployment and re-establish her foreign trade, it is indispensable to bring order and efficiency into her basic coal industry. The majority of the nation has elected leaders easily capable of this—if only the minority would "defer" to them. But the Government has pleaded in vain. A disastrous strike has been avoided at the expense of an expedient scarcely less ominous—more ominous if persisted in and extended to the other basic industries. And eventually the very workers who have held up the Government like highwaymen will themselves be chief sufferers.

At the root of the trouble lie conditions which not even Bagehot foresaw, conditions which now pervade all highly industrialized countries. In order to safeguard labor against oppression we have vested it with rights which, in their modern development, give it a power transcending that of the Government. No enlightened statesman wishes to destroy labor unionism—and none seems able to devise a means of controlling it. Our own attempts toward an industrial court have been wrecked. Canada has been more fortunate in attempting less. It is there a penal offense for labor leaders to call a strike without first submitting to arbitration. But arbitration has generally proved a makeshift, resulting in meaningless compromises—and Canada is not a highly industrialized country. The need is for steady self-government under established law.

For England, meantime, there is a ray of hope in Mr. Baldwin's allusion to a quickening of trade. Once more, no doubt, the nation will muddle through. But not England nor any thoroughly industrialized country will be on the highway of progress until it has brought organized labor within the scope of its Constitution. —New York Times.

KILLING DOGS

There is someone roaming around Browntown just now, that a whole lot of people would like to catch, "A dog killer." I don't think it would be a "pink tea" for the poisoner if caught. On Thursday there were five valuable dogs poisoned.

Any person that sets poison around on the street for little inoffensive dogs, I think, is too low to walk. He ought to crawl. The dogs that were poisoned were all very small dogs. I don't think any of them weighed over ten pounds. Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain yesterday was extremely dull and the volume of business was small. Spot prices for oats were unchanged and the demand was limited.

A moderate amount of export business was transacted in winter and spring wheat grades of flour. Prices were unchanged.

The demand for millfeed was good but owing to the scarcity of supplies, little business was done, but prices were steady. The rolled oat market continued active with a good deal of both home and foreign trade being done. Prices were firm.

Exports of butter from Montreal for Europe last week were 14,730 packages as against 32,785 of the previous week and 8,783 for the same week last year. The total shipments from May 1 to last Saturday were 168,222 as against 24,982 for the same period a year ago. The local butter market yesterday was firm and trade in the home market was fair. Prices remained unchanged. Receipts of butter in Montreal yesterday were 2,312 as against 6,787 last Monday and 2,741 on the same day a year ago.

Cheese exports from Montreal for Europe last week were 40,257 boxes as against 57,815 the previous week and 51,102 for the corresponding week last year. The total shipments from May 1 to Saturday last were 601,193 boxes and for the same period last year 462,937 boxes. There was little change in the local market, a fair number of cable orders being dealt with but little home trade being done. Prices were firm.

Extreme quietness still prevails in the local egg market. The hot weather continuing, there is very little demand and there are practically no sales. Prices were the same. The receipts of eggs in Montreal today were 1,654 as compared with 10,363 on the previous Monday and 6,421 on the same day a year ago.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—Buyers held off in the wheat market pending the appearance of the government crop reports due after business for the day was at an end. The official forecast of the 1925 yield of wheat in the United States turned out to be larger than was looked for, and the Canadian forecast was also somewhat larger than had been expected. Meanwhile, wheat closed unsettled, one quarter to 1 cent net lower; September 165 1-4 to 165 3-8, and December 163 3-8 to 163 5-8. Corn finished at 1-4 to 1 1-2 cents gain; oats 1-4 to 3-8 cent off, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents higher.

With export business at almost a standstill for the time being and with scattered selling in progress on the part of holders who wished to realize profits, the wheat market tended downward most of the day. The majority of commission houses were advising would-be purchasers that it would be well to wait for a material break before taking hold. Better weather conditions in Canada and a decline in quotations at Liverpool counted also as factors on the better side of the market.

Increasing arrivals of wheat at Minneapolis were the subject of considerable notice. An increase of the United States visible supply total and of the amount of wheat on ocean passage were also given attention. Under such circumstances, rallies which took place lacked force, notwithstanding that boats here were loading more than 1,000,000 bushels yesterday and that the outlook is for a substantial reduction of Chicago stocks this week.

MONTREAL CHEESE

MONTREAL, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—At the United Dairymen's Co-operative sale of cheese here yesterday 2,373 boxes of cheese were sold. The number consisted of 53 boxes of special white which sold at 21 9-16 cents per lb; 1,344 boxes of No. 1 white which sold at 21 1-2 cents per lb. and 997 boxes of No. 1 colored which sold at 21 1-2 cents per lb.

Co-operative Butter Sold.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—At the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society sale of butter here yesterday 2,300 boxes were sold and consisted of 1,200 No. 1 pasteurized, which sold at 38 5-8 cents per lb.; 800 boxes of No. 1 creamery at 37 5-8 cents per lb., and 300 boxes of No. 2 creamy at 36 5-8 cents per lb.

GARDEN PARTY.

Continuing Presbyterian Church at Burnbrae Carry on Name.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 8.—The members of the old church at Burnbrae who voted to remain out of the Union, insist on still designating themselves as Presbyterians and it was under that name they advertised their annual garden party which was held on the Public School grounds Thursday evening. In spite of the reverses of the past year that garden party will stand as a new record for the congregation both as to attendance and receipts. The sum of $229.00 was taken at the gates and the sales in the booths which were kept busy all evening ran the total up to $384.

The grounds were beautifully decorated and brilliantly illuminated with delco lights. The Campbellford band furnished one of their choice musical programmes and the attendance were representative of every corner of the district.

A game of baseball features those doughty rivals, the Burnbraes and English Liners, resulted in a 4-4 tie.

The Burnbrae Presbyterians, always leaders on this occasion, simply excelled all former records.

Only two "donkey wells" now remain in England. The one at Kenworth, near Dunstable, was built about 1660. In these wells donkeys walk inside a huge wheel, causing it to revolve and draw water from the depths of the earth.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

Giving up, but still flying low, he swung over the stream which flowed below the bluff at the edge of the forest. Looking down he saw two waving figures. He came lower and recognized them. But there was no place to land on this side of the stream. He maneuvered about, looking for a landing, and finally located a flat spot on the other bank. In a few minutes he swooped down, brought the plane to a stop there, and climbed out.

He was half a mile or so below the spot where he had seen Mary and Terence. He waited impatiently, and soon saw them coming down the other bank. They waved, plunged into the stream, and wading and swimming, finally joined him.

"We must hurry right back to the ranch," Bud said after expressing his joy to find them alive after their ordeal. "They have sent for your father, thinking you are dead. He will be worrying himself to death."

They climbed into the plane and started aloft.

* * *

Just as the sheriff's posse, with its prisoner, was passing the gates of the Bar M. Ranch, there was a buzzing sound in the sky. Miquel, excited, pointed upward and cried:

"Senor Marshall, look—the plane. Maybe she is in it—maybe Miss Mary is saved."

New hope started in old Marshall's breast. He begged the sheriff for permission to stop a few moments. It was granted. The procession halted, and waited while the plane swooped toward the ground. Miquel rushed into the ranch to meet it. At the same moment Taggart came out of the ranch house.

Marshall gazed nervously as the machine descended, trying to make out who was in it. At last it touched the ground, taxied to a stop.

"Thank God," cried Marshall, as he saw the three figures climb out of the plane.

Miquel seized Mary by her hand and dragged her to her father. Terence, Taggart, and Bud followed.

"See, Senor, she lives, she lives," Miquel cried. "Oh, I knew she must—I was praying so hard."

"Daddy, daddy," screamed Mary. "What does it mean? Where are they taking you?"

Marshall dismounted—the sheriff and his men, touched did not interfere, even though it was a technical violation of the rights of a prisoner.

Mary flew to his arms.

"Don't worry, my dear," Marshall said, kissing her, stroking her head, and choking back his emotions. "They got me at last—but I'm happy—so happy that you are alive."

Taggart came up, shook hands with Marshall, and feigned the deepest sympathy.

"But don't worry," he said. "I'm a lawyer and I'll take care of your interests. I'll see the judge first thing in the morning about bail."

Terence and others came up and shook Marshall's hand and tried to cheer him. Finally the sheriff broke in with.—

"Sorry, Marshall, we'll have to cut it short now and go along."

Mary raged in tears and protests, and clung to her father's neck.

"Daddy, Daddy dear, they can't, they mustn't take you away," she screamed.

He tried to calm her.

"Don't worry, dear, it will all come out all right in the end," he said.

He clasped her in a last long embrace, and finally tore himself from her arms as the sheriff's men began to show impatience.

Mary, supported in Terence's soothing arms, stared vacantly down the road as the procession moved on and vanished in the distance.

CHAPTER 15.
Stella Montrose.

The news of John Marshall's arrest, reviving interest in the old murder case that had remained unsolved for fifteen years created a stir throughout the State of Arizona. It was shrieked from the headlines of every newspaper.

Up in the city of Bisbee, Ariz., a woman who had once been pretty, and who still made herself attractive, awakened just before noon, slipped into a fancy silken negligee, lighted a cigarette and rang for her maid to order breakfast. She reclined on the lounge in her luxurious apartment, which was furnished like an Arabian Night's dream, and the morning paper was brought her.

The headline caught her eye:

JOHN MARSHALL CAPTURED
Fugitive for 15 years,
Well Known Cattleman Faces Trial for Murder Of "Black" Benway.

She straightened up and read the dispatch with great eagerness, her eyes jumping from phrase to phrase: "Trapped while making a stealthy return last evening to his ranch near Pico, after hiding across the Mexican border for fifteen years, John Marshall, well-known cattleman, once reputed wealthy, was arrested and taken to the Pico jail to await trial for the murder of "Black" Benway.

"After the slaying of Benway on the night of ——"

Stella Montrose dropped the paper and rang excitedly for her maid.

"Pack my bag right away, Annie," she ordered, "and call for my car. I'm driving to Pico today."

* * *

Marshall, a sick and weary man, sat in his cell. Mary, Terence, and Taggart, who had come up to Pico first thing in the morning to visit him, sat clustered about him.

"Daddy, we must get you out of this terrible place at once," Mary was saying.

Taggart was acting the part of the solicitous friend and attorney.

"Don't worry, don't worry," he kept saying. "I'll take care of your father. We'll get him out of this. The jury will free him."

"But can't we do something in the meantime?" Mary begged.

"Well, I'll try," Taggart answered. "I'll go right over to the judge now and see about bail. Meanwhile, I advise that you transfer your money from Latigo to the Pico Bank at once, so that it will be ready for this and other emergencies."

"Oh, I can't leave Daddy at this time to go," said Mary.

"Let me go," Terence volunteered. She accepted his proposal, and digging the bankbook from her bag, gave it to him with an order for the money.

"We'll get busy at once," said Taggart. "You stay with your father a while, and come to my office later, and I'll let you know what the judge says about bail."

Terence and Taggart went out together, and mounting their horses parted on their respective missions.

But as Terence disappeared on the road to Latiago, Taggart, instead of going to the judge, turned to the Pico Bar. He found Buck McLeod and several of the men inside.

Buck grinned as Taggart whispered to him.

"Lay for him in the Upper Canyon, when he's riding back with the money." Taggart concluded his directions. "He will come back through the Upper Canyon—you understand?"

They left the bar, Buck and his gang taking the road to Latigo, Taggart starting for his law offices.

* * *

The elegant car, and the flashily dressed woman skillfully painted to still look pretty, at the driver's wheel, attracted considerable attention from the rough natives of Pico when it stopped at the Hotel Rio Grande.

A group of them were still curiously inspecting the car when Stella Montrose, after arranging for a room, returned to it from inside the hotel.

"Can you direct me to John Marshall's attorney?" she asked.

"Oh, that'll be Mr. Taggart, lady," replied one of the men, and pointed the way.

Stella sped off in the direction indicated. Taggart was at his desk when she knocked on the office door.

"Come in."

As Stella entered with an easy air of assurance, Taggart rose to greet her, and indicated a chair.

"I understand you're acting for John Marshall, Mr. Taggart?" Stella asked.

"Yes, I'm his attorney," he replied. "And what can I do for you?"

Stella eyed him keenly, and said slowly:

"I have certain evidence that might be worth—well, you know what I mean—"

She shrugged and smiled. Taggart regarded her suspiciously, and asked:

"Just what is the evidence you say you have?"

Stella, with her skill as an actress acquired during her life as a shrewd adventuress, took her time, lighted a cigarette, smiled blandly and worked to produce an effect before replying. Finally she said, with her eyes full on Taggart's, and a curious smile on her lips.

"Black Benway did not die from Marshall's bullet. I can prove it if Marshall makes it worth my while—"

She puffed at her cigarette, and Taggart, on his guard, stared at her intently.

TAKE IT OUT SO THAT IT WON'T COME BACK

Don't merely cut the top off with a razor or burn it off with caustic lotions, plasters, etc. That doesn't do any good. It may do great harm by causing infection or even blood poisoning.

The business end of a corn is the root. That is what hurts when pressed on sensitive nerves, and it is the part you have to get out.

A good handful of Reudel Bath Saltrates dissolved in a gallon or so of hot water will soften corns and callouses, like water softens soap. Just soak them in this for a while, then take hold of the corn with your fingers and out it will come root and all. The refined Reudel Bath Saltrates costs very little, and any druggist will have it. A half-pound is sufficient to rid the whole family of all foot troubles.

DOUBLE DROWNING OCCURS AT WALLACE'S POINT WHEN CANOE CONTAINING THREE OVERTURNS

Mrs. Garbutt and Young Son, of 311 1-2 George Street, Drown.

BODIES RECOVERED.

Husband Vainly Attempted Rescue, But Weight Was Too Great.

Gladness was quickly turned to gloom on the occasion of the Nashua Paper Company picnic to Wallace's Point on Saturday, August 8th, when the wife and son of arry Gabbutt of 311½ George street, were drowned at a distance up the river of three-quarters of a mile.

Mr. and Mrs. Gabbutt with their young son Douglas aged 11 years and 6 months, rented a canoe and paddled up the river. When at a point about three-quarters of a mile from the landing, the boy made a move to change places for the purpose of paddling. Mrs. Gabbutt also moved, and the sudden change of weight was sufficient to overturn the unstable craft. Mr. Gabbutt made strenuous efforts to rescue his wife, and at one time had her in his grasp, but because of her weight and her struggles he was unable to hold her, and she sank from sight.

The boy tried to help his mother but was apparently winded in the struggle and sank too.

Mr. Gabbut managed to reach shore and his way back to the landing was forced to traverse an almost impassable swamp. Arrived there he told the news in a few words and taking another canoe paddled back up the river again.

H. Cardwell of Wallace's Point, took his motor boat, and another launch was included in the party which went upstream.

Mrs. Gabbutt was found underneath the upturned canoe.

Billed For Gas Used In Stealing His Automobile

CLIFTON, N. J., Aug. 11.—Having your automobile stolen is bad enough, thinks Charles E. Fichtel of Oxford, but being charged for the gasoline with which the theft was made is about the limit.

Fichtel's automobile was stolen several days ago from a carnival grounds near here. Friday it was found, stripped of every useful part and good only for junk, in the woods near Easton, Pa.

Then Fichtel received a bill from Coleman's garage here for twenty gallons of gasoline. He inquired and learned that two men had driven his car to the garage, the proprietor of which was familiar with the car and its owner, and informed Coleman that Fichtel had told them to stock up with gasoline. This they did, driving away at leisure. Now Fichtel has a worthless chassis on his hands and a bill for gas.

URGE MODESTY WOMEN'S DRESS

Placards Posted in Catholic Churches in St. Boniface, Manitoba.

START OF CAMPAIGN.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Placards urging women to use greater modesty in dress have been posted in the cathedral and churches of St. Boniface, Man., at the instigation of Right. Rev. Mons. Jubinville, rector of the Cathedral.

Transparent materials, short sleeves and open collars are forbidden by the edict, which adds: "Out of respect to our Saviour and for the edification of our neighbors, we beg women to appear in church only in dresses of irreproachable modesty. We hope it will not be necessary to use drastic measures—such as the refusal of the Sacrament of Penance and Holy Eucharist, to compel respect for the House of God."

Mons. Jubinville intimated that this was the beginning of a concerted campaign by churches, colleges, and religious societies against the scandalous styles prevalent to-day.

Question: Was the story of "Jack and the Bean Stalk" founded on fact? —Tommy.

Answer: No, Tommy. The story is one of the tallest ones ever told.

Highway Men Stole Money Intended As Pay For Blind

WINNIPEG, August 11. — Canadian Press. — The payroll of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, was snatched from the hands of Miss Margaret Haddock, secretary of the vocational branch of the Institute, here late yesterday afternoon, by a highwayman, who, with a accomplice, escaped in an automobile. The amount was approximately $600.

Miss Haddock was about to enter the office of the vocational factory when the robber brushed by her and grabbed the parcel containing the money.

The sum stolen represented the earnings of the blind inmates for the past week.

Caillaux Will Explain French Ability To Pay

PARIS, Aug. 12 (Canadian Press) —Finance minister Caillaux told press correspondent yesterday that he desires very much to go to Washington to present what he called a "gentleman's offer" for settlement of war debt France owes United States.

The finance minister explained his gentleman's offer as follows: "I am going to tell both British and Americans just what France can pay and that France will pay it, but that it is impossible for me to undertake payments likely to turn out beyond capacity of the country."

FLAW BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT

Caused Collapse of Steel Form and Death of Three Men at Thorold.

SHACKLE TESTED.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 11. —(Canadian Press).—That an invisible flaw in a steel shackle was responsible for the collapse of the Blaw form at Lock Five, Welland Ship Canal, on August 1, resulting in the death of three men, was the finding of the coroner's jury yesterday afternoon at the inquest in Thorold. The jury recommended that every precaution should be taken in the future and additional safety devices supplied.

None of the men injured in the accident were called upon to testify, though four of them were in the room.

James McCoy, rigger foreman, and Geo. F. Roberts in charge of the mechanical equipment for the Peter Lyall Company, were vigorously cross-examined by Juror Cook, who alleged that there was only one cable holding back the big form during the moving operation, while the witnesses declared that there were two cables. Cook declaimed that he was on the scene and saw but one.

The broken shackle was shown to the jury, and evidence given that it had been tested on the day prior to the accident and had withstood the test.

MINERS START BACK TO WORK

Fifteen Hundred Men on Duty Yesterday—More on To-day.

REPAIR MINES.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Some fifteen hundred men were at work yesterday in the first day of operation of the British Empire Steel Corporation coal mines since the close-down on March 6. The strike ended Sunday night. Three hundred and thirty-six tons of coal was raised in the two mines actually cutting coal, Caledonia and One B, in the southern Cape Breton area. By the end of the week it is expected that five thousand men will be working six days a week for the present, and that the output for the Province will be between eight and nine thousand tons.

To-day the following collieries are expected to be operating:

Caledonia, One B, Two, Four, Twelve, Fourteen and Sixteen in Southern Cape Breton; the Allan shaft and Thorburn in Pictou County and Princess and Florence in Northern Cape Breton. Other collieries, including those in Cumberland County, will be put in condition for work. Number six, which is flooded, and Number 11, whose bankhead was burned, cannot operate for some months.

LOST CONTROL OF CAR.

Dorothy Kingston, of Campbellford, Unhurt in Accident.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 11.—Miss Dorothy, daughter of Councillor G. A. Kingston, had a miraculous escape on Sunday afternoon, while alone in an auto. On Front street, near Second she attempted to turn the car but for some reason lost control of it and the auto crossed the sidewalk and plunged over an enbankment nearly six feet high. The car alighted on the soft soil at the bottom in its normal position and the young lady escaped injury, being apparently unaffected even by shock.

The car was not seriously damaged but it was necessary to secure a truck to haul it across the low land to Rear street.

TASTE IN COOKING SHOWED A CHANGE

Complainant Had to Wash Dishes For Criticizing the Meals.

Major W. J. Morrison, now superintendent of the Toronto Municipal Farm, is also a well-known mining engineer, and while following this profession in the early days of Northern Ontario was commissioned to examine a property that was many days travl by canoe. His only companion was another engineer, Dick Hartley.

The major undertook to do the cooking, and it developed the first day out that Dick had considerable criticism to offer on the way things were cooked. As many agreeable trips can be marred by such incidents, it was ageed that they would take their daily turn at the cooking and washing of dishes, and whoever kicked at the cooking had to wash the dishes whether it was his turn or not, which was considered somewhat of a punishment.

The arrangement worked fine until one evening Dick, after pitching camp, went trolling, leaving the major to wrestle with the cooking pots. Dick returned with a fine string of fish and an equally fine appetite, bellowed: "Gosh, I'm hungry, is there anything ready to eat?" "Yes," said the major, "Here are some flapjacks, hot off the griddle. Hop to it!"

Dick bit into one and his face betrayed a mixture of emotions. "Burned on both sides and raw in the middle—but that's the way I like them."

CONDITIONS BAD THROUGH EUROPE

Bishop Fallon, of London, Says There is Too Much Small Politics.

IRELAND MENDING.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—"I found social and political conditions in France and England most disturbing. I was very unfavorably impressed. In my opinion, conditions in these countries are such that anything may happen. There has been much too small politics in Europe for some years on all sides which has vitiated the natural patriotism of the people. The only head of a government who has a real control is Mussolini in Italy, and as far as I can see both England and France need a Mussolini and a dictatorship if they are to establish themselves on a sure foundation of prosperity and achieve real progress." In these words Right Rev. M. F. Fallon, D.D., Bishop of London, summed up his observation of conditions in the countries he visited on a three months' trip.

Speaking on the social and political conditions in the countries he had visited, His Lordship said: "While I was very much disturbed at the conditions in England and France, I was glad to see that Ireland is mending her conditions. There is a much better feeling between the six counties of Ulster and the rest of Ireland, and the general opinion of outstanding men there, both Catholics and Protestants, is that if there is no untoward event the next few years will see a United Ireland. On all hands I found it agreed that the government of the Irish Free State had made great strides toward settling the country and instituting a healthy routine of government."

JAIL MURDERER AFTER 3 YEARS

John Cooting Was Committed on the Evidence of His Son.

"SHORT OF MONEY."

SHOAL LAKE, Man., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—On the incriminating evidence of his grown up son, John Cooting, a settler of this district, faces a charge of murder, alleged to have been committed more than three years ago.

Action was started, following the recovery of the mutilated body of Dymetro Chayka recently from a pig pen on the Cooting farm.

The son, Mike Cooting, testified Saturday that he had overheard his father relate details of the slaying of Mrs. Cooting. He also had seen his father burn blood-stained overalls which he knew had been worn by Chayke, and remove what appeared to be blood spots from a hayrack.

Cooting is alleged to have signed a confession admitting the murder, because "he was short of money." He was committed to the fall assizes for trial.

EUROPE SMILES WITH PROSPECT OF BIG HARVEST

Germany Reports Excellent Crops and France Has Record Yield of Wheat.

NO FAMINE FEARS.

Russian Outlook Improved and Italy Is Encouraging Heavier Production.

LONDON, Aug. 11. — (United Press).—The cry of crop shortage and prospective famine is missing this harvest season in the heart of Europe.

Reports to-day from Berlin said that the German grain harvest was excellent and other crops, including the great staple, potatoes, were excellent. In other years since there have been each summer reports of German crop failure, though these have csually developed to be in part the alarmist propaganda of the big landlords, hoping thereby to obtain protective tariffs or higher prices from internal consumers.

From France come even more glowing reports of the harvest. She will have the largest wheat crop in her history, and will be independent of import wheat, according to word given the French congress of grain dealers at Loursya. It was even predicted that France would be able to export 10,000,000 hundredweight.

Prizes For Production.

Italy reports a great drive for larger grain production. Premier Mussolini and athers are taking a part in encouraging the campaign and prizes are offered for the best increased yields.

Indications are that the crops will be good and that the campaign will mean more intensive cultivation here after. Behind the campaign in Italy lies the fact that Italy's emigration is now restricted, hence the question of more grain for more mouths has become vital.

Definite reports from Russia are lacking, but the indications so far have been that the Russian yield will not be as disappointing as in some past years, when famine swept some districts.

STRANGE WILL GIVES SOLICITOR ESTATE

LONDON, Aug. 11. — (Canadian Press).—What newspapers term the "strange will" of Field Marshal the Earl of Ypres, a document of eight lines, in which his entire estate of £25,161 is left to Edward Geoffrey Cox, the Field Marshal's solicitor has filed for probate to-day.

The will does not mention the Earl's widow nor his two sons and daughter. It is recalled that in 1919 the House of Commons made the Earl a grant of £50,000 as a testimonial of his services to the nation.

COMMENT ON NEW BRUNSWICK VOTE

"People Turning to Conservative Party"—"Public Ownership Issue."

Mr. Gordon was asked to give his views of the New Brunswick election, which made Dr. Baxter Prime Minister yesterday, and he said that the issue there was between public and private ownership. The Federal member said he spent a month last summer in the Maritime Provinces and learned something about local conditions during that time.

According to Mr. Gordon, the Veniot Government introdued the Hydro-electric plan, which Mr. Baxter of the Conservative party opposed. They claimed that this would mean increased taxation upon the people of the province generally and the only persons to benefit would be those in the large centres and the manufacturers. The Hydro Electric scheme of Sir Adam Beck was subsequently the same. The New Brunswick Government opposed to the government, that it would guarantee a large bonded indebtedness.

According to Mr. Gordon, old age was what defeated the Nova Scotia Government, for they had been in power for nearly fifty years and people thought it was time for a change. The Saskatchewan election of a few weeks ago, Mr. Gordon said, was an indication of the way the West was feeling at the present time, and only two Conservatives were elected in the Saskatchewan Legislature out of fifty seats. However, Mr. Gordon did not ascribe any particular significance to the Saskatchewan election, because he said there were a great many local issues in that campaign, the same as there was in New Brunswick.

Mr. Gordon said he agreed with Mr. Burnham's conditions, that the Federal party would probably remain as it is for sometime under its present leaders.

V. J. McElderry ,President of the Conservative Association:—"The result of the New Brunswick election, following so closely upon the heels of a similar Conservative victory in Nova Scotia, shows clearly that the people of Canada are turning to the Conservative Party. These two provinces heretofore notoriously Liberal have chosen to place their confidence in the Conservative party at a time of stress, when serious difficulties confront them. While the question of tariff is perhaps not prominent in provincial politics, these results seem to indicate that the people of Canada, from one end of the country to the other, realize the necessity of a policy of protection and high tariff for this country.

"It is, therefore, with confidence that Conservatives face the approaching Federal election, because all signs indicate that the people are determined to have the adequate protection for our industries, as provided by the Conservative platform, and which alone can give Canada the industrial prosperity to which her natural resources and the ability of her people entitle her."

Mr. J. F. Strickland said:—"The overwhelming turn over in Nova Scotia in favor of the Conservative party so closely followed by the same result in New Brunswick has been most gratifying to Conservatives everywhere and is a distinct indication of what the result will be when the present Federal Government give the people of Canada an opportunity of passing on their actions this notwithstanding the outrageous manner in which the Federal Government has re-distributed Ontario constituencies, particularly the riding of West Peterborough."

Roland Denne said:—"The result is no more than I expected. The people are sick and tired of the Liberal administration everywhere. It is the handwriting on the wall. A similar fate awaits the Liberal party at the Federal election."

cital, forgetting that the child no longer "goes" anywhere in an earthly sphere.

While the boy's body was not recovered until Sunday afternoon, the mother's quiet form floated about under the canoe to which her husband held, while he paddled about in an agonized effort to locate the lost wife and child.

Buried This Morning.

Most touching and impressive was the funeral service held in All Saints' Church this morning, when Mrs. Harry Gabbutt and her son Douglas were laid to rest. A large number of friends were present to show their sympathy and regret, and flowers were numerous. The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. I. D. Paterson.

In his address, Mr. Paterson referred to the tragic circumstances of the deaths, and to the glorious hope of the resurrection and a meeting of the family once more in Heaven. He said that the principal occupation of men on this earth is home-building, and that the bereaved husband and father had seen his home broken with tragic suddenness. But in the next world, said Mr. Paterson, they are waiting for him in the glorious company above and will some day join him.

The pall-bearers for Douglas were two teachers and four scholars of All Saints' Sunday School, which he had attended regularly. Six fellow-employees of Mr. Gabbutt, from the mother to her last resting place. Nashua Paper Company, bore the

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

"For every man that exalteth himself shall be humbled, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted," was the text from the eighteenth chapter of Luke, chosen by Rev. J. Finn as the basis of his sermon at the morning masses at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday.

The parable of the Pharisee and the publican, contained in this chapter has its modern application in the lives of their prototypes of to-day, and the lesson of the Gospel is one against the sin of pride. "No matter how externally good an act may appear, if not done for a good motive, it is useless in the sight of God."

The Pharisee was considered as being above the ordinary men of his day, both in station and in learning, while the Publican was tax gatherer, despised by the Jews because they, as the chosen people of God, did not believe that they should pay tithes to a foreign dominating power.

The Pharisee was self-sufficient and believed that any good thing in himself was attributable to his own powers, rather than to the Divine guidance, but the Publican considered himself unworthy of being in the temple, and stood afar off, praying only: "O Lord, be merciful to me, a sinner.'

Take 2 St. Peter's

The modern type of the Pharisee is the man who neglects prayer and goes wilfully into the occasions of sin, trusting to his powers to keep him safe. "When we trust to this weak human nature of ours, we are guilty of the sin of pride. No man can afford to neglect the means that God has given us, in the channels of prayer and the sacraments."

"The Pharisee judged the Publican in his heart. We have no right to judge others. It was the great apostle Paul who said: "I am the least of the apostles, because I persecuted the church of God, but by the grace of God, I am what I am. His grace in me hath not been made void." And St. Augustine said of himself that every sin in the calendar might have been committed by him, were it not for the saving grace of God. The pride of the Pharisee led him to recount his good works as meritorious in the sight of the Lord. The good Christian is the one who lives his life in the spirit of the publican, in the spirit of humility. We should beg God to eradicate from our hearts the spirit of pride that animated the Pharisee, the spirit of uncharitableness and of trust in self, rather than in the Almighty."

Pays His Own Fine; Lets Wife Be Jailed

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 8.—Martin Tangredi paid Tuesday his own fine in the City Court for liquor selling, but allowed his wife to go to jail to work out her fine for the same offense.

Tangredi was fined $300 and his wife $600 because the evidence showed that Mrs. Tangredi had been more active than her husband in selling liquor to laborers in the brick yards in State Street, near the Tangredi home.

Judge Booth had given the couple a day in which to sell their home and raise the money to pay their fines. They reported that they were unable to do so, and the Judge told them they must settle with the court or go to jail.

Tangredi quickly found $300 to pay his own fine but turned his back on his wife and allowed her to go to jail.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

— By Annie Laurie —

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 20 and I am in love with a young man the same age. We went together about six months but I used to be jealous of him and we used to quarrel. It is two years ago since we parted and I don't seem to care for any other fellow. He sometimes brings me home, but he never makes any dates with me, but I think he cares for me. When he sees me with other fellows he wont speak, and he acts as if he was jealous. Please tell me what I should do to get him back. From,

PEGGY: There isn't very much that you can do, as far as I can see Peggy, except just mark time. You had your chance and you didn't use it properly. If you are going to have a second one, you will have to be more careful about how you treat him. No man likes quarelling. It is said that a man likes a woman to be jealous, and show it—a little. If you were jealous of him, you shouldn't have let him see it. If you like him after two years of separation, and he appears to resent other men's attentions to you, there is hope for you both. It is quite likely that the poor chap really cares for you, but he doesn't want a jealous, quarrelsome wife, and nobody can blame him. The only thing you can do is to be just as amiable and nice to him, as possible, whenever you get the chance. And when you do get him back—don't forget your lesson.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am in my teens and am considered good-looking, but I'm not popular with both sexes. I go out with girl friends often. The boys pay more attention to my friends than to me. While my girl friends have beaux, I have to stay home.

How can I become more popular?

AMERICAN BEAUTY.

AMERICAN BEAUTY: You must remember, my dear, that friendship is founded on mutual tastes and interests and not on appearance. Join a church club or gymnasium class where you will meet people who are bound together by ties of mutual aims. If you are cheerful and gay, and above all, unaffected, you will win the admiration of everyone with whom you come in contact.

* * *

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl of eighteen, and have been engaged to a young man, two years my senior, for two weeks. As yet I have not allowed him to kiss me. Is this right?

SWEET.

SWEET: Demonstrations of affection between people who are engaged to be married are quite proper—and natural, my dear. It is only when these tokens of love are exchanged between acquaintances, people who have no intention of marriage, that they become cheapened.

THE FAIREST FLOWER

By Marguerite Lewis

Who can deny that the rose is the fairest of all flowers? Yet when one sees the only girl in the world with her arms full of the fragrant blooms, one must admit that the roses are far surpassed by the wonderful beauty of her in whose arms they so lovingly nestle. For Love, the beautifier, surrounds her with a dazzling, brilliant beauty that eclipses even the rarest rose. And they are content to be eclipsed, for they, too, recognize her loveliness and do their best to aid Love in making her the fairest flower that grows.

ONE THING WHICH MONEY CANNOT BUY

Joyce is going to Japan.

She is going to spend three months in the Cherry Blossom country.

She's packing and trying on and choosing and in another week she'll be ready to start.

She's read The Musme and Pierre Loti and Madame Chrysanthemum and all the rest of the Japanesque stuff and she's crazy about it—she says.

I am glad I'm not going to Japan with Joyce.

Joyce, what a name for what a girl!

It's really Rejoice—her Mother was so glad to see her arrive in this world, that she just had to name her something with joy in it—and that seems to be all the joy that the poor girl ever had or ever will have.

She has a nice little income and a nice little circle of friends and a pleasant enough little home with some agreeable relatives but I never saw Joyce when she wasn't sorry about something.

"Oh, what lovely traveling clothes!" I said, when Joyce showed me what she was packing.

"Well enough," said Joyce, "but, dear, I never realized what a bore it was to be poor until I go shopping.

"There was a woman buying an outfit when I was there and she spent $10.00 to my $1.00, which made me sick.

"Pinch here and economize there, save this and manage that, that's my program—How sick I do get of that.

"How I'd love to go into a shop and buy everything I wanted for once—without even asking the price of things."

The two cousins who would give ten years of their lives to go to Japan if they had to go in kimonos and bedroom slippers looked at each other. They had all they could do to keep from laughing.

Dot and Dora—twins, poor as church mice and as happy as Brigs. They get more fun out of going on a twenty-mile motor ride than poor, disagreeable, whining, complaining Joyce will get out of Japan and China and the Philippines and Honolulu.

I wonder if Joyce wonders sometimes why nobody seems to care much for her—I suppose she does—but I don't believe she ever thinks its her own fault—Do you?

Money, pearls, diamonds, rubies, a great estate, a high place in the world, beauty, wit, intelligence, health—all very fine.

But for me and my house give me a good disposition and I'll face the world, and laugh my way through it in triumph and success.

Joy in the things we have, happiness in the pleasures that come our way, a contented heart and laughter—these are the real things of life—the things that really count and that money cannot buy and that make for happiness and contentment. Don't you wish Joyce could see it that way? I do?

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

BEAUTY OF SCULPTURED HAIR

Have you stood in front of a mirror lately and wondered if you were getting slack in the way you dressed your hair? Have you thought, "I don't look as smart as I should and I'm afraid I don't make the most of my good points?" If you haven't, you should.

Sit down in front of a mirror right now. Not too close, far enough away to see yourself at three-quarters length, and study your hair in relation to your whole body.

Whether your hair is long or short remember the mode is for the sculptured head. Men have shown their ears and the shape of their skulls for years women are only beginning to have their chance.

If your hair is short, it's quite easy. Almost any shingle bob will put you in the mode. I only caution you to beware of the shingle bob which exposes too much of your ears, unless you are sure they can stand being exposed. Ears, in many cases, are the ugliest part of the anatomy and many a queen has been ruled out of a beauty contest because of her ears. Age shows particularly in ears, and many a woman of thirty-five with an apple blossom complexion may have ears that add ten years to her apparent age. So before you have your hair cut in a French shingle, be sure your ears are of the ornamental variety.

Binding the head smoothly around with a long switch serves admirably to cover short, straggly hair that is being allowed to grow out. By the way, try it any of you. You may have long hair of your own which will reach around admirably. It's particularly becoming to women with round faces.

We women with long hair have a harder task to make our heads appear sculptured, but when the results are successful, the effect can be very fascinating.

I hope no woman with long heavy hair will read this without going out and having her hair trimmed to at least a few inches below shoulder length, and having the thickest parts cut out underneath in the back. Any modish person has very likely done this already.

There are really only two uses for long hair. One is to draw it severely back with a middle part if any and coil it in a loose knot very low on the neck. The other style is the one I have referred to, binding the head with flat bands of hair.

Whatever you do, keep your hair lying close to the line of your head, with no very outstanding deviations. Roll it up close along the back of your head if you like. The line you want is a swelling curve from the crown of your head to the nape of your neck.

Wedding rings of the cheaper grades are being bought and worn by unmarried girls in England, who imagine either that the sight of the ring attracts men or that the wedding ring protects them in public.

Let's Talk It Over

HOW CAN YOU KNOW HE'S A GENTLEMAN?

What's a gentleman? A man whose finger nails are manicured or a man whose natural instincts don't require lopping off and glazing over? What matters more—innate goodness or good manners grafted on?

Lois is inclined toward the good manners. Her "Young Man" from the country is very good—But He is Very Awkward and Ill At East In Company!

So Lois wants to know whether to polish him up a bit or just scratch him off the list.

I met a young man while on my vacation in the country. Of himself he is very good, and my parents think I could not be going with a nicer young man. But this is what troubles me: On account of living on a farm all his life and not mixing with many people, he is awkward and ill at ease in company. In trying to appear up-to-date he does queer and outlandish things. It embarrasses me very much. He even neglects the ordinary things one expects of a gentleman. This may be forgetfullness, but, must I go on excusing him always?

Should I let him know in a friendly way of these embarrassments in dress and manner, or do you think it would hurt him to think I noticed them?

Whenever I approach the subject to mother she refuses to admit his faults, saying she has always found him a gentleman, but after seeing him among other young men, I cannot agree with her. What is the best way out of this without causing ill feeling on both sides? Your pal,

LOIS.

If you don't like your diamonds in the rough, Lois, you'd better give up. Polishing up is a painful proceeding, rarely appreciated by the recipient of the attention, and reforming a husband, either in manners or morals, is not what it's advertised to be.

What possible happiness can there be ahead for you with a man whose every gesture is distasteful to you? What possible happiness can there be for him with a woman who measures him by the standards of the social register? What right have you to step in and make another human over to suit your theories? None at all, and the sooner we stop indulging in this variety of renovating the better it's going to be for all of us.

Let your country boy go, Lois, and keep your eyes open for something snappier and more up-to-date. There'll be lots of girls to appreciate the Country Lad on his own merits, just as he stands, "awkwardness" and all, and you'll find little difficulty in locating a Tailor Made Model for your own pride and joy.

About two years ago I started going with a fellow I had known for about a year previous. He had always treated me very wonderful and he is "not fresh," as many fellows are that you meet nowadays.

His actions show very plainly that he does think more of me than a mere friend, and I know from his mother that he doesn't go with any one else. He seems to take it as a natural consequence that we will be married, for he often talks about getting a car because he "can't use the folk's car always—" and he speaks about "buying a home" and many other things but he has never said a word to me or asked me anything.

Now I want to know if there isn't some way that I can do that will cause him to express his real feelings for me. I love him and I know he loves me. I want to hear him say so when he really means it, not like so many others—just to make conversation. Please let me know if there isn't something that I can do besides coming right out and asking him, as I don't like that idea—it just isn't in my make up.

Sincerely, EVELYN.

Do something? Of course you can do something. Neglect him for a while. Step out a little with other friends and give him a chance to miss you. If that doesn't bring a proposal it proves one of two things. Either he doesn't want you or he's a moron. And you'll be lucky in either case to be rid of him.

Cherry Velvet Makes a Pretty Trim on a Child's White Taffeta Party Frock.

The vogue for white remains prominent. This means not so much white used alone, as white with a bright color for trimming.

The child's party dress above is an interesting example of the effective use of cherry color on white. The cherry note is furnished by narrow velvet ribbon, and the taffeta frock has rosettes and streamers at the sides.

This model would also be attractive in pale green taffeta, with deeper green velvet ribbon for trimming.

FOREST FIRES RAGE.

Fury of Blaze in B. C. Forests Is Unabated—Towns Are Threatened.

REVELSTOKE, B.C., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Forest fires in the district still continue with unabated fury. At Arrowhead the fires have passed over the cemetery and efforts are now being made to prevent them from reaching the town. At Clan William and in the Big Bend district no improvement is noted.

$65,000,000 PAID FOR AIR HOLES

He who buys ice-cream by bulk instead of by weight pays dearly for the air holes in the confection, according to facts revealed at the recent conference on weights and measures at the Department of Commerce. A billion quarts of ice cream are made by dealers in the United States annually, it was found but a fifth of the total amount sold is air space that is packed into the containers in which the ice cream is sold. Selling the ice-cream by bulk instead of by weight, says the September Popular Science Monthly, means that somebody pays $66,000,000 for the air holes.

DECORATION DAY SERVICES AT MARMORA BY SOLDIERS IN CAMP

Flowers Placed on Fifteen Graves of Veterans of the War.

CIVILIANS ASSIST.

MARMORA, Aug. 10.—The drum head religious service at the camp of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment here on Sunday morning was largely attended by civilians who joined with the troops in their devotional ceremony.

Captain T. H. H. Hall, regimental chaplain, conducted the service, and, prior to it, baptized the infant daughter of Lieut. Percy Gray.

Captain Hall preached on the text "Waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens," Heb. 11-24.

"This familiar text," he said "brings out the militant side of the Christian faith. Today we feel that another chapter has been added to St. Paul's writing. We are assembled," he continued, "to pay fitting tribute to the fifteen members of the G.W.V.A. buried in Marmora. The most compelling force in the world is to be found in that spirit St. Paul exhibited in life, Christianity The one great motive of the world is service, that service inspired by Christ back of money, learning and the military, Christian service is the greater power Except for this realization, not so many of the flower of Canada would have given the best years of their lives or laid down lives altogether for their country. For centuries, the British Empire has stood between the oppressor and the suffered and this is being remembered today."

Th battalion then paraded to the public cemetery. Members of the G.W.V.A. bearing fifteen wreaths betokening the number of deceased local soldiers Ten wreaths were deposited at the public cemetery, three volleys fired, and the Last Post sounded.

The procession was then continued to the Roman Catholic cemetery where Fathers Traynor and Farrell in robes received it After prayers Father Traynor gave a short but eloquent address Five wreaths were deposited here and again three vollys fired and the Last Post sounded.

The parade was as imposing a spectacle as ever witnessed in Marmora. These marched with the members of the G.W.V.A. Graves of civilians were also decorated in many cases in both cemeteries, causing it to be Decoration Day in the widest sense.

UNITED CHURCH PICNIC.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 8.—The first annual picnic, under the auspices of the Sunday School in connection with the United Church, was held on Thursday afternoon at Wallace's Point, Otonabee River, with a large number in attendance.

Fine weather favored the occasion, and a most enjoyable time was spent. Trucks and cars conveyed the picnickers to the gathering place, and while the older folk preferred looking on, practically all the younger element entered heartily into the games, races, etc., which made up the sports' programme for the afternoon.

The little ones enjoyed the slides and swings for the first part of the afternoon, and while they were thus occupied a game of soft ball took place in the field across the road from the park. As quite a number of the players on either side were just being initiated into the mysteries of the game, and but little respect was paid to the usual rules and regulations, there was no lack of entertainment for the onlookers.

W. G. Sayles and B. R. Richards were captains, the former's side winning by a score of 12-7. Arnold Armstrong acted as umpire.

As the sides changed in the personnel of one or two players each innings, it was a somewhat difficult matter to obtain a line-up, and practically impossible to state the positions on the field, but the original list was:

Sayles—Mrs. O. Williamson, Mrs. J. McKnight Mrs. H. Dawson, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Miss P. Burnham, A. Coulter, W. E. Ball, J. Might, M. Thexton, W. G. Sayles.

Richards—Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mrs. C. C. Garside, Miss G. Spence, Miss M. Needham, C. Nattrass, H. Hunter, C. C. Garside, M. McDowell, W. F. Fallis, B. Richards.

The races were run off before the tea hour, C. C. Garside being in charge. The results were as follows:

Children 2 years and under: Each little tot given a prize of candy.

Girls under 4 years: 1 Beatrice McDowell; 2. Dorothy Burnham

Boys under 4 years: 1. Orval Rowland; 2. Bobby McConnell.

Fat ladies: 1. Mrs. Garside; 2. Mrs. Sayles.

Fat men: 1. Mr. Sayles. 2 Mr. Rowland.

Mixed slow race (time limit 3 minutes): 1. Miss Needham and Mr. McDowell.

Several of the business men in connection with the United Church generously donated the prizes for races other than those in which children and teen age boys and girls took part, their kindness being much appreciated by the committee in charge

Everybody was seated on the side of the slope for the picnic supper served at 6 p.m., the executive of the school with some assistants, looking after their wants until all were fully satisfied.

The girls, and the men each had a pick-up game of soft ball after supper before the start for home was finally made. The picnic was voted the most successful in the history of the school.

HALL RENT NOT PAID BY 'PROGS'

Deputy-Reeve Declares Account Was Rendered to President of Progressives.

POSTERS IN PLACE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 11.—Deputy Reeve W.H. Nelson of Percy Township, who was in town Monday took exception, both in his official capacity as member of the Council and as a private citizen to the statements made by the Progressives at their meeting in Castleton Friday and reported in The Examiner of the following day. The statements in question were to the effect that an attempt had been made to prevent the Progressives from holding a meeting but claiming that the party owed the township a bill for back rent. The Progressives repudiated the bill and stated further that these bills had been torn down.

Mr. Nelson said that the Progressives in the past held two meetings in the hall and that the rent is yet unpaid. C. J. Boyce, treasurer of the township had twice sent a bill for the amount, these being mailed to County President McCracken, but no reply was ever received.

With regard to tearing down bills as alleged, Mr. Nelson says he can speak for Warkworth and that no posters had been molested but were in place on the day after the meeting.

The rent of the hall for one meeting is $15, of which the township receives $10 and the caretaker the balance.

LEG BROKEN BY CAR.

Burnbrae Man Forgot He Had Left It In Gear.

BURNBRAE, Aug. 11.—A serious accident occurred following the service Sunday morning when Mr. Roy Walker was struck by his car suffering a broken leg. He had inadvertently left the car in gear and when he turned the crank the car jumped forward and pinned him against the wall, breaking his right leg above the knee. He was removed to Belleville Hospital Sunday evening where an X-ray examination discovered a complete break.

Elders Ordained.

ORANGE SERMON AT ALL SAINTS'

Royal Black Preceptory Held Annual Church Parade on Sunday Evening.

RECTOR PREACHED.

"Your's is an order, which, next to the church, is the most powerful froce in this country for the upholding of British Freedom and British law" said the Rev. J. D. Paterson in addressing the Royal Black Knights, on their annual church parade, held this year to All Saints' Church.

The text chosen was "But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty and continueth therein, this man shall be blessed in his so doing." The subject which naturally suggests itself on such an occasion, is a vital one, said the speaker. Canadians are a free people and are proud, and somewhat boastful, of the fact that they are the best governed and most law abiding people in the world. The subject of law is being reconsidered and there are republics and dictatorships, but there is nothing so free as the monarchy and government under which British and Canadian citizens are living.

The system is not perfect, as it is human, but it gives the control to the people. Those in power were put there by the people, and although they may be the best available the people grumble at them and are not content.

The breaking of unpopular laws which can conveniently be broken was condemned by Mr. Paterson. There are, he said, men of ability who are willing to use their position and authority for the overthrowing of these laws. Such men are rascals, he said. They undo the best that is being done for the upbuilding of the nation.

Mudslinging at the elected rulers, in federal, provincial or municipal government, is very harmful, said Mr. Paterson, as it prevents the men of ability from running for office, and keeps many from serving a second term.

He urged his hearers to honor the king. Christ told the Jews to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's because they would then be more willing to render God His due. He gave reasons why they should stand united for law and order, and opposed to anarchy.

British sportsmanship and fair play should cause people to keep the law. The breaking of minor laws leads on to the breaking of all laws and an utter lawlessness. Not only the letter of the law but the spirit as well should be observed. The law should be kept by Christians for the Lord's sake. The British Empire will stand when others fall because its people are law abiding.

FIRST INDUCTION OF ELDERS IN CAMPBELLFORD UNITED CHURCH

Fifteen of the Sixteen Elders Consecrated to the Service of the Church.

PLEDGE OF FAITH.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 11.—An unusual service was held Sunday morning in St. John's United Church, when 15 of the 16 elders recently elected by members of the congregation were ordained and inducted into office, the first time such a ceremony had ever been witnessed in that edifice. The service was conducted by Rev. Wesley Elliott, pastor, and Rev. C. F. McIntosh, associate pastor, the former, returning from his vacation to take part.

Of the 16 elected elders, five—W. J. Armstrong, D. W. Douglas, A. H. McKelvie, Neil Thompson and P. B. Nelson—were formerly elders in St. Andrew's Church, and in recognition of this part they were not included in the ordination part of the service but were inducted with the others. All being consecrated into office by special prayers. The former elders were able to note but little difference in the vows they took Sunday from those to which they subscribed on taking office in the Presbyterian Church.

The following are the elders who will constitute the session of St. John's United Church.

W. J. Armstrong, W. H. Ashton, A. J. Bonney, E. J. Bonney, D. W. Douglas, A. S. Free, J. L. Hoover, G. A. Kingston, A. H. McKelvie, P. B. Nelson, Thomas Rowe, William Runnells, Neil Thompson, C. A. Wilson and Alex. Winter.

G. F. Phillips, the sixteenth elder elected, was in Muskoka and was unable to be present for the service. He will be ordained later.

Duties of the Elders.

Mr. Elliott read to the new officers the following list of their duties to the church:

The admission of persons into full membership and the granting of certificate of removal.

The conduct of members with the right to exercise discipline.

The administration of the sacraments.

The religious training of the young and the organization of meetings for Christian fellowship, instruction and work.

The order of public worship, including the service of praise and the use of the church edifice.

The care of the poor and the visiting of the sick.

It shall also be the duty of the session:

To receive and judge petitions, etc., from members.

To transmit petitions, appeals, etc., to Presbytery.

To recommend suitable laymen to Presbyteries for license to preach.

To recommend suitable candidates for the ministry.

The above list of duties was prepared by the joint committee on Church Union. The only changes in the regulations are with regard to the recommending of laymen for license to preach, a procedure that was not followed in the Presbyterian Church. Another change has to do with the representation of laymen in the church courts. In the Presbyterian Church, only elders are eligible to represent the congregation in these courts as laymen, but in the United Church, members of the official board are also eligible. The official board is composed of the elders and the board of stewards, and the change allows a wider range in the selection of delegates.

The Elders' Pledge.

Mr. McIntosh then addressed three questions to the elders, all of whom answered each one in the affirmative. Of these questions the first is identical with that presented in the Presbyterian Order Book, the other two containing slight changes. The questions were:

Do you believe the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be the Word of God and the only infallible rule of faith and duty?

Do you accept the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith contained in the statement of doctrine in the United Church?

Do you approve of the purity of worship and government of this church and promise to adhere thereto?

In the second question the words, "contained in the statement of doctrine in the United Church," have been substituted for the phrase, "contained in the Confession of Faith" of this church.

In the third question the only change is the insertion of the words, "the purity of the" before the word "worship."

These questions, except for the changes noted, are identical with those contained in the Book of Common Order prepared by the public worship committee of the General Assembly in 1922.

The church was crowded, and by the majority of those in the congregation, the ceremony of installing elders was witnessed for the first time. The anthem by the choir was "Send Out Thy Light" and the special of the musical programme was a beautifully rendered solo, "Take Up Thy Cross," by Mrs. J. G. McCarthy, of Toronto. Rev. C. McIntosh preached

Pig Roots Her Master Clear Through College

Pigs is pigs—also moneymakers.

Aubrey L. Feitner, of London, Ky., will soon have a college education, all due to the efficient support of a thoroughbred named "London Lady."

The sale of her progeny, now numbering 171, have netted the young student a total of $1,815.

"London Lady" was one of eight pure-bred Poland China hogs presented to eight different boys in the London district on condition that four of the early offspring be returned as payment for the gimal.

Feitner received one of them and adopted as a slogan, "I'm going to let this pig root me through college."

He was right.

ELECRIC LIGHT GROWS GRASS

Tests with 1000-watt electric lamps at the Cambridge, Mass., Electric Light Company have shown astonishing results in the growth of grass by artificial light. Dr. Andreas F. Christian, of Boston, claims that bald heads may be covered, beards coaxed on clean-shaven faces, and bobbed hair grown long in a short time by use of strong artificial light. The only requisite in the cases of both lawns and heads, he says, is that the germ of life not exist.—September Popular Science Monthly.

Watch your tongue

The tongue is the mirror of the digestive tract and upon its surface is reflected the result of digestive disorders. Examine your tongue frequently and when you find it coated with fur, or unnatural in appearance, heed Nature's signal.

Indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia and constipation are responsible for most of the ills of mankind. Sleeplessness, headaches, nervousness and many ills follow in their train. Restore your digestion by using Beecham's Pills.

They clear the tongue, remove the bad taste, strengthen the stomach and bowels, activate the liver, promote digestion and assimilation of food and make you feel strong and well.

Jimmy Britton, now the all-important Friar Tuck, was on hand at "Wess Johnson's place to round up the Merry Men of the Greenwood and see what sort of a nature story this new lad would tell.

"That was a corker of a story you told Robin Hood, that one about the Kingbird riding the Flicker's back. I'll bet that Ned-the-Red fellow will have to go some to beat it."

The meeting place was to be over in the woods, in a small clearing near the swimming hole, so Robin Hood and Friar Tuck and Little John and the Merry Men made their way to the Greenwood where Charlie Knight and Ned Lewis were waiting.

"Well, Red-the-Ned, got you story ready?" demanded Little John.

"We'll call you Freckle John instead of Little John, if you can't keep quiet," said Friar Tuck.

"Well," began Ned, "I'll admit that Kingbird story was a hard one to beat, but I went over to see the old man at the hothouses and he told me that the Kingbird may be a boss, but the sometimes gets pecked himself and that's true, for one day there was a Kingbird in the garden for a visit and his presence there was not appreciated by the wrens who lived in a birdbox there, so Mr. Wren took a ride on Mr. Kingbird's back, all around the garden and pecked out a couple of his feathers. And besides, the old man has a hummingbird nesting in the hothouse, and it comes and rests on his finger and sips honey from an imitation flower in which some honey has been placed. Is that enough?"

"Sure it's enough," said Robin Hood, "and as long as you behave, you are Ned-the-Red of the Merry Men, but if you get too funny, we'll call you Reddie Neddie. And thus, the new boy's name gave him little chance to dispute the leadership.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AN EXPERT'S FIVE RULES ON INFANT CARE.

On another occasion I gave you a set of rules prepared by the late Dr. Holt, a great authority on babies. I want to repeat them, because every mother should be taught the fundamentals of disease prevention.

It is important to bear these things in mind, because the majority of babies dying under two years of age are carried away by diarrhoeal diseases. Since these diseases are caused by bad feeding, it is important that every mother should know the general rules for the protection of her infant. Here are Dr. Holt's suggestions:

1. Encouragement of maternal nursing, and the adoption of measures to make this possible, particularly during the Summer months.

2. Education of mothers in all matters relating to the care and hygiene of infants, best through the agency of the milk station and the visits of a trained district nurse.

3. Adequate supervision of the milk supply, the general use of pasteurized or sterilized milk during the Summer, and furnishing good milk to those too poor to pay for it.

4. Instruction of mothers in regard to the care of milk in the home and in all matters of artificial feeding.

5. The constant supervision of artificially-fed infants either in the milk station or by visits to the home.

To carry out these suggestions it is necessary to have a community program. In the cities the boards of health provide all the facilities for putting them into effect. It is more difficult in the rural districts and small towns.

I am sure nobody can study Dr. Holt's rules without realizing that infant care must be conducted in a systematic and scientific manner. A mother should not depend on her own knowledge or even on the advice of her immediate family and friends. The methods of fighting fire are infinitely better to-day than they were a generation or two ago. Bringing up babies has improved even to a greater degree. Every mother should give her child the benefit of this wider and important knowledge.

The importance of individual care for the infant cannot be overstated. It is not possible to lay down any firm and fast rules which apply to all babies. Peculiar and unusual conditions may be met. Particular care must be given to the baby who does not thrive. He needs special attention. Then it is that the mother must be advised by someone who knows all about the welfare of the infants.

Within reach of every mother is a good doctor. No matter if you are poor, he will be glad to advise you. You must not let your pride prevent asking for advice—the welfare of your precious infant is at stake.

Answers to Health Queries.

Mrs. L. C. Q.—About a year ago I noticed a puff on my side near the ribs. It has now become hard but does not hurt in any way. Is this serious and is there danger of cancer? 2—When I am excited or in a hurry my heart beats very fast and I can feel the beating in the small of my back. I am 48 years of age. What would you advise?

A.—Have a careful examination and be guided by your doctor's judgment as to the treatment necessary. Without seeing the condition it would be difficult to advise you concerning it. 2—This condition is due to nervousness. Build up your general health and the symptom will probably disappear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Miss F. K. Q.—My hair is very thin and is very oily, even after washing. What would you advise?

A.—Shampoo the hair about once every ten days, using a good pure soap and being careful to rinse thoroughly. Use a good hair tonic occasionally. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

NEW WAY TO PURIFY WATER

Two scientists in Paris recently dropped a bottle containing chloride of lime in a vessel of impure water. The bottle was corked tightly so that its contents could not come in contact with the water. Yet 24 hours later, when the bottle was taken out, 25 per cent of the microbes in the water had been killed. An explanation advanced is that the antiseptic gives off rays that attack microbes, just as ultra-violet rays do, says Popular Science Monthly for September.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 12.

According to the predominant lunar figures this day may be one of discord and contention, since Mars rules under the square with Luna. This is likely to incite to quarrels and litigation which might result in an unfortunate or unsatisfactory verdict. An adverse position of Jupiter would also tend to heighten misfortune, both financially and as to the fulfillment of the ambitions. Speculation might be hazardous and travel or change not bring benefit. These should be deferred for the present.

Those whose birthday it is are liable to encounter a troublesome year, especially as regards finance and fulfillment of the ambitions. They should avoid speculation and postpone change and travel. Employment is under a fairly fortunate rule. A child born on this day may have a tendency to be rash and headstrong and may not be disposed to conserve its fortune. It may be fond of travel and change, but should succeed best by being kept in employment.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DICKY HAS A CHAT WITH MR. MULE DEER.

Dicky laughed when he spelled out the letters above the fence in the Zoo. "Mule Deer," Dicky mused, "who ever heard of a Mule Deer? I wish he'd come out. I'd like to see what he looks like." And Dicky laughed again.

Out from a clump of stones came a pretty little deer. His face was white with a patch of black on his forehead, and a band of black ran under his chin. He was much larger and stouter than the deer Dicky had seen before. His ears were quite long and stuck straight up in the air.

"Oh, I see now," laughed Dicky.

"See what?" asked Mr. Mule Deer, coming up to the side of the fence where Dicky was standing. "What do you see?"

"Why they call you a Mule Deer," replied Dicky. "Excuse me if I seem rude and stare at you. You see I've never heard of a Mule Deer before."

"Sure you're excused," laughed Mr. Mule Deer. "Just take me all in and you'll know me next time. Did you notice my pretty tail?"

It was a pretty tail, all white but the very tip-end; that was jet black.

"Some folks would like to call me Blacktail, but that isn't my name. I have a relative by that name all right," laughed Mr. Mule Deer. "I like my own name better. But you didn't tell me why they call me Mule Deer."

"Why, because you have long ears just like a mule's, I guess," replied Dicky. "Say, and your antlers aren't anything like the other deer I saw. The prongs on his antlers were all set in a row, while yours seem to be set in pairs and look like the letter 'Y.' You have two 'Y's' on each antler."

"I sure have," laughed Mr. Mule Deer, "and I'm mighty proud of those antlers, too. It used to keep me busy getting out of the way of hunters. You see folks not only like to get me for my hide and meat, but for those antlers."

"They sure would make a pretty keepsake," laughed Dicky. "Daddy would be proud to own a pair to put in his hunting lodge."

"Just one reason why I'm glad I am in this Zoo," said Mule Deer. "Now everybody, man, woman, girl or boy who stops in front of my fence, is my friend. I'm not afraid of anyone and I guess no one is afraid of me. It's much nicer than running wild, jumping over rocks and hills to keep from getting shot. You see I'm a real jumper. I'm noted for my jumping."

"Well, you sure have cause to be proud, even if you have big ears," laughed Dicky. "I'm Dicky Dorn and I'm mighty glad I've met you. I must go now, but I'll come back some time and chat again."

"Glad to have you, Dicky," said Mr. Mule Deer, and he nodded his head as long as he could see Dicky, and when Dicky was out of sight, Mr. Mule Deer laughed and went back behind the rocks to lay down.

GOOD WHEAT CROP.

365 Bushels is Yield From Part of Eight Acres

CAMPBELLFORD, August 11. — Peter Stephens, who resides on the English Line, and who by general consent had the finest crop of fall wheat in that district; threshed on Friday last, the yield by machine measure being 365 bushels. As it came from the separator the grain weighed 62 pounds to the bushel and was of excellent quality.

The field in which the wheat grew contains eight acres, but a gravel knoll and a low spot in which the crop was winter killed, reduced the actual acreage to not more than eight. This means when the weight of the wheat is taken into consideration that the yield will be 45 bushels or more per acre.

The average yield so far is about 40 bushels. No barley has yet been threshed, but the estimated turn out is 50 bushels to the acre, while there are fields of oats that will yield 75 bushels.

KEENE CROPS ARE VERY PROMISING

High Yield Expected From Wheat, Oats and Barley.

KEENE, Aug. 11.—The crop situation in this district is excellent, fall wheat, oats, alsike and barley being above the average. Mr. Chas. Mather has one large field of wheat which he says will average fifty bushels per acre. His oats will go between sixty and seventy bushels per acre.

Mr. Sam. Comrie has a wonderful crop of oats, which he says will average eighty-five bushels per acre. Mr. Comrie could not give an estimate on his wheat, but it is the best crop of wheat he has grown yet.

M. O'Keefe's wheat will average between forty and fifty per acre and oats will go between fifty and sixty per acre.

Mr. F. A. Eason could not give a definite estimate, but his wheat, oats and barley will be high in average.

R. A. Nelson could not give a definite average, but his wheat, barley and oats will be extra heavy this year.

Mr. Roy Kempt has a wonderful crop of alsike, and although could not give an estimate, it will be extra good. Mr. Kempt's wheat, barley and oats are extra good, but could not strike an average.

Peas are not grown very extensively in this district, but a large number of farmers interviewed besides the ones mentioned, although not being able to give an estimate, stated that they have never had such heavy crops. In going over this district the writer has not seen a poor crop of anything so far this year, and everything points to being a prosperous year all round.

YOUR GARDEN

PRELIMINARY WORK ON THE LAWN AREAS.

Unfortunately during building operations or alterations, very little thought is given to the area that will later be seeded down to lawn. While building is in course of construction, the soil will ordinarily become very much compacted by the teams and workmen which is a condition rather bad for sustaining grass. Therefore all the parts which have been trodden down hard, should be loosened up before surface soil is replaced (taking it for granted that the owner has been wise enough to remove the top soil from the cellar area and for some distance beyond the foundation and had it piled up for future use), as a better root run usually be produced by soil, that is broken up to some depth.

As the grading is being carried on it is advisable to investigate the nature of the soil and determine what treatment may be necessary for the production of a satisfactory stand of grass. Should the soil be of a sandy or gravelly nature, or if it is lacking in humus, barnyard manure be thoroughly dug into the top soil. On the other hand, if the soil proves to be of a stiff claying nature, equal parts of sand and manure should be mixed in with it. This will have the desired effect of making the soil more porous, so that the moisture and air will reach the roots of the grass.

At this time also, holes for any trees or specimen shrubs, that are to be placed on the lawn, should be dug. If left until after the rolling and seeding, the work will likely damage the lawn and cannot be done to advantage. Also care should be taken to protect trees as described in a previous article.

Sometimes the changed conditions make it advisable to provide new soil close to the house and on properties of small area it may be necessary to resurface the whole lawn space. Wherever such surfacing is necessary the best top soil procurable should be used to a depth of at least four inches.

POISONS LURK IN BOOTLEG LIQUOR

Only One Bottle in a Hundred is Fit to Drink.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS.

Ninety-nine per cent of bootleg liquor today is off color. Much of it is of the sort that kills. Not more than one quart in a hundred meets the standards of the days preceding prohibition. More than that, much of it contains actual active poisons, among them carbolic acid, formaldehyde, pyridine, acetone, and iodine — chemicals that are used in denaturing the alcohol from which much of the bootleg stuff is fabricated and which the bootleg manufacturer cannot remove when attempting to turn the denatured alcohol into a beverage.

These statements, based on actual chemical tests are contained in an article by Norman C. McLeod in the September Popular Science Monthly, including an interview with Dr. W. V. Linder, chief of the Chemical Section, In the last year Doctor Linder and his chemists have analyzed more than 85,000 samples of bootleg liquor.

"Less than one per cent of the stuff now sold," said Dr. Linder, "is genuine. The supply today is made up of moonshine distilled under the most filthy and insanitary conditions imaginable, or mixtures of denatured alcohol, colored or flavored to represent whisky, or containing juniper to make it pass as gin.

"Poison? Of course. The degree of poison varies, but it is there just the same. Some of the stuff kills immediately. We have had gallons and gallons here, one drink of which might have meant death. Other mixtures might be drunk regularly for months perhaps before the poisons become effective. Sooner or later, though, they would become effective."

Even were you to see your "Scotch" come off a Rum Row ship according to government experts, you have no guarantee that the stuff ever saw Scotland — or any other place beyond the famous three-mile limit. For the bootleggers have discovered that it is much easier and cheaper to manufacture their own "imported" liquor and then go through the motions of carrying it ashore from Rum Row than to handle the genuine stuff from abroad.

The possibility of getting "real stuff" from bonded warehouses no longer exists. All bonded stocks now are concentrated in a few centrally located warehouses to prevent leakage. Seven-eighths of the supply now is held in 30 concentration warehouses.

IMMIGRANT IS A MILLIONAIRE

Transactions in Foreign Money Brought Wealth to Salustri.

READ THE PAPERS.

If you are an immigrant, newly arrived on the continent of North America, anxious to carve out a career and amass a fortune, list to the words of Victor Salustri. He has been one and done both.

His father was a cobbler in Italy but the cobbler business isn't all that it's cracked up to be in Italy. So Victor bought a steamship ticket.

He began in America as a common laborer. "A very common laborer, indeed," he says if you ask him today. In fact, his total duties consisted of carrying concrete from one pile to another.

Then he began to study finance on the side. "The first step for a foreigner learning American business methods," declares Mr. Salustri, "is simple. He must learn that five coppers make a nickel and twenty nickels one dollar." This knowledge will carry the novice for a long distance.

Mr. Salustri's next step was to learn to write checks. He was soon able to draw a check for $1,000 without his fingers trembling.

Then he began to study the newspapers, discovering that the daily press carried a financial section. His system here was to keep tab on foreign news. For instance, if he discovered something highly favorable to France, he hurried to his bank and purchased French bonds. They usually rose and Salustri therefore usually made money.

He was living in Greenfield at the time. He learned that big banks mailed rate sheets to Greenfield banks each night giving the prices at which they would sell foreign money the following day. These sheets of course were always a day behind the New York markets.

Salustri discovered, therefore, by consulting New York papers, that the French franc and the Italian lira might rise 20 points on the New York market and still sell at the lower figure in Greenfield.

"Here," said Mr. Salustri, "is where I make money."

Mr. Salustri, for instance, bought 20,000 Italian lira in Greenfield at 4.46. The price in New York or Boston at the moment was 4.58.

"This is too easy," said the budding financier.

And so Mr. Salustri by a diligent study of the newspapers became a millionaire. That is his secret.

RAVENS HERALDED HERD OF CARIBOO

Former Sniper in C. E. F. Tells of Barren Lands Trip.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 8.—After an extended period in the Barren Lands, close to Artillery Lake, shooting and poisoning wolves for the Dominion government, Bruno Loranger, former sniper with the Canadian forces in France, recently reached Edmonton, ending a trip to the Outside that lasted 38 days of hazardous travel. Loranger was accompanied by three companions, J. Robert and Frank Wood, expert hunters and J .Dion. Many thrilling experiences befell the adventurous four.

Loranger made a circuit of the Barren Lands, covering a distance of about 150 miles, Carlton Bay at the eastern extremity of Great Slave Lake was the first headquarters of the wolf hunters. The country through which they had to operate was scrubby brush difficult to work through.

On August 1, of last year, the party arrived at an old Indian encampment at Pikes Portage on Carlton Bay. They found a number of Indian dogs which had been abandoned to starve to death. Four of these they kept, while the remainder were shot. On August 5, the schooner in which they had sailed toward the North and over Great Slave Lake was caught in a terrific hurricane which caused the bessel to drag her anchor and be blown into deep water Loranger and two of his companions braved the storm in a 20-foot canoe and just managed to reach the schooner as the canoe sank beneath them The trio were tossed about in the small craft, which was eventually beached a mile and a half away in a sheltered bay. Headquarters were ultimately established at Poor Fish Bay, deriving its name from the fact that the lake produced a very small fish catch.

Travelling the country, poisoning and shooting wolves, the party on December 10 last saw a large flock of ravens in the sky, heralding the cariboo migration to the south. Then came the big herd many hours later, following both sides of Artillery Lake, bound for the forests of Chtistie Bay. In April the great herd moved northward again to the Arctic regions.

Mr. Loranger will submit a report upon his activities to the department to the Interior at Ottawa.

NEW BARONESS SCARSDALE.

REALISTIC TOUCHES FOR CRITIC NERVES

Considered By Some Mere Copy of Impression Received.

Going back to Dussek, this composer wrote a descriptive piece called "The Sufferings of the Queen of France" (Marie Antoinette), in which he essayed to express the feelings of that unfortunate princess in her imprisonment, trial and execution. The fall of the guillotine knife was indicated by a loud chord with a deacending scale! This brings to mind the drop of a seventh in Richard Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel," which denotes the end of that whimsical rogue's career on the gibbet. Strauss is one of the greatest realists in modern music, and much controversy has been aroused by such effects as the bleating of the sheep in his "Don Quixote," by his portrayal in the "Domestic Symphony" of the family life of father, mother and baby, including the bath of the last-named, and, among others, by the execution of John Baptist. Stravinsky, in his "Petruchka Ballet," imitates the ebbing life of the luckless puppet by means of a figure consisting of three-part triads in the consecutive fifths, played by the horns pianissimo. He also reproduces with great fidelity the strident tones of a barrel-organ, using for his purpose flutes, clarinets and bass clarinets. In Ravel's "Beauty and the Beast," from his "Scenes enfantines," the transformation of the monster in a handsome young prince is suggested by a downward glissando on the harp.

Such touches of realism in music are always popular with a certain type of listener, for the simple reason that, by force of association with the familiar, they conjure up a more or less vivid picture of part, though not necessarily the whole, of what was in the composer's mind. If the impression goes no farther, the thing is puerile. We ought not to judge of a composer's ability by his deftness in mere imitation, which is only copying, when all is said and done, but by his success in conveying a complete conception of his whole intent, which is creation.

HIT AIR POCKET.

DETROIT, Aug. 12.—(Canadian Press).—His passenger was killed instantly late yesterday and the pilot owner seriously injured when an airplane fell 200 feet at Packard Field. The dead man is Austin A. Nelson, automobile salesman, and Special Deputy Sheriff of Macomb County.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

RECENT RAIN HAS STIMULATED ALL FARM GROWTHS

Good Crops of Corn and Roots Are Assured—Pastures Are Good.

HARVESTING SLOW

Predictions on Alsike Yield Vary Greatly—New Vegetables Are Appearing.

OMEMEE, Aug. 11.—The recent rains have done much in this locality, to stimulate the corn and root growth and a good crop is almost assured. The pasture land is splendid, thus retaining the milk flow exceptionally well.

Most of the fall wheat is cut, but the harvesting is slow. The report is that the yield of wheat is excellent, but no definite estimate can be made until after the grain is threshed. Many farmers are buying artificial fertilizer with the intention of increasing the acreage this fall.

"The early oats are good," reports Mr. F. G. Sandy, but the late fields are threatened with rust.

Alsike threshing has only commenced but most of the farmers are not anticipating a big yield on account of so many black-heads, and also the frequent rains, have made it necessary to handle and turn the crop in order to get it dry, considerable seed being wasted.

However, the output varies on many farms within a short radius. In the northern section of this community, where threshing is proceeding, Mr. Harold McConnell estimated the yield at about seven bushels to the acre, Mr. W. J. Kennedy, between five and six bushels to the acre, W. Windrim, T. Chatten and F. Bent, all averaging about the same quantity. Mr. Bruce Rehill was somewhat disappointed in some of his and refused to thresh one stack containing about eight loads. Owing to the small output of seed, it would not be a paying proposition.

The general opinion is that a good crop is assured, but the big problem that is receiving expression among the farmers is the dull prospect for better prices.

Vegetables Appearing.

Garden stuff is rapidly appearing on the market. Many are anticipating a good crop of potatoes, while others are complaining of numerous small ones, and very few in a hill. Green corn made its first appearance on Tuesday when Mrs. R. Howden picked a quantity from her garden. This is a six weeks' variety, the seed of which came from Scotland, but the cold wet spring has retarded the maturity to a little over eight weeks.

String beans, beets, carrots and cucumbers are among the most common vegetables, all of which have been greatly improved by the frequent showers.

The season for berries has also been prolonged by the rains and large quantities of luscious fruit have been offered after many housewives have received a supply. The general price has been 15 cents per box.

Culling Poultry.

Many poultry raisers are culling the fowl just now, in order to get rid of the old hens and receiving the high price of 18 cents per pound for birds weighing five pounds and over. At this season, when many hens are moulting, the egg production is decreased and prices are higher, the market price now being 30 cents per dozen. Dairy butter is also a scarcity owing to so many farmers disposing of their cream or milk with less work and receiving very little difference in the returns. The retail price is 35 cents per pound, while creamery sells at 38 cents per pound.

BRIGHTON CROPS IN GOOD SHAPE

Appearance of Fields and Orchards Gives Promise of Good Season.

PRICES GOOD

BRIGHTON, Aug. 11.—A drive through the country this year tends to make one very optimistic for the whole country looks it's best. Everything is fresh and green looking and good crops are prophesied.

Hay has already been harvested and in good condition. Clover and alfalfa are now being harvested and they also are in good condition.

Mixed hay proves to be of only a second grade, owing to the intermittent wet weather during cutting operations.

Wheat and rye are in good health; condition and harvesting will soon by commenced. Barley and oats promise well.

Strawberries were a very poor crope raspberries are a fair crop; the lowest selling price was eight cents a basket; cherries were a heavy crop.

Some of the apple orchards are showing signs of scab but notwithstanding a big crop is promised and it is expected the prices will be as good as last year if not better.

The tomato crop looks good.

Home grown cucumbers and celery are now procurable. Dairy butter is scarce and is selling at forty cents a pound. Potatoes are ranging from thirty to forty cent as peck.

RAIN GOOD AND BAD

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Aug 11.—The weather, being wet, some of the farmers of this vicinity have not finished haying yet. The wheat is an abundant crop this year as the rains came in time to help the growth.

CROPS LOOK GOOD

Nearly All the Hay is in and Farmers Are Starting at Grain.

DEER BAY, Aug. 11.—The crops are looking very good, and nearly all the farmers have got their hay cut and are starting at the fall grain.

HIGH YIELDS FOR ORLAND FARMS

One Man Had 35 Bushels Per Acre—Another Looks for Forty.

POTATOES BLIGHTED

ORLAND, Aug. 11.—Mr. Wm. Goodfellow has just threshed a small piece of wheat which turned out about 35 bushels to the acre. But, as part of this was destroyed by fowls it is not a fair criterion of the vicinity.

Mr. Cecil Goodfellow is looking for better than 40 per acre.

Oats are about ready to cut and are looking good, in fact many fields are too good and have lodged from the late heavy rains, and this will lessen materially the yield.

M. J. Moran has a good prospect of oats and has a large acreage.

Mr. Bert Town has a fine piece of spring wheat on low light land and Mr. Morden Sprung has an equally good crop on high light land.

Many of the farmers say the blight is affecting their potatoes, and some state their late potatoes did not come up properly and after they did come up do not look thrifty. About one third of Walter Carr's potatoes were under water after the recent heavy rain and are practically destroyed.

W. Hall has been marketing his early potatoes at $2.00 a bag, but Mr. Harrison, proprietor of the Clarendon hotel, says he purchased a five bag lot at $1.50.

Corn, as a whole, is looking poor, but there are a few pieces that are an exception to this. Geo. Reddom has a fine field of ensilage corn and W. J. Latimer has an excellent piece of about three acres of Stowell's Evergreen of the garden variety which he intends to harvest for seed as this particular variety is always held at a very high price, in fact last spring it retailed at 55 cts. a pound.

Walter Carr has a fine piece of barley about fit to cut he estimates a yield of better than 35 to the acre.

IDEAL WEATHER NEAR DUNSFORD

Farmers Are Taking Full Advantage by Harvesting Their Crops.

THRESHER BUSY

DUNSFORD, Aug. 11.—These are ideal days for the farmers, and every where you look you can see they are making pretty good use of them; some are drawing in, while others are cutting and stooking.

The crops are all quite heavy, but so far they are all standing up good. While there has been a generous fall of rain yet there has not been any heavy storm or wind to do them any harm. On account of there being so little fog they are quite free from rust.

Mr. Wm. Myers has returned home off the county road and has hitched his steam engine unto the threshing machine and is now quite busy threshing alsike.

The raspberries are getting rather far advanced but there are still enough on the bushes to make quite a few berry pies.

LARGE CROPS GROWN NEAR THOMASBURG

All Fields Give Promise of Splendid Yield—Mildew Spoiled Hay.

THOMASBURG, Aug. 11.—Mr. Chester Adams has 15 acres of oats and anticipates a yield of 66-2-3 bushels to the acre.

Mr. Fred Coulter has 8 acres of rye and 7 acres of barley.

Mr. C. Adams has 4 acres of splendid turnips.

Mr. Wesley Morton has drawn in 40 loads of hay and has more that is still in the field.

Mr. M. Hamilton threshed his clover last week and had 6 bags of clover seed.

Mr. W. Morton had a large field of hay spoiled by mildew.

WHEAT CROP GOOD

East Emily Farmers Are All Busy With Harvest—Threshing Alsike.

EAST EMILY, Aug. 11.—The farmers throughout the district are busy working at their fall wheat. Some have already put it all in the barn and report a good crop.

The spring wheat is also cut on some farms—and even mixed grain and oats are being harvested. It might be said that the harvest is on in full swing. The threshing whistles can be heard throughout the neighbourhood every day now. Many of the farmers are having their alsike threshed. Mr. Wm. McQuade threshed his alsike last week and had a yield of 3 bushels to the acre.

The raspberry crop has been exceptionally good in this vicinity, both wild ones and tame ones being very plentiful.

STEPS TO TAKE TO GET REBATE GASOLINE TAX

Farmers Entitled to Gas Free of Tax for Agricultural Operations.

FILL OUT FORMS

Tenth of Every Month is the Deadline for Applications—The Rules.

Many farmers are still in the dark as to the procedure to be followed in obtaining rebate of the tax on gasoline used for agricultural purposes. It is generally understood, of course, that the recently imposed tax does not apply to gasoline used for purposes other than operating a motor vehicle on the public highway. How the farmer is to obtain the benefit of the concession, however, has been somewhat obscure.

Enquiry at the headquarters of the Peterborough branch of the Motor League brought the information that forms are on hand there for the service of farmers. On these forms must be stated and "solemnly declared," the date of the purchase, the number of gallons, the name of the vendor, the purpose for which the gasoline was purchased, the amount of the tax paid, and other facts. This declaration must be signed and declared before a commissioner or a notary public and mailed to the Deputy Minister of the Department of Public Highways, Toronto, with the bill of sale indicating that the tax has been paid. This bill will be returned with the cheque for the tax.

The forms must be sent in duplicate, and must be sent before the tenth of the month following the month of purchase.

No penalty is mentioned for not applying for the rebate of the tax, but offences in connection with the administration of the act are punishable by fines of $10 to $200.

A Digest.

The steps to be taken, in brief, are:

Obtain a supply of the necessary forms—write to The Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League, 358 George Street.

Pay the tax at time of purchase;

Obtain a bill of sale showing the tax is paid;

Before the tenth of the month fill out the forms, have them certified by a notary public or a commissioner;

Attach the bills of sale, and mail to the address previously given, in Toronto.

The cheque will be forwarded in due time.

HAY IS NEARLY ALL DRAWN IN

A Heavy Crop Was Harvested in Bethany District—Grain Crop is Good.

ROOTS PROMISING

BETHANY, Aug. 11.—Haying in this vicinity is completed with the exception of a few remote cases. In general, the crop of hay and clover has been exceptionally heavy, averaging close to two tons to the acre.

Wheat and rye are all in the stook and farmers are experiencing some difficulty getting it in the barn on account of the catchy weather. Wheat is reported in general to be a very good average crop. In most cases an average of twenty-five to thirty bushels to the acre is expected. All other grain crops are good and oats are showing up excellently, and a heavy yield is anticipated.

Root crops are coming along nicely, and with the present warm weather continuing a good crop will be taken in. Gardens are all good, new potatoes being used for past several weeks.

A few farmers are having considerable trouble in getting their clover threshed on account of the wet weather. No threshing has been done as yet, but with the continuance of dry weather, the hum of the separator will be heard.

HIGH PRICE FOR RASPBERRIES

Still Sell at 15c a Box—Grain Harvest is Well Advanced.

POTATOES CHEAP

HASTINGS, Aug. 11.—While raspberries appear to be plentiful the prices here remain high, and they are selling at 15 cents per box. Mr. Knowton Waters, whose farm is situated in Percy Township, on the river road east of Hastings, states that he has sold over a thousand boxes and has not taken less than 15 cents per box.

The haying season locally is well under way. The weather has been very catchy, rain falling heavily every day or so. Some farmers have finished haying and the majority are nearly so.

Many are cutting wheat and some is harvested, ready for the threshing machine.

The root crop is doing exceedingly well, due to so much rain.

Potatoes have dropped in price and are coming in for $1.50 per bag.

Bees are always more cross on cool, cloudy days than on warm, bright days. It's funny, but whenever we meet a bee it must be a cloudy day.

"This Is My Achievement"

That good grain can only be grown from good seed is axiomatic. It became an axiom only after our pioneer forefathers had labored year after year, seeking, seeking, for ways to better their crops. Just as mixed farming is gaining in the west because of absolute necessity, so pedigreed grain is becoming necessary in the east if results are to be obtained commensurate with the labor put into the fields.

Peterborough farmers have realized this long ago, and their consistently good crops show the excellent results of paying attention to the grades and cleanliness of seed sown.

During the experiments that every live farmer makes in searching for the best way to manage his farm and produce a profit, many must have found classes of seed better fitted for this section than others, and many must have grain seed of which they are proud.

To such successful farmers The Examiner suggests the appropriateness of their exhibiting samples at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition next month. The crop this year is exceptionally good, according to reports, and agriculturists in the district around Peterborough must have samples worthy of placing on exhibition. Such exhibits serve three purposes. They gratify that justifiable pride every man rightly has in achievement. They show others in the farming business what can be done, and may point the pathway to success to someone hitherto unsuccessful. And they indicate to city folk the scientific work needed in pursuing the oldest of all callings.

On the first point not much need be said. A man may be proud of his country when he has done something to make it a good country; he may be proud of his family, when it is a good family, and he may be proud of the products of his brain and science and strength. The farmer who has, in the face of all the legions of opposition, produced grain of merit, is wanting in something if he does not wish to show others that he has been successful.

Community service of a high order is rendered under the second heading, when men share with others the knowledge they have gained in the school of experience. There are still a few farmers who do not realize the advantage in using clean seeds there are fewer still who have not learned the folly of throwing any old thing into the ground and expecting a paying crop. If successful farmers can show through their samples of grain or seed the sound basis underlying the urge to use better seed, then they are serving their community, their country, and are fulfilling man's highest obligation.

The last point—that of the city viewpoint—is one that is perhaps neglected by city and country alike, and yet it is one that should be cultivated by both in the interests of all. It is a good thing for Canada that the old picture of the farmer is giving place in citified minds to the new conception of him as a scientific, business-like workman who must use greater intelligence in the tilling of his farm than many city workers do in their daily work. Exhibits at Peterborough Exhibition will perform this interpretation, and will redound to the benefit of both.

There is nothing more pleasant than to go out in the early morning of the Exhibition opening and pick the best of the grain to make into sheaves; or to take, a few days beforehand, the best of the seed grain and prepare it for exhibit. It gives a man a feeling that does not come in any other way. "This is my work," he says to himself. "I ploughed, harrowed, sowed, reaped, and now I am proud of my work."

Seeds and roots and grains should find a conspicuous place in Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this year, as well as the more common exhibits of cattle, sheep and hogs.

FORESTRY STATION AT ORONO IS DOING GOOD WORK FOR COUNTRY

Two Hundred Acre Farm to Grow Trees For Distributing to Farmers.

MANY VARIETIES.

Million and a Half Seedlings Were Shipped Out Last Year.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 11.—The Provincial Forestry Station at Orono, in Durham County, deserves a wider publicity than it has hitherto been accorded. It's object is the reforesting of waste land, planting suitable areas with the land, planting suitable areas with the trees which once covered the whole province, and were a valuable asset, especially from an agriculturla point of view.

A wasteful carelessness and forest fires, recurring annually, are contributing causes to the destruction of our timber wealth, to an extent far greater than the legitimate demands of trade, or the requirements of household comfort made necessary. To correct this wastage and loss is the object the Provincial Department of Lands and Forests has in view, and such stations as the one at Orono are helping the careful farmer to restore some of the riches with which nature endowed the province by encouraging the ideal of making the growth balance the cut each year.

There are three reforestation stations now located in Ontario, the oldest being at Saint Williams, in Norfolk County, with an area of two thousand acres, the one at Orono, with an area of two hundred acres, and the third at Midhurst, in Simcoe County, which has six hundred acres artificially reforested, and four hundred acres done by nature. In addition transplanting stations have been established at the Sand Banks, in Prince Edward county, at the Kemptville Agricultural School, and at New Liskeard, in Northern Ontario, where there has been such a general cutting in the clay belt that winds are playing havoc with the crops and windbreak material is necessary.

The nursery at Orono is as yet in its babyhood, having had its beginning in August, 1922. The superintendent, M. J. Linton, B.Sc. F., has a thorough faith in the importance and necessity of the work under his charge, practical evidence of his ability and enthusiasm in his task being noted in the fact that the output each year is very considerably in advance of that of the previous season.

The improvements on the property already made, and which are still in progress, give added proof that a capable and well-trained mind is planning and directing the entire enterprise. These improvements include the superintendent's personal residence, an attractive frame house, beautifully situated on rising ground, with smooth, green lawns, the product of recent labor, surrounding it. The foreman, too, lives on the property, his home, a white-painted cottage, also having been newly-built. Well gravelled roads, of a fair width, that will permit driving through the grounds, giving a good view of the various plots of seedlings, are still in process of construction.

Plan Increased Acreage.

So far forty acres out of the two hundred are in use for tree culture, and an increasing acreage is planned for, and brought under cultivation, each year. On the remainder of the land rye is planted for a winter cover crop, and buckwheat for a soiling crop.

From thirty-five to forty-five men are constantly employed, and the trees grown, in the conifer family, include Jack, Scotch, White, and Norway pine, White and Norway spruce, white and red cedar, and balsam. In the hardwood collection are hard and soft maples, the silver maple, "but not the Manitoba maple, which we regard largely as a weed;" the white elm, ash, walnut, butternut, white birch, and varieties of oak. Some willow stumps give a supply of cuttings from which these trees are grown, and the Carolina poplar, is also cultivated in the same way.

There are one hundred and fifty seed beds at the Orono station, each thirty by four feet, and each covered with a screening which admits the desired amount of light, air, and moisture, and which may be rolled back for convenience of planting and cultivation. Each bed contains from eight to ten thousand tiny trees, but the number in the transplant beds, which are thirty by six feet, is in the hundreds, hence to conserve space, and increase output, Mr. Linton is reversing the policy of keeping seedlings one year in the seed beds, and two in the transplant beds, making it instead two and one years, respectively.

Overhead irrigation will be practically a necessity another season, as drought kills many plants in the seed beds, and depending wholly on the rainfall means that the soil, in a large number of cases, is washed up and cakes upon the tiny stem of the seedling, eventually causing it to die. The fine spray used in the overhead irrigation system will wash this caked sand off the stems, and leave the plants covered with moisture rather than the larger drops of water.

Two Purpose of Windbreak.

Hedges of spruce have been planted on either side of the roads running through the Orono nursery, this tree having been chosen for the purpose of a windbreak because of its low-branching growth. A big woodlot on any farm makes an ideal windbreak, providing among other advantages, a haven for insectivorous birds, and thus becoming a form of orchard and crop insurance that is well worth the trouble involved. Trees for windbreaks on farms are distributed free from the forestry stations, up to the number of five hundred. Spruce and cedar are recommended for cases where a windbreak is desired.

The amount of labor involved in setting out trees apparently deters some farmers from attempting the task, but the estimate at the station is that one acre per day, allowing twelve hundred trees to the acre, may be planted by a man, and a boy, with a team. Eleven acres of waste, sandy hillside at Enterprise in Clarke township, were planted from the Orono station by seventeen men in one day and a half.

So far, only three counties, York, Simcoe, Durham and Northumberland, have purchased land for reforestation purposes, but a growing number of townships are taking advantage of provincial help in reclaiming waste land, at present nothing but a detriment to prosperity because no person can make a decent living on it. Properly reforested, a valuable asset to the county may be built up. It was largely through the efforts of ex-Warden Walter Fowlds, of Hastings, that 1,000 acres of sandy land in Halldmand township, Northumberland county, were purchased at $6 per acre, and more than two hundred acres of this has been planted in red and white pine, with some Scotch in the blow holes. The supplies were obtained from the Orono station. The Department does not recommend paying higher than $10 per acre when such land is purchased.

That the excellent work being done by the station at Orono, and the other two points in the province, has been comparatively little known is unfortunate but a campaign of education is bearing fruit. Mr. Linton had a practical demonstration at the Millbrook and Orono fairs last fall, and will extend the scope of this work at other fairs this season. Small demonstration plots are arranged at the Orono station, also, and visitors in quest of information as to soils, and suitable plantings, are warmly welcomed.

In making application for trees for planting it is important to state the kind of soil where they are to be used. Lists close by March first, applications received after that date being carried over until another season. Conifers, generally speaking, are shipped when from two to three years old, but hardwoods at one year. Instructions and literature will be supplied with the seedlings, but the station does not give assistance in planting privately owned land.

The seedlings are packed in wet moss, from three thousand to thirty-five hundred to a case, the latter usually weighing from two hundred to two hundred and fifty pounds.

Thirty-five hundred trees, sufficient to plant three acres, will be supplied free to individual applicants, after that number a nominal charge of four dollars per thousand is made, the idea being to prevent ordering of more than the number actually required.

One million, five hundred thousand, seedlings were shipped from the Orono station last spring representing seven hundred and seventy-five orders averaging two acres apiece, within a radius of from ten to twelve miles. Seventy personal applications were made at Mr. Linton's office as against twenty last year. Approximately one hundred and fifty acres have been planted in this district, the Orono station supplying the material.

In cases where townships wish to reforest, purchase of land and fencing it in, is the expense involved, the forestry station supplying the trees and planting the requisite number without charge.

CUTTING SPRING GRAIN STARTED ON LAKE SHORE

Farmers Near Cobourg Began to Cut Last Week—Vegetables Plentiful.

SMALL FRUIT SCARCE

Orchards Are Laden With Plums and Pears—Cannery Enlarged.

COBOURG, Aug. 11.—Nearly all of the hay in this district is cured and in the barns and the cutting of fall wheat and rye is in progress generally. Barley is ripening fast and the harvest will follow hard after these, and oats will soon be ready too. A few farmers started cutting the spring grain this week. Crops are everywhere around here reported to be good, although little or no threshing has yet been done to show the yield. Clover is the only crop threshed as yet.

Potatoes a Good Crop.

Potatoes are a good crop, and farmers are digging their early varieties and bringing them into town to sell, while the price is high. It had dropped about half, however, in a fortnight, as on Saturday potatoes were selling by vendors on the streets for $2.00 a bag and were being peddled out by the peck for 40 cents.

Tomatoes Very Slow.

Unless there is some good hot weather from now on, tomatoes will not be a big crop. The vines have been very much retarded in their growth by cold weather. Garden stuff generally is looking very well, however.

Fruit Not Plentiful.

The small fruits with the exception of red raspberries are not plentiful on the market this year. Raspberries are selling at 15 cents a box, and two boxes for 25 cents. Some wild raspberries sold for nine cents a box. Blackberries are 18 to 25 cents. Blackberries are 20 cents a pound and 25 cents a basket. Harvest apples are 60 cents a peck. Cherries (Montmorency) are selling from $1.25 to $1.40 a basket. Earlier in the season $1.00 a basket was the price asked.

Vegetable Prices.

All of the small bunched vegetables are now selling at 5 cents a bunch. Celery is 10 cents and two bunches for 15 cents. Cauliflower sells from 15 cents to 35 cents. Cabbages are 5 cents and 10 cents, and red cabbages are 15 cents. Cucumbers are five cents and 10 cents each. Tomatoes are still dear, and are 25 cents a pound retail. Green beans are 60 cents a peck.

Pears and Plums Good Crop.

There has seldom been a year when pears and plums gave evidence of a better crop than they do at the present time. Trees are loaded with fruit. One farmer living a few miles east of then town has fifteen varieties of plums in his orchard.

New Store-house.

The Smithfield Packing Company is erecting a large two-story store-house fifty by fifty-two feet adjoining the factory in East Northumberland. The latter building has also been repaired and improved. The company is apparently getting ready for a big fallh season.

BUMPER CROP HAY NORWOOD

Fall Grains Are Now Being Cut and Promise Another Large Crop.

NORWOOD, Aug. 11.—Haying is practically over in this district and has proven to be a bumper crop, and a number one sample. Fall grains are being cut, and they, too, are an excellent crop.

Messrs. Hugh Cuthbertson and Phillip McConnell have extra good fields of corn.

Raspberries and huckleberries are still on the market, and the former are two boxes for 25 cents, the latter $2.00 a ten-quart pail. Dairy butter is a very scarce commodity. Most of the farmers send their milk to the cheese or butter factories, or ship the cream.

CROPS STILL OUT

Farmers at Welcome Are Lamenting Because of Frequent Rains.

WELCOME, Aug. 11.—The farmers are lamenting their inability to get their crops in on account of the many rain storms.

PEA LOUSE DID GREAT DAMAGE

Pea Fields Near King's Wharf Were Visited—Other Crops Good.

THRESHER SOLD

KING'S WHARF, Aug. 11.—The crops in general are looking splendid. The pea crop along the lake is splendid this year, as the blackbirds did not trouble the farmers as in former years.

In other places, not by the lake, the pea louse has destroyed the pea, especially the very early and late crops.

The fall wheat is all cut and Messrs. P. Perdue, A. Twomey, V. Perdue and D. O'Neill expect it to yield from 40 to 50 bushels per acre.

Oats are also good. Some fields are five feet high, and with good weather alsike, which looked so promising, is only half a crop in some places, and other farmers say it is no good.

The hay is all in and was not so good.

The early potatoes are good. There are not so many in the hills but they are of good size. Other garden produce looks splendid.

The pastures are all burned up and cattle have no feed so the milk supply has gone down to half. Dairy butter is selling at 35 cents per pound, while the last cheese sold at 20½ cents.

The wild raspberries are a fair crop but the berry patches are so scarce that there are hardly any berries. They sell at $2.00 a pail.

The Pigeon River Threshing Company held a meeting at the home of Thos. Morrissey on Wednesday. It was decided to sell the outfit, and Messrs. Wm. Flynn, Jr., and W. C. Herlihey bought it. They are getting ready to thrash now. There has been to threshing done here yet. Wm. Curtin and sons are preparing to thresh alsike.

ALL GRAINS AND VEGETABLES ARE GOOD IN DUMMER

Large fields of Fine Corn and Wheat Are Seen Near Warsaw.

RIPENS RAPIDLY.

Tomatoes Ripe Since August 3 in One Farm Garden—Vegetables Good.

WARSAW, Aug. 11.—The report of the inspector of oat fields in the Douro and Dummer Agricultural Society Field Crops competition is as follows—1st, Arthur Edwards, 92 points; 2nd, Allan N. Payne, 91 points; 3rd, Fred Fitzgerald, 90½ points; 4th, Archie Tedford, 89 points; Gordon Payne, 88 points; 6th, William Hayes, 85 points; 7th, David Rose, 80 points. There were twelve competitors.

There is quite a lot of patchy corn to be seen, but there is also a lot of good. Mr. Fitzpatrick has a splendid show of corn on the north side of the hill. Wm. Hawthorne has, what is considered, the best field of corn near the village. He has five acres of it.

James Hawthorne has a splendid field of eight or nine acres, likely to yield about thirty bushels to the acre.

J. A. Crowe grows grain only for chopping for feed. He has about forty acres of mixed barley and oats, which he considers a really good crop.

Mr. Crowe's one half acre of field potatoes give the promise of being a good crop. He also grows corn for ensilage.

Fred Morgan has harvested about eight acres of good fall wheat. It handled well in the sheaf. He also has about six acres of rye, which is extra good, but he does not care to give an estimate.

William Darling has five acres of excellent spring wheat; John Clifford has about eight acres of fine looking buck-wheat just coming into blossom. On the whole, the grain in this district is good. It has been a hard season to kill weeds, and farm help is so scarce that in many places the weeds are bad.

The last few days have ripened the oats and barley rapidly, and most farmers expect to be fairly steadily busy until the grain is all in.

David Rose and Arthur Edwards, both have good vegetable gardens. David Drain has a good crop of late raspberries.

Mrs. John Tucker has had ripe tomatoes in her garden since August third, and early potatoes to use and sell since July tenth. Her other vegetables are fine, and her front garden is gay with marigolds, zennias, phlox, foxglove and other old favorites.

Alec Watts, as usual, has a show of beautiful flowers.

Most huckleberry pickers have been quite successful. James Robinson and party brought out ninety pails.

Honey is good in quality and quantity. Elmo Hendren has already taken over two tons to Peterborough.

Two men are hired in Broome county, N.Y., to see that the law that requires folks to have their dogs tied up at night is obeyed. Dogs were killing so many sheep that it was necessary to do something to stop the drain on the county treasury.

BURNBRAE FARM OWNERS EXPECT A BUMPER CROP

This Year Will Stand Out as One of Especially Good Crops.

LITTLE THRESHING

One Man Had 577 Bushels of Wheat From About 25 Acres.

BURNBRAE, Aug. 11.—The year 1925, is, to date, one that will stand out as a year of specially good crops for Burnbrae farmers. Haying was pretty well completed before the rush of harvest started, and yields were, in nearly every case, above expectations. Hay of finer quality has seldom been seen in this locality. Probably the best yield reported is that of Bert Hay on the 7th Concession of Seymour. On a farm of slightly over 100 acres, Mr. Hay harvested just 100 loads of hay, over 50 loads being finest quality alfalfa.

While most of the wheat has been cut and stored, very little threshing has been done.

Mr. H. C. Bedford threshed 577 bushels from slightly over 25 acres. This average of 23 bushels per acre is just about the average that is usually obtained in the district over a period of years. While some fields will run well over thirty, the majority will be below this mark, taking averages on the threshing mill run. The quality of the grain seems to be good, though the early threshed stuff is quite soft and liable to heat.

Very little rye is grown here, but appears to be a good average crop where there is any. The barley crop is rather uneven, some fields being heavy while others are fairly light. On the whole, the crop will be an average one with rather more straw than is sometimes the case.

Oats, the old standby of the dairy farmer, is one of the heaviest crops on record. While the straw is not as long as in some former years, the recent rains have developed the heads with the result that the grain will be of exceptional quality with heavy yields per acre. Oat cutting started early in the month. Bert Hay cut a field of early oats on August 3, while several other farmers in the district will have some cut before the end of the week. Messrs. A. Hume, Roy Walker and Wm. Rannie, who are in the field crop competition, all report splendid fields. Mr. Hume states that, while his fields contain some sweet clover and buckwheat and are therefore slightly lower in score, he thinks the yield of grain will be even greater than last year, when his prize yield averaged 70 bushels per acre. This season is an exceptional one in respect to the oat crop in that no poor fields are to be seen at all. Generally the crop varies even on the same farm, but this year all the oats were seeded in good time and with favourable conditions ever since the crop will probably establish a record for this district.

The corn crop gives promise already of full silos this fall. While no one reports any phenomenal growth yet the early sown fields show a good average stand, already peeping over the top of the fences.

While few roots are grown here, those farmers who have any are pleased with the progress made. Potatoes give promise of a fairly heavy crop. Although there are no market gardens here, every farm has its own garden to provide the table with green stuff, and there seems to be no lack of supplies. Tomatoes are growing rapidly, while peas have been specially good.

A few good fields of buckwheat are noted although less has been sown this year than formerly.

Second-growth pasture is growing faster than ever before, and some fields will be of necessity cut for hay. This good pasture has resulted in sustained milk flow which, at present cheese prices, adds materially to the prosperity of the community.

FINE FIELDS OF VARIOUS GRAINS

Dummer Farmer is Very Proud of Pea Field and Other Crops.

69 LOADS OF HAY

WARSAW, Aug. 11.—Edward Carlow, Dummer, has a splendid field of peas of which he is very proud. He has also good fields of oats and barley, and has cut an excellent field of Fall wheat.

Mr. David Drain has sixty-nine good loads of hay.

Mr. McCrae, district agricultural representative, is making his rounds examining the school gardens.

Mr. Young is examining the field crops. He was near Warsaw on Monday and south of Warsaw, Tuesday.

There was a meeting in No. 12 school on Tuesday evening to arrange for a demonstration class in judging.

MANY BERRIES

Douro People Have Been Out Picking Huckleberries and Raspberries.

DOURO, Aug. 11.—Many local people have made a trip to the north to pick huckleberries and had varying success.

Wild raspberries are a splendid crop and local housewives are busy picking and canning this splendid fruit.

The hay crop is harvested and was put under cover in splendid condition. The yield was excellent.

BUDGET OF LIVE NEWS FROM THE OLD LAND FOR EXAMINER READERS

PITCHED BATTLE IN GLASGOW OVER ORANGE PARADE

Disorder and Rioting Marked Annual Demonstration in West Scotland

TWENTY ARRESTS

Bottles, Stones, Lodge Batons, and Bank Instruments All Effective

Scenes of grave disorder and rioting characterized the annual demonstrations of the Orange lodges of Glasgow and the West of Scotland. The disturbances were created during the familiar Orange procession through the streets, which this year assumed an imposing scale, about 40,000 men, women and juveniles participating. The procession followed a route through the East End of the city, and at Shettleston, Parkhead, and Abercromby and Stevenson streets were the scenes of a series of dangerous incidents. In this street form of guerilla warfare, bottles and stones served as missiles, and lodge batons, blunt tridents and bandsmen's instruments were used. There were innumerable casualties, although the injuries were mostly of a superficial nature. The preparedness of the police for trouble and the promptitude with which a special escorting force of mounted and foot officers intervened in the incipient periods of the riots undoubtedly checked the scope of the outbreaks. About midnight, after the various district sections of the procession had returned to their quarters, there was a recrudescence of the trouble at Garngad, in which, it is stated, a revolver was used. Twenty arrests were made in the course of the disturbances, principally in the eastern districts of the city.

MARCH TO SHETTLESTON.

The route of the procession lay between the Orange Hall in Cathedral street and Springbolg Park on the far side of Shettleston — a distance of about five miles. On the outward journey nothing sensational occurred in so far as such events go. Near an Irish hall in Shettleston there was a minor foray of the opposition into the ranks of the Orangemen, a lively exhibition of fisticuffs (in which a number of Orange office-bearers defended themselves with cane batons and the flat of Lodge swords), some arrests, followed by the retreat of the attackers. A little further on, near Annick street, the flaunting of green flags from tenement windows drew the retaliation of a shower of stones and the temporary lowering of the Sinn Fein colors.

From the beginning of the return journey, it was obvious that the atmosphere was less tolerant and more tense. Near the same spot in Shettleston as the earlier demonstrations had taken place a coterie of green flag-waggers became a storm centre for a few moments.

For the next mile little incidents, insignificant in themselves, boded ill for the hope of a continued orderliness of the parade. Abercromby street is the centre of a Catholic community, and contains St. Mary's Chapel. As the head of the procession appeared, led by the waggonettes containing the principal office-bearers of the Orange Lodge of Scotland, green emblems fluttered from every second window in the high walls of tenements on either side. Dense crowds pressed upon the fringes of the marching Orangemen.

RED BATTLE.

An exchange of virulent badinage developed in a twinkling to red battle. Lemonade and gingerbeer bottles aimed at the waving banners crashed in a cloud against the grimy walls and shattered into fragments. Windows were smashed. An old woman, leaning from the first storey window, ignoring all danger and persistently waving a green shawl, was struck full on the forehead with a bottle and collapsed. A child in a passing perambulator just escaped a flying missile. Women were screaming in fright and execration. The crowds surged and the fighting in the street began. A little lower down combatants were clambering on board stationary trams cars and hurling missiles from the top decks. It was an extremely ugly situation.

Suddenly mounted and foot police, who had been singularly skilful so far in maintaining reasonable order, swooped down upon the swaying crowds, effected a number of arrests, dispersed the groups, and effectively nipped a general brawl in the bud for the moment. But at the corner of Stevenson street, where the arrested, the police, the crowds and the procession were inextricably mixed up, there seemed a prospect of a rescue of the men in custody. Sensitive to every move of danger, the mounted police spurred into the melee, the foot police drew their batons, and some sort of order was once more established. In George street, almost wildin sight of the Orange Hall, there was another slight fracas, in which a woman was involved.

CHILDREN PLAY WITH VALUABLE PEARLS

Mistaken at first for beads by the roadman who found it in the gutter, a £1,000 pearl necklace lost in the West End has been returned to its owner, Lady Violet Beaumont, of 49, Eaton Place, S.W.

The roadman, Sydney Hamson, of Sutton-buildings, Chelsea, saw the pearls in the gutter in Sloane Street. The necklace consisted of a single string of 47 pearls with a small diamond clasp. Hamson showed the pearls to his mates, who thought they were beads, so he took them home as playthings for his children.

On Saturday morning, however, reading of the loss of the pearls, he immediately took the "beads" to Lady Beaumont, who recognised them as the missing pearls.

Hamson is by profession a naval engineer, but being unable to find employment he accepted casual work as a roadman to the Chelsea Borough Council rather than go on the dole.

He receives the £50 reward offered by Lady Beaumont.

Solicitor in Bow County Court: "Your wife says you owe this money. Do you agree?"

Witness: "Certainty. I never argue with my wife—it's safer."

THE IDEA!

It was stated at Newcastle Sessions, when a young man was sentenced to three years' imprisonment for shopbreaking that because he could not find any money on the premises he had smashed three thousand eggs, cut up six hams and fourteen slabs of cake, and scattered over the floor three stones of sugar.

HER LOVER'S DOLL IN ARMS, WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Clasping Gift of Dead Sweetheart, Frenchwoman Shoots Herself

POISON FOUND

Immigration Authorities Said She Must Return to France

A tragedy worthy of the pen of Balzac or Zola was enacted on the quayside at Newhaven.

With a pistol taken from a box in which was a child's china doll—the first gift from her dead lover—a French woman, Mlle. Adeline Augustine Phillip, shot herself after being prevented from landing by the immigration authorities.

She had come from Dieppe to England in a desperate condition, hoping to find that her lover, a marine engineer, who died in March last, had left her some money. At one time she was a stewardess with a French company, and of late had acted as a nurse.

Mlle. Phillip arrived at Newhaven at 4 a.m., her baggage consisting of a small travelling suitcase, while all the money she had with her was 400 francs (£4). On being told that she must leave the country by the next boat, she became very excited. "I'll kill myself!" she shouted, and gathering up her French notes, threw them in the faces of the officials. Her threats were not taken seriously, and she was conducted, screaming and kicking, to the detention room and left in charge of the women officials.

"I spent over an hour with Mlle. Phillip in the detention room," a woman who witnessed the shooting said. "When she was brought in by the constable she was in a high state of hysteria, and it was a long time before we could quieten her.

"About half-past five we made some coffee, and I handed a cup to Mlle. Phillip. But she did not drink it. 'I'll show you something,' she said, and opened her travelling bag and took out a cardboard box. Pointing inside, she said, 'This is the first present my lover ever gave me.' Inside the box was a child's china doll. Tightly clasping the box in her arms, she wept bitterly and refused to be comforted by another young French woman who was present.

"'I must die! I must die!' she wailed.

"Suddenly knocking over her chair, she sprang to her feet. Then she snatched something from the doll's box, and, plunging her hand into her breast, fired. A moment later she had fallen to the floor with a smoking toy pistol lying at her feet."

In a concealed pocket of the dead woman's clothing was found a bottle of poison.

MINISTER JAILED FOR BEING DRUNK

Motor Collision Followed Visit to Dying Fiancee

A clerk in Holy Orders of the Episcopal Church of Scotland, Harold Mayall, of Palmers Moor House, Iver, Bucks, appealed at the Middlesex Sessions against a sentence of 21 days' imprisonment in the second division for being drunk while in charge of a motor-car.

While driving a car at Hillingdon, Mayall collided with a motor-coach. A policeman was called, and soon after found him hanging on the radiator of his car, and arrested him.

Dr. Hodson said that two hours after the collision Mayall was suffering from the effects of alcohol. He was unable to do a simple addition sum until a third attempt.

Sir Montagu Sharpe: Is that a new test for drunkenness?—It is a test they give to educated people, and they find it a good one.

Mayall stated that he had been to Hendon Cottage Hospital to see his fiancee, who was lying seriously ill, and who died a day or two later.

Sir Montagu Sharpe said it had been clearly proved that Mayall was intoxicated. The appeal would be dismissed with costs.

KILLED BY FISH

Bather Believed Attacked by Sting-ray

A large sting-ray, weighing forty pounds, is believed to have caused the death of a young man named Raymond Edward Gould, who was drowned in the Jersey West End bathing pool at West Park.

The circumstances of his death were most mysterious, as neither the boatman, the attendant, nor the many bathers heard any cries for help. However, two policemen caught a sting-ray in the pool, and as the fish is most dangerous in either tough or attack, it is considered likely that Gould was attacked by it. It is ten years since the last of a similar species was caught in local waters. Sting-rays are generally found in the tropics. Their tails have a barbed spine. They defend themselves by lashing their tails in every direction, inflicting dangerous or extremely painful wounds.

Magistrate at Willesden: Any question to ask? Defendant: Not exactly a question; but I should just like to tell the witness, through you, sir, that she's telling frightful stories.

MIRACLE CURED WOMAN CRIPPLED EIGHTEEN YEARS

Lord Told Her to Walk, She Said, After Seven Years' Silence

HOPELESS CASE

Will Now Devote Life to Mother Who Cared for Her

After being practically bedridden for 18 years, Miss Polly Teskey, who for the last three or four years has lived with her mother at Dikusha, a small bungalow in Oysterfleet, rose from her sick bed.

She walked to the other end of the room, sat down on a chair, and asked for something to eat. As she rose, she said, "Lord, I believe."

Until that moment she had for a few days been going from bad to worse, and it was believed that her last moments were at hand. She had been as in a trance, unable to recognize anyone.

At the moment of her transformation, a friend, Mrs. Rush, was sitting with Miss Teskey. She said that as she rose Miss Teskey cried out to her:

"Don't stop me.... The Lord is going to make me quite well if I walk to that chair. . . . I have been taking to the Lord Jesus, and He says if I have faith to believe He will heal me."

"The doctor had given her but a few days to live," said Mrs. Rush, "and we all thought it was a matter of hours. On Monday her pulse had practically gone—in fact, there was scarcely any perceptible beating. At 6.30 p.m. all that could be said of her was that she was on the border line.

"Her eyes were fixed almost as in death, she was motionless, and her body was rigid. Three-quarters of an hour later she was sitting bolt upright in that chair asking for food, like any ordinary person, and saying, 'Mrs. Rush, I am talking, I am talking,' and her voice, except for occasional feeble whispers, had not been heard for seven long years."

DREAM OF A GARDEN.

Miss Teskey is the least excited person here. When I entered her little cottage to congratulate her on her recovery she was sitting on the edge of the bed on which for so many years she has lain in pain and sickness, now talking and laughing with a crowd of astonished neighbors.

She walked across the room to show me what, as she described it, "the Lord's miracle has done for me."

"I cannot run about yet, of course," she said, "but I was able to go down the steps into the garden and stay out there for three hours this morning.

"This thing is no work of a medical man. I was beyond their aid, and they said so. The Lord did this for me, because I had faith in Him. I never wanted to get better, though, and frequently asked the Lord to take me away altogether. This is just a miracle, and nothing else.

"I remember dreaming that I was in a beautiful garden, talking to God. He told me that through Satan I had had many years of sorrow to test me, but that I would now have years of joy, and would be needed by my mother. She is getting on now. She has looked after me all through the dreary years of my illness, and now I am going to devote myself to looking after her. I have no other plans.

DOCTOR BAFFLED.

"I have not spoken since the Armistice, and have not even been able to whisper for the last five months. In fact, I have no recollection whatever of the last two or three months."

Miss Teskey was only 23. She was thrown out of a trap on to her head, and as a result became paralyzed down the left side, and her head was drawn down to her left shoulder. Despite all treatments at hospitals, including the London Homoeopathic, she became worse, and was finally confined to bed, both legs being paralyzed. In 1918 the paralysis reached her throat. She was conveyed to Canvey in bed on a motor-lorry in 1922, and until Monday had never left it.

GENERAL SUED

Tea Magnate Takes Action for Libel

A speech by Brigadier-General Decie, of Victoria road, Kensington, at a meeting of the Loyalty League, resulted in a slander action against him by Messrs. Lyons and Co., the caterers, which opened before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury.

Among the words complained of were the following:

When Mr. Lyons learned that 4d. a pound tax was going to be taken off tea, he unloaded all his tea at the full price on the retailers, and when they had bought it the tax was taken off, and they had to sell it for 4d. a pound less, and lose 1½d. a pound on it. When they wanted some more Mr. Lyons put up the price 2d. to them so that he gained both ways.

Mr. Henry Gaunt, district manager to Messrs. Lyons, said the benefit of the Budget reductions was given to customers as soon as the reductions were known. There was a loss of something like £20,000 on this.

The hearing was adjourned.

HARE KILLED MAN

Septicaemia Poison Followed Bite

Ernest Bibby, a licensed victualler, of Ardleigh, near Colchester, finding a young hare lying in the road, went to pick it up. The hare bit him in the arm and a fortnight later he complained of pain. Afterwards, becoming delirious, he was removed to hospital and died.

At the inquest Dr. Drury said that death was due to septicaemia following the bite. Had the wound been cauterised immediately, death might not have occurred.

The coroner, in returning a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence, emphasized the danger of neglecting small wounds.

DISTINGUISHED OFFICER WRONGLY ARRESTED AS MAN WHO ROBBED GIRL

A serious charge against a distinguished army officer, Major Robert Osborne Sheppard, D.S.O., was withdrawn at the Old Bailey. It was that of stealing £18 10s. and an attache case, the property of a woman, Miss Deitah Dennistown, from her room.

While the Grand Jury was considering the case it was announced that the Treasury thought it would not be right to put him on his trial and that a full statement as to the reasons for the decision would be announced.

The Recorder (Sir Ernest Wild, K.C.), in his charge to the Grand Jury, had referred to Major Sheppard's assertion that he had never seen the woman before she accused him in the street.

"I need not remind you," he added, of the perils of mistaken identity."

In his charge to the Grand Jury the Recorder said he did not allude to the case because of its great gravity, but because of the peculiarity of the facts that appeared on the depositions. It was a case of a distinguished army officer who was charged with stealing money and other property from a woman.

Her evidence was that she met a man late at night on June 18, and took him home with her. When this man left soon after five o'clock next morning, and after he had handed her what she believed to be a £5 note, but which was afterwards found to be a useless piece of paper, and he had gone, she missed her attache case, £18 10s., and other property.

In her evidence she said the man was a complete stranger to her.

On the night of June 27 as Major Sheppard was passing down Dover Street Deitah Dennistown came up to him and said, "I have got you now," and caught hold of his coat. He demanded an explanaton, and said he would give her in charge. Finally they took a cab and went to Vine Street Police Station.

On arrival there he said he had never seen the woman before, and he knew nothing to account for her charge against him. Major Sheppard, according to the police, was a man of the very highest character.

The woman persisted he was the man, and he was charged with the offence. When before the magistrate the woman said she was certain that he was the right man.

She was severely cross-examined and agreed that she had identified the photograph of a man as the man who had been with her and who was not the Major, but apparently a man well known to the police. In spite of that she still persisted that Major Sheppard was the man.

Major Sheppard, continued the Recorder, went into the witness-box and gave evidence accounting for his whereabouts and called his valet, who corroborated.

The police stated before the magistrate that they were on the look out for a man they desired to arrest on a similar charge, and that this man's photograph was the one which the woman had identified. The police officer added the strong statement, "I am satisfied a mistake has been made in this case."

The identification, continued the Recorder, rested entirely upon the evidence of this woman.

POSED AS ROYALTY TO BORROW MONEY

Woman Says She's Tino's Wife and Daughter of Czar

A woman who was said to have posed as the divorced wife of ex-King "Tino" of Greece was brought up at Hythe Petty Sessions, Hampshire.

The case had been remanded, and four new charges of obtaining money by false pretences were preferred against the woman, Olga Jeannette Hardin, and John Kay Hardin. The total sum involved in five cases before the court was £2,578.

Mr. Pashley, for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said the couple defrauded a Marchwood man of £1,066, and then took lodgings with a Mrs. Wyatt at East India Dock road, London. The woman said that she was the divorced wife of ex-King Tino of Greece, and was engaged in legal proceedings affecting estates all over the world, and a sum of £3,000,000. Mrs. Wyatt's daughter advanced her loans amounting to £857. One day the couple returned to their lodging stating that they had won their lawsuit, the woman adding: "I am now known as Lady Olga Victoria Blenheim Austin."

In another case the woman informed a Southampton boot and shoe dealer that she was the daughter of the late Czar of Russia and Princess Olga of Russia, and induced him to hand them more than £500.

Both the man and the woman were committed for trial.

A WIDOW FOR 70 YEARS.

Mrs. Mary Evans, of Park Street, Brighton, who died in her 100th year, has been a widow over 70 years, and lost her husband after five years of married life. Until last Christmas, when she met with an accident, Mrs. Evans never missed paying a weekly visit to her husband's grave to place upon it her little bunch of flowers.

CHILD DISAPPEARS DOWN A CREVICE

Remained There 90 Minutes Before Rescued With Slight Injuries

A three-year-old child playing in a field at Kelloe, Durham, suddenly disappeared through a crevice in the ground. The cries of his mother brought a crowd of volunteers, and the child was seen standing on a ledge twelve feet below the surface.

There was another sharp drop of considerable depth below the ledge. The opening in the surface was not wide enough to admit of anyone going to the child's assistance, and the rescuers realized that any attempt to enlarge the opening would entail danger to the child, and probably cause him to fall to the greater depth.

A rope in which a slip loop had been made was lowered, and the child was told to place the loop round his arms. This he did, and by this means the boy was held in position for an hour and a half while rescuers dug down and brought him safely to the top.

The child, the son of a couple named Hewitson, was found to be suffering from shock and slight wounds to the head.

BELL RINGER NEARLY HAS NECK WRUNG

While assisting in ringing a "Grandsire Triple" (change ringing on seven bells) at Battle (Sussex) Parish Church, Mr. Percy Carter failed to secure the rope, which, being slack, curled round his neck and twice pulled him off the ground.

He managed to release himself before he could be pulled up a third time.

He was badly shaken, his neck and ears were severely grazed, and the muscles of his arms were sprained.

PERISCOPE BRINGS PRINCE OF FORGERS TO PRISON CELL

Detectives Used Submarine's Eye to Watch Quarry

A MASTER MIND

William Harrison Lived High on Systematized Fraud

A master mind in the most daring gang of forgers with which Scotland Yard have ever had to deal, William Henry Harrison was sentenced at the Old Bailey to four years' penal servitude.

He was arrested in connection with the police raid last month on a forgers' den in Earl's Court, W., where detectives discovered the most elaborate forgers' plant that has ever fallen into their hands.

Harrison is a man who has been living at the rate of about £5,000 a year on the proceeds of crime. He specialized in long firm frauds as well as in forgery, and in recent years has brought off many coups, including one out of which he and an accomplice netted £30,000.

The forger's plant seized at Earl's Court is so unique that it is to be preserved in the Black Museum at Scotland Yard. There was a swing camera, mounted on rails, measuring 3 ft. 9 in. square, powerful arc lamps, bottles of acids and stacks of photographic plates.

Harrison pleaded guilty to having the forger's plant in his possession, and also to being concerned in a long firm fraud by means of which he obtained goods valued at £1,200.

His arrest was brought about by Scotland Yard men, working under Chief-Inspector Cornish. Harrison proved so elusive that the police, in order not to arouse his suspicions, had to be most wary in keeping the Earl's Court house under observation. Detectives hid themselves in a room opposite, and watched for hours through a periscope. Harrison was a friend and accomplice of Gerald Kennaway, one of the most amazing criminals of modern times—a Cambridge University man, who became a "Jim, the Penman," and organized the most skilful gang of forgers ever known.

Harrison, a well-groomed man of military appearance, was living in a beautifully furnished flat in Kensington all the time he was pursuing a life of crime. He posed as a wealthy man about town, kept an extensive wardrobe and patronized the best West End restaurants.

GOES TO SCOTLAND TO SEEK FORTUNE

In his endeavor to trace a Scottish estate, believed to amount to £100,000, Mr. George D. Bowles, an American lawyer, from Richmond (Virginia), has arrived in Glasgow.

He is now engaged in searching the record of wills in the Commissary Department at the county buildings. The wanted will is that of a man named William McNab, and Mr. Bowles is acting on behalf of McNab's heirs in America.

Mr. Bowles admitted that his information regarding McNab was somewhat vague. He is understood to have lived at one time in the Stirling district, and to have carried on the business of a wine and spirit merchant, as well as being a shipowner.

He was a bachelor, and died between 1900 and 1907. His brothers all emigrated to America, and all possible heirs there have been traced.

BED ONLY REMAINED

Destitute Lambeth Couple Committed Suicide

A man known as Jack Clements, who traded in cooked meats, and a woman who had been living with him, were found dead, with their heads in a gas oven at a shop in Lambeth Walk. Their ages are about 40.

Only a week or so ago the last of Clement's furniture was sold, only a bed remaining, while in the shop there was neither stock nor money.

The discovery of the tragedy was made by neighbors, who saw the legs of the woman protruding through the door of the cookhouse.

BROKERS RUSHED STOCK EXCHANGE AS RUBBER ROSE

Fought Like Schoolboys in a Rugby Scrum to Reach Jobbers

CLOTHES TORN

Weak Abandoned Struggle Early, the Strong Men Won

Half-way up Mincing Lane, in the City, is a tall, smoke-blackened building, with the legend cut over its portals:

THE RUBBER MARKET.

Just now it is the hub of considerable excitement.

Through the wide windows—open in this warm weather—groups of men can be seen in conference with their heads close together; while against the further wall is a line of telephone cubicles which are never unoccupied.

In the narrow street outside hatless men form restless clusters; there are confidential murmurings, and in tiny pocket-books are recorded the whispered transactions in rubber—either the raw material or in the form of shares.

Threading their way through the ever-changing crowd, messengers come and go with blue parcels tucked under their arms. The parcels contain rubber; and when you peep into the sale rooms dotted about you see wide spaces of tables with little cases of rubber, which seems to emphasize both its scarcity and its value.

Although the speculating public is buying small parcels of raw rubber, the buyers and sellers are not unduly harassed or subjected to the same physical inconvenience which their brethren in the rubber share market on the Stock Exchange are experiencing.

Th other day rubber prices shot suddenly skyward. Business began at 10.45 a.m., and at that hour the floor was uncomfortably filled. It became comparable to a Rugby scrum, according to one of those who had tried to transact business.

"A solid ring of struggling brokers surrounded the jobbers," he said to a press representative. "It was impossible to make your voice heard. Only those nearest to the jobber were in a position to deal; but to reach the inner circle required more persistence and hard shoving than I have known for years. A few feet away you couldn't hear any quotations, and, like many others, I abandoned it as a hopeless job."

From the struggle brokers emerged with buttons torn from their clothes, with collars limp, faces streaming with perspiration, and croaking voices.

EARL USURPED MAYOR'S RIGHT

Tower Was Penalty For Same Crime 350 Years Ago

The dignity of Bristol is hurt because Earl Beauchamp, as Lord Lieutenant of Gloucestershire, claimed precedence over the Lord Mayor and usurped his right to receive the King on the recent royal visit to the university.

Research has been made by the town clerk, who declares that the Lord Mayor has the right to receive royalty. He quotes an instance in the reign of Queen Elizabeth when a lord lieutenant who similarly offended was sent to the Tower.

There is no desire to have Lord Beauchamp put in the Tower, although some people wonder whether the Queen Elizabeth precedent will be followed, but the city council decided that it must zealously protect the Lord Mayor's rights, and that measures must be taken to settle the point of precedence once and for all.

INHERITS £24,000

Sign-writer is Heir to Large Fortune

Mr. William J. Hardy, aged 60, a sign-writer, of Cardiff, has just come into a windfall of £24,000.

In November last he saw an advertisement in a newspaper for a person of the same name. This person was wanted as heir to Mr. J. H. Broughton, a farmer, of Ferrybridge, Yorkshire, and a director of Knottingley Gas Company, who left a fortune of £72,243, of which one-third was to go to Mr. Hardy.

Mr. Hardy immediately put in a claim as the cousin of Mr. Broughton, and his claim has been so far substantiated that the Court has ordered the trustees to proceed with the administration of the estate on the footing that he is the person referred to in the will.

COMMITS SUICIDE ON WEDDING EVE

William Dewey, aged thirty-three years, a Leicester warehouseman, who was found drowned in the river on his birthday, left this letter to his brother,

"Dear Bert—When you receive this I shall be dead. I was to have been married on Saturday, but I have been a cad. The poor, unfortunate girl is Miss Orton, The Neck, Wigston Lane, Aylestone.

"I shall be glad if any of the insurance money left after paying expenses is given to her for what she has bought—Good-bye."

LEFT PENNILESS, TITLED ACTRESS GRANTED DIVORCE

Husband Disappeared and Left Her Without Money in New York

THEATRES CLOSED

Got Credit and Some Food from Landlady, and Appealed to Father

The Hon. Mrs. Clark Kennedy, the actress daughter of Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, was at Edinburgh granted a decree of divorce on the grounds of her husband's desertion.

She has played in "Peggy" at the Gaiety Theatre, London, appeared with the Ziegfeld Follies in New York, and was last year chosen from hundreds of candidates for the part of Helen of Troy at the Palace of Beauty at Wembley.

She said she went on the stage, and in August, 1916, went to America to fulfil an engagement. She there met Mr. Kennedy, and was married to him in New Jersey in December, 1916. He described himself as a widower, but she learned afterwards that he had been divorced. In January, 1918, he said he wanted to go to England on business. It was arranged that she should join him there later, or that he would return to America. They parted on perfectly good terms. He was to allow her 100 dollars a month, but soon ceased to do so.

In October, 1918, an outbreak of influenza caused the theatres in New York to be closed, so that she was very short of money, and wrote to her husband that she was penniless. She also wrote to her father:

"Since about four weeks ago I am absolutely penniless. The landlady here is kind, and trusts me to pay when I can. She also gives me a little food when I can't get a meal otherwise. I have had to borrow right and left. Please cable me funds, as I am getting desperate for fear they might put me out of here."

Mrs. Clark Kennedy added that she made fruitless attempts to induce her husband to provide a home for her. He told her that he was a Scotsman, the son of a distinguished soldier, and at the time of the marriage he spoke about his estates in Scotland. He was supposed to be promoting some gold mines in Colorado.

His lordship found desertion proved and granted a decree with expenses.

COLONEL ACCUSED OF LIQUOR PIRACY

Liquor Taken Off Ship by Accomplices Introduced by Colonel

A story of piracy was told in an action for damages for libel.

Sir Henry Maddocks, K.C., who appeared on behalf of Mr. T. S. Papazian, of Lancaster Gate, W., a wealthy French wine merchant, said his client was the defendant in the action which had been instituted by Lieut.-Col. John Allen Rule, of Baker street, W. A letter had been received from Col. Rule's legal advisers stating that he did not propose to proceed with the action, and in the circumstances Mr. Papazian asked for judgment. Col. Rule said he had been libelled by the contents of a letter written by Mr. Papazian to a friend named Vallein.

The circumstances were, said Sir Henry, that there was a valuable cargo of wines and spirits on board a British vessel that had been consigned from Gijon, in Spain, to a port in the West Indies, or some place outside the American 12-miles limit. There was actual piracy committed in the course of the voyage by certain men who, Mr. Papazian said, were introduced into the ship by Col. Rule himself. They entered the cabin where the captain and officers were, and, at the point of the revolver assumed charge, and in the end took off in boats the whole of the valuable cargo. Undoubtedly this was engineered by Col. Rule. Mr. Papazian had put his opinions about the matter in a letter; in fact, he had said that Col. Rule profited from the matter and introduced the accomplices on board.

The Lord Chief Justice said he had watched the case with increasing interest, and he could not help thinking that it was one in which the Director of Public Prosecutions might be interested. The action would be dismissed with costs in Mr. Papazian's favor.

JUNIOR GAME ON WEDNESDAY

Lakeviews and Belleville To Play at Riverside Park in O.B.A.A. Series.

RETURN FRIDAY.

To-morrow evening at Riverside Park, Lakeviews, twice Junior champions of Ontario, will meet Ken Colling's Belleville Juniors, winners of the Bay of Quinte Junior League. The Belleville boys were eliminated by the Lakeviews last year after three hard games, and will come seeking to turn the tables this year. They have swept through their league without trouble, and are a fast team, with good pitching, fielding and batting strength.

The Lakeviews, while greatly changed in personnel, are imbued with the spirit which carried them to the championship in former years, and will be in there until the last man is out. This should be a good game, and the fans will make no mistake in going over. The Lakeviews need the encouragement of a good bunch of rooters to put forth their best efforts.

The O.B.A.A. has been issuing some more short notices. After forcing the Midgets to play with less than twenty-four hours' notice, the Association has now ordered the Lakeviews to play in Belleville either Friday or Saturday, despite the fact that arrangements had already been made to play next Wednesday. Then the Knights of Columbus have been ordered to play here this coming Saturday, although it is possible that the first game of the C.O.B.L. playoffs will be staged here the same day.

FARMER FINED BEAT HOME BOY

Port Hope Magistrate Reduced Charge to Assault.

BIG STEEL MERGER.

Seven Companies in $20,000,000 Amalgamation.

PORT HOPE, Aug. 11.—Everett Zealand, a Hope township farmer, was found technically guilty by Magistrate Campbell of committing a common assault on Nicholas Thompson, a fifteen-year-old Barnardo boy in his employ. He was fined two dollars and costs, with the alternative of one month's imprisonment.

The magistrate agreed with the contention of the defense that the evidence did not warrant conviction on the charge as laid, namely, assault occasioning actual bodily harm, and in which contention the crown concurred. The magistrate declared that it was only right that the case should be aired in court. He paid a tribute to the Barnardo Homes as an admirable institution which had the reputation of looking well after their charges.

"Some boys were easier to get along with than others, and some required severe treatment," he said. "This boy was not a bad sort on the whole. He has admitted being somewhat untruthful, but has given his evidence in a very frank manner, and on the whole I would fancy he was not such a hard boy to get along with.

"The boy," continued the court, "had laid himself open to punishment," but according to the contract with Barnardo's Home he could not see that Zealand had the right to administer corporal punishment.

In imposing a conviction, the court said that no great harm was done to the boy. In his evidence Zealand denied licking the boy with a pulley belt, but said it was with one ply of a leather trace. He said he had no more intention of strapping him for not finishing hoeing the turnips than he had of going to China, but he thought the threat would waken him up.

LAKEFIELD ATHLETES STAND OUT IN STONEY LAKE REGATTA EVENTS

Ridpath Brothers and Don Fitzgerald Prominent in Paddling and Swimming.

LIST OF WINNERS.

W. W. Willoughby Won Exhibition Sailing Race—An Extra Contest.

Under the auspices of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, the last day of the annual regatta was held on Monday. A day set apart for children's events was held a fortnight ago, and on Saturday afternoon of last week, a series of races for sailing and motorboats was run off. The open sailing race on Saturday was won by W. W. Willoughby, who on Monday repeated his victory in an exhibition sailing race put on as an extra event. The Mrs. G. K. Fraser cup, presented in order to encourage swimming on Stoney Lake, was awarded to Don Fitzgerald, the winner in the swim from Lech's Island to Juniper Island, a course of 1¼ miles. Mr. Fitzgerald's victorywas all the more creditable in that previous to entering the swimming contest, he had taken part in a paddling race around Juniper Island. Fourteen competitors started in this swim, 12 of whom completed the course. To all who covered the distance a consolation prize of a box of candy was awarded. A larger box was given Miss N. Vanetta, who was fourth to finish, being the first lady to do the distance.

The judges were J. R. Dodworth, Chairman of the Committee, W. G. Morrow, and H. C. Wotherspoon; referee, J. H. Renwick; starter, F. W. Jones, with J. M. Gouinlock, Secretary-Treasurer, acting as organizer in chief.

Many From Peterborough.

More than 1,500 people, including a large contingent from Peterboro', watched the races yesterday. During part of the afternoon three lake steamers were moored at the landing, their decks crammed with onlookers. A high wind prevailed all afternoon, whipping the water into short choppy waves, proving a serious handicap to some of the contestants.

Redpath Brothers Star.

After a delay of half an hour in the hope that the high wind would abate, a start was made with the races. The outstanding feature in the regatta was the enhancement of the reputation of the Brothers Redpath who, with many honors worthily earned in previous regattas, carried off prizes in every race in which they competed yesterday, and wound up a splendid day of aquatic triumph by winning the tug-of-war final, in which they pulled over the canoe of their opponents, whose unexpected ducking added in no small degree to the merriment of the spectators. Fouls were not infrequent, some of the racers in their eagerness crossing the course and blocking others pressing behind. In the ladies' single skiff race the second prize winner was disqualified and a second race was run to decide the winners of the second and third places. A competing pair in the ladies' tandem race were also disqualified for fouling. Considerable hilarity prevailed when the winners of this race, Misses C. and A. Adams, tilted over into the winner immediately after passing the line as winners.

EYES SEND FORTH ELECTRIC WAVES

British Scientist's Experiment May Explain Power of Animal Trainers.

A scientific explanation of the mysterious power exerted by expert animal trainers over wild beasts has just come from the London laboratory of Dr. Charles Russ, an English physician formerly connected with the electricity department of the Male Lock Hospital in London. He claims to have proved, according to Popular Science Monthly for September, that the gaze of the human eye contains energy of some form — probably electro-magnetic energy—powerful enough to swing a suspended wire coil through an angle of 60 degrees.

Most of us, at one time or another, have experienced the sensation of being stared at, and have turned to discover the identity of the persistent gazer. This common experience convinced Doctor Russ that there must be a real force emanating from the human eye—a power sufficient to make ferocious animals cringe before the human gaze. His belief was strengthened by the well-known fact that two persons cannot look into each other's eyes for more than a few minutes, without mutual or acute discomfort.

The evidence of modern science supports the belief that the human body is actually an electrical power plant. All the muscles show electrical currents and variations of potential during action. There is an electrical change with each heartbeat. The retina of the eye has been shown to exhibit minute electrical activity during vision. Whatever the force coming from the eye might be, Doctor Russ decided, a part of it probably would radiate in the form of electricity.

Doctor Russ made a wire coil and suspended it by an unspun silk thread inside a metal case. One end of the thread was fastened to a cork at the top, and at the other end hung the coil. Just above the coil he fastened a small magnet, which, taking a north-south position, held the coil steady. The coil itself was so adjusted that it was in an east-west position. A small window in the metal case allowed the gaze to be directed at the coil, and made possible the observation of any movement.

Electrical science has taught us that if a varying magnetic field meets a coil of wire, an electrical current is generated within the coil and the coil becomes a magnet. If this magnetic coil is free to move, it will turn into the earth's magnetic meridian—into a north-south position. To do this, the coil in Doctor Russ' apparatus would have to overcome the force exerted by the magnet above it. This magnet, already in its proper north-south position, would object to being swung out of it. If, when the experimenter's gaze was directed on the coil, it moved against this force, it would prove the electric power of the human eye.

Doctor Russ took his station a short distance from the metal case and began to gaze steadily through the window at the coil. One second—no movement. Two, three, four seconds—still no movement. Five seconds—the coil started to swing! Within 10 seconds it had turned several degrees toward a north-south direction, forcing the little magnet above it out of its proper position.

Doctor Russ looked away and the coil swung back to its east-west line.

Prof. A. M. Low, the young gentleman of science who has predicted that women will wear trousers, people will give up dancing, alarm clocks will be run by radio, and almost anything may happen. He appears to be greatly upset by it all.

BETTY'S BEST PICTURE TO DATE, "NEW LIVES FOR OLD."

They're offering "New Lives for Old" at the Royal Theatre the first three days this week.

It's Betty Compson's newest Paramount starring picture directed by Clarence Badger and featuring Wallace MacDonald, Theodore Kosloff and Sheldon Lewis in principal roles.

Betty's role is that of a girl of dual personality, a French dancer who spends her off times as a peasant girl on a little farm in Normandy.

Back in Paris, Betty becomes acquainted with a member of the French Intelligence Department who induces her to use her influence over "Major" de Montrichard (Kosloff) to learn something of his secret dealings. It develops that De Montrichard is really an enemy spy and it is up to Betty to "get the goods on him." This she proceeds to do and later learns that she has saved the division of the man she loves.

The scene then shifts to America with Warren and Betty happily married. The girl is introduced to a French nobleman, engaged to Hugh's sister. He proves to be de Montrichard, whose return from the past is full of menace for Olympe. She is unable to give the lie to his false account of their former acquaintance and hurt by her husband's momentary doubt and the hostile attitude of the Senator and Mrs. Warren, is about to leave the house, when Bertaut, the secret service agent, opportunely appears and paves the way for a happy ending.

There's an air of mystery running all through "New Lives for Old." It is, undoubtedly, Betty's best picture to date.

AT THE CAPITOL

"LILIES OF THE FIELD."

Corinne Griffiths and Conway Tearle make a splendid pair of stars in the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week. There was a good crowd of spectators last night for the big picture, which is one of those exotic affairs dealing with the heart problems of the idle rich. Corinne Griffith is ideally cast in the role of Mildred Harker, wife of the philandering Walter Harker, who returns from a rendezvous with a lady to find his wife in a compromising position with his best friend. Before the wife, who has fainted through fear of the drunken friend, can explain matters satisfactorily, the husband flies off the handle, decamps to a hotel, and immediately institutes a divorce action which gives him control of their baby girl.

In the meantime, Louis Willing (Conway Tearle) has become infatuated with Mrs. Harker and follows her to the fashionable modiste's establishment, where she goes to earn her living as a model. Actuated by the advice of his bounder companion, Charles Lee, that "a woman who isn't worth testing isn't worth having," he starts out to investigate the lady's virtue by a test of his own contriving. As Mrs. Harker is an intimate of a certain group of five ladies, the "liles of the field" of the title, who "toil not nor spin," yet go clothed in fine raiment, he has manifold doubts as to her integrity of character. The test turns out satisfactorily enough to dissipate his doubts, but sends the lady off in a tempest of anger. However, when news reaches her that her child is dead, she becomes hysterical and flies to Willing's apartment. The final denouement is a rapid one, that comes just in time to save the feelings of all concerned.

It is an entertaining picture, albeit somewhat draggy in spots, where the emotional tension is prolonged interminably. It tells one of those stories of rich society life that tickle the palate of the movie goer, and the moral, if there is a moral, is probably the very good one, that it is wiser to be virtuous than the contrary. "Don't be a lily of the field," might sum up the story of the picture, which shows some very bedragged "lillies" in the funeral scene of the worn butterfly.

The comedy, "The Fox Hunt," is a "Spats family" affair, and is a really ridiculous conglomeration of adventures in which the "Spats trio" do some very laughable things in their trials of skill as fox hunters. —Jeannette.

TOO MANY CARS WORRY BRITAIN

Highways Crowded and Becoming More So—Few Cars Scrapped.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—There is a real probability that the British highways will reach the limit of congestion long before the automobile market has reached the point of saturation. The problem is seriously discussed by those who are entitled to opinions.

The trouble is that the British people never formed the habit of periodically scrapping their motor cars. They make them last and give the longest possible service. There is not that desire, so common in America to have the very latest in model and design.

Moreover, it is common practice to pet the cars, to drive them only under best conditions, to keep them snugly housed in the garage when weather is bad and to attend promptly to the slightest mechanical ailment. It is the expectation that the automobile is to last from eight to 10 years.

What is going to be the effect of this conservation, together with the rapily increasing number of persons who find themselves able to buy motor cars, is the problem. Some statistics recently were published revealing the ability of English users to keep their cars going year after year.

Rebate On Old Cars.

There is a 25 per cent rebate allowed on the horse power tax for cars with engines built before 1913. Such a provision wouldn't save much money in the United States, but the report shows that about $470,000 was turned back to British car-owners during the last year. That means that there were in the United Kingdom nearly 25,000 automobiles of the pre-1913 vintage. And they are not regarded as scrap. They are, for the most part, in regular use and giving as good service as their owners expect of a motor car.

Two other figures recently were cited as bearing on the problem of congestion. At the beginning of March of this year there were licenses issued to British motor vehicles to the number of 1,094,534. By the beginning of June, the number had increased to 1,429,460. In these three months 325,926 additional vehicles were seeking places on the already cluttered roads of this little country.

Considering this in connection with the fact just mentioned that every new car comes to stay for 10 years or so and that this constant influx of new ones is not to be relieved by the process of scrapping, one understands the worries of highway authorities. The president of the Automobile Association, in presenting the annual report recently, said that for the first time an increase in membership had continued throughout the winter months.

Nerve Sufferers.

That traffic congestion already is becoming serious not only from the economic point of view, but because of its effects upon those subject to its discomforts, is evidenced by a remark of a well-known London nerve specialist quoted recently as saying:

"Years ago I used to advise my patients to learn to drive a motor car and to go motoring for a nerve tonic. Now I am giving quite the opposite advice.

"Motoring in the country is still all right but in London the incessant stoppages caused by traffic blocks seem to be affecting the nerves of half the motoring community. Motor omnibus drivers, taxicabmen, drivers of private motor cars—more and more of them every day are suffering from nerve strain. I am surprised they are able to drive at all through London. I gave up motoring months ago. Being a specialist myself, I can not afford to go to a doctor."

PETES ELIMINATE OSHAWA FROM CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE RACE HARDILL WON PITCHERS' BATTLE

Local Hurler Shut Out Visitors in Game Here on Saturday.

SCORE WAS 2-0.

Helson Provided Feature Stop to Start Double Play in First Inning.

The Petes and the Ponies will play off for the championship of the Central Ontario Baseball League. Oshawa was eliminated from the running when the Petes beat them 2-0 in a pitchers' battle on Saturday.

Lennox was Manager Reeves' choice to uphold Oshawa in the game, which meant much to the visitors. The little pitcher worked hard, holding the homesters to two runs and seven hits, but his teammates failed to manufacture any runs and good pitching by Lennox was wasted. He had only the one bad inning, the fourth, when the home team bunched three hits and a sacrifice for the only counters of the game.

Hardill hurled for the Petes and turned in a good card. He started off by walking Rowden, his only charity, but from then on everything went his way. Six hits, two of them lucky, were all he allowed, and never during the game did the visitors have two men on at once, and only one of them reached second.

Both pitchers received good support. Helson hogged the limelight with several sensational plays. His jumping stop of Tyson's torrid liner in the first, to start a double play, received a great hand from the crowd. The outfielders made some good catches, and all the infielders were right on. The Oshawa fielders were also on the job making only one error, which had no effect on the score.

Legon, Harrison and W. Fair had perfect batting averages. "Red" was hit once, bounced a hot single off Lennox, and doubled to centre to drive in the second run. Hap had two clean singles, a sacrifice and a walk Fair acted as a pinch hitter in the ninth and drove out a single.

Play By Innings

Rowden walked and took second on a wild pitch. R. Fair struck out. Tyson lined to Helson, and Rowden was doubled off second.

Wolfe and Johnston rolled to Lennox, and Swanston grounded to Ward.

Saunders singled past Holyman but took too big a leadoff and was nipped, Swanston to Harrison. Morrison and Ward both rolled to Johnston.

Harrison singled and was helped along by Helson's sacrifice. Hall rolled to Lennox, who threw out Harrison. Legon bounced a single off Lennox but was forced by Holyman, Rowden to Ward.

In the third, Alger struck out. Roddick hit to Hardill and Lennox hit to Helson.

For the Petes, Hardill was hit but was caught off, Lennox to Saunders. Wolfe lifted to Fair and Johnston tapped to the box.

Rowden rolled to Holyman, Fair struck out, Tyson got a cheap hit when his bounder took a bad hop, hitting Johnston's knee, and Saunders rolled to Hardill.

The Runs Are Scored.

Swanston hit cleanly to right. Harrison sacrificed him along. Helson struck out, and Hall singled into centre. Swanston scored on the hit and Hall took an extra base on the throw to the plate. Legon doubled to centre, scoring Hall. Holyman rolled to Ward.

Morrison rolled to Johnston. Ward grounded to Helson, who made a nice stop and throw, and Alger raised one to Wolfe.

The Petes went just as fast. Hardill bounced to Lennox, Wolfe flied to Roddick, and Johnston rolled to Morrison.

Roddick lifted one to Legon in the sixth. Lennox scratched a hit on a roller to Helson. Rowden forced him at second, and Fair struck out

For Peterboro, Swanston rolled to Rowden. Harrison singled to right and was safe at second when Rowden dropped Alger's throw. Helson lifted to Roddick and Hall raised a high one to Fair.

Tyson started the seventh with a single to centre, but went out stretching it. Saunders popped to Hardill and Morrison struck out.

Legon was hit and Holyman sacrificed. Hardill flied to Fair and Wolfe rolled to Ward.

Ward singled to right, but two flies to Ash from Alger and Roddick, and one to Johnston from Lennox, left him stranded.

Johnston got a hit on a hard one to Lennox. Swanston sacrificed and Harrison walked. Helson rolled to Morrison, forcing Johnston. Hall rolled to the box.

Rowden started the ninth with a grounder to Holyman. W. Fair, batting for his brother, singled over second. Tyson and Saunders sent flies to Wolfe and Oshawa was out of the running.

DELORO EARNED PLAY-OFF RACE

Defeated Picton For Second Place and Meet Point Anne in Finals.

FINISHED STRONG.

MARMORA, Aug. 11.—In their replay game with Picton on Friday, Deloro through winning by 7-4 received second place in the League standing, and qualified to play off with Point Anne, the leaders, for the championship of the Bay of Quinte League.

Lamoreaux opened the pitching for the homesters, retiring at the end of the fourth in favour of the veteran, Leal. This decision on the part of Manager Regan was solely to keep fresh pitching and give a change of place.

In the initial inning, Picton filled the bases with none out. Lamoreaux fanned two men and the visitors scored one run on an error. Deloro replied by getting four. Ada hit to right field. Schultz walked. Quinn grounded out. Boudreau connected for three bases, scoring Ada and Schultz. Regan hit but Boudreau was caught at the plate. Johnston advanced Regan to third and Brown hit for two bases, scoring two runs.

Picton walked out in order in the second inning, Deloro following suit with two hits and one error. Picton increased their score by two runs in the next innings. Deloro failed to reply. In the fourth Picton again come out in order. In Deloro's half Johnson hit to centre field but was caught at third. Brown went out at first, Lamoreaux hit for two bases, Hughes safe at first, Ada fanned ending that inninng.

Deloro's half of the fifth saw Schultz looking at three good ones. Quinn in trying to stretch a single was caught. boudreau hit for two bases but Regan got out.

In the sixth, Picton failed to register. Deloro put in also an uneventful inning. The seventh inning was scoreless for both teams. In the eighth Leal fanned the two first batters. Fredericks grounded out to Regan at third, in their half, Johnston set the sphere rolling for the Smelters. Brown hit for two bases, putting Johnston on third and himself on second. Leal hit to left field scoring Johnston and Brown. Hughes hit to centre field. Ada fanned, Schultz bunted down third base line scoring Leal. Quinn grounded out retiring the side. In the ninth, Picton failed to connect Deloro thus winning by 7-4.

Umpires were Pyne of Wellington on plate, Kerr of Deloro on bases.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Oshawa has joined Belleville in the happy company for whom the balance of the schedule is just a matter of form. Saturday's loss to the Petes put the finishing touches to their career, and they will repose in third place for the rest of the season.

* * * * * * * * *

Saturday's meeting with Oshawa was, on the whole, successful for Peterboro teams. The Petes won at home, and the Royals of the Peterboro Midget League also were victorious on home territory. The only fly in the ointment was the defeat sustained in Oshawa by Bill Prindible's Knights of Columbus juveniles.

* * * * * * * * *

The action of the O.B.A.A. in ordering the midgets to play here on Saturday at such short notice will likely bring forth a strong protest from the local sporting leaders. Jack Nott of Oshawa is in charge of this section, and when he was told that the Midget League didn't have a winner and would have none until next Saturday, he got in touch with Secretary Walsh, who at 11.30 Friday night ordered the league to declare a winner and immediately and play Oshawa here on Saturday, Royals, who finished first in the regular schedule, represented the league, and had the satisfaction of administering a sound beating to the representative's fellow-citizens.

The pitching duel between Rasson and Whitehouse, which started last year in the O.B.A.A. junior finals, was not settled yesterday. At the end of the fifth Rasson retired, and the score was 0-0. The little Toronto hurler had pitched on Saturday in the play-offs of the Western City League and is slated to pitch again on Wednesday.

After several years Peterboro had a programme of sports and athletics on Civic Holiday. The Great War Veterans' Association took the lead and served up a good programme for the citizens. The veterans arranged a good ball game and many races and games, and a good crowd turned out and helped swell the finances of the association.

Play-offs are started in the district leagues. Deloro and Point Anne meet in the first play-off game of the Bay of Quinte League on Wednesday, while Brighton and Hastings play in the second game of the Northumberland League play-off.

Lakeviews and Belleville meet in the first round of the junior play-off tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock. Riverside Park will be the battle ground and a good crowd should be on hand to see a good game.

MIDGET GAME IS WON BY ROYALS

Bad Trimming, 23-8, Was Handed to Oshawa Church Leaguers By Young Petes.

KIDS WERE NERVOUS.

Royals, of the Peterboro Midget League, trimmed Christian Church of the Oshawa Church League, 23-8, in the first game of the O.B.A.A. midget series at Riverside Park on Saturday. Both teams, facing their first strange opposition, showed unmistakable signs of nervousness, and errors were plentiful. The Peterboro kids showed superiority with the willow, and took full advantage of their opponents' misplays.

Each team used two pitchers. Goodson, a little left-hander, started for the Royals but in the third inning gave way to Routley, after the visitors had scored five runs. Routley held the Oshawa boys until the seventh, when they added two more, and the eighth, when they counted their eighth and last run. Service was the Oshawa moundsman. He struck out quite a few of the home talent, but his wildness caused his downfall, as hits were forthcomng whenever he put men on base. At the beginning of the Petes' half of the eighth, Leyden succeeded him. He had no better luck, allowing four runs in one inning.

Fielding was the weak point on both teams, and this was due to the nervousness of the players, who had never played teams from other towns before. Both teams hit the ball hard and often but the visitors couldn't seem to bunch their hits as well as did the Royals.

The orders for the game were received here at about 11.30 Friday night. It had been the intention of the local league to have a winner for next Saturday, and when orders to play were received it was necessary to call on the Royals, who finished first in the regular schedule. At the time, Rotary and Kiwanis were tied for second place with one game to play. The action of the O.B.A.A. was very high-handed, and notice could have been given earlier, instead of causing great inconvenience.

OSHAWA TEAM BEAT KNIGHTS

Peterborough Boys Lost By Score of 12-4 in Juvenile Play-off.

PLAY AGAIN HERE.

OSHAWA, Aug. 11.—(Special).—Bill Prindible's Peterboro Knights of Columbus Juveniles were defeated by St. Andrew's of Oshawa at Lakeview Park on Saturday afternoon by 12 to 4 and the return game will be played at 3.30 in Peterboro on Saturday afternoon next. The third game, if necessary, to be played in Port Hope on Monday evening, August 17th.

Manager Legge of the Oshawa St. Andrew's chose Doug. May to oppose Manager Bill Prindible's strike out artist, Masterson, in the first battle of home and home games and the stubby right hander backed up his selection by holding Peterboro to three hits and one run up to the end of the fifth and after pitching himself out of a bad hole in the sixth, when three hits were gathered off his delivery, by throwing out Kennealey and fanning Walton and his team mate at first base, Hubbel, pulling the whiskers off the old hidden ball trick on Smith. He blanked the Petes again in the seventh but they added their second run in the eighth when Walton got on by a bad peg by May and he was advanced around on a couple of infield outs and scored on Kennealey's single. The Petes other two runs went over the plate in the ninth on two walks, a stolen base and a Texas Leaguer by Walton.

Masterson of the Petes struck out twelve batters, but he was hit safe eleven times and walked seven which with four errors chalked up against his team mates were good for twelve runs. The teams and score by innings were:

Peterboro—Kennealey, c; Rishea, 2b; Starr 1b; Masterson p; Archambault, lf; Smith, 3b; Walton, ss; Austin, cf; Grady, rf.

A very interesting game took place at Riverside Park on Thursday night between the Bankers and the Lock Works All Stars, champions of the first half of the Mercantile League. The All Stars won the fixture 5-4, after a hard battle. They were lucky to win because the Bankers were ahead until the last frame.

The teams lined up as follows:

Lock Works—Guiry, p; Baker, c; Black, 1b; Moore, 2b; Nicholls, ss; Bailey, 3b; D. Connors, lf; Thorndyke, cf; G. Connors, rf; Murray, rf.

NO WINNER IN PITCHING DUEL

Score Board Was Blank When Rasson Retired in Exhibtion Game.

FINAL SCORE 10-1.

The five-inning encounter between "Irish" Rasson and Frank Whitehouse can be called a draw. In arranging their holiday attraction, the War Veterans, remembering the hard fought final series for the O.B.A.A. Junior Championship last year, decided that another contest between the two young hurlers would be an interesting event. With the fast fielding Acadian team of the East Toronto League behind him Rasson held the Petes to two hits and struck out two in the five innings he worked. Whitehouse allowed the visitors three hits and struck out five.

After Rasson, who had pitched a hard game on Saturday, retired in the fifth, the Petes punished two regular moundsmen of the Acadians, collecting eight hits and ten runs. Whitehouse with a triple and Legon, Ross and Heckman with doubles, led the attack, while Wolfe had two singles.

Boland had two hits for the visitors, while Joe Dillon, formerly of Leaside, crossed the plate with their lonely run in the ninth.

The fielding on both sides was good. Jimmy Hall made his debut as an infielder, covering short. He had one assist and one error. Max Swanston took a day off and watched the game from the coaching box. Bob Ross relieved him and held up Whitehouse nicely, and tossed out one of the two who tried to steal second. Harrington and Robinson covered plenty of ground around second base, making only one slip. Rasson's catcher, Brooks of the St. Georges team, was good, as was Garrett, of the Acadians.

MILLBROOK WON.

Omemee Girls' Softball Team Goes Into Extra Innings Game.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 8.—A well-contested game of soft ball between the Omemee girls' team, and the local nine took place at the Agricultural park on Friday evening, quite a number motoring over from Omemee and giving good support to their own side during the progress of the game. Millbrook won 6 to 4.

As has been the case throughout the season, the attendance of local fans was small, giving little encouragement to those who are trying to create an interest in community sport, and provide good material for same.

The teams lined up as follows:

Omemee — Helen Johnston, p; Mabel Rowan, c; Helen Mackey, 1b; MetaThorne, 2b; Reta Kennedy, 3b; Eileen Pogue, ss; Gertie Pogue, ss; Edna Overholt, rf; Mary Weir, lf.

Millbrook—Marjorie Richards, p; Luella Shaw, c; Gertie Gray, 1b; Bonna Robinson, 2b; Phyliss Richards, 3b; Myrtle Russell, ss; Susie McCorry, ss; Elizabeth Russell, lf; Muriel Newton, rf.

A. McCorry, Millbrook, was plate umpire and Campbell Mackey, Omemee, on bases. J. A. Vance kept score.

At the end of seven innings the score stood 4-4, and an extra innings was necessary to break the tie. Millbrook winning out, the final score being 6-4, in favor of the home team.

HASTINGS WINS FROM BRIGHTON IN TEN INNINGS

Pushed Six Runs Over in the Extra Frame For the Clarke Trophy.

FIRST PLAY-OFF.

Brighton Errors Assisted Winners Tie-up the Game in Late Stages.

BRIGHTON, Aug. 11.—(Special to the Examiner).—Before a record crowd here Friday Hastings defeated Brighton 14-11 in the first game of the series to determine the winner of the Clarke Cup for 1925. Hastings played good ball and gave their pitchers better support than the Brighton players did. In fact, Brighton had the game won 8-4 at the end of the seventh but three wild throws in the eighth gave Hastings as many runs, and they put over the equalizer in the ninth.

Then in the tenth they broke loose and batted Langdon out of the box to score six runs. Brighton came back strong and scored three in their half but fell just that many short.

The early innings were well played and hard fought, Brighton leading 4-3 from the third to the end of the sixth.

Langdon pitched for Brighton until he was relieved in the tenth by McCulloch. Scriver worked six innings for Hastings but was relieved in the seventh by Stevenson when Brighton was scoring.

The game was handled by neutral umpires, Harcourt and Skitch of Cobourg. The second game will be played in Hastings on Wednesday next, August 12.

PETERBORO WIN FROM ROSEDALE

Dr. Hewitt, Langley and Dyer in Sparkling Mood—Fielding Brilliant.

SCORE WAS 144-76.

Yesterday being Civic Holiday the Peterboro Cricket Club journeyed to Toronto to meet the Rosedale C. C. in a return fixture.

One of the Peterboro cars got 'lost' in Toronto, and lunch was partaken of in the pavilion awaiting their arrival. However a start had to be made without them, Fenton and Stuart opening the innings for Peterboro opposed to the bowling of Buckle and Hughes.

The Petes opened disastrously, Stuart being clean bowled with a slow break from Buckle, before a run had been scored. Paul Manning followed and immediately set about run getting but with the score at 11 was bowled by Hughes, 10 of which were attributed to Manning's bat. Ryland, the next batsman, added three runs, when he, too, fell a victim to Hughes. Three for 17.

Dr. Hewitt, who followed in, had a beautiful on drive for six immediately followed by another drive in the same direction. Fenton during this time had been playing steady and painstaking cricket which was proving invaluable to his side. Scoring mounted steadily and the fifty was reached without a separation being effected.

A double change in the bowling was then tried and shortly after had its reward Fenton being caught and bowled by Hammond who came on in place of Hughes. In the same over he got Thorpe's wicket, a confident appeal for leg before being upheld. Langley joined the doctor and some lively hitting by both batsmen was witnessed.

Visions of the 100 were in sight, when the doctor was out to a fine catch on the boundary. The outgoing batsman had played beautiful cricket in his score of 53. In his total were included three 6's and five 4's. Elliott, who filled the vacancy, made his stay short as he was outcaught and bowled by Ruthven for one run. The century was reached immediately after.

Various charges were tried in the bowling and at length success was met with, Hughes finding his way to Langley's stumps. Mr. Langley had played enterprising cricket in his score of 31 runs. Dyer set about scoring on going in to the wicket and hit up 17 in double quick time before being bowled by Hughes. The score was carried to 144 ere the innings was brought to a close—the highest total reached by the Peterboro club this season.

Rosedale's Innings.

The Toronto team opened with Ottley and Gibson, Dyer and Thorpe taking charge of the bowling. In his fourth over Dyer got Gibson leg before for 3 runs, the first wicket falling with the total at 7. Hancock followed and proceeded to set about knocking up the runs but when getting nicely set had his middle stump knocked clean out of the ground with an individual effort of 13 runs. Only one run had been added to the total when Dyer again raised the middle wicket from the ground, getting Ottley with a regular beauty. The next batsmen also fell a victim to the same bowler in exactly the same manner.

At this stage Elliott took the ball from Thorpe and ought to have had Carpenter's wicket with his first ball, Fenton misjudging an off-drive. In the next over from the other end, the Toronto captain again had a narrow escape from being caught. However, after hitting a six and a single he faced Dyer who had the satisfaction of scattering his wickets, six wickets being down for 51. The seventh wicket fell two runs later, Dyer again being the marksman. With the fall of this wicket tea was taken, served by the ladies.

On resumption Ruthven accompanied Hughes to the wicket and was narrowly missed by Dr. Hewitt, but this did not prove at all expensive, as with the total at four Dyer got through his defence. After tea Dyer was bowling beautiful length ball and was proving unplayable, securing an additional two wickets for only one run.

Thorpe again came on for Elliott, and immediately met with success as with his second ball he got through Hughes' defence. The outgoing batsman had played steady and confident cricket for a total of 27 runs.

The innings was soon brought to a close after this: the total runs realized being 76 all out. This reverses the result of last Monday's game in Peterboro, the clubs claiming one victory each.

As there still remained some time for play Peterboro took a second innings to play out time, Elliott and Thorpe opening. Elliott fell at 17; Stuart at 32; Ryland at 32; Coutts at 76; Thorpe at 84. The second innings finishing at 5 wickets for 84. Thorpe amends in this innings for his failure in the initial innings, hitting up 41 in refreshing style.

Bowling for Peterboro Frank Dyer was in deadly form taking 9 wickets for 23 runs; Thorpe 2 for 21. Elliott had 30 runs hit from his bowling without meeting with any success. The fielding of the Peterboro team was exceptionally fine and many runs were saved, and while it would be unfair to single out any individual where all were good exception must be made to Stuart who's work behind the wickets deserves a special meed of praise when it is realized he never gave a single bye.

A NEW THRILL FOR PETERBORO'

Automobile Racing Stars to Meet Here in Speed Contest on Aug. 20th—Ray Lampkin to Drive.

Ray Lampkin, noted British automobile racing driver is one of the several speed demons who is to participate in the big automobile race meet which is to be staged at the Peterborough Exhibtion grounds on Thursday afternoon, August 20th. The announcement was made this morning by John Sloan, of Chicago, acting as director of contests for the sport promoters. Lampkin has been in America for the past three years, being a tremendous favorite among racing fans throughout the entire United States and in Western Canada as well as at Toronto and Ottawa where he starred in the Exhibition auto race meets during the past two years.

Lampkin will drive one of the famous straight eight Deusenberg cars, a replica of the machine which captured the recent 500 mile race over the Indianapolis speedway. Lampkin is considered as a past master in the art of negotiating the treacherous turns of a one-half mile track and usually wins the races in which he competes or breaks up his machine in trying to out-drive the other contestants. Mr. Soan stated that entry blanks for the Peterborough meet had been mailed to all drivers who are to race at Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa and that he expects to announce the entire list of entrants within a few days. The rules of the association governing the auto racing sport do not permit a driver to be advertised until his entry is actually received.

At the request of Weber Turner, chairman Amusements committee of the local Exhibition, the plan to stage a race for cars other than those manned by the big league professionals has been abandoned. "Auto racing is entirely too dangerous to take a chance of accidents to or caused by local racers," said Mr. Turner. "Consequently, there will be none other than the six events in which the visiting stars will drive."

Work of laying out and erecting the safety zones and the conditions of the course for racing will begin to-morrow under the direction of Mr. Sloan, said to be one of the most efficient officials in the auto racing sport.

Announcement of the scheduling of Peterborough's first auto race meet, with the promise of many famous dare-devils and noted racing cars in the line-up, created much interest among local dealers and garage men. Many speed fans here have travelled to Toronto and Ottawa during the past few years to witness the pilots of the modern cars of Juggernaut in action. A large crowd for the meet is predicted by local automobile men.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The explosion shot with the niblick is a necessity when the ball is in very loose sand in a trap at the green and when the rise to reach the green is some four feet or more in height. The swing of the club is not so difficult when the player understands the mechanics of it; the mere fact that the ball has to be played with an explosion shot constitutes a mental hazard that in itself ruins many attempts. Take the blade back low to the sand, give it plenty of time to turn at the top — this because the blade is very heavy—then hit hard at a point two to three inches back of the ball—and hit straight through. Care must be taken to swing the clubhead and to make it do all the work. The commonest mistake is for the player to lunge forward with the body. Avoid that—let the blade swing.

When to use the niblick—and how—is an ability at golf that often distinguishes the expert player from the golfer who finds it impossible to drop from scores in the 80's down into the 70's. the niblick or always called for when the ball is in a trap at the green, unless one condition obtains. But whether to use the nibleck or not calls for the the best of judgment. When the ball is in such a trap, the player's first query to himself should be: Can I putt it up? Next he should study whether he can "cut" it out with the niblick. If he decides this cannot be done, the explosion shot must be resorted to, but the explosion shot should always be the last means of lifting the ball out, because this shot is a hard one, always.

OLD AND NEW STONY LAKE.

By Peggy O'Shea.

REGATTA DAY at Stony Lake draws near, and as I lie in my hammock looking up towards Boschink my thoughts go back to the days when there was no regatta, there were no motor boats, no pavillion, and very few houses.

In those days Stony Lake was really a resort for Peterboro' people, and at every picnic and camp fire practically every one on the Lake took part in making the fun. Camp fires in those days meant a gathering of the clans; and while the toast was made and buttered or the marshmallows were toasted, the old College songs were sung with a gusto that was inspiring.

Though there was no pavillion for dancing, there were many dances on the verandahs and in the boat houses, where an orchestra of combs did good duty in supplying the music in the days when the "sobbing saxaphone" was unknown

The boat came up only once dailyo and its arrival was the great event of the day as it brought mail and supplies to each is landed as well as carrying the passengers. But Saturday night was the "night of nights" when the whole lake was a veritable fairy land. Passengers on the only evening boat of the week travelled from island to island where the houses were lit up by Chinese lanterns, and the glare of huge bonfires. Guests were welcomed as they stepped off the boat, with a jollity and hilarity that is noticeably lacking in these modern days.

The trip from town took much longer in the old days than it does now. As there was no store at the lake, and all supplies were brought to the islands by the boat, the round trip would have been rather tedious had it not been so full of interest. The largest delay was, however in Lakefield where all passengers had to walk from the railway station to the dock and all luggage had to be taken by horse and dray. As there was a great scarcity of horses and vehicles it was not an uncommon thing to see frenzied men and woman rushing madly after the dray calling to the driver ro return quickly for more luggage as the boat might go at any moment. It was then that the genial host of the Lakefield Hotel would come to the fore, cheering the panic stricken humans with "Land's sakes don't you be a bit a skeered. You ain't goin' to be left behind—and land's sakes there ain't no hustle on yez for the whistle haint blowed yet.!" "Mine host" of the hotel was a distinct personage in those old time days and many other single characters stand out clearly in my memory. One historic figure was "Bob McCracken" after whom McCracken's Landing has been named. Bob sold milk, had a boat for hire, could tell you the price of onions, beets and "carts" (carrots), and would end up his morning's oration with "Say ain't it funny that I had one eye tuk out and ye'd never know the difference to look at me."

Another notable personage was "Pete" Phelan a picturesque figure with his long white beard and his wide brimmed hat. At any hour of any morning in the week one was apt to hear suddenly the quick swish of a paddle in the water, as a green canoe shot into sight with the genial vendor of garden products sitting in the stern. On reaching the wharf he would announce his arrival by asking "Did yez want anny vigitubbles today?

Of course we did, and while some one went for baskets into which to empty the purchases, Pete would relate some thrilling story, or tell about Business, which was "Nivver so bad as this sayson an' thats a true word, but, be the help o' God it'll be betther next year." Then, when the baskets were filled and he was paid, "Well byes I must be goin' "—the green canoe shot out into the bay and was soon lost to sight around the corner of the island.

A summer, in the old days was considered incomplete unless the regulation number of picnics was taken to the following places—Burleigh, Perry's Creek and Lovesick Lake, Els' and Jack's Creek, Mount Julian, where from the top of the hill we could see "the hull lake" as (one of the boat captains expressed it), and on coming down could purchase red cedar souvenirs from Mr. Church who was noted for his beautiful carving; White Lake, to run the Rapids; the Blue Mountains to get the view and return thirsty and laden with chunks of mica, and, last but not least Cleggs Farm.

To reach the farm of this old sailor Clegg one had to paddle towards Gilchrist Bay, and, on landing, walking to the farm a very short distance. Mr. Clegg usually met his guests at the gaite and showed them the outside ponts of interest.

First the gate which had the injunced on it in brilliant colours—then the inscription over the chicken house which assured us that our feathered friends had "gon to rost"—Next the hectic colouring of the dog kennel which was labelled "Dog's offis," and others too numerous to mention though we cannot forbear to speak of the chef d'oeuvre, a life size figure of a frantic woman clad in scarlet gown and surmounting the house. Mr. Clegg said he had never quite made up hsi mind whether it was meant for Queen Victoria blessing her subjects, or Mrs. Clegg welcoming her visitors. Inside the house there was much to be seen as all the walls were literally covered with paintings most of them being pictures of ships, but a few showing domestic scenes.

One which particularly appealed to me as a child was entitled "The Minister's Visit" in which we beheld a very attenuated clergymen clad in strictly clerical attire and mounted on a small white steed. The reverend gentleman's feet nearly touched the ground while his head soared high above the house. He sat patiently at the front door of the farm house all unconscious of the fact that his hostess was hurriedly putting the last touches to her coiffure as she stood beside the rain barrel at the side door.

Visitors for years thronged to the Clegg farm and always received a cordial greeting and warm reception until the old man found that his works appealed to the sense of humour of some of his guests—From that day the Art Gallery was closed to strangers.

There was real Church Union in those old days and for the summer all creeds and divisions of thought were cast into the background as we met in one big body and sat "under the trees with God." There was a larger vision in some ways than then there is now and Romance seemed to breathe over all. As one lady remarked this week, "We are so civilized now, and we did love being a savage." Savage in this case being used in the sense in which David Grayson would use it.

It is hard to realize that Stony Lake is the same place as of old, but my eyes assure me that it is. The hammock swings from the self-same trees as in the long ago, the channel stretches before me in the same path, and even the old pine tree that as a child I called the "Watch Tower" is still keeping guard silently.

Yes it is the same place but how different too! And though the pleasures of the lake have changed, enjoyments throng the new days as they did the old.

Which are the best days then, the old or the new? That question I leave you to answer. As for me I am glad that I have seen and enjoyed both.

Canadian Woollens Forfeit Match To De Laval

Separator Boys Were Out in Full Force—Lost to Quakers.

Canadian Woollens soccer team lost the Peck Cup on Saturday afternoon when they forfeited the game to the De Laval at Nicholls Oval. They have had possession of this trophy for the last two years, but will have to hand it over to the winners of the Quakers vs. De Laval match that will take place at a later date. Last Monday evening the Canadian Woollens representative intimated to the Board that they could not muster a team because a number of their players were going away on a vacation, but the Executive decided by five votes to two that this Cup-tie be played, if not, the teams would be playing at the end of the year, providing weather permitted. At present, the third half of the schedule and all Cup-ties have to be played by month of October.

The De Laval team was present in full force to meet their opponents, but the Quaker Oats fulfilled the fixture as a friendly. In their line-up were Richmond (Thistle) and Burgess (Woollens) to complete their eleven, and De Laval lost the match by a few goals.

Burgess, Mitchell, Clark and Mann were the only players noticed at the Oval of the Canadian Woollens.

Burlesque Soccer A Treat For "Blues"

One Goal Each Was the Result of a Mirth Game.

Laughs! Laughs! resounded through the air at the Oval on Saturday afternoon when Danny Omellotte, as captain of the Burlesque Caledonian Soccer team trotted on to the field of play to meet the Thistle in a comedy match before a large crowd.

The conditions were that the Thistle boys play in their stocking feet while the carnival boys wore boots.

The personnel of Danny's team was: Jas. Miller (a clown) in goal; R. Gilmour (a woman, A.D. 1000), A. Milne (a flapper), A. Jackson (OldBill), D. Menzies (Soft Tam O' Shanter), H. Richmond ('oo Mull Dumper), D. Omellette (nigger wench), Geo. Lowe (giant Long Tom), A. Clark (Christy clown), A. Anderson (night Porter), and Willie Grieves (Honolulu girl).

The spectators were treated to many panks on the field of play when Night Porter upset "Avoirdupois" of the Jags; then all of a sudden Bobby lost his attire and had to beg the use of pins. Whenever the Honolulu Girl and Nigger Winch penerated the opponents' defense the Christy Clown and Long Tom got mixed up in a frasco with Tam O'Shanter in the goal mouth that caused laughter galore. In the first half the Jags led by the odd goal but the Comedians evened up the tally in the seccond morety. It was a real burlesque from start to finish while some of the "Jags" eleven complained terribly about their "bunions" and "corns" and D. Menzies stated that he was sure the Thistles would never starve. "Why, Dave?" asked Dawson. "Because they have plenty of 'corn' on their feet." Then Browell was busy figuring out how he can get the landlady to refit his hosiery after running about in his stockings. One goal each aws the "disaster."

You cannot be economical unless you know; you cannot be stylish unless you know; you cannot know unless you look for information. Read the advertisements; let them keep you au fait to the hour they are printed.

Beautiful Setting For Trent River Memorial

CAMPBELLFORD, August 11.—The floral decorations at the Trent River Memorial are receiving much favorable comment in this locality. Almost daily parties arrive to view the monument, and passing tourists stop to admire the flowers.

Much credit is due the Floral committee of the Trent River Memorial Association for the artistic manner in which the flowers have been arranged, and to George Brownsell, the local bridge tender, for his work in keeping them so well.

Last spring, C. W. Palliser, Campbellford florist, kindly donated the several beds at the memorial, and since then the local floral committee have vied with each other in knowledge and workmanship to make the spot one of the most beautiful along the Trent Canal. How well they have succeeded is a matter of daily observation.

OBITUARY.

JAS. McGIRR.
The funeral took place last week, at Balsover, of Jas. McGirr, a lifelong resident of that district.

Mr. McGirr was known in Peterboro, where he made a great many visits, in connection with his work on the Trent Canal.

He has been ailing for some years, and his death was not altogether unlooked for.

His wife, who was a sister of Mrs. P. Glover, East City, predeceased him a few years ago.

MAY ALICE MANLEY
The death occurred Sunday evening, August 9, of May Alice Manley, age 2 years and 6 months, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Manley, Drummond's Station.

Besides her parents, there are left to mourn her loss, four sisters and five brothers.

The funeral was held this afternoon to the Zion Cemetery. Rev. A. MacLaughlin of Keene officiating.

MRS. DR. FIFE.
The death has just taken place at Kenora, of Mrs. Dr. Fife, formerly of Peterborough, at the residence of her son, Mr. Ashton Fife. The deceased left Peterborough about 36 years ago. She was a daughter of the late Rev. Ashton Fletcher.

While in Peterborough she was a consistent member of George street Methodist church, and will be known by a number of the older residents of the city. The funeral will take place on Wednesday on the arrival of the noon train, C.P.R. at Indian River, and interment will be in the Fife cemetery. Further particulars will be given later.

WATERPROOFING GOLF CLUBS.
A new process for treating wooden golf clubs makes them waterproof and extremely hard. Heads of seasoned persimmon wood are subjected to a vacuum that extracts every particle of air and moisture from the wood, which then is impregnated with the newly discovered chemical. The club heads then are dried and hardened. Clubs treated in this manner are said to have greater driving power than other wooden clubs and not to shrink or expand with varying atmospheric conditions. — Popular Science Monthly for September.

Body of Woman is Found in Lake Outlet Far From Home.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Aug. 11 (Special to The Examiner).—While her relatives stout the idea of suicide, records of Acting Coroner Weiskotten in this city last Saturday afternoon showed the drowning of Miss Lilly Rill, aged 38, sister of Mrs. Thomas Hoyt of Peterborough, Ont., in Skaneateles Lake outlet, Friday afternoon, as "probable suicide."

Miss Rill will be buried Monday afternoon here in Lakeview Cemetery. Funeral services will be held from the late home of deceased at 3 o'clock.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Industrials Active On Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, August 11. — Canadian Press. — The active market continued on the Toronto stock exchange to-day with industrials receiving more attention than for some time. Canada Bread, Smelters and F. N. Burt were all heavily dealt in, with Brazilian counting the heaviest transactions in the list. Brazilian advanced two at 60; Canada Bread 2 3-4 at 52½ following its big advance of yesterday; F. N. Burt strengthened 5-8 at 69 5-8 and Bread B preferred improved a ½ point.

Consolidated Smelters suffered a recession of a point a 113, rallying to that mark from 112 during the session. Barcelona and sugar preferred weer fractionally lower.

In heavy dealings Keeley Mines dropped 4 at 180.

Oils and Motors Open Weak But Market Swings Back

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Selling of oils based on announcement of another cut in Pennsylvania crude, and heavy liquidation of public utilities on announcement of Samuel Insull of Chicago that many of them were selling too high gave Wall Street market reactionary appearance during first hour. Motors also were subjected to selling pressure as result of additional automobile price cuts. Early losses of two to nearly three points were recorded by Pan-American a and b International Telephone, Havana electric, Midland steel products preferred and Mack trucks.

Strong buying support was not long in forthcoming and the general list was again headed upward before noon. General Railway Signal extended its gain to 17 3-4 points before mid-day, General Baking to 6 3-4, General Electric to 5, while Baldwin, Ward Baking B and American Linseed sold two to three points above yesterday's final quotations. Despite the threatened anthracite strike, strong demand developed for eastern coalers, Lackawanna rising three points, reading 1 1-2 and Lehigh Valley 1. Frisco common and Chesapeake and Ohio mounted to new peak prices for year. Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent.

American Crop Reports Depressed Chicago Pit Recovered Toward Noon

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Wheat prices plunged wildly downward today with traders giving attention at most entirely to United States and Canadian government crop reports. Both of these reports were a source of astonishment to the trade; United States reporting in particular showing about 20,000,000 bushels more wheat likely to be harvested in this country than has recently been looked for. After the first rush of selling had somewhat subsided, though, buying broadened out and substantia recovery was witnessed. Chicago opening prices, 2 5-8 to 5 7-8 lower; Sept. 160 3-4 to 162 and Dec. 158 1-2 to 160-1-2, were followed by a reaction to 162-1-2 for Sept., and 160 5-8 for Dec.

Corn and Oats weakened owing to sympathy with the severe break in wheat prices. The government report as to corn, however, was construed as bullish and corn prices soon scored a material upturn. After opening at 1-8 to 1-2c, decline, Sept. 104 7-8 to 105, corn rose all around.

Sept. touched 106 1-2, oats started at 1-4 to 5-8c set back, Sept. 41 3-8 to 41 1-2 and showed but little power to rally.

In line with hog values, the provision market was easy.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,— You publish in Wednesday's issue a portrait of James Simpson of Toronto, with the underwritten comment that he thinks Canada will soon be a Socialistic State. Mr. Simpson was the delegate of the Socialists of Toronto to the recent world congress in London, Eng. Socialism is the taking over by the state of private enterprise as in the case of government railways, hydro, etc., etc., and Simpson was able to show that the people of Canada had done more than those of any other country towards becoming Socialists. Canadians have always scouted the name, but not being observers and thinkers they were like the Frenchman who talked prose without knowing it. We have become Socialists without knowing it. In 20 years all our large enterprises will be managed by our governments. As the voters rule the governments, it is easy to see that the mass of the people will own and manage the great enterprises. Then will come the small ones. The one element that has heretofore been lacking to making Socialism possible in America was the recognition of force as excusable where its objects are for the public benefit. Prohibition supplied the want and filled up the gap. Hence we may see business of all kinds taken over whether the owners want to sell or not, and the people who pay the taxes, providing employment when needed and at suitable rates, etc. The moral effect of Socialism, as of prohibition, is bad. It cuts out the development of private character without which a nation will soon go back to barbarism. Britain has withstood nationalization (public ownership), but she too, is giving way. The first thing to get the effects of the new birth so soon as nationalization is recognized as the future principle of economic society, will be the retail trade. It will become a vast series of government departmental stores to save the present spread. However, people will, in losing private enterprise, know that they voted for it. Ultimately the state will provide capital, not by means of deposits because there will be none but by means of taxes. In the last stage people will have no private property but be the creatures of those in power.

SUN GAZER FORECASTS WEATHER
Once every day for more than a year, Henry H. Clayton, meteorologist, formerly official weather forecaster in Argentine, has been looking at the sun through a telescope and forecasting from what he has seen there the temperature of the day one week following, in New York City. He mails his predictions to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington the day he makes them.

Recently in checking up his method of forecasting weather by the sun, says Popular Science Monthly for September, Smithsonian computers announced, that for the year Clayton's predictions, on the average, worked out remarkably well. Bright patches on the sun, called 'faculae," or numerous sun-spots, mean that a hotter sun is coming, Clayton explains. An increase in solar heating, contrary to what one might expect, means cooler weather in the east.

EARS GROW TIRED, TOO
The human ear apparently becomes physically tired, assert Prof. Albert Sidney Langfield, director of the laboratory of experimental psychology at Princeton University. By means of radio apparatus, Professor Langfield led the sound from oscillating vaccum tubes to head phones that were adjusted until the wearer declared the sounds reached each ear with absolutely equal volume. Then one phone was removed and the hearer required to listen with one ear for a minute. At the end of that time both phones were used again, and invariably the subject reported hearing the sounds more loudly in the ear to which the phone just had been added.—September
